BRITAIN'S PROTEST

CONDEMNS RUSSIAN ACTION

Premier Balfour Says It Is a Breach of International Law—Apology and Reparation Will Be Firmly Demanded —No Justification For Sinking— The Russian Contentions— The Skirmish Released.

London, July 28.—The British Government sent instructions to Sir Charles Hardinge, the British Ambassador to Russia, yesterday to energetically protest against the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander by the Russian Vladivostock squadron. Until the presentation of the note to the Russian Government the greatest secrecy will be maintained regarding its contents, but it is known that Premier Balfour and his colleagues have decided to demand that the fullest reparation shall be made by Russia or measures will be taken to follow up the diplomatic demands.

Indemnity and Apology.

The British note, as Sir Charles Hardinge will submit it, will not mention the amount of indemnity Russia may pay the owners of the ship and British subjects having goods on board the vessel, but all that will be sought will be the establishment of the principle of indemnity and apology. A salute of the British flag must also be conceded, and the future protection of neutral shipping assured.

No Justification For Sinking.

The attitude of the British Government is the result of the thorough consideration given to the reports received from Sir Claude Macdonald, the British Minister at Tokio, and the examination of international law authorities by legal experts. The despatches from Sir Claude Macdonald confirm the reports that the Knight Commander had no contraband of war on board for Japan. The Government and all the British authorities, it is asserted, unite on the point that there was no justification for the sinking of the vessel.

It is felt in Government circles that the Knight Commander incident overshadows the Red Sea seizures, which practically have been adjusted, but which have failed to settle the question of the rights of neutral commerce.

The Russian Contentions.

No representations have been made by Count Benckendorff, the Russian Ambassador to Great Britain, to Foreign Secretary Lansdowne regarding the Knight Commander, the Ambassador not having received advices from St. Petersburg on the subject, nor is it seen by the Russian diplomats how it is possible for their Government to make a prompt answer to the British demands. It is not known when the Vladivostock squadron will return to port. The commander of the squadron, it is pointed out, unquestionably seized the papers of the vessel, including her manifest, and therefore will be able to present reasons to show why they sank the ship, and the Russian authorities thus will be able to answer the British representations. In the opinion of these diplomats the cargo of the Knight Commander included contraband of war, under the Russian declaration. The bridgework is said to have been destined for the Fusan-Seoul railroad, which the Japanese are building for military purposes. The Russian declaration also announces that rice and other foodstuffs are contraband if sent at the enemy's cost or order. Attention is specifically called to the feature of the declaration saying that "neutral ships with contraband of war of any sort can be not only seized, but also confiscated." If the ship can be confiscated it is contended she can be sunk as well. While Russia holds that her declaration has never been seriously questioned, the British authorities claim that the British Ambassador at St. Petersburg first specifically reserved the rights of his Government in case of an emergency arising and, later, filed objections against the various provisions of the declaration. The United States also reserved her rights when acknowledging the receipt of the Russian declaration. The British authorities are persistent in their desire to induce the United States to make a declaration of its policy in the protection of commerce, but nothing has yet been done, so far as known here.

Prepared to Act.

Washington, July 28.—The State Department has finally received a formal protest against the action of the Russian navy in seizing American goods, and as a result of its preliminary study of the law and precedents governing the subject, it is prepared to act energetically and promptly. This protest relates to the seizure of an American steamer Arabia, bound from Portland, Ore., for Hong Kong, China.

Two Others Released.

Suez, July 28.—The Peninsula & Oriental Steamship Co.'s steamer Formosa, which was captured in the Red Sea by the volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk, and which arrived here Tuesday flying the Russian naval flag and with a prize crew on board, has been released. The Hamburg-American liner steamer Holsatia, which arrived here yesterday morning, also having on board a prize crew, has likewise been released.

Malacca Surrendered.

Algiers, July 28.—After a protracted conference on board the Malacca between the British and Russian Consuls and Captain Schwarts, commanding the prize crew, it was announced that the Russian flag would be replaced by the British at 6 o'clock last evening.

Without Colors.

Perim, Red Sea, July 28.—Two Russian vessels, supposed to be the volunteer fleet steamers St. Petersburg and Smolensk, passed here yesterday morning, bound for Jibutil, French Somaliland. They showed no colors.

Delayed By Russians.

Island of Perim, Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, July 28.—The British steamer City of Agra (last reported at Liverpool for Kurrachee), passed here yesterday, and signalled that she had been delayed by a Russian warship in the Red Sea.

Breach of International Law.

London, July 28.—That the British Government regards the sinking of the steamer Knight Commander as a breach of international law was confirmed by Premier Balfour in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. Answering questions regarding the destruction of the Knight Commander and the seizure of the Malacca and other vessels, the Premier said he hoped to be in a position to make a brief statement regarding the Malacca to-day. As to the sinking of the Knight Commander, he "regretted that information which reached me this morning confirmed this regrettable occurrence." Mr. Balfour added: "There is no question of loss of life, but I am afraid there is a question of a breach of international law."

Questions at Issue Discussed.

A lengthy meeting of the Defence Committee took place yesterday under the Presidency of Premier Balfour, at which the Attorney-General, Sir Robert Finlay, was present. The Attorney-General does not usually attend these meetings, but it was stated that the questions at issue between Russia and Great Britain were under discussion and that Sir Robert was called in to advise as to the question of international law involved.

Navy Getting Ready.

London, July 28.—It was reported yesterday that all orders for the British naval manoeuvres have been countermanded, that the various squadrons have been ordered not to move, that all leave of absences have been cancelled, and that officers and men on furlough have been recalled. The home and channel fleets had already been moved into a position to undertake important manoeuvres. This report was later denied on Government authority.

DMITRI DOUSKOI COALED.

She Then Stopped Twice and Seized Several Ships.

London, July 28.—Thomas Gibson Bowles (Conservative) will ask Premier Balfour in the House of Commons to-day if the Government is aware that the Russian armored cruiser Dmitri Donskoi, after being allowed to take five hundred tons of coal at Port Said, and after her captain had given his word of honor that he would proceed at once and by the direct route to Cadiz, remained off Port Said and stopped and examined six vessels which were about to enter the canal, and a few days later repeated the stoppage off Alexandria. Mr. Bowles also wants to know what steps the Government will take to prevent belligerent ships securing at British ports "coal to be used in operations of war."

Safeguard the Children

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Rigga, of Franklinville, N.Y., in speaking of this remedy, said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard, and while especially beneficial to children it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by all druggists.

CANADA'S LABOR LAW.

James H. Bacon Proceeded Against For Alleged Violation.

Port Arthur, July 28.—R. G. Chamberlain, secret service agent of the Dominion of Canada, served warrants Tuesday on James H. Bacon, calling for the arrest and deportation of that gentleman on the ground that he has violated the alien labor law of Canada in coming into this country within a year from this date from the United States under contract with J. R. Stephens, chief engineer of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The warrant is signed by the Attorney-General of Canada and is dated July 18, 1904. Mr. Bacon at once retained the services of Mr. Keefer to fight the case in the courts, and also requested the U.S. Vice-Consul at Fort William to wire the State Department at Washington through the proper channels to take the necessary steps to secure a proper trial of the case in the Canadian courts.

Mr. Keefer, acting for Mr. Bacon, has applied to the courts in Toronto for a writ of habeas corpus and requested the Attorney-General to grant a stay of proceedings until his application can be heard, and it is said the stay has been granted. Mr. Bacon is a graduate of Harvard University, a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and was an officer of the 3rd U. S. Volunteer Regiment during the Spanish-American war.

Mr. W. E. Talbot, of Talbot Bros., tobacco merchants, 362 George street, Peterborough, states: —"It is from a desire to help other sufferers that I offer a statement of my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for Itching Piles. I was for a long time troubled with this unpleasant and torturing disease and though I tried very many treatments remained uncured until I came across Dr. Chase's Ointment. It was highly recommended to me, and I find that every word of praise is true. I can truthfully say that I am completely cured and knowing the misery that the ailment produces, I am anxious for others to know of the surprising virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Troubles Coal Region.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 28.—Yesterday afternoon Carroll D. Wright, umpire of the Anthracite Conciliation Board, decided that the coal companies would have to deduct from the wages of employes when a majority so decided an amount sufficient to pay the wages of checkmen and docking bosses. The companies protested against the decision, contending that they could not deduct legally from employes' wages.

To Change Motive Power.

Port Huron, Mich., July 28.—The management of the Grand Trunk Railway system and of the St. Clair tunnel have at last determined upon a change of motive power in the tunnel to electricity. Work will at once commence for the installation of the plant, which will mean an investment of $400,000. The third rail system is to be used.

Dr. Osler Honored.

London, July 28.—(C.A.P.)—Oxford University yesterday conferred the degree of D.Sc. honoris causa upon Dr. William Osler of Baltimore. It was intended to confer the same degree on Dr. Thomas George Roddick of Montreal, but last month he telegraphed that he would be unable to attend through the illness of a near relative.

THE GREGORY CASE

House of Commons Discussed It on Wednesday.

COLONEL OTTER ATTACKED

How Col. Gregory Tried to Retain His Command—Mr Frederick Borden's Reply Had Great Force and Power— Mr. R. L. Borden Upheld Col. Gregory—But Opposition Did Not Challenge Vote.

Ottawa, July 28.—The House had no preliminaries yesterday morning, but plunged at once into the orders of the day.

On again going into committee on Mr. Fitzpatrick's bill to amend the Dominion Elections Act, 1900, Mr. R. L. Borden led in objections to holding elections at a subsequent date to the general elections in a number of ridings which were designated because of their inaccessibility. He specially mentioned Kootenay as having better facilities than others.

In reply to Mr. Blain's assurance that Nipissing was now much better opened up, the Minister of Justice said he would drop that riding from the provision.

Mr. W. L. Galliher (Yale-Cariboo) said Kootenay comprised a territory of nine ridings for the Local Legislature, and it was a physical impossibility for the returning officer to cover the territory in the time at his disposal.

Mr. R. G. Macpherson pointed out that Comox-Atlin was even worse, being 1,500 miles in length.

Mr. W. H. Bennett asked that there be no provision for delay in the Algomas, and Mr. Clancy pointing out that Manitoulin Island in the east riding was the part most difficult of access at certain seasons, Mr. Fitzpatrick agreed to drop West Algoma from this provision also.

Mr. Galliher said that to cover Kootenay in time a man would need wings.

Mr. W. R. Brock said commercial men find no difficulty in getting through the riding.

"In a Pullman car," observed Mr. Galliher.

Mr. Brock urged that all the elections be held on one day.

After some further discussion the committee reported progress and will sit again to get further information on the British Columbia constituencies.

Mr. Fitzpatrick's bill to amend the Representation Act, 1903, by making several minor amendments, which have been previously explained, was passed through the committee stage and reported.

The House then went into committee on the bill giving further powers to the arbitrators who are adjudicating a dispute between His Majesty and the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada respecting a portion of track east of Quebec. The bill was still under consideration when the House rose at 1 o'clock.

Col. Gregory's Retirement.

The retirement of Lieut.-Col. Gregory from the command of the Second Dragoons, St. Catharines, was the subject of a lengthy discussion in the House yesterday on the initiative of Mr. E. A. Lancaster, but the debate collapsed without the Opposition moving any amendment or challenging the action of the Government other than by denunciatory speeches.

Mr. Lancaster read a letter from Col. Gregory, which, after reciting evidence already made public, accused Col. Otter of having been urged by somebody else with political motives in recommending the promotion of Major Glasgow as second in command. Sir Frederick Borden replied with great force and power. He declared that Col. Gregory had been trying to keep himself in command by recommending Major Ferguson, who was unfit for the position by loss of voice, as second in command, and refusing to recommend the promotion of Major Glasgow, as in that case the latter would be fit to succeed him as commanding officer. Sir Frederick denounced Col. Gregory's action as not at all in the interests of the militia or the people of Canada. Mr. R. L. Borden upheld Col. Gregory's position, and, after some further speeches, the House went into Committee of Supply, passing harbors and rivers votes for P. E. I., New Brunswick, Ontario and Quebec items amounting to $1,085,950.

Canada's Preparedness.

Ottawa, July 28.—Senator Perley asked in the Upper House yesterday for a statement showing the military strength of the Government of Canada in so far as it relates to ammunition, rifles and other weapons of warfare, where and in what proportions are such stored. Hon. W. R Scott replied that it had been held improper to give information. There are 32,000 Lee-Enfield rifles in the hands of the regiments and rifle clubs and 456 rifles and 815 carbines in reserve.

OLIVE KIDD'S BODY FOUND AT NOON

About Two Hundred Yards Below Scene of Accident.

Searching Party Successful at Last in Their Sad Task.

After searching for three nights and two days, the body of the late Olive Kidd was found at noon to-day. The searching party has been working almost continuously since the time of the sad accident, but until to-day no trace of the body could be discovered. Hope was almost dispaired of when yesterday dynamite was used unsuccessfully to raise the body, and it was the general opinion that the current was sufficiently strong to carry the body down the river and that it would not be found until after nine days. But another effort was made to-day with successful results, the body being found by a boy on the east side of the river about 200 yards below the spot where the accident occurred. It was quite close to the spot where the late Mr. Hambidge's body was found several years ago.

A telephone message was sent to Comstock's undertaking establishment and the remains were brought to town this afternoon.

Upon going to press the arrangements for the funeral had not been made.

COMMENCED IN ENGLAND, COMPLETED IN CANADA.

Interesting Wedding of a Well Known Local Gentleman.

An event of considerable local interest was the wedding yesterday afternoon in St. John's church, of Mr. L. A. Halley, to Miss Lillian May Milliard, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson. The wedding was a quiet one, only a few friends of the contracting parties witnessing the pleasing event.

The groom is quite well and favourably known in Peterborough, having lived here for over a year, and in that time he has made many friends who join in extending to the young couple a hearty wish for their happy future. Mr. Halley is a member of the 57th Band, and is also attached to St. John's choir, where his musical abilities are highly appreciated. He is a lover of good sport, having been largely instrumental in inaugurating the movement which resulted in the formation of the Old Country Wanderers Football Club.

The bride has but recently become a resident of Peterborough, having come here from England a short time ago. The friendship which has so happily eventuated in her marriage, was begun in England, before Mr. Halley's departure from that country. They will live here.

ROYAL TEMPLARS' MOONLIGHT A SUCCESS.

Enjoyable Time Down the River Last Evening

The moonlight excursion under the auspices of the Royal Templars of Temperance down the river last evening was a most successful affair. The City of Peterborough, which was chartered for the occasion, was well filled with a merry crowd, and the occasion was thoroughly enjoyed. The boat sailed about six miles down the river in the light of the full moon, and was very pleasant. The wharf was reached about 11 o'clock on the return trip.

OVER THE LIFT LOCK AND DOWN THE RIVER.

Mann's Planing Mill Employees' Successful Outing.

Yesterday the employees of Mann's planing mill ran a very successful excursion by the new steamer Sovereign. About 125 were on board, and the trip was greatly enjoyed. The boat left the C.P.R. wharf at 7.30 o'clock, and went through the Lift Lock, and up the canal as far as dam No. 3. The boat then returned and ran down the river as far as Jubilee, where a short stop was made. A start for Peterborough was made at 7.30, the wharf being reached at 10.30 o'clock.

The excursionists were pleased with the splendid treatment that they received from the boat hands and Captain Snyder. The boat rode very steadily and gave the best of satisfaction.

STREET RAILWAY BY MIDDLE OF AUGUST.

Peterborough's Street Railway System Will be in Operation Then.

Extensions to the System Being Made —Jackson Park Line to be Commenced Next Week.

Peterborough will be served with a street car line about the third week in August. This is the statement made this morning by Mr. Learmouth, the manager of the company, to the Examiner. The system could be operated at an earlier date, were it not for the fact that the cars cannot be procured before that time. At the present time there is a large force of men employed completing the bonding of the track already laid, and completing the line of the old railway, and as soon as the cars arrive this portion will be put into operation.

The old cars used by the defunct railway have all been fitted up, and now look almost like new, but they will not be put into use until the new ones arrive, when a good service will be inaugurated.

It had been hoped that the line would be in operation by August 1st, in time for the summer meet of the Turf Club, but this has been found impossible, but this much is assured, that we will be able to ride to the fall fair on the street cars.

Not only will the old system be restored in its entirety, but new extensions will be made to it.

A branch running from the Exhibition Grounds to the river will be built, and next week work will be commenced on the line to Jackson Park, by way of Park street. The rails are already on the ground, and it will be only a matter of a few weeks until the line to the park will be completed.

When asked as to the truth of the report that the company were negotiating for the old right of way of the G.T.R. to Chemong, Mr. Learmouth remarked that such a course had not been considered as yet by the company. Their first care will be to provide a thoroughly modern service to the town, and extensions to Chemong and Lakefield will be a later consideration. The Examiner is informed from another source that in all probability the company will in the future construct or buy a line to Lakefield.

TWENTY-NINE NATIONS WERE REPRESENTED.

An Interview With Mr. M. J. Greene.

Was a Delegate to the International Congress of Salvation Army.

A representative of the Examiner had a conversation to-day with Mr. J. Mendell Greene, bandmaster of the Salvation Army Band in town, and who returned on Sunday from attending the great International Congress, of the Salvation Army, in London, Eng. It was a wonderful gathering of Christian workers in the old city, which cannot but profit by the good influences which must have been felt by the throngs which attended the meetings, outside of those who were Salvationists.

Mr. Greene sailed on the Ionian, on June 10th, with the Canadian delegation, 300 strong. Those from Peterborough, beside Mr. Greene, were Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Braund, and Staff-Captain McNamara, who have not yet returned. The sail across the ocean was a somewhat rough one for the first four days, and seasickness was the prevalent feature. Liverpool was reached on the 19th, and the train which conveyed the party from Liverpool to London was the largest which has ever run between these two great centres.

At London, between six and seven thousand delegates from all parts of the world, thronged the city to attend the great congress. The fact that forty-nine countries were represented is significant of the great extent of the work of the Salvation Army. The War Cry, the Army's paper, is at present printed in forty-two languages. Delegates were present from Canada, the United States, India, Ceylon, Japan, South America, South Africa, Norway, Sweden, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France, Turkey, Austria, Mexico, Hawaii Islands, Bermuda, New Zealand, Alaska, the Kloodyke, Ireland, Scotland and many other countries, making a most representative gathering.

The first demonstration was on June 24th, when a reception to the visiting delegates took place in the Royal Albert Hall. General Booth addressed the gathering in words of warm welcome, and read messages from King Edward and the Lord Mayor of London, who also sent words of welcome. Meetings were held three times daily for about two weeks in several of the largest halls in the city, and every day the buildings were crowded and often thousands of people were turned away. On one Sunday Mr. Greene attended the meetings at the Congress, Salvation Army Hall, which has a seating capacity of over 5,000; it is here that the officers undergo training. At the afternoon service the doors were closed to the public some time before the opening of the service, and in the evening at 6.30 o'clock the building was crowded, and it was estimated that fully 15,000 were outside unable to gain admission. In order to draw the crowds away bands were despatched to the various parks in the vicinity.

An International Hall was erected for the Congress on the Strand to accommodate about 6000 people. As is well known the Strand is one of the most thickly populated parts of the city, but recently the City Council ordered that the old buildings on several of the blocks should be torn down, as they were in a very bad condition, and permission was given to erect the International Hall, a temporary building, which was afterwards sold to an outside company.

The Canadian Band, composed of 28 pieces, and of which Mr. Greene was a member, was under the directorship of Staff-Capt. Morris of Toronto. The band from Canada had the honour of being the second one which has ever played in the Victoria Gardens on the Thames embankment. The band was highly complimented upon its playing by one of the English band critics, who was not a Salvationist. The Canadian Band and delegation was also honoured by being privileged to parade on the Strand and on Fleet street, two of the busiest streets in London, and where it is almost impossible to stop the traffic. During their stay in London, the Canadian delegation was taken to the Hadleigh Farm Colony, about twenty miles from the city; all manner of farming is done here, the Colony covering over 3,000 acres. It was a most interesting sight to the visitors and the little outing was one of great enjoyment.

On the 5th of July, a great demonstration was held at the Crystal Palace when about 100,000 Salvationists and 20,000 friends were gathered in the huge building and outside it. Some idea of the size of the Palace can be imagined when on the platform alone were seated 5,000 bandsmen, comprising 200 different bands. The hall was packed to the doors at the evening meeting. In the afternoon there was a march past the General, over 50,000 being in the procession.

On July 8th a farewell meeting for the visiting delegates was held in the Royal Albert Hall. The music for this event was supplied by the International Band of London, a very fine organization. The meeting was a very impressive one. The flags of every nation represented were raised in turn in the centre of the building, after the General had hoisted the Salvation Army flag. The idea brought out was that each nation was becoming more and more to feel the influence of the Army, and the ceremony was a most impressive one. Lord Roseborough, Lord and Lady Aberdeen and many other people of note attended this farewell meeting.

General Booth, though now well advanced in years, displayed remarkable vigour throughout the sessions, speaking three times daily to vast gatherings. His son, Chief of Staff, Bramwell Booth, was also a prominent worker. Each country was represented by commissioners and their chief assistants. The commissioner from Canada was Miss Eva Booth, and the chief assistant, Col. Jacobs.

The Congress was an event of great importance and cannot fail to impress upon the world at large the extensiveness and success of the work which is being so nobly undertaken by the Salvation Army.

Mr. Greene sailed for home on the Lake Erie, leaving Liverpool on July 11th, arriving in Montreal last Saturday. The sail over was a most delightful one.

It is just ten years since a somewhat similar Congress was held in London and it is pleasing to note that during that time, the Army has greatly increased its ranks and is now stronger than ever.

TRAIN SERVICE ON THE NEW RAILWAY.

Bobcaygeon Will be Connected With C. P. R. Commencing on Monday.

Two Trains Each Way Daily Except Sunday—An Inspection To-day.

On Monday August 1st, the new railway line to Bobcaygeon will be officially opened to traffic, and a regular service will that day be inaugurated. A train will leave Bobcaygeon in the morning connecting with the local going west at Burketon. This train will leave Burketon upon the arrival of the morning express from the west. It will leave Bobcaygeon again for Burketon to connect with the train which leaves here at 5.10 p.m., and will wait there until the arrival of the local coming east, when it will return to Bobcaygeon. This will give these connected with that line two trains each way daily except Sunday, when there will be no trains.

While the official opening of the newly constructed branch of the C.P.R. from Burketon to Bobcaygeon, does not take place until Monday next, invitations have been extended to a number of railway men and representatives of business interests for a complimentary trip over the line to-day, leaving Toronto by special train at 9.15 a.m. General Superintendent Timmerman will be one of those in charge.

Mr. Timmerman stated last night that he had received a report from the Government engineer who inspected the road on Monday last. The report mentions everything is satisfactory.

THE PAST AND PRESENT

GRAPHIC PEN PICTURE OF HEART OF THE KOOTENAIS.

Vast Mineral Wealth—Men Just a Little Too Eager to Develop It—Do Not Wish to Leave Anything for the Present Generation—Stories of the Coming of the White Man Into the Great West.

The other day I was talking to Father Folchi, one of the old Jesuit missionaries among the Colville Indians, writes P. A. O'Farrell from Nelson, B. C., in The Globe. Father Folchi was brought up and educated at Rome, while as yet the triple crown of the Papacy meant more than nominal sovereignty. It was amid the relics and ruins of a mighty past that he received the inspiration to go forth and bring the light of truth and religion to the savages that infested the valleys and wild fastnesses of the Rocky Mountains fifty years ago. How few people of our time realize the extent of the savagery and barbarism that reigned supreme over the entire northwest only half a century ago. Washington Irving's "Astoria" is a graphic picture of what the Pacific northwest was in the early decades of the nineteenth century. It was into that country which Irving painted from life that Fr. de Smet and Fr. Ravalli and Fr. Folchi penetrated. Irving's picture of things that were looks today weird, terrible, incredible and impossible, and yet a truer picture was never painted by poet or artist. Fr. Folchi saw and knew the northwest as Irving saw it, and he has lived to see the Pacific northwest transformed into commonwealths richer and more prosperous than any ever before given to the sons of men.

The Mysterious West.

When Father Folchi was a student at Rome he heard tales of hunters and trappers that had penetrated the gorges of the Rockies and had discovered great lakes of magnificent extent and beauty hidden away amid mountains of sublime proportions, whose brows were crowned with everlasting snows. In his mind's eye he saw the wandering savage in his skiff or canoe wafted o'er these lakes, unconscious of their beauty, and ignorant of all the mysteries of life and time. The trapper and the hunter and the prospector had penetrated those wilds and had seen those lakes, glaciers, mountains and rushing rivers that sweep along to the mighty sea. But no messenger bearing the glad tidings of the Gospel of the Prince of Peace had as yet spoken to the wild and savage tribes that hunted and killed in the great territory drained by the Columbia River. Nobody knew whether the Arrow Lakes or Kootenai Lake were British or American territory; in fact, nobody cared. The British claimed everything west and north of the Columbia, and the Americans claimed everything south of 53 degrees 40 minutes. The Democrats won the elections of 1856 on the strength of the cry that they would insist that the British should relinquish everything south of 53 degrees 40 minutes. But the southern Democrats did not want any more free soil territory added to the Union; and they got the Democratic Administration of Buchanan to back down and yield everything to Great Britain north of the forty-ninth parallel of latitude.

Neither Knew Nor Cared.

When that agreement was made the American Government of the day did not care three green gooseberries about the whole country north and west of Montana. The British Government of the day cared just as little. Lord Palmerston's head was busy making history in Europe and conspiring for a united Italy, and Buchanan was endeavoring to steer the republic clear of the terribly ominous cloud that then threatened to deluge it with blood. Had America persisted Britain might have consented to a boundary line three hundred miles north of the present one. Had Britain steadfastly desired it Buchanan's Administration would have yielded up the present State of Washington and the greater part of Idaho and Montana. Had America so desired the vast coal deposits of the Crow's Nest Pass, the great silver-lead mines of the Kootenais, and the great gold and copper lodes of Rossland and Boundary would have all been in America and not Canadian territory. The Fraser River, and the Island of Vancouver, and the great harbor that is now the western terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, were so near becoming American that another bottle of champagne or another good dinner might have made them so. And Spokane and Seattle and Tacoma came equally near being British. None of them existed then. The fellows who drew the boundary treaty had no more idea of the momentous importance of that treaty than Adam had of the effects that followed his disobedience. And all this juggling with a boundary took place less than fifty years ago, when my friend Father Folchi was getting ready for his career in the Pacific northwest. Now look at the transformation. Under the benign influence of the Jesuits the bloodthirsty Crows, the fiercely murderous Flatheads, the treacherous Coeur d'Alenes, the Colville and the Kootenai Indians have all abandoned barbarism and bloodshed for the calm pursuits of a domestic, pastoral and agricultural life. The Governments of both the United States and Canada have aided, and good men of other religions have helped to redeem the redman, but neither the United States nor Canada can do much for the redman now. He is doomed to speedy and utter extinction. Some strange, mysterious fate pursues him. The fierce, exulting, lusty savage whose valor won the admiration of heroic men fifty years ago, is a shrinking, timid, helpless creature now. There is no fire nor light in his eye, no vigor in his arm, no spring in his step; he knows his race is doomed and dying, and that all that priest or King can do is to soothe the lot of the children of this dying race.

Coming of the Whites.

And now look at the other picture: The transformation which the white man has effected in this country. "I recollect well," says Fr. Folchi, "my first view of the falls of the Spokane River. The Spokane Indians were accustomed to meet near the falls for a trade or a war dance. I arrived by the falls just before one of those meetings. There was not a hut, nor a cabin, nor a white man in the whole country. I never will forget the loneliness that reigned around those glorious falls then; it was awe-inspiring, and the thunderous rush of the waters was music in itself." And now look at Spokane, the great city that has grown up around the leaping waters of the great falls. It is a more beautiful and better city than the Rome of the Popes. It has better hotels, more comfortable homes, more lovely villas, and all the necessaries and luxuries of life in far greater abundance than any city in Italy. And it has all sprung up as if by magic in a night. And Father Folchi is wondering if it be all a dream. And when he speeds through the country in a palace car, and visits Northport, Rossland, Greenwood and Nelson, and Slocan City and Cranbrook, and sees on every side the mill and the smelter and the factory, he marvels at the changes. He did not think he would live to see the day when eastern Washington would become one vast panorama of wheat fields, orchards and meadows; and he has seen that day. The wilderness of his youth he has seen transformed into the most prosperous farming country on the continent. How could he have dreamed that in his own time he would see grow up on Puget Sound cities that would yet rival Liverpool and Venice? But Seattle and Tacoma are mighty cities already. They are not yet of age, but they forge ahead like young giants.

Vast Mineral Wealth.

And then look at the wealth this wonderful country is producing. Why, there is more coal and iron and copper and lead and silver and gold in the Yale and Kootenai districts than were known to exist in the world at the beginning of the last century. Montana within a generation has produced one thousand million in copper, gold and silver. Idaho has produced almost an equal amount in gold and lead and silver; and the vast extent of British Columbia's deposits of gold and copper and silver and lead and iron and coal is but now dawning on the knowledge of Canadians. The development of the mineral resources of British Columbia is but in its infancy. Up-to-date methods and up-to-date men and large capital are needed here. They are not as plentiful as leaves in Valambrosia; but they will come in time. This country is still developing too fast. The present generation seems to leave nothing for the next generation to do. But when I talk with men like Father Folchi, and look back at the development and growth of this marvellous country, I myself am amazed. It has been my fate to wander in many lands and climes, to study social, religious and political conditions in many nations and in many countries, and I am free to confess that I believe that the best country ever given by God to man lies west of the eastern spur of the Rockies and north of Utah and California. In richness of soil and variety of productions it is unsurpassed upon the globe. Its climate is the most salubrious and invigorating of any in all the world, and in picturesqueness and grandeur of scenery it has no parallel on this planet of ours. Its magnificent lakes, its glorious rivers, its sublime mountains, stand alone. And already is gathered here a race of men as broad-minded, as liberal and progressive as any that ever shaped the destiny of a country or of a nation.

It is all these facts that make me believe that the Pacific northwest will in time become the home of the most enlightened people in the world, and that it will also be the Mecca of artists, poets and painters, who will seek here the inspiration of imperishable works of nature.

Value of Sadness.

Life, to be deep and strong, must be touched and tempered by sadness, as sunlight is sweetest when softened by shadows; as music, to be melodious, must have a minor chord in it. To make a feature of the face on the canvass more prominent, the artist just deepens the shadows about it. This is what Heine meant by saying, "The nightingale sings sweetest with its breast against a thorn;" what Seneca meant by saying, "The very gods look down and smile with approval upon a good man struggling with adversity;" what Paul means when he tells us, "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth;" what any man who will write a philosophy of history must mean as he points to Greece, Switzerland, and Scotland, where men have wrested a scanty sustenance from a stubborn soil, as the homes of great, famous men and liberty. Every individual who has to wrestle in the dark with the angel of life, alone, for his blessing, is the gainer, though, as in the case of Jacob, there may be a wrench given to the very bones. It should never be lost sight of that the chief end of man here on this earth is not happiness, but character. Somehow, God seems to be more interested in what is right than in what is easy, or pleasant, or even popular.

Intelligent Luggage.

One of the American officers following the movements of the Japanese army in Corea is Col. McCrowder, who has traveled much in Europe, and tells a good story of his own expense, illustrating the sang-froid of the London station porter. On one occasion he boarded the Newhaven train at Victoria, and just as it was gliding off he saw the porter trundling his luggage in the opposite direction "Hi, porter!" he shouted. "Why didn't you put my luggage in here as I told you?"

"Your luggage," said the porter, coolly, "is better informed than yourself. You're in the wrong train!"—Montreal Witness.

Popularity Grows Despite Criticism.

Lord Kitchener's army orders were the subject of criticism in India, but his personal popularity goes on growing. Contrary to all expectations, he is a great success socially. The man of iron turns out to be the most perfect host that a very fastidious society can remember. The organization of his parties is a theme of constant wonder. He supervises the most minute detail of decoration as if it were a piece of strategy. He knows exactly who can contribute to the entertainment of his guests, and what they can contribute with the greatest satisfaction to themselves. And he congratulates them in precisely the terms which gratify them the most. Men and women are alike amazed at the more than feminine tact of this masculine genius. Since his accident Lord Kitchener has grown stouter from the lack of physical exercise, but his energy in the management of everything, from the army to the shape of a dinner napkin, is unabated.

The Salvationist's Retort.

At the big Salvation Army Congress in London a few days ago General Booth told this story: A girl captain in the Salvation Army was praised by a clergyman for the good work the army was doing in his district. "You're doing splendidly," said the clergyman, "but I must confess I don't like your drum." Quick came the reply, "Well, I don't like your bell." "My bell," said the clergyman, "has a pleasant sound. It says, "Come, come, come." "Our drum," said the Salvation girl, "says 'Fetch 'em, fetch 'em.'"

Not In Practice.

"That man has studied political economy."

"Maybe so," said Senator Sorghum, "but the injudicious way he spends his money at an election looks to me like political extravagance."

Two Fools and A Woman

By P. S. WRIGHT

Copyright, 1904, by T. C. McClure

"The firemen's ball is going to be next week, and I want you to take me."

Coventry had intended leaving Yellow River at the week's end, but he hesitated.

"All the boys from the ranches are comin' in to it and the firemen off the road," said Glory persuasively. "It'll be a mighty swell fandango." She sighed and glanced at Coventry. "I'd sure like to dance with you onct—just to remember," she added with a wistful ring in her voice.

It would only be a few days longer, Coventry said to his conscience, and, besides, it would make good material for a sketch—this cowboy ball. As for Glory, "she'll forget me in a month or so," thought he. "Meanwhile where's the harm in it of a bit of flirtation with my western rose?"

It was to a jack rose that Coventry compared her on the night of the dance. The excitement and the swift motion had sent a warm, rich flush to her cheeks. The black masses of her hair were charmingly disordered and her eyes flashed and sparkled with pleasure. She was a good dancer, too, Coventry discovered, and even the clumsy, heavy footed cowboys who were at intervals her partners could not spoil the easy grace of her movements.

There had not been many of them. On the tawdry little dance card the initials "B. C." occurred very frequently after the numbers. Not all of them Coventry had danced. Some he had "sat out" on the upper porch of the hotel, with the moonlight silvering the sagebrush and softening the harsh contours of the distant buttes and inclining the heart of man to tender sentiment.

Glory never had enjoyed any dance as she had this, she told Coventry frankly, and her eyes more than said the same thing as she swayed and swung to his guiding beneath the hot lamps of the hotel dining room.

It was all rather interesting, Coventry thought in one of the intervals when his partner was dancing with some one else, but on the whole he was rather glad he was going to leave the next day. He had not told Glory he was going. There was no need of spoiling her fun. It was best for her that he went. Perhaps he had paid her too much attention; she did not realise the gulf between them, and besides she had been rather too demonstrative this night. That was one of the difficulties of an affair with a woman of such a simple, unsophisticated nature.

He looked at her critically as she swirled by, and she returned the look with a dazzling smile and a softening of the eyes that Coventry could not mistake—nor any one else, he feared. She was a beautiful woman, of an animal type, of course, but—

It was a tall, fresh faced, brown haired young fellow, one of the outfit from the Three Forks ranch, as Coventry knew by name.

"I'd like to speak with you, if so you don't mind?" said the man. There was just the suggestion of a frown between his keen gray eyes.

"Certainly," replied Coventry. "Sit down."

"Not hyer. It's a little too promiscous hyer for what I've got to say. Maybe you wouldn't mind takin' a little paseur outside?"

Coventry rose and followed the man, and together they strolled down to the river's edge. There was a fallen log here, on which Coventry seated himself. "Fire away," he said, lighting a cigar. He offered one to his companion, but it was declined.

The man hesitated for a moment, as if he found it hard to commence.

"My name is Hackett," he said gravely. "Mort Hackett. Maybe you've heard it?"

Coventry bowed courteously.

"I hear tell," Mort continued, "that you're 'lowing to go back east tomorrow. Is that a fact?"

"Yes," answered Coventry. "Want me to do something for you back there?"

"No, I reckon not. It's somethin' hyer I want you to do. It's to answer a question. What are you goin' to do about Glory?"

"About Glory? What should I do about Glory? What do you mean?"

"You know right well what I mean. Are you going to marry the gal?"

"And may I ask, Mr. Hackett, in my turn, what affair it is of yours what I intend to do or not do?" said Coventry coolly. "Are you Miss McRay's guardian?"

"Maybe I be," returned the other quietly. "I reckon you've the right to know before you answer."

He put a foot on the log and looked down at the moon flecked river.

"You see, I love her," said he simply, "an' so I've got to know. I've been lovin' her this long time, since she fust come hyer a young gal. I'm a right awkward sort of a cuss, without manners, but I reckoned to ask her some day when I got fixed so's I could give her a home. And then—then you come hyer with your good looks an' your city ways an' your easy way of talkin' an' turned her head. It ain't beefin' about that—it's fair fightin' if you're playin' a square game, but are you?"

Coventry laughed pleasantly. "My dear man," he said, "make your mind easy. I've not the slightest notion of pretending to Miss McRay's hand. I go back east tomorrow and in all probability shall never see the girl again."

"An' yet you've been right familious with her sence you've been hyer—ridin' an' walkin' in the buttes an' sittin' out in the moonlight. There's been right smart talk."

"I'm not responsible for the talk if fools choose to make it," said Coventry impatiently. "I've done nothing more than I would with any pretty girl back east."

"Then you don't keer for her. Then what you said up thar on the porch warn't so?"

"Oh, come," Coventry replied. "You mustn't think that what a man says to a girl in the moonlight is gospel truth. The moonlight makes him a bit sentimental."

"An' the gal?"

"The girl too. A little flirtation does no harm, and the next day it's forgotten."

"It's forgotten—I see! You've just been havin' fun with her then—not meanin' anything—like they do back whar you come from."

"Exactly."

"An' you're a-goin' back an' leave her after makin' her love you. It maybe is all right in your section, but we don't call it square hyer—not with nice gals."

"But the girl doesn't care for me. She has a passing fancy perhaps, but that's all."

"Yit she let you kiss her thar on the porch tonight. I seen her."

Coventry arose angrily. "I'm not accustomed to have my"— he began, but Mort interrupted.

"I know you ain't, but you're goin' to be. I'll trouble you to set quiet thar while I talk. You come hyer an' meet a gal. She's a nice gal, an' a purty gal. She ain't never seen a man liken you—or heerd one. The men she knows ain't much on dancin' an' scrapin' an' bein' dressed up. They are just men—the men around these hyer parts.

"You know that gal is fallin' in love with you more an' more every day, an' yet you stay hyer. When she gives you what I ain't never even dared to ask her for; when she cares so much she ain't carin' who sees it, why, you gits ready to pull your freight for home an' forgit her or'un your mind.

"It's a powerful curious world," Mort continued, with a grim smile. "It don't appear to be put together right somehow. Hyer I am lovin' the very groun' she steps on, an' she ain't carin' fer me any more than for that same ground. An' she loves you, an' you"—

The man's face worked in the moonlight, and Coventry was genuinely sorry for him.

"It will be all right, old man," he said, "when I'm gone."

"You're not goin' away," Mort returned quietly, "leastways not until you're married Glory."

"Are you crazy?" Coventry cried.

"You made her love you. Well, now you're goin' to marry her."

"But if I won't?"

"Then I'm goin' to kill you!"

He said it quite calmly, and before Coventry realised the words he saw the moonlight glinting along the barrel of a revolver.

"Some men," said Mort, "would have put a bullet into you when you fust come hyer foolin' around, but I thought you was in earnest, an' Glory was happy."

"Do you mean to say you're going to murder me unless I agree to your crasy nonsense?"

"I don't know about murder. It ain't murder to kill a snake. But anyway I'm a-goin' to kill you unless you do as I say. You want to think mighty quick. I'm goin' to count ten, an' then"—

Coventry knew what would happen then, and he had an instant picture of all that would follow his refusal and a vivid sense of his folly.

"One—two—three"—the words fell steadily like strokes of a pendulum—"four—five"— There was a rustle of parting twigs, and Glorians sprang out of the willows by the stream edge.

"Don't shoot, Mort!" she cried as she sprang between the men, and then she said something which stings Coventry even to this day when he thinks of it.

"Do you suppose I care for him," she cried, pointing disdainfully at Coventry—"him?" Again came the accent which hurt. "It was you I cared for all along, only you wouldn't speak, an' I had to make you jealous so you would, only I didn't think it would come to shootin'. I want a man, an' I've got him!"

Mr. Coventry didn't stay for the wedding. He went home, as he intended, the next day, but in telling his adventures in the west he says nothing about how he was used as a stalking horse.

When a woman suffers from female weakness and irregularity or other forms of womanly disease, the effect is certain to be marked in her nervous system, the general effect being, as in Mrs. Woodin's case, "nervous headaches, restlessness at night" and a run-down condition. It is simply common sense then which says if you cure the female weakness, irregularity, etc., you will cure the nervousness, sleeplessness and other consequences of womanly disease.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the womanly diseases which undermine the general health. It establishes regularity, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It cures headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, etc., by curing the womanly diseases which cause these ailments.

"I feel more than grateful to you for the benefit I have received from Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mrs. Ervie E. Woodin, of Millerton, Dutchess Co., N. Y., care of Box No. 1. "For a number of years I had been troubled with female weakness, nervous headache, irregularity, restlessness at night, and, in fact was all run-down, but after taking three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery' feel that I am entirely cured. I have no more nervous headaches, and rest very well at night; in fact, feel like a different person thanks to your kind advice and wonderful medicine. I earnestly advise all who suffer from any similar troubles to write to Dr. Pierce at once. They will not regret it."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

Who Supported Atlas?

Not long ago the genial superintendent of a public school was asked by one of his youthful friends to listen to the latter's rehearsal of a lesson in which there was a reference to Atlas.

"Do you know who Atlas was?" asked the superintendent.

"Yes, sir. He was a giant who supported the world."

"Ah! Supported the world, did he?" went on the superintendent. "Well, tell me who supported Atlas?"

The little fellow looked as though he had not given the subject any particular attention, but showed immediate willingness to think it over. The superintendent stood looking on, trying hard to keep back a smile, but the youngster finally brightened up and answered:

"Well, I think he must have married a rich wife."

Be Ready For the Emergency.

Good luck is desirable even when you have done your best to succeed, but remember that the most favorable circumstances or strokes of fortune are of little value unless you have prepared yourself to take advantage of them. Of what advantage would Hayne's fiery speech have been to Daniel Webster if he had not, with the instinct of genius, long before equipped himself for the assault which he repelled with such crushing energy? Had he not previously weighed and refuted in his own mind the charges of his opponent his reply, instead of ranking among the greatest masterpieces of oratory, might have only revealed his own weakness. Thousands of men had seen the prints of a horse's hoofs in the soil before Faust discovered by them the art of printing.

Woeful Lack of Confidence.

A prominent actor tells about a Chicago theatrical woman about to wed who was one day amusing herself by going over the marriage service. To a friend who discovered her, prayer book in hand, she said:

"I always make it a point to do this, for no matter how well you may have known a part in the past it should always be rehearsed before the piece is revived." Then, rather playfully, she read the words, "Till death do us part."

Whereupon her friend interrupted:

"How foolish that is, isn't it, dear? Sounds like one hasn't any confidence in the courts!"

The Doctor Had Nothing to Say.

A certain physician told some of his patients that as long as they kept their feet dry they would be safe from the attack of the grip. He was surprised to receive a letter from one of his patients in which the latter said that he had two wooden legs and yet he had the grip for five consecutive years. The letter was unanswered.

QUEER ILLUSIONS.

Morbid Minds That Associate Names and Numbers With Colors.

"Numerals have no colors to you and to me," said a psychologist. "Three, for instance, doesn't seem to us to be pink, and eight doesn't seem to us to be brown, but there are certain slightly diseased minds to which almost every word in the language appears to have color.

"The odd part of this matter is that when you study the minds that attribute colors to figures you find them almost unanimous in attributing to each figure a particular hue. Thus, they will say that one is black, two is cream, three is pale brown, four is red brown, five is blue, six is tan, seven is green, and so on. Finding among the morbid so uniform a belief in the blackness of one, the blueness of five and the greenness of seven, you almost persuade yourself that these figures actually have colors.

"Some morbid minds hold that names have colors. A New Orleans glyptologist says that to him John is blue, Atlanta is steel gray, Peter is brown, and so on.

"Mankind harbors an incredible number of illusions. Each one of us, perhaps, has an illusion of some sort. Mine is that if I count on getting a thing I desire I will be surely disappointed. My wife's is that her brother appears to her in dreams.

"I know a nervous, pallid woman who attributes certain perfumes to certain sounds. A soprano voice to her is like lilies of the valley. A tenor voice is like roses. A contralto voice is like heliotrope. A bass voice is like violets."

Animal Oils In Medicine.

The number of animal oils and fats used in medicine are extremely numerous. Large quantities of oil are obtained in Tasmania from the mutton bird and used as a liniment for rheumatism, while the fat of the frigate bird is said to be an excellent specific for sciatica. Cod liver oil is too well known to bear more than mention, and the oil got from the dugong, an aquatic monster related to the whale tribe, has a high reputation as a substitute for that obtained from the smaller fry of the cod. From six to fourteen gallons of this medicinal oil can be taken out of a single animal.

John Bright's Speeches.

John Bright had a curious method of guarding against any failure of memory or language in his public speeches. When he had to deliver a speech of importance he wrote a sort of essay on the subject and tore it up. He then wrote another and treated it in the same way, and finally a third. In this way he considered that he had not only exhausted his own thoughts upon the matter in hand, but had gained such a command over the language in which it could be expressed that he could never be at a loss for the right word.

The Escapes He Wanted.

"Is there danger from fire here?"

"Oh, no," replied the hotel clerk. "We are well provided with fire escapes."

"I don't care a hang about that. How are you fixed for man escapes?"

BLOOD DISEASE CURED.

Cured When all Else Failed

"Could I live my early life over, this testimonial would not be necessary; though I was no more sinful than thousands of other young men. Early indiscretions, later excesses, exposure to contagious diseases all helped to break down my system. When I commenced to realize my condition I was almost frantic. Doctor after doctor treated me but only gave me relief—not a cure. Hot Springs helped me, but did not cure me. The symptoms always returned. Mercury and Potash drove the poison into my system instead of driving it out. I bless the day your New Method Treatment was recommended to me. I investigated who you were first, and finding you had over 25 years' experience and responsible financially. I gave you my case under a guarantee. You cured me permanently, and in six years there has not been a sore, pain, ulcer or any other symptom of the blood disease." $50,000 forfeit. M. A. CONLEY.

The Tecumsehs lost a senior O.L.A. game at St. Catharines yesterday by a score of 3—2. Brantford's chances to win out are now much improved, and the Telephone City get into the game with renewed vigour.

The married and single men of the Tool Room of the C.G.E. Works played the return game last evening, the score after three innings being a tie, 6—6.

• • • •

Lindsay plays in Cobourg to-day. There should be something doing.

• • • •

There will be several changes on the line-up of the Peterboroughs for next Saturday's game and the team will be stronger in the hitting line than when they last played Oshawa and it is safe to say that Parker will be touched up somewhat livlier than was the case a few weeks ago. The boys have been steadily at practice and are putting up the fastest kind of ball. A win from Oshawa will put the locals at the top of the bunch, providing last Saturday's default by Cobourg is claimed.

• • • •

A big excursion is being run from Oshawa on Saturday and the visiting ball team will have plenty of supporters.

• • • •

The locals are confident of turning the tables on Oshawa and wiping out that 8—4 defeat in the exhibition game of the 12th.

• • • •

The race in the Midland League is a close one this year.

• • • •

Lindsay beat Oshawa, Bowmanville beat Lindsay and Oshawa beat Bowmanville. Looks as though these teams are pretty evenly matched.

• • • •

Oshawa is playing winning ball these days. They won from the strong Bowmanville team on the latter's grounds a few days ago and are hot after the pennant.

• • • •

Lindsay got but two hits off Hooper in the game with Bowmanville last week and seven batters were fanned. Yet the Post remarks that "Hooper was not effective." McLaughlin was hit safely nine times.

• • • •

The Post is getting very nervous over the baseball prospect in Scugogville and is knocking the players for not getting out to practice. The Clippers have a game to play in Bowmanville yet which looms up unpleasantly and Cobourg is also a nasty proposition. The pennant is not quite as distinct around Lindsay apparently as it was before the season opened.

The Torontos are improving. They won yesterday, making it two out of three from Providence.

DESTROYERS SUNK BY THE JAPANESE.

JAPS ARE ON TO HAICHENG.

Mikado's Men Strike for Kuropatkin's Second Position—Gen. Oku has Captuted all the Topographical Keys—Vivid Report of Gen. Oku's Daring Night Attack—The Russian Squadron.

Che Foo, July 28.—Russian refugees who have arrived here report that the Lieut. Burakoff and two other Russian torpedo destroyers were torpedoed and destroyed by the Japanese on the night of July 25.

Japs Lost 800.

Tokio, July 28.—The Japanese casualties before Tatchekiao were eight hundred.

On to Haicheng.

St. Petersburg, July 28.—A telegram from Gen. Kuropatkin was received yesterday confirming the occupation of Tatchekiao by the Japanese, July 25, and adding that a Japanese division had moved on Haicheng.

Captured the Keys.

Tokio, July 28.—The army of Gen. Oku combined with what is known as the Takushan forces, attacked Tatchekiao Sunday night and on Monday captured all the important topographical keys. The Russian forces consisted of five divisions. The losses are unknown.

60 Miles From Tokio.

Tokio, July 28.—The Russian Vladivostock squadron was seen sixty miles off Tokio Bay at dawn yesterday morning. It then moved to the south.

JAPS ATTACK AT NIGHT.

How the Japanese Troops Hustled Russian Troops Into Retreat.

Tokio, July 28.—In a daring night attack against a Russian force estimated at five divisions, with 100 guns, Gen. Oku drove the enemy from their strong line of defence south of Tatchekiao. Advancing on Sunday, Gen. Oku found a superior force confronting him, and that a heavy artillery fire from the enemy was checking his men. He thereupon decided to attempt a night surprise. This was successful, the Japanese troops hustling the Russians into retreat to Tatchekiao. The Japanese had 800 casualties.

The Takushan army fought and won a separate action on Friday, July 22, at Pauling, losing 31 men. The Russians left 14 dead. The Japanese began the advance against the Russian positions south of Tatchekiao on Saturday, July 28. On this date the vanguard occupied positions in the vicinity of Chuichiatun, to the southeast of Tatchekiao, developing the position and strength of the enemy.

The Russian line was through the hills south of Tatchekiao, extending almost due east and west of the railroad. The position of the enemy was fortified. The strongest point was at Taiping Mountain, to the southeast of Tatchekiao, and here the heaviest force had assembled. The Russians had two battalions of artillery posted near Chatengansen, due south of Tatchekiao, and ahead of the main line.

The Japanese deployed to the westward from Chuhiatun, and, confronting the Russian line east of the railroad, advanced early Sunday morning. At 9 o'clock the Japanese right had reached a bluff less than two miles from Taiping Mountain. In the afternoon the Russian batteries, posted on the heights, shelled the advancing line. The strength of the Russians gradually developed, Gen. Oku estimating it at five divisions and 100 guns. The Russians prevented a general advance, and Gen. Oku decided on a night assault.

Two divisions of Russians occupied the Saicheng road, and Gen. Oku took the precaution to engage this force with artillery. The Russians replied similarly, the duel lasting until darkness. At 10 o'clock Sunday night the entire Japanese right was hurled against the first Russian position, east and west of Taiping Mountain, and easily captured it. At midnight the second position was attacked, and by daylight the Japanese occupied the eminence east of Shanchiatun, the Russians retreating towards Tatchekiao. At 7 o'clock Monday morning the Japanese seized Chenyshishuen without resistance and pursued the Russians towards Tatchekiao.

THE EXPULSION OF THE IROQUOIS.

Mr. H. C. Rogers, has written the following letter to the Globe:—

To the Editor of the Globe: In view of the discussion at the last annual meeting of the Ontario Historical Society concerning the topic of a paper read by me on behalf of Paudash, Chief of the Mississagas of Rice Lake, and of further important material with respect to it lately come to hand, I would ask your forbearance in order that I may present the case for the Mississagas as it at present stands for the consideration of the members of the O.H.A., and of your readers generally. Paudash complained that no attention had been paid, historically or otherwise, by writers or the public at large, to the expulsion of the Iroquois from central Ontario by the Mississagas, and to the appropriation of their hunting grounds by the latter. Naturally, there was considerable doubt as to the truth of this contention, some members going so far as to regard it as impossible, while others condemned it as unwarranted by history. Before bringing the paper to the notice of the society I asked a friend to consult Onnhyatekha, thinking in this way to give the Iroquois side of the argument as well. Onnhyatekha was directly at variance with Paudash on all the important points. Quite recently I received from Miss Josephine Smith, the editress of Cosmos, the following statement, with a comment attached by her. It reads as follows:—"Extract from report of Messrs. Richard T. Pennefather (Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs for the Province of Canada), Froome Talfourd and Thomas Worthington, appointed Commissioners in 1856 to inquire into and report upon certain Indian matters.

"After the expulsion of the Five Nations from their conquests on the Ottawa and in western Canada, the Ottchipwes and their brethren, the Mississagas, or Eagle tribe, seem gradually to have moved down from their hunting grounds in the upper lakes, and to have taken the place of the Neutral Nation and other tribes, who had been either extirpated or dispersed by the Iroquois. They thus overspread the country lying between the Ottawa, Lake Huron and Lake Ontario, and extended themselves along the northern shore of Lake Erie."

From this it is evident, first of all, that, contrary to received opinion, the Iroquois, or, as generally named, the Mohawks, were as a matter of fact "expelled." The Mississaga version is that the Mohawks, extending northerly into Lake Huron, came into conflict with the Mississagas, an Ojibway (Chippeway or Shawnee) tribe, which had long before crossed into the Lake Huron country from the Ohio Valley at Bowesting (Sault Ste. Marie). Finding that it was a case of life or death, as with the lately exterminated Hurons, they grappled with their assailants, and by force of numbers and the courage of desperation succeeded in driving them down the (Trent) waterway to Onigaming (the Carrying Place), whence the Mohawks departed to their own country. That the Mississagas occupied this district thereafter is borne out by the fact that at this day the Mississagas (Chippeway) extend at intervals from Brockville in the east to Port Credit in the west. Mohawk settlements now existing there are those founded upon lands bought by the Government from the Mississagas after the Revolutionary War, when the Mohawks, as allies of the British, were compelled to seek a refuge in Canada. Unexpected as this turn of affairs is in comparison with what we have always been led to believe, it seems too interesting and important to disregard, and as I have been following the matter up on behalf of Chief Paudash, I thought it a pity to allow our material to go to waste at a time when general interest is aroused concerning it. I only trust that this statement of the case, with authorities, may have some material value in settling a question which hitherto has not so far as I am aware been considered seriously.

H. C. ROGERS,
Vice-President of the O.H.S., and President of the local society at Peterborough.

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

By private wire from Richmond & Co., incl'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

New York, July 27, evening.—We said last Thursday that the advance in the general list had culminated and that the money was now on the bear side, especially in U.P., Atch., Pa., St. P., etc. Mop. has been particularly weak and if it should rally to about 93 half would certainly sell it. U.S.Q. declared the regular dividend and failed to advance on the good news. We would not care to buy it, and would certainly sell it if it rallies near 61 again. U.P. and Atch. were both extremely weak. They are both a sale on a rally of 1 to 2 points. The same holds good of St. P., B.R.T., Sug., Wab., Wab. pfd., Erie's, Rdg., D.H., C.P.R., etc. If no unfavourable news is reached to-morrow, a rally of from 1 to 2 points ought to take place. On such rally especially if stocks are strong at the close the market is a sale. July W made a new high price to-day and should cross 100 to-price to-day and should cross 100 to-morrow or Friday. Sell Oct. cotton above 9.75.

New York.—A rally seems near in the stock market. It has had a sharp reaction. Short contracts should have been covered yesterday on the pronounced weakness. The outlook seems to favour a trading market for a time. We believe the active list will prove a sale on any good recovery this week. We would be careful to take moderate profit on both sides. The news is mostly gloomy, but that does not prevent an over sold condition in the not distant future the news will likely be the reverse of that now given out. Those issues which have been depressed the most sharply like U.S.Q., At., and U.P. should be conspicuous in any recovery. St. P. is talked of prominently in this connection. We would not be come enthusiastically bullish on it, however. Some of the largest operators covered yesterday afternoon. — Town Topics.

New York.—There will be no Anglo-Russio warfare. Diplomacy will intervene. The market will have sharp and fitful rally following depressions. Hence the advisability of trading for quick turns of a point or two. There is a big short interest in P.A., Atch., Rdg., S.P. and U.P. These stocks on covering willquickly rise 1 to 3 points. Those that put out U.S.Q. should take it back around 59 1-4 A.C.P. will sell ex. div. of 1-2 p.c. at the opening to-day. Liverpool cotton opening spot easier mids off 4p oints.

Wheat 1-4 higher; corn unchanged. 1.30 p. m.—Wheat 1-8 lower; corn 1-4 higher.

Short interest in A. C. P. said to exceed 100,000 shares.

$50,000 FIRE IN A WHOLESALE HOUSE.

Eby, Blain & Co's Warehouse in Toronto Damaged To-day.

Special to the Examiner.

Toronto, July 29.—A serious fire started this morning about 10.30 in the four-story building, corner of Front and Scott streets, owned and occupied by Eby, Blain & Co., wholesale grocers. It was first noticed about the tackle of the elevator on the top floor and is supposed to have been caused by friction. The fire brigade were slow in responding, but by hard work they had the flames under control within an hour. The damage by fire was confined to the top floor and roof, but tons of water poured down through the other floors into the basement. The total loss, probably will reach $50,000 fully covered by insurance.

JAPANESE MAKE GENERAL ATTACK

Port Arthur Said to be Assailed by the Mikado's Army.

THE RETREAT OF GEN. KUROPATKIN

A Significant Order to all War Correspondents Within the Russian Lines—They Must go to Harbin, and the Russian General May Follow—War Vessels May Leave Port Arthur.

London, July 29.—Special despatches from Shanghai and Yokohama report that a general attack upon Port Arthur has begun. A report that General Kuropatkin wounded seems to have originated at Tientsin, but it is not confirmed.

Something Startling Due.

St. Petersburg, July 29.—A telegram received from Gen. Kuropatkin yesterday announced that the position at the front had not changed. It is generally believed here that startling developments are imminent. All the war correspondents have been ordered to Harbin.

Burned Towns.

Tokio, July 29.—The Russians abandoned Tatchekiao at noon on Monday, July 25, retiring before the advancing army under Gen. Oku. They applied the torch to Tatchekiao and the surrounding towns, and when the Japanese arrived they found the flames were still raging. The Japanese pursuit extended beyond Tatchekiao, and the Japanese left wing occupied Yinkow. The position held by the Russians last Sunday south of Tatchekiao consisted of nine miles of trenches and fortifications.

Lives to Be Saved.

Newchwang, July 29.—Takayama, the Japanese Administrator of Newchwang, has arrived here, and has issued notification to the population that Newchwang and Yinkow are now under Japanese control and that lives and property will be protected.

Southwest of Yokohama.

Tokio, July 29.—The Vladivostock squadron was reported off the Province of Awa yesterday. Awa is about 200 miles southwest of Yokohama, and is at the eastern entrance of the Inland Sea.

Warships Leave Port.

Cha Foo, July 29.—Chinese refugees, who left Port Arthur thirty-six hours ago, say that three large warships have left that port. The Chinese cannot give the names or the type of the vessels. It is impossible to confirm this story from foreigners.

SHOW THEIR METTLE IN CANADA.

Clash Between 40 Jap Fishermen and 58 Russian Miners in B.C.

Vancouver, B.C., July 29.—A battle took place between 40 Japanese fishermen and 58 Russian miners at Douglas City, Douglas Island, opposite Juneau, last Saturday night. News of the trouble was brought down from the north by the steamer Danube yesterday. A number of shots were exchanged, then the opposing forces stoned each other and finally engaged in a hand-to-hand fight. No one was killed, but a number are said to have been seriously injured. The Japanese put the Russians to flight, although the Russians outnumbered the victors.

MANY DROWNINGS.

Four Persons Swept to Death in Old Man River at MacLeod, Man.

Winnipeg, July 29.—A sad drowning fatality occurred at MacLeod on Tuesday night when sisters, Nellie and Katie Higgins, aged 20 and 26, their brother, Eddie, aged six, and their girl friend, Mary Robinson, aged 21, all met death while attempting to make the ford here of the Old Man River. The current, swollen by heavy rains, was too strong for them and they were swept down stream. John Stewart, 16 years old, was drowned Wednesday while bathing.

Two of Five Drowned.

Winnipeg, Man., July 29.—At Long Lake, Assiniboia, yesterday, a canoe containing five young men of Regina upset, and Robert Fell and Ernest Peart were drowned. Both are prominent in lacrosse circles at Regina.

John Smith and Frank Humphrey, both mechanics of Birtle, were drowned Wednesday night while bathing in the river near that town. They were not missed until the discovery of their clothes on the river bank yesterday morning.

Row Boat Upset.

St. John's, Que., July 29.—Eugene Laroque, painter, and a member of the Philharmonic Band, was drowned by the upsetting of a rowboat above the C. P. R. bridge yesterday afternoon. A brother-in-law named Leger arrived from Montreal to spend the day with his wife and family, who were on a visit to the Laroques. Laroque and Leger went out for a boat ride. Leger says Laroque stood up in the boat when near the drawbridge, and losing his balance upset the boat, and both were precipitated into the river.

Drowned in Canal.

Cornwall, July 29.—Arthur Lally, the 18-year-old son of John Lally, lockmaster at the foot of the Cornwall Canal, was drowned at noon yesterday. He was crossing the old locks and fell into the water. Some one saw his cap and in a few minutes the body was recovered, but life was extinct.

MORE CHEERING FOR DUNDONALD.

Montreal Scottish Societies Give Him a Send-Off.

Montreal, July 29.—Lord Dundonald changed his mind yesterday, owing to pressure from Quebec, and instead of entering his stateroom on the steamer Tunisian last night, and saying a final adieu to Canada, he entered a private car at the Place Viger Station, and will now give his last farewell when the steamer pulls out of the Louise Basin at the ancient capital. Despite a downpour of rain, the leave-taking here last night was in some respects a repetition of the demonstrations at Toronto and Ottawa, but there was not anything like the same immense crowds. However, the horses were taken from the carriage, and His Lordship was escorted by a long line of young men who took hold of a rope attached to the front axle. The late hour, 11 o'clock, drove many to their homes, but 200 started after the carriage, and perhaps half of them followed as far as the station.

But the real farewell, the sane, temperate farewell, was given by the 2,500 persons who stood in the Windsor Hall, the chairs having been removed. The assemblage was composed of a stable class of the community. The Caledonia Society, under whose auspices the reception was held, had [illegible] nothing of a political [illegible] to be introduced. The address to Dundonald did not break faith, nor did the recipient himself, but a local enthusiast volunteered an inflammatory speech while the crowd was waiting for the central figure until he was finally ordered from the platform.

Would Have Been Recalled.

London, July 29.—(C.A.P.)—Premier Balfour, replying to Sir Howard Vincent, said that before the incident ending with the recall of Lord Dundonald he was intended for a command under the new army scheme and would shortly have been recalled for that purpose. This appointment would now be subject to the finding of the Army Council upon the merits of the Canadian affair.

Henry Kribs Dead.

Hespeler, July 29.—The death occurred yesterday afternoon of Henry Kribs, chief engineer of the Forbes Woollen Mills, who was badly scalded by live steam on Monday through the bursting of an elbow in the steam pipe that supplies the factory engine. The steam fairly cooked a portion of the deceased's left leg, which caused gangrene to set in, which resulted in death. Deceased, who was a brother to the late Lewis Kribs, the well-known journalist, and William A. Kribs, M.P.P., was 49 years old. He leaves a wife and two children by adoption.

Belt Meets With Accident.

Toronto, July 29.—While performing the leap-the-gap feat at Crystal Beach, near Buffalo, on Wednesday, Oliver Belz, the young man who did the performance at the island two weeks ago, lost control of his wheel and plunged over the trestle to the ground, 40 feet below. His skull was fractured, but he is expected to recover.

Cruiser's Trial Speed.

London, July 29.—(C. A. P.)—The Canadian cruiser showed speed of 17 knots at her trial over the measured mile.

A fatal accident occurred on the Midland Division of the G.T.R. yesterday, north of Port Hope.

At the practice of the George street choir last night an address was presented to Mrs. Mowat and Mr. Mulligan, the retiring organist and choir leader, respectively, on the occasion of their leaving the choir.

Conservative members denounced the appointment of J. B. Jackson as a Dominion commercial agent in England. Sir Richard Cartwright accepted responsibility, and declared that Mr. Jackson's acts in South Oxford were not worse than those of Conservative members who advertised rewards for evidence which would unseat Liberal candidates. Mr. Borden said Sir Richard had preached a damnable doctrine. On a division the Government majority was 27. Public works item aggregating $2,250,000 were voted.

BOTTOMLESS PIT DELAYS TRAINS.

Sink Hole at Ardendale Causes Much Trouble.

A bottomless pit, which cannot be filled up, namely the sink hole at Ardendale, was responsible for a delay of five hours in the arrival of the early morning express from Ottawa on Friday morning last.

Ardendale is near Sharbot Lake and the railway has long been trying to surmount the difficulty caused by the continual subsidence of the land upon which the tracks run at this point.

A new subsidence took place at five o'clock on Thursday afternoon, and since then a gang of 200 men have been at work shovelling in material to fill it up. Over 1500 car loads of earth and rock have so far been dumped into the cave-in.

The sink hole, which is about 200 yards wide, has been a source of much trouble and expense to the company in the past. There seems to be no bottom to it whatever, and the material that has been dumped into it amounts to hundreds of thousands of tons. Some time ago it was spanned by a wooden bridge, and earth filled in on top of the bridge, on which the track was laid; bridge and all appear to have given away, allowing the track to sink again. It is possible that the course of the track may have to be changed in future in order to avoid this obstruction.—Havelock Standard.

Doctor Settles.

Toronto, July 29.—Dr. Charles Stanley will pay his wife $200, releasing him from all claims for five years. He was yesterday allowed his freedom by the police.

Killed at a Crossing.

Port Hope, July 29.—Charles Ashley, a farmer, living about four miles north of here, was killed at noon here yesterday by the one o'clock train from the north. He was driving into town, but when nearing one of the railway crossings was caught by the train and badly injured. He was brought to town, but died an hour afterwards.

"YOUNG WOMEN:—I had frequent headaches of a severe nature, dark spots before my eyes, and at my menstrual periods I suffered untold agony. A member of the lodge advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I only scorned good advice and felt that my case was hopeless, but she kept at me until I bought a bottle and started taking it. I soon had the best reason in the world to change my opinion of the medicine, as each day my health improved, and finally I was entirely without pain at my menstruation periods. I am most grateful."—NETTIE BLACKMORE, 28 Central Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

Painful Periods

are quickly and permanently overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The above letter is only one of hundreds of thousands which prove this statement to be a fact. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality,—if it is painful something is wrong. Don't take narcotics to deaden the pain, but remove the cause—perhaps it is caused by irregularity or womb displacements, or the development of a tumor. Whatever it is, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is guaranteed to cure it.

If there is anything about your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. She can surely help you, for no person in America can speak from a wider experience in treating female ills. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

Details of Another Case.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and carelessness is the cause of most of the sufferings of women. I believe that if we properly understood the laws of health we would all be well, but if the sick women only knew the truth about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, they would be saved much suffering and would soon be cured.

"I used it for five months for a local difficulty which had troubled me for years, and for which I had spent hundreds of dollars in the vain endeavor to rectify. My life forces were being sapped, and I was daily losing my vitality.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me completely, and I am now enjoying the best of health, and am most grateful, and only too pleased to endorse such a great remedy."—MISS JENNIE L. EDWARDS, 604 H St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Pinkham, whose address is Lynn, Mass., will answer cheerfully and without cost all letters addressed to her by sick women.

A MUNICIPAL STREET CAR EXPERIMENT.

The United States Department of Commerce and Labour has published a report from Hull, England, having to do with the city ownership and the management of the street car lines in that town, says the Brantford Expositor. The ownership extends over only a few years, but it has already been highly profitable to the city treasury. The road is built and equipped in the finest manner, with no expense spared in making everything solid and substantial in the first place. The cost of repairs is brought to the minimum point. All the cars are double-deckers, with the upper story covered and glass-enclosed. These are run by trolley wires, and are found to be as easily stopped and started and as quickly filled or emptied as the single-deck cars, while they carry double the number of passengers at almost no greater expense. The service is excellent, and the fares are less than half the ordinary fare in this country. This penny, or two-cent fare makes trolley use a matter of course to the great part of the population, and the result has been that there was an average in 1903 of 82 rides each for every man, woman and child in Hull, and the city had a profit of more than $12,000 for every double mile of track, after deducting interest on the sinking fund and the investment.

Hull has a population of 250,000, and the trolleys carried last year in excess of 22,000,000 passengers. How much the municipal ownership of the lines has to do with their great success as carriers and money earners it is impossible to say. It has afforded the opportunity of experimenting with substantial building and equipment of doing away with constant need of expensive repairs, and of trying the effect of low fares combined with frequent and excellent service. The probability is that, however owned, any street car lines built with equal forethought, and run in a like generous and business spirit, could be made to pay good dividends, which would be increased in the large cities.

IS CANADA AT FAULT?

Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

Of course it pays to advertise. Certain kinds of advertising, however, are considered "bad form," and some advertising is notoriously bad taste. If this the case when one country advertises its attractions and advantages, and thus seeks to draw settlers from a neighbouring nation?

The question is now raised in Washington. It is reported that this Government will protest to Great Britain against the manner in which Canada is now working to obtain immigrants from the American North West. It is charged that the Canadian Department of the interior is flooding that section with circulars, calling attention to the advantages of settlement in the Dominion. The latter Government is working industriously and ingeniously to fill up her newly developed wheat regions. Agents have been busy in Great Britain and the United States. There can be no possible objection to this movement when carried on by private agencies, but the claim is made that for a government to take a hand in it, passes the bounds of international propriety.

During the hot season people, and presumably governments, are easily excited over trifles, and the cooler counsels that will prevail with the arrival of cooler weather, will probably prevent the "complications," which to some perfervid imaginations seems to be imminent. There is no suggestion that Canada has been guilty of misrepresentation, thus inviting immigration under false pretenses, and it is difficult to see what the bother in Washington is all about.

Especially in view of American practices of the same kind in the not distant past. Canada has simply taken a leaf out of Uncle Sam's book, and is now doing precisely what several western states of the union did immediately after the civil war, when their agents were sent to Europe to increase immigration, and the glorious possibilities of the American west were held up to European view, just as Canada is now advertising her own attractions. What is sauce for the goose ought to be sauce for the gander. Canada is merely flattering the United States in imitating American methods of a generation ago. It is not easy to see that Uncle Sam has "any kick coming."

LABOUR CONDITIONS IN PETERBOROUGH.

Monthly Report of Mr. W. J. Johnston to the Labour Gazette.

The Labour Gazette for July has the following report from Peterborough, sent by Mr. W. Johnston, the local correspondent:—

GENERAL CONDITION OF THE LABOUR MARKET.

Labour in all trades during June has been active, excepting iron moulders, who have been dull, some shops which last month were very active being very slack, during June. All outside building trades are very active, as are also the sash and door factories. Another combination of industries, known as the Peterborough Cold Storage and Provision Co., Limited, with an authorized capital of $300,000, is starting here and will give employment to a large number of men when in full operation. Peterborough is also to have another industry, a flour and cereal grist mill with a daily capacity of 350 to 500 barrels. The elevator will be capable of storing 40,000 to 50,000 bushels of grain.

Work has already begun on the foundation of the Green Foundry recently destroyed by fire. The new building will be one-half larger than the old building.

Fire destroyed a large pump and windmill establishment, entailing a loss of $4,000 and putting 25 men out of work. The owner has begun to rebuild, as he has over one year's work ahead.

The work on the electric street railway system is being pushed forward with all speed.

Wholesale and retail tradesmen are all doing a good business. Local banks report business good.

CONDITION OF LOCAL INDUSTRIES.

Agriculture.—Farmers in this locality report an excellent harvest in view. Dairying is a leading industry among the farmers here during the period from May 1st to the 31st of October. Nearly all farmers send milk to the factories.

Fishing.—There are only a few men here who make this a means of livelihood.

Lumbering.—This industry is very active, the leading lumber dealers state that the demand is so great that they cannot get any stock ahead for winter trade. There is one mill in Lakefield, which has begun working on the season's cut, and it is expected that lumber will be more plentiful.

Manufacturing. — Manufacturing is not quite so active as it was in May in the metal trades. When the iron moulders are slack the rest of the metal trades as a rule are also slack, especially in certain lines. Brass moulders, however, in the Lock Works, and other establishments, manufacturing brass goods, are exceptionally busy just now. The manufacturing of cement blocks for building purposes by two small industries here, is quite active. It is purposed to test their stability for building purposes.

Railroad Construction and Employment. — Railroad work is not so active as was reported in previous months, excepting on the repairing of road beds in the several districts. From three or four section men are at work all the time gooking after their several divisions. No new work is going on now.

Other Industries. — The corporation is putting down six miles of cement walks by day labour, which will give employment to a number of men.

Building Trades. — Bricklayers and masons are all very active now, as the new brick is out, and is being delivered to the buildings being erected. The cost of brick here this summer is as follows: $8.50 to $9 per thousand. The cost of stone is $4.50 to $5 per cord. Carpenters and joiners are all very busy. Lathers and plasterers are exceptionally active. Lathing here costs 2 1-2 c. per yard for labour. Plastering costs 14c. per yard for labour and supplies. The painting trades here are very active, and there is a demand for painters. Decorating and paper hanging is not so active. Gas and steamfitters are quite active. There is not much stone cutting done here. Plumbers and builders' labourers are very busy, with a demand for men.

Metal, Engineering and Ship-building Trades. — Iron moulders are dull as are iron workers and helpers. Coremakers and machinists are not very active. Steam engineers, electrical workers and linemen are in good demand. Metal polishers, buffers, platers and brass workers are busy. Blacksmiths are fairly busy but are not rushed. Sheetmetal workers are exceptionally busy. Bicycle workers and boiler makers are fairly active and jewellers report trade very fair.

Woodworking and Furnishing Trades. — Woodworkers and upholsterers are active. Varnishers and polishers are quite active, especially on carriage and canoe building. Carvers are not in much demand. Carriage and wagon makers are exceptionally busy. Pattern-makers are a little slack. Coopers are very active, there being a great demand for barrels.

Printing and Allied Trades. — Printers, pressmen and book binders are all in demand, but there is not much demand for electrotypers, platers or engravers.

Clothing Trades. — Journeymen tailors are in good demand and garment workers are busy. Boot and shoe workers are fairly active.

Food and Tobacco Preparations. — Bakers and confectioners are doing a rushing business. Butchers and meat cutters are active; the price of meat has increased 2 cents per lb. Ice handlers are now exceptionally busy, and the cigar makers are doing a steady trade.

Leather Trades. — Leather workers in the manufacture of harness and collars are doing a fairly good local and export trade.

Miscellaneous.—Barbers and laundry workers are doing a steady business. Broom makers are quite active. Clerks, stenographers, and delivery employees are very active for this season of the year. Furrier' work on winter goods, is beginning here, and advertisements are inserted in the local papers for fur workers.

Transport. — Transport to the several summer resorts has begun, and railway transportation at this season of the year has to be increased by putting on extra trains and employees for handling the passenger and freight traffic. Steamboatmen of all classes are very busy, and cab drivers, hackmen, carters, draymen, teamsters and express men are all doing an exceptionally good business.

Unskilled labour is well employed, and it is impossible to find a man idle.

During the month a portion of the township of Smith, lying on the outskirts of the town, was annexed to the corporation of Peterborough. This materially affects working people to the number of 105, who will have the benefit of the ward school for their children.

Farmers are cutting their clover hay. They report a heavy crop of all kinds of produce. All the general store merchants in the smaller places around Peterborough report business good.

Wood, soft, $3 to $5 per cord.
Wood, hard, $6.50 to $8 per cord.
Hay, timothy, $9 to $10 per ton.
Hay, clover, $7 to $8 per ton.
Wheat, 88 cents to 90c a bush.
Butter, 16 to 20 cents per lb.
Eggs, 17 to 22 cents per doz.
Potatoes, 55 to 60 cents a bag.

In Bridgenorth, a small village, a saw mill was burned down. The fire made a complete wreck of the establishment, throwing 25 men out of employment.

THE PREMIER'S MANY VISITORS.

Pen Picture of Sir Wilfrid Laurier From Gallery.

Velvet Over Steel—The Great Canadian's "No" is Strong and Firm, and the House so Understands it When it is Uttered.

(Toronto News.)

As the eyes of a maiden look to the hand of her mistress, so do the reporters in the galleries study the countenance of the Prime Minister at the opening of each sitting. Especially is this true of those whose location in the gallery prevents their seeing the faces of the members on the front rows of the Opposition and his countenance in a measure reflects what he sees there, combined with his own attitude in view of what the opposition is apparently going to do. When the Premier thinks, as the discussion begins to shape itself, that the Opposition are not playing fair or that the member on the floor deserves a castigation or a sharp rebuff, his frame stiffens, and his brow grows black with coming thunder. The characteristic of this session has been the Premier's physical "fitness." There is no appeal for sympathy in his countenance or any movement or attitude. He is ready for whatever comes, and the man must have good nerves and thick skin who can see that tightening of the frame, that flash of the eye, and gathering thunder, and know that he is the cause of it, without shrinking just a little from the coming storm. This session everything about the Premier indicates that he is a bad man to stir up.

Or it may be the First Minister sees where the man on the floor has made a false move, has forgotten a very inconvenient piece of history, or, perhaps, is only talking in a humourous way. Under such circumstances the Premier leans back in his seat, throws his head back, and while his physical eyes sees the carved woodwork and prism glass of the ceiling, he is mentally conning over his reply. Pleasant smiles play over his face and the outline of his jocular reply can be seen.

As may be known to many, Sir Wilfrid is the deskmate of Sir William Mulock, while on his left sits Sir Richard Cartwright. As one or other of these ministers is often out of the House, this leaves a vacant seat next the Premier, and, at other times, they accommodatingly move to an adjoining seat to give room for the Premier's visitors. When the House is in committee, or when some subject is under discussion, say the Militia bill, where another minister is in charge, the Premier is comparatively free, and members take advantage of the opportunity to press their views upon, or explain some matter to him. Sometimes it is Mr. Calvert, the other Liberal Whip, alert, silent and serious; upon whom the session seems to wear as much as upon anyone. Or it may be Mr. Taylor, the Conservative Whip, though, as a rule, Mr. Taylor transacts his business "outside the country," from in front of the Premier's desk. At rare intervals when some matter of procedure is being arranged, Mr. Borden, the leader of the Opposition, sits down gingerly and essentially as a visitor at the desk he hopes some day to occupy as a matter of right. Of another kind is the visit of Jean Baptiste Morin, of Dorchester, who has lived in the United States, and there learned to love his own country and the rights of a British subject better than ever. Mr. Morin, having built railways from the ground up, grows impatient with impossible projects to force railways over broken portions of Quebec or New Brunswick, when better routes (sometimes through Dorchester county), are available. He, therefore, feels when he crosses the House and talks hard, common sense, to his eloquent, but, as he believes, deluded fellow-countryman, he is doing good service to Canada. When Mr. Bourassa turns the chair about and faces the Premier, though his voice does not reach up to the gallery, the onlooker can almost imagine what he is talking about from his rapid and effective gesticulation. The Premier seems rather to like these visits, but, as a rule, he remains unconvinced.

He will laugh with Mr. Bourassa, but apparently will not agree with his enthusiastic reasoning. Sometimes it is a back bencher briefly making a request, sometimes it is Hance J. Logan, of Cumberland, called by the irreverent "Handsome Hance," or Col. Thompson, the militia expert, the twin Apollos of the government side. More frequently it is a member of the cabinet who drops in for a brief whispered conversation about something going on in the House or about to come up. These visits sometimes stretch out and the minister seems to be arguing out some rather important point. Upon such an occasion when the Premier does not take the same view as his colleague, and says "No," the onlooker, even in that view of Sir Wilfrid which represents him as a smiling jellyfish whose only skill is that of keeping the diverse elements in his cabinet in harmony. To see him say "No," even at long range, is to be convinced of his backbone and determination, and to realize that behind the sunny ways there is a will of steel.

MANGLED BY A BOMB

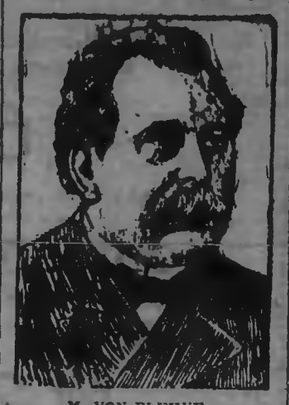
Russian Minister of the Interior Assassinated.

THE ASSASSIN UNDER ARREST

Murderer Was Badly Wounded and May Not Recover—M. Plehve's Coachman Was Killed, and Many Others Were Badly Wounded—Dead Minister Was One of Best-Hated Men in Russia.

St. Petersburg, July 29.—M. Von Plehve, Minister of the Interior, was assassinated at 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning by means of a bomb thrown at his carriage, while he was driving to the Baltic Station to take a train for the Palace at Peterhof, where he was to make his weekly report to the Emperor.

The assassination is believed to be the outcome of a widespread plot,



M. VON PLEHVE,
(Russian Minister of Interior.)

the existence of which has been suspected for several days. Numerous arrests have already been made, including that of the assassin, a young man who is believed to be a Finn named Legio, and who is now in a hospital, severely and perhaps fatally injured by the explosion of his own bomb.

An accomplice of Legio, also apparently a Finn, but whose name is unknown, has been arrested. He had in his possession a bomb, which he tried to throw, but he was overpowered by the police just in time to prevent great loss of life. The assassin stood on the sidewalk just as Minister Von Plehve's carriage was about to cross the canal bridge, near the station. The Minister was escorted by a number of detectives on bicycles, and one of them jostled the assassin, who then rushed into the road and threw the bomb after the carriage.

Minister Killed Outright.

The missile struck the hind wheel and exploded with fearful force, killing or wounding over a score of persons. Minister Von Plehve and his coachman were killed outright and an officer of the guard was fatally injured.

One of the cyclist detectives arrested the assassin, who endeavored to escape, though wounded by splinters in the face, arm and abdomen. He made no attempt at resistence, however, when seized by the detective and confessed his crime, but refused to give his name.

The police immediately after the explosion arrested a suspicious individual who took refuge in a hotel opposite the scene of the tragedy. He carried a bomb similar to that thrown by Legio. As soon as the police saw the bomb they scattered, but an employe of the hotel rushed up behind the accomplice and pinned his arms. The explosive is believed to have been composed of pyrovolin, as it gave off little smoke.

Bomb's Terrific Force.

The force of the explosion was so terrific that it not only broke every window within a radius of half a mile, but reduced the heavy paving stones to powder, heaved up the pavement and flung a heavy piece of the iron work of the carriage across the canal, severing the thick mast of a barge, which fell, stunning the captain of the barge. Everybody in the street was knocked down, and more or less bruised.

When the officers of the law, headed by Minister of Justice Muravieff, had terminated the necessary formalities by drawing up a written report of the crime, the mangled remains of the Minister of the Interior were conveyed to a humble chapel adjoining the station, the windows of which miraculously escaped destruction.

Reported to the Czar.

The Minister of Justice, M. Muravieff, went to the Peterhof Palace yesterday afternoon to report the assassination of Minister Von Plehve to Emperor Nicholas. His Majesty did not leave the palace during the entire day, although he had arranged to go to Oranienbaum (19 miles from St. Petersburg), to attend the consecration of the new harbor.

The Empress has not been informed of the tragedy in view of the hourly expectation of the birth of an heir to the throne.

His Head Torn Off.

The bomb was thrown from a window of the Warsaw Hotel. Von Plehve's head was torn off, the lower portion was completely shattered, but the upper part was untouched. There were only two conspirators, one of whom threw the bomb from the window and then bolted. When captured, another bomb is said to have been found in his pocket.

Next to the Emperor.

Von Plehve's assassination was officially announced at about 1 o'clock and was followed immediately by the issuance of extra editions of the papers. Although they contained only four lines referring to the tragedy, the newsboys were fairly mobbed by the crowds in the streets, so eager were all for details of the crime. Intense excitement reigned everywhere. Only the assassination of the Emperor could have created more of a sensation, as next to His Majesty himself, Von Plehve was regarded as the most powerful personality in the Russian Government.

Who Assassinated Man Was.

Von Plehve was appointed Minister of the Interior April 18, 1902, succeeding M. Sipiaguine, who was assassinated April 16, 1902, by a student named Balschanoff. He had formerly been Director of the Department of Police. Plehve conducted the prosecution of the assassins of Alexander II. in 1881, and from that time on his power increased until it became only second in importance to that of the Emperor. Several plots to assassinate him have, according to reports, been discovered during the past two years.

Marvieff Stoned.

As Minister of Justice Muravieff was driving to the Peterhof Palace yesterday afternoon to report to Emperor Nicholas the assination of Minister of the Interior Von Plehve stones were thrown at him and his carriage windows broken. The identity of the minister's assailants has not yet been discovered.

Plehve Regarded With Abhorrence.

Former United States Ambassador to Germany Andrew D. White was seen by a Post-Standard reporter just before he left for Ithaca yesterday afternoon. When asked if he had the acquaintance of Mr. Plehve, Russian Minister of the Interior, Mr. White answered that he knew him well. Mr. White said:

"I think both Gen. Bacheller and myself found Mr. Plehve very agreeable, and apparently, as far as his Government allowed, reasonable. I also met him socially at various times and found him agreeable and interesting. I was, therefore, greatly surprised at learning when he was promoted to the first place, that his whole character seemed to change.

"His part in the horrible massacre and plunder of the Jews, men, women and children, at Kishineff, caused him to be regarded with abhorrence by the whole world. Even more frightful has been his connection with the destruction of the liberties of Finland. In my mind that is the most wicked thing in the history of the last two centuries. There is no time to go into it here further than to say that it has turned the best, the most civilized, the most educated and most loyal province in the Empire into a land in which the opposite of all these characteristics is more highly developed than in any other part of the Empire. Other things done by him were also calculated to bring most bitter hatred against him.

Doesn't Wonder at It.

"I do not wonder at his assassination, although I deeply lament it. Among other reasons for this regret, it will doubtless be made a pretext for new oppression and new cruelties toward the Jewish population and toward the Findlanders. Assassination always defeats its purpose, and this will be, I fear, no exception to the rule."

A Thoughtful Partner.

A prominent lawyer in a western city once came east to transact some business. On arriving at his destination he found that he had forgotten the name of the firm he had come to see. After spending some time in useless efforts to remember he at last decided to telegraph home to his partner for the necessary information. In answer he received the following telegram: "Your business is with Smith & Jones. Your name is Brown."

Colonies and the Motherland.

London, July 28.—(C.A.P.)—In the House of Commons yesterday, replying to Mr. Buchanan, Hon. Mr. Lyttelton said that none of the self-governing colonies had ever offered the open home market of such colony to British manufacturers on equal terms with colonial manufacturers or on terms better relatively to colonial manufacturers than those now existing. The general attitude of the self-governing colonies in respect to this matter was defined by the resolution passed at the Colonial Conference. Steps had been taken by some of the self-governing colonies to give effect to the resolution, but without any consultation or bargaining with the mother country.

STOP-LOGS OUT AT HASTINGS DAM.

Steamboat Men are Complaining of Low Water.

Say That Navigation is Being Affected Plenty of Water if Regulated Properly.

The steamboat men navigating the Otonabee River are complaining quite strongly of the low water in the river. They say that this low water is caused by stop-logs in the Hastings dam having been out since May. This condition has allowed the water to run away at that point, and has rendered it exceedingly difficult to navigate. The boatsmen say that the reason the stop-logs have been removed is that some market-gardeners living above the dam have made representations that if the logs were put in and the water raised, it would injure their crops, which apparently have been put in close to the river.

The consequence of this action on the part of those in charge of the dam, is that navigation at nearly all points above the dam is being seriously affected, and those who are engaged in the steamboat trade on the Otonabee state that if it is not remedied speedily, they will have to stop running.

This would be a very serious state of affairs, and one which would be a bad blow to the whole canal project.

It is not, as said by those interested, because of the fact that there is not sufficient water in the river, because if it were properly regulated there would be no such trouble as is being experienced now.

TO RETIRING ORGANIST AND CHOIR MASTER.

Members of George Street Choir Present Addresses.

Mrs. Mowat and Mr. Mulligan's Work Appreciated—A Farewell Last Night.

Last evening the members of the George street Methodist choir met with their leader and organist for the last time in that capacity, and the event was made one of special moment.

At the conclusion of the practice, Mr. Mulligan addressed the choir briefly expressing his regret that he had found it necessary to sever his connection with the choir in the capacity of leader. He had thoroughly enjoyed the two years and a half that they had spent together, and hoped that the members of the choir would be as faithful to their new leader as they had been to him. He paid a high tribute to the ability of Mrs. Mowat, and remarked that it was to a great extent due to her efforts that the choir had progressed so satisfactorily, and the harmonious relations between the choir and the management was materially contributed to by her.

At this juncture in the proceedings, Mr. W. Hill was asked by the choir to take the chair, and the gathering was enlarged by the arrival of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Crothers, and a number of others. In assuming charge of the meeting, Mr. Hill called upon Miss Detcher to read the following address:—

To Mrs. Mowat, organist, and Mr. G. W. Mulligan, choir master, of the George Street choir:—

Dear Friends,—We are sure that words of ours are not necessary to-night, to express to you the regret which each of us feels that this will be the last time that we will gather in our present relationship as members of the choir and leaders. It is also superfluous for us to refer to the fact that during the years in which you have been associated with the choir in your present respective capacities, the utmost harmony has prevailed in our ranks, and the fact that a severance of these relationships is about to take place, is a matter of the most sincere regret to those who have during the past years so thoroughly enjoyed the association which we are now called upon to end.

The circumstances which rendered such a course necessary are deeply deplored by us, and particularly so since in the case of Mrs. Mowat, it means that she will no longer be associated with the choir. We cannot refrain from expressing our conviction that the harmonious and pleasant period of the last few years in our history, has been in a more than ordinarily large degree contributed to by the constant cheerful and willing services rendered by Mrs. Mowat, and we gladly pay this tribute to her worth.

We are pleased that while Mr. Mulligan will no longer occupy the position in the filling of which, we have learned to experience such a regard for him, he will still be one of us, and we assure both that the memory of the past two years will always be cherished by us, and we also express the hope that to you too, the relationship about to close will be remembered as a pleasant one.

Signed on behalf of George Street Choir,

MAUD DETCHER,
Secretary.
JAS. EDGCUMBE,
Treasurer.

Miss Bertha Parnell presented Mrs. Mowat with a handsome bouquet of flowers.

Mrs. Mowat replied briefly, but feelingly to the address, saying that she appreciated very highly the kindness of the choir as shown by the address, and would always remember with feelings of pleasure the two years and a half which she had spent in association with the members.

Mr. Mulligan again spoke for a few minutes, thanking the members, and expressing the hope that in the future, as in the past, the choir would sing music adapted to the worship of God."

This was followed by a solo, "Sing me to Sleep," rendered very effectively by Miss Bessie Sperry, and a few appropriate words by Mr. R. J. Chowen, who is the oldest member of the choir, having been connected with it for twenty years. He remarked that he had seen many changes in the choir in that time, but none had caused him as much regret as the present one. He was very sorry that the present happy combination was to be broken up, and also paid a high tribute to the efficient work of Mr. Mulligan, as leader, and Mrs. Mowat as organist.

Mr. Jack Bowes then favoured the company with a solo, "Under Southern Skies," and Mr. Edgcumbe, the choir treasurer, and affectionately called by the members, "The Father," added his words of appreciation of the services of the leaders who were about to sever their connection with the choir. He remarked that he thought Mr. Mulligan owed the choir an apology for ending the combination which had been so successful.

A solo, "Barcarolle," by Miss Bertha Parnell, was rendered very sweetly, after which a number of others, including Messrs. C. Moore, M. J. Hutchinson, and Rev. Dr. Crothers, spoke briefly.

Refreshments served by the ladies brought the evening to a close.

Next Sunday will be the last day that the present leader and organist will officiate in the choir.

The period during which they held office has been a very successful one to the choir, every member of which regrets that they are leaving.

The Lindsay team, accompanied by about 300 excursionists, journeyed to Cobourg yesterday and defeated the team of that place by a score of 6 to 2. The result of the game was ot a surprise to the Cobourg fans, Allister, their crack slab artist, ing left town, and McKinnon, replaced him on the rubber, had pitched a ball this season. style; his throwing to bases showed immense improvement. The infield played well, although there were no hard chances given them. Stalker in left field, "side stepped" what looked like two easy chances. Hooper was the only outfielder who had a put out. McKinnon looked to be the goods in the final innings. McGill after having two strikes on him flew out to Burdge in centre. Workman hit an easy one to Downs, who fumbled. Cinnamon scored Workman with a slashing two bagger, Miller reached first on a fielder's choice, Cinnamon being caught going to third. Miller was nailed trying to steal second. In Cobourg's half, Turpin hit to short and was out at first; Burdge singled and stole second. Floyd flew out to McGill and Bentley fanned.

In the second Marks singled; McGill hit to the pitcher, who booted it. McLaughlin reached first on a pitcher's choice, and Marks went to third on an error by Bulger. Stalker went out second to first, Marks and Menzies scoring. Hooper and McGill struck out. In the third, Workman singled, Cinnamon went out third to first. Miller went out third to second, Workman crossing the pan. Marks flied out to short.

There was nothing doing in the fourth. McLaughlin went out short to first. Stalker and Hooper fanned. Lindsay got one in the fifth. McGill hit for two bags. Workman singled, scoring McGill. Cinnamon struck out; Miller flied out to centre; Mark singled, but Menzies hit an easy one to third, being thrown out at first. There was nothing "doin'" in the sixth or seventh. One run was recorded in the eighth; Mark and Menzies hit safely; McLaughlan sacrificed them on a base, and on Stalker's single Mark scored. Lindsay failed to tally in the ninth.

Cobourg scored their first run in the sixth. Burdge singled; Floyd flew out to McGill; Bentley was hit on the head with a fast one. Butler scored Burdge with a slashing drive for two sacks. In the seventh and eighth no scoring was done. In the ninth Butler singled, stole second, and went to third on Cinnamon's bad throw, and scored on McKinnon's single.

PRESENTATION OF THE STRATTON CUP.

Dr. Morgan Presents it to Locust Hill Football Team.

At a Garden Party Held There Last Night—A Success ful Affair.

Last night was a memorable one at Locust Hill. The football team, champions of the Midland League, held a big garden party, and the cup won by the team was presented to it by Dr. Morgan, the president of the League, in the presence of nearly half a thousand people. Had it not rained nearly all day there would have been fully one thousand present.

The garden party was under the auspices of the football club, and was a very successful event. It was held in a beautiful grove near the village, and in addition to the presentation ceremony, a good programme was rendered, talent being present, including some from Toronto and other places. The Green River Brass Band was on the ground, and gave a number of selections, which enlivened the proceedings to a great extent. Two professional entertainers, Fred Race and Will J. White, from Toronto, contributed to the programme.

After the programme had opened the chairman called upon Dr. Morgan, president of the League, to address the gathering, and in complying with the request, Dr. Morgan said:

As president of the Midland Football League I assure you that it is a great pleasure to me to be present this evening, and participate in this event, the object of which is to do honour to the Champion team in the Midland Football League.

EEarly in the season, when pinas were being formed for the season's work, the Executive officers of the League were delighted when a communication was received from your energetic secretary conveying the information the Locust Hill would be represented in the Midland League during the season of 1904. We felt then that you would make a creditable showing, but we confess that we hardly expected that you would come in and take the cup away from Peterborough the first year.

However, we are glad that you have such a splendid aggregation of football players, and assure you that no team in the league begrudges you the honour that is yours to-day. To have won the championship of the Midland League is an honour which is of no mean order. It may not be generally known that the League of which the Locust Hill "Clippers" are champions, is the largest independent football organization in existence.

This year, the second since its formation, there were 15 teams represented in the League, and 36 games were scheduled. The record of the League this year, is indeed a creditable one, and one which many older organizations might well envy. We believe that as good football is played in the Midland League as in any other football association in the Province; a fact which we would like to have seen verified by the Locust Hill playing the senior Scots.

We expect that next year the Midland League will be affiliated with the Ontario Association, when our champions will have the opportunity of playing for the Ontario Championship.

I hope that next year will see the Locust Hill team again in the League, and that you will play the same clean game, that has characterised your record this year.

On behalf of the Midland Football League, I have pleasure in presenting to the Locust Hill team, the winners of 1904, this Silver Cup, donated by the Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, to the League, to be given yearly to the team winning the League Championship, and in doing so wish to congratulate you on your success in winning such a handsome and valuable trophy.

Mr. M. R. Hoover, the secretary of the club, acknowledged the receipt of the cup in a neat speech, in which he made some complimentary references to the League. He said that the Locust Hill team was well pleased with the treatment it had been accorded by the League, although it was a disappointment that the Y. M.C.A. team did not go to Locust Hill to play the return game.

They were highly pleased with the beautiful trophy presented to them by the League, and assured Dr. Morgan that the Locust Hill team would be in the League next year.

Dainty refreshments were served, and a delightful evening was spent.

Dr. Morgan returned this morning.

The following challenge has been handed the Examiner for publication:—

The Phantasmagorical Aztecs of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Association, composed of the following:—Oku Kernaghan, Nodnu Moore (commonly called Dave), Togo Johnsing, Ku-rockey Frost, (this gentleman, notwithstanding his name, never had cold feet), hereby challenge any and every possible combination of the remaining semi-comatose members of the aforesaid club, to be put wholly to sleep, in a game of bowls, to be played anywhere, except in the vicinity of water, special inducements being offered for the Gore of bunches including any of the following:—Grand Duke Alexis Kerr, Kur-o-pat-kin Giroux, Rennicantskoi Sturgeon, Roaming-off Runnells, The Bould McIntyre, Bean-Buzer-off Billiski Talbot (the Count can be thrown in as a collateral) and others with names too longitudinal to mention. Any individual bunch can be composed of all skips or they can skip a skip if they want to. Remember we are the Yellow Peril and are the only combination that can allow an eight end against us and win out. To guard against heart failure on your part we beg to say that our Actuaries inform us that out of the number of automatums challenged 1,689,646 7-8 (allowing for Brother Sam Sharpe) combination can be made against us. This will give us the gratification of 1,689,647 victories if nine be allowed us in the last end of the last game. Come one—come mostly.

LACROSSE.

The T.A.S. play in Millbrook this afternoon in the last scheduled game in the Trent Valley League. The red and black should have but little difficulty in winning.

• • • •

The final game in this district between Port Hope and the T. A. S. comes next week.

• • • •

The half holiday proclaimed by the Mayor for Monday afternoon will give the town residents an opportunity of seeing the lacrosse game between the I.C.B.U. team of Toronto and the T.A.S. team. This will be the first time that a lacrosse team from the west will appear in Peterborough this year, and this will probably be the only opportunity that will be given of seeing a Toronto team play here this season. The I.C.B.U. team stands well up in the City League, and the game is bound to be a fast one. The team will be accompanied by a good crowd of rooters, and the local lovers of the game should turn out to encourage the home team.

• • • •

The Chicago Inter-Ocean tells of a lacrosse game between the Calumets of Chicago and the Detroit team. The Calumets won by 8—0. Mr. Percy Rubidge, late of Peterborough, played second home for the Chicago team, and the Inter-Ocean says of him:—

"Accidents there were, so many of them that the game was delayed again and again. First, Percy Rubidge received a nasty smash across his eye and nose. He reeled for a moment, and it seemed that he would not be able to go on with the game, but the crowd yelled "Play ball," and Percy picked himself together and played away as if nothing had struck him."

• • • •

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—In reply to the question in last night's Examiner I wish to state that the Shamrocks are a team that practice in the Driving Park. They play fast lacrosse and are good stick handlers.

J. F. McCARTY,
President.

BASEBALL.

To-morrow afternoon's game between Oshawa and Peterborough, promises to be one of the best of the season. Both teams are in midsummer form and are playing the fastest kind of ball; a victory for either team will materially help their chances for the pennant, and at this stage of the game neither can afford to lose. Manager Whitcroft will place the strongest batting team of the year on the diamond to-morrow and is confident of victory.

• • • •

Lindsay now leads the Midland League.

• • • •

The Peterboroughs will be strong on the slab to-morrow and a pitcher's battle is likely to result.

• • • •

The meeting of the Midland League Executive announced to be held at Port Hope, was not held. "Reddy" Lamont was there to represent Peterborough, but the other teams were unrepresented, consequently there was no meeting.

• • • •

A meeting of the executive of the Midland Baseball League was held at Port Hope last evening, when there were present Messrs. Hambly, Oshawa; Weekes, Bowmanville; Mulhall, Cobourg; Orton, Port Hope; Graham, Peterborough; Parkin, Lindsay.

Peterborough's two wins at home from Bowmanville and Lindsay, were thrown out and ordered to be replayed here, the locals to pay the expenses of the visiting teams. No outsiders must be played in any games.

Manager Whitcroft has unearthed a new pitcher who has been employed for some time at the Canadian General Electric Works, and he will be on the slab to-morrow. He is said to be a good man, and Manager Whitcroft has every confidence in his ability to down the Oshawas to-morrow.

• • • •

The line up of the teams for to-morrow will be:

Oshawa — Humbly lf, Crowley c, Brockman 2b, Costello cf, Bowden 1b, Cawker 3b, Guinnett ss, Giles rf, Parker p.

The local nine will be picked from Sheridan, Lamont, Graham, Whitcroft, J. Pilling, E. Pilling, McDonald, Earls, Simpson, Warham, Smith.

• • • •

The rain saved Toronto yesterday.

• • • •

TURF.

• • • •

Arrangements are all complete for the Peterborough Turf Club's annual race meet next week. The track is in good shape and the horses in training are making fast time. The entries for the running races close on the evening before each race, and some flyers will be here, which will provide some great finishes.

The hurdle race alone promises to be worth going a long distance to witness. There will be three days of the fastest kind of racing.

ANOTHER CUP COMPETITION IN THE PARK REGATTA.

The Trent Navigation Co's Cup, Trophy for the Dinghy Races.

The Chemong Park Regatta Committee are able to announce that the trustees of the Trent Valley Navigation Company Cup, have decided to put up the cup for competition this year and it will be the trophy of the dinghy race at the Chemong Park Regatta on Saturday, August 6th. This will add interest to this event which is developing very respectable proportions and promises to initiate a decided revival of aquatic sport in our northern waters.

MR. JACKSON'S "INDISCRETIONS."

Ottawa, July 29.—The Opposition succeeded, by springing an amendment unexpectedly yesterday, in getting a snap vote in which the Government majority was 27. The division occurred in a slim House upon an academic amendment offered by Mr. R. L. Borden to the motion to go into supply, which the Government supporters either had to accept or reject without an opportunity to offer an amendment to the amendment. The debate was introduced by Mr. W. A. Bennett, who denounced the appointment as commercial agent in England of Mr. J. B. Jackson, formerly of Ingersoll, who was a prominent figure in the South Oxford Provincial election trial. Mr. Bennett quoted from the evidence and comments of the Judges to show that Mr. Jackson should not have received an appointment as a representative of the Dominion in the mother country. Sir Richard Cartwright assumed the sole responsibility and blame, if there was any blame, for the appointment and exonerated his colleagues in the Cabinet. While not defending Mr. Jackson's indiscretions, he contended that he had not done anything to render himself liable to the law, and that there was no difference morally between Mr. Jackson paying for evidence and respectable and honorable gentlemen in the Conservative party advertising that they would pay rewards for evidence which would unseat Liberal candidates who carried their ridings. Mr. R. L. Borden condemned Sir Richard for his inability to find any more forcible language than "indiscreet" to describe Mr. Jackson's conduct in seeking to procure evidence true or false. There never was a more damnable doctrine more unblushingly avowed, said Mr. Borden, than that preached by Sir Richard in this connection. One Government supporter, Mr. Erib, South Perth, voted in the minority. In supply items aggregating $2,250,000 were voted for the Public Works Department.

Another Vacancy.

The third vacancy by death in the membership of the House since the present session began occurred yesterday, when Mr. Isidore Proulx, the Liberal member for Prescott county, passed away at his home at Plantagenet. Mr. Proulx's death came suddenly, for he was in his place in the House as late as last Friday. On Saturday he went on a fishing trip, caught cold, was taken with inflammation of the bowels, from the dire consequences of which he could not be saved by the best medical skill. Mr. Proulx was one of the two French-Canadian representatives from Ontario in the Dominion House, the other being Mr. Speaker Belcourt.

Sketch of His Life.

Mr. Proulx was born in Two Mountains county, Quebec, in 1840, and came to Prescott county early in life. He was a successful farmer, and occupied several municipal offices prior to his election to Parliament. He is survived by a grown-up family, one of whom is Mr. Edmonde Proulx, recently graduated from Osgoode Hall, Toronto, and who attained some prominence by his defence of Goyette, the murderer who was hung at L'Orignal several months ago. Mr. Proulx was an exceedingly strong candidate in Prescott, and at the last election he won by 417, defeating a straight Conservative, as well as the present Senator Cloran, who ran as an Independent. The funeral of the late member will be held at Plantagenet on Monday morning next, and will be attended by a considerable number of members.

THE SWORDFISH.

Some of the Tropical Species Are of Enormous Size.

A queer fish is the swordfish. It is found in the tropical and subtropical zones of both the eastern and western hemispheres. Some of the tropical species are of enormous size and measure from twelve to fifteen feet in length, with swords at least three feet long. The sword is much the shape of a cone somewhat flattened, the end sharply pointed. It is smooth on the top and sides, but the under part is rough. It is really an elongation of the bones of the upper jaw and is possessed of very great strength, for with these weapons they have been known to pierce the copper sheathing of vessels and heavy plates and timbers; but, although they can drive the sword far into these substances, they cannot draw them out, so break them off and swim away without them.

A large fin extends nearly the length of the back of the creature, which is folded back when the fish is swimming in order that its progress may not be impeded if speed is desired, but when quietly swimming it is often erected and acts as a sail to carry it through the water. The swordfish is very aggressive in its disposition and will often assail fish much larger than itself. Even the whale is not exempt from its attacks. The food of the swordfish consists of smaller fish, which it kills by stabbing them with its sword. There is quite a large business done in swordfishing, as the flesh is used for food. The larger species are caught by harpooning, the smaller in nets.

WROTE AN AWFUL HAND.

David Dudley Field Was Even Worse Than Horace Greeley.

No compositor could set David Dudley Field's "copy." They tried it in several large law printing offices in New York city, but invariably Mr. Field's manuscript was returned to him for interpretation. His chirography was something wretched. Compared with it, Horace Greeley's screeds were copperplate. In the line of unintelligible "curlycues" the great jurist could give the great editor "cards and spades."

Mr. Field never wrote at a desk while in his office. He had a green baize covered little slab screwed to the arm of his revolving chair, and on this he would write for hours at a time. He turned out "copy" quickly, but days often elapsed before his writings could be put in the hands of the printer. They had to be copied, and all hands in the office took turns at helping to decipher them. Often copies of Mr. Field's briefs had to be returned to him with spaces left for words, and sometimes whole sentences, to be filled in by himself. Then he would wax wroth and declare his writing was as plain as day.

Especially when working on his hobby, codification, Mr. Field's ideas came too fast for legible transmission to paper, and the result was a chaotic appearing mass of characters most bewildering to the unfortunate copyist.

Tricky Lions.

Some of the most dangerous tricks of animals are those of simulating kindness. Charles Montague in "Tales of a Nomad" says that hyenas often follow lions and finish a carcass the moment the lions have left it. Sometimes, however, the hyenas are too eager and steal bits of meat while the lions are still at their meal.

"I have been told that the lion rids himself of the nuisance in the following way: He throws a piece of meat aside. When the lion is looking the other way the hyena dodges in and rushes off with the meat. Presently the lion throws another piece of meat, this time a little nearer. The hyena takes that also. At last the lion throws a piece very near indeed. The hyena, having become reckless, makes a dash at this also, but the lion wheels round and lays him low with a pat of his paw and a growl of annoyance."

CHILDREN'S AILMENTS.

Contagious Diseases and the Signs That Proclaim Them.

Whooping cough develops slowly, and for several days it is no different from an ordinary cough due to a cold in the lungs. Then suddenly the cough becomes more violent and lasts longer, with that characteristic catching of the breath and redness of the face.

Diphtheria is characterized by a sore throat and a swelling of the glands of the neck, with white specks on the tonsils. It should always be treated by the best medical skill obtainable.

Scarlet fever is most contagious during the height of the disease and during the period of desquamation—that is, when the cuticle separates in small scales. The first symptoms are vomiting, a sore throat and a high fever. The eruption appears first on the neck and chest and then covers the entire body. This disease may be carried by well people in their clothing or it can be conveyed by the clothing of the patient.

Measles is a serious disease on account of frequently accompanying bronchitis or pneumonia. It is most severe in children under five years. The disease can be conveyed from the earliest stage—the catarrhal symptoms. It is less contagious after the eruption disappears.

Chicken pox appears gradually, first in the form of pimples all over the face, scalp and body. There is irritation of the skin, but little fever. This is, like measles and whooping cough, a very contagious disease.—New Idea Magazine.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Pies will be soggy if set on top of a hot stove after being baked.

Thin sugar cookies if flavored with bitter almond make a good substitute for macaroons.

Raisins for fruit cake are much improved by cooking. Let them soak slowly and then simmer until the skin is tender.

Should your soup be too salty add a sliced raw potato and cook a few moments longer, as the potato will absorb the surplus salt.

Soup is made into a most nourishing broth by adding about a teaspoonful of oatmeal to the pot. Any one of the many oatmeals may be used for this purpose.

The toughest beef or chicken can be made tender and palatable by putting a good spoonful of cider vinegar in the pot in which it is boiling or in the juice with which it is basted if roasting in a pan.

Children and Chewing Gum.

"The chewing of gum is generally regarded by the parents of children who are addicted to it as a pernicious habit," said a dentist. "And yet, in certain cases, I have no hesitation in saying that it is a most excellent thing. In fact, on more than one occasion have I advised the parents of children whose faces were narrow and whose jaws were not sufficiently developed to make them chew gum. The constant exercise has a tendency to widen an otherwise narrow jaw and thus make room for teeth that show evidence of crowding each other out of shape. The constant chewing of gum for two hours every day is sufficient exercise to bring about a most desirable result in the dwarfed formation of a child's jaw. Even when no such treatment is necessary I see no reason why the children should be forbidden to chew gum. It can do no harm and may possibly do good in keeping the teeth white and clean."—Philadelphia Record.

Old Towels.

Old towels may be made to renew their youth, says an economical housewife, by cutting them through the center and sewing the two outside edges together. The raison d'etre of this is that the towels get thin down the center long before the sides are worn.

What Fruit-a-tives are

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices in tablet form. They are the laxative, tonic and curative principles of fruit—combined into pleasant tasting pellets. They contain all the virtues of fruit—but by the secret process of making them, their action on the human system is many times intensified.

What "Fruit-a-tives" are for "Fruit-a-tives" are the natural and logical cure for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Their action is that of fresh fruit, only very much surer and more effective. Then too, they are free of fruit acids, sugar and woody fibre which often prevent fresh fruit being beneficial.

Try "Fruit-a-tives" and see how quickly they cure you of Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bilious Headache, Loss of Appetite and Kidney troubles.

A HASTY TEMPER.

The Harm It Does Even Though the Ugly Fit Be Soon Over.

It is a remarkable thing that there exists in people's minds a distinct social precedence among the vices.

To own oneself in intimate terms with such a one as deceit or slander, for instance, would be almost undreamt of, but how often have we heard people say, almost with pride, at any rate with no trace of shame, "I have a very hasty temper?" And then as if to transfigure it into a very virtue they triumphantly add, "But it is soon over." So it may be, but how about its consequences? Are they soon over?

There are few more dangerous enemies to the peace and comfort of everyday life than the people who speak hastily in the squalls of passing ill temper, and then, when they are restored to good humor, expect everything to be just as it was before. There is no such position possible as "just as it was before" in this up and down hill human nature of ours. Every act or word is a step by which we mount upward or sink lower in the unhindered journeyings onward of all the conditions of life, and the people who give utterance to the incriminations of passionate tempers unfailingly drop down in the estimation of others, from which it is a stiff climb up again.

Moreover, words once uttered, whether true or false, are usually undying and live on in hearts and memories long after the careless bow that shot such poisoned arrows forth is unstrung. And though the utterer may plead that to feed his passion he said not what he really believed, but what he thought at the time would hurt most, it is almost impossible for the hearer to understand that the expression was not that of a living though latent opinion and to feel it accordingly.

The code of fashion in the moral realms has decreed how much better a passionate temper is than a sulky one, but there is something to be said in favor of the latter in that it only hurts itself. Like the little girl who when annoyed always ate her apple tart without sugar, the guilty person may suffer most individually, but that is surely better than the suffering to the innocent caused by the random shots of the fierce though short onslaughts of a hasty temper. And silence is much less generally disturbing than violence, though perhaps quite as unbecoming.—Edith H. Fowler in London Mail.

DOES AN EDUCATION PAY?

Does it pay an acorn to become an oak?

Does it pay to escape being a rich ignoramus?

Does it pay to fit oneself for a superior position?

Does it pay to open a little wider the door of a narrow life?

Does it pay to learn to make life a glory instead of a grind?

Does it pay to add power to the lens of the microscope or telescope?

Does it pay to taste the exhilaration of feeling one's powers unfold?

Does it pay to know how to take the dry, dreary drudgery out of life?

Does it pay a rosebud to open its petals and fling out its beauty to the world?

Does it pay to push one's horizon farther out in order to get a wider outlook, a clearer vision?

Does it pay to learn how to center thought with power, how to marshal one's mental force effectively?—Success.

House Plants.

A man who knows something about plants and flowers gave this bit of advice to a woman who complained that she could not raise any kind of a plant, although she was always patronizing the florist and investing in ferns and palms: "I'll tell you what may be the matter. The plants you buy have only just been repotted or transplanted. They look sturdy in the florist's shop, but if he were to keep them in the window a day or so they would droop and die too. What they need is just darkness and coolness, not heat and light. Give them a chance in some cool, dark place to sink their roots into the soil and become accustomed to the new earth and the new pot. Also try the plan of putting palms and ferns in the cellar once in awhile to give them a rest. They need it just as much as we do at times."

Nursing Infants.

As the health of a nursing infant depends largely upon the health of the mother, it is very essential that no great strain, physical or mental, should be put upon her and that she should have a certain amount of rest and mental diversion. To this end it is advisable as early as possible, which means as soon as the baby is well started and gaining in weight, to give one bottle feeding of diluted cow's milk once in twenty-four hours. It is usually safe to commence this feeding at the end of a month, and it is best to give the milk quite diluted for the first two or three days, say one part of milk to four parts of water, until the stomach becomes accustomed to the change of food.—Harper's Bazar.

Most Indian Chivalry.

The person of a high class East Indian woman is sacred. She can never be touched even with the tips of the fingers. She is looked upon almost as a goddess. She can frequent the most crowded public place without being subject to insult. A man that would gaze at a female passing by, as our loungers do, would be thought a most unmannered and uneducated person. All this gives her an air of dignity, purity, self possession, that is beautiful to see, the "normal poise" we hear so much about and make such efforts to gain.

THE ROCKING HABIT.

It Is Bad For the Nerves and Is Apt to Destroy Repose.

It seems a pity that so many women form the rocking habit. It does them no good, and it annoys other people considerably. It is purely a feminine habit, men being saved from it possibly by the fear that their dignity would suffer, probably because they do not have nerves in the sense that most women have them. Rocking and nerves go together as sure as fate. Not all rocking is bad. The slow rhythmic swinging back and forth of a mother with her child is one of the world's sweetest sights. It is the nervous habit of rocking hard and steadily while talking that one would like to protest against.

It would be an interesting computation, if one knew how, to consider how many volts of precious energy go to waste in useless rocking. Some of the rockers will exclaim that they are so accustomed to rocking that it does not require any effort. But the energy is wasted just the same. Besides, rocking in this machine-like, ceaseless fashion is essentially inelegant. The author of "The Gospel of Leisure" denounced rocking chairs as enemies of womankind. He found American women lacking markedly in repose, and without repose where is elegance? But few of us would be willing, however, to banish all of our easy, comfortable rocking chairs. A house entirely without them would look stiff and unhappy. But it might be well for women to take them a little more moderately. Their nerves and manner would gain vastly.—Indianapolis News.

WOMAN'S WORLD

IDA ECKERT LAWRENCE.

The Dramatic Poet Who Wrote the St. Louis Exposition Ode.

Few women ascend the lofty pinnacle of worldwide fame as writers of poetry. A number, quite limited, gain a national reputation. A still larger number are locally renowned, but it is rarely that one is selected to inscribe a poem to celebrate such an occasion as the dedication ceremonies of a world's fair. But Ida Eckert Lawrence is distinguished by that honor, and her Louisiana purchase ode earned the eulogistic commendation of the most qualified critics of verse in the United States. Mrs. Lawrence gained an enviable reputation when, at the request of President McKinley, she wrote the ode on the launching of the battleship Ohio, which was copied throughout the English speaking world.

She has risen rapidly to the front rank of women who are devoting themselves to literature. She was chosen to represent the American woman at the international congress in Paris in 1900, and her address, "The American Woman in Literature," won her marked recognition. She became a social favorite and was entertained by President and Mme. Loubet. Mrs. Lawrence has contributed many stories to the newspapers and magazines, but her fame has come to her in the last few years. Her dramatic poem, "Vesuvius," is exceptional for its glowing use of English.

When the committee on ceremonies of the Louisiana Purchase exposition cast about for an American poet to compose the official ode, which custom has made a feature of such undertakings, the choice fell upon Ida Eckert Lawrence, the "Ohio poet." Her fulfillment of the important commission assigned to her fully justified the wisdom of the committee. Mrs. Lawrence is a native of Toledo, O.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Best Cleansing Agents.

I once asked a little French scullery maid whether she was using soap on her pans. "Oh, never, madam," with an expressive shrug. In France the traditional experimental methods still linger, but in the decadence of such old fashioned methods with us, when our tins were cleaned with wood ashes, the various patented soaps have invaded American kitchens and are being promiscuously applied to surfaces for which they have no affinity. The grease or fat which is the basis of all soaps will combine with textile fibers, but will not combine with polished surfaces. It forms on these a glaze or scum which it is very difficult to remove and is, in fact, not removed; hence the peculiar flavor we call flat in coffee, the flavor of soap that may often be detected in a glass of apparently clear water and the malodorous smell of frying that greets the nostrils even on the sill of many houses. It is the soap that, failing to combine with the frying pan, has entered readily into combination with the fat in the pan and sends forth this sickening odor. How often have I heard wonder expressed at the appetizing smells of French cooking. It is done in lard or butter and not in soap.

There is a simple scientific formula that will cover all the subject of kitchen cleaning—namely, use soaps which contain fats and alkalis with all textile fibers and soft porous wood, such as pine tables, floors, etc., and some form of potash or acid with all polished surfaces. Never use soap in a coffee pot or frying pan.

Acids are best for glass, but the danger of strong acids renders them undesirable. If, however, a good housekeeper will keep some form of lump acid in a jar and prepare a weak solution, the cleaning of glass will be greatly facilitated and, well rinsed, the glass will take a bright polish.—The House Beautiful.

Beating Eggs.

When a recipe calls for "slightly beaten" eggs it means that the eggs should receive about fifteen strokes of the egg whisk, according to What to Eat. When eggs are "slightly beaten" they are not separated, but the white and yolk are beaten together.

"Well beaten eggs" means eggs that have been beaten till they are light and pale yellow in color. Eggs should never be beaten in tin, on account of the unpleasant flavor it is likely to impart to them. Nor should a single egg be dropped into a large dish or bowl, where it is almost lost when one tries to beat it. Long, narrow beaters may be purchased that will just fit into a tumbler, which is the best of all things in which to beat an egg. If eggs are washed before they are broken, the shells may be put away and used for clearing coffee and soups.

When the white of an egg is to be beaten alone, first of all chill it thoroughly and add a pinch of salt before it is whipped. The white should be beaten in a narrow dish, like a cup or tumbler. In this way it will froth more readily.

Two whites beaten separately make more froth than when beaten together.

Eggs are beaten "to a froth" when they will stand alone. They are beaten "till dry" when they have a certain shiny appearance, and, the bowl being inverted, fall out all in a lump.

"When I commenced taking your medicines, eighteen months ago, my health was completely broken down," writes Mrs. Cora L. Sunderland, of Chaneyville, Calvert Co., Md. "At times I could not even walk across the room without pains in my chest. The doctor who attended me said I had lung trouble, and that I would never be well again. At last I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. I bought a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' took it, and soon commenced to feel a little better, then you directed me to take both the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the 'Favorite Prescription,' which I did. Altogether I have taken eighteen bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' twelve of the 'Favorite Prescription,' and five vials of 'Pellets.' I am now almost entirely well, and do all my work without any pain whatever, and can run with more ease than I could formerly walk."

ART IN THE HOME.

Beauty Is of More Moment Than More Cost in Ornamentation.

The wise man has said, "There is a time for everything." Surely we ought to take time to make home cheerful and happy, and of the many things which tend toward doing this nothing is more essential than a tidy, cozy, pleasant living room. Here is where the family meets in the social circle; here the busy housewife sits after the labors of the day are over; here is where friends are received who make an informal call. It should be made to reflect the hospitality, the taste, the love and the ease of the household, says the Ladies' World.

Not a few sitting rooms are unlovely from a lack of artistic ornamentation. I do not mean that every housewife can or should, even were her means sufficient, adorn her walls with paintings of the old masters, set up statues in every niche and corner and place Henri Deux ware on her mantelpieces. "Art," says a great critic, "is never more supreme than when it fashions from the commonest materials objects of the greatest beauty." It seems to me an obvious truism that the beautiful is equally beautiful however much or however little it may cost and that the lilies of the field, though every village child may pluck them, are yet arrayed in purer loveliness than an eastern emperor in all his glory. A vase of flowers in a room goes a long way in making it attractive. Mere pictures are nothing if not beautiful.

KITCHEN REFUSE.

Put It In the Middle Hole of the Cooking Range.

The use of what we call the middle hole of the kitchen stove is a very important one, especially to those who have to burn most of the refuse from the kitchen. From my youth up I was taught that no refuse of any kind was to be put directly upon the fire. The place for everything of that sort, especially if moist, was in "the middle hole." The reason for this is a very simple one. If anything moist is placed directly upon hot coals an unpleasant odor arises from it before the covers can be replaced. If, however, it is placed in the middle hole of the stove the moisture is gradually evaporated, and then what is left of the substance, when pushed over on the hot coals, will burn without odor. A careful housekeeper never allows anything, paper or refuse of any kind, to be placed directly upon her fire. The "middle hole" is the one directly above the door of the oven.—Good Housekeeping.

TOILET TIPS.

To tone the skin add a little alcohol to wash water.

In warm weather bathe with diluted vinegar. It is cooling and will make the skin soft.

If the skin on the hands is dry and cracks, wash with oatmeal instead of soap. Rinse well and dry on a soft towel.

To lighten the hair use two teaspoonfuls of salts of tartar to the basin of shampoo water. This is also good for very oily hair.

The hands can be cleaned better with warm water than with cold, but they should always be rinsed afterward with cold water, as this keeps them in a better condition.

Tartar, one of the greatest enemies of the teeth, may be kept away by the daily brushing of the teeth and the use of a few drops of myrrh in a half glass of water. Use a moderately stiff toothbrush.

Drive nails through spools to hang clothes on in the attic or in the woodshed. This will prevent many a torn place when things are taken down in the dark.

The bride's linen should be marked with her own initials, those of the name she is to bear never being used until after she is married.

Butter on bread not only increases its nutritive value, but tends to assist its digestibility.

LINCOLN ON CIRCUIT.

He Presented a Quaint Appearance as He Followed the Court.

Following the court about on the circuit was no doubt the joy of Lincoln's life. He was so fond of it that he declined a flattering offer to enter a lucrative law partnership in Chicago, because, as he contended, it would necessitate more or less confinement in the office and therefore keep him off the circuit. Seated in a one horse buggy, behind a sorry looking animal, he would set out from Springfield, to be gone for weeks at a stretch. The lawyers, as he drove into each successive place, eagerly anticipating a new stock of stories, gave him a cordial welcome, and the landlords hailed his coming with delight, for he was one of the most patient and uncomplaining of guests. "If every other fellow," relates one of his colleagues, "grumbled at the indifferent accommodations and scant fare which greeted us at many of the dingy taverns we struck, Lincoln said nothing." His forbearance in this regard well warrants the observation he is said on one occasion to have made—that he never so completely felt his "own unworthiness as when he stood face to face with a real, live hotel clerk."

How he appeared on the circuit may be gleaned from this sketch of him drawn by Henry C. Whitney, one of his colleagues in central Illinois: "His hat was brown, faded and the nap usually worn or rubbed off. He wore a short cloak and sometimes a shawl. His coat and vest hung loosely on his giant frame. His trousers were invariably too short. In one hand he carried a faded green umbrella, with 'A. Lincoln' in large white cotton or muslin letters sewed on the inside. The knob was gone from the handle, and a piece of cord was usually tied round the middle of the umbrella to keep it from flying open. In the other hand he carried a carpetbag, in which were stored the few papers to be used in court and underclothing enough to last till his return to Springfield."—Century.

A Clothes Closet Hint.

In a house where there is a dearth of closets I have discovered a makeshift that to me is invaluable. In improvised closets made with a wide shelf and a curtain with hooks underneath I pin a great many safety pins to the inside of the curtain so that the pins come point downward next to the curtain. Twist the pins down solid so that the little rings will hold, and with these pins hang all manner of dainty belongings to the inside of the curtain. It is the best place I have ever found for shirt waists, fichus, ties, etc. When taking down a garment do not remove the pin, but simply uncatch, and in hanging shirt waists pin through each side of the neck band.—Good Housekeeping.

OPENING OF THE NEW RAILWAY.

The Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Pontypool Railway.

A Fine Farming District Secures Railway Facilities—A Fishing and Summer Resort Made Easily Accessible.

(The Globe.)

The Lindsay, Bobcaygeon & Pontypool Railway, which opens for traffic on Monday, was yesterday taken over by the Canadian Pacific Railway, which has secured a perpetual lease of the road. The line leaves Burketon station, on the C.P.R. line from Toronto to Montreal, and runs in a north-northeasterly direction through Lindsay to Bobcaygeon. The total length of the road is 38 miles, and it passes through not only a beautiful and wealthy agricultural district, but also a very fine fishing and sporting district, for the road skirts Lake and River Scugog and Sturgeon Lake for nearly their whole length. With this new road these summer resorts will be less than two hours' run from Toronto.

The line has been constructed by Mr. E. J. Fauquier, contractor, in about eighteen months, and, according to the report of the Government engineer, the whole line is above even the Government standard of construction.

SOME WHO WERE PRESENT.

Yesterday the first passenger train was run over the road, and the verdict of the passengers and officials was that every inch of the line was "well and truly laid." A special car attached to the C.P.R. Montreal express carried to Burketon Messrs. Henry P. Timmerman, General Superintendent; A. H. Notman, Assistant General Passenger Agent; R. Preston, Master Mechanic; W. J. Grant, commercial agent, Hamilton; A. McAulay, roadmaster; A. L. Smith, chief train despatcher, and W. Marshall, inspector of telegraphs, all officials of the C.P.R.; Mr. G. B. Clarke, K.C.; G. Prior Deacon, Toronto; Mr. G. B. Walker, a director of the Hull & Barnsley, England, Railway, and others.

At Burketon a special train was made up [illegible] from there on to the [illegible] stopping place before Bobcaygeon was reached a number of township and county representatives joined the train, among them being the old veteran, John Hughes, father of Col. Sam Hughes, M.P., and of Mr. James L. Hughes, school inspector, Toronto, who, although in his 81st year, appears as hale and vigourous as a man of fifty. Others present were Geo. L. McLaughlin, Reeve; R. Jobb, Thos. Wood and J. G. Howie, Councillors of Cartwright township; Anson Taylor, Victoria county commissioner; John H. Devill, West Durham; S. J. Fox, M. P. P., J. Ellis; A. [illegible], Reeve of Ops; W. Shannon, Warden Victoria county; Chas. Fairbairn, Victoria county commissioner; A. Montizambert, Manager Lindsay branch Bank of Montreal; Ald. Cinnamon, McCrea and Storer; F. Knowlson, Town Clerk; G. H. Hopkins, town solicitor, Lindsay, representing that town; Judge Dean and Judge Harding, Lindsay; J. R. McNellie, County Clerk of Victoria; Dr. Herriman, R. Kennedy, R. J. McLaughlin barrister, Lindsay; M. Naamith; John Hunter, Reeve, Verulam township; Mr. Culverwell, C.E., Peterborough; and also Messrs. W. T. C. Boyd, president; H. J. Wickham, barrister, Toronto, vice-president, and T. Stewart, secretary of the company, which has carried the road to completion.

At Lindsay luncheon was served at the Benson House. On arrival at Bobcaygeon a great popular welcome was given the first train into the village. The Fenelon Falls band played "See the Conquering Hero Comes," the whistles of the various sawmills and factories blew, and the people cheered. The day was observed as a holiday.

Mr. Wickham, who is recognized in Bobcaygeon as the chief promoter of the line, was met by the village council and Reeve Byng and presented with a congratulatory address and a gold-headed cane in recognition of his services in promoting the road.

In reply Mr. Wickham said it was more than thirty years since the scheme of a railway to Bobcaygeon was mooted, but now it was an accomplished fact, and he believed it would prove beneficial to the village and the whole district.

The visitors were then taken for a short drive around the village and along the canal by the council, and were served with light refreshments by Messrs. M. and W. Boyd, of the Trent Navigation Company.

There will be eight or nine stations on the road, but only four are as yet named, these being Nestleton, Lindsay, Eureka and Bobcaygeon. The names of the others will be settled to-morrow.

The line receives a bonus of about $150,000 from the Dominion Government, $50,000 from the Province, and $75,000 from the towns and townships it passes through. The cost of the road will be almost $780,000. During next week there will be one train daily, except Sunday, each way, and about August 15th there will be two trains each way daily and perhaps more.

Bobcaygeon's decorations were reminiscent of the relief of Ladysmith, but the people said their town was also relieved by the new line, for until yesterday the nearest railway station was at Fenelon Falls, twelve miles distant. A big programme of aquatic sports was provided in honour of the event.

THE PASTORS AT GEORGE STREET.

What the Christian Guardian Says of the Retiring and the Present Pastor.

"The going away of a pastor who for four years has ministered to us with much acceptance, is an event which would not have been graciously acceded to were it not the law of the church. The George street church, Peterborough, has for many pastorates been singularly favoured, but the Rev. J. P. Wilson is a born clergyman, and during his ministry here he simply captured the people, not of his own church only, but of all denominations, and all regret his removal. Mr. Wilson is blessed with natural graces—a good presence, a good voice. Charming, simple and natural, he was always interesting and effective as a preacher and a leader of devotional services, and so faithful in everyday pastoral duties that it was hard to part with him for he seemed to belong to us. At Christmas of his second year old Santa Claus found his stocking and bulged it with $100. In the third year his stipend was increased by a like sum, and on his going away a crowded lecture room of his people extended to him a farewell service, and the brethren, besides their expressions of good will and appreciation, placed in his hands a purse containing one hundred dollars. The George street church has not hitherto indulged much in extras, but in this case they simply could not help it. They congratulate Bridge street, Belleville, on their good fortune in securing so desirable a supply. But the King never dies — the day that took Rev. Mr. Wilson to Belleville brought from Belleville to Peterborough Dr. Crothers. He was met at the early morning train by his officials and escorted to the parsonage, where the ladies had very thoughtfully set the table for breakfast, and now the Doctor is comfortably settled and at work, which he drops into as if to the manner born. Our people have cultivated the art of sympathetic co-operation with the pastor, and so continuous happy results are looked for under the pastorate of Dr. Crothers, and, indeed, if first impressions do not miscarry, dear old George street will continue her record of peace and prosperity under the new regime."

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Charles Ashley Struck by a Train and Seriously Injured.

Mr. Charles Ashley, 4th concession of Hope, near Quay's Crossing, met with an accident to-day which no doubt will prove fatal. He was driving to town with his team, and when crossing the track near Choate's farm was struck by the 12.45 train from the north. The engine struck the rear end of the wagon, knocking Dr. Ashley out and carrying him and the fragments of the wagon for a considerable distance down the track. The train was stopped as quickly as possible and the injured man brought to town. Dr. Powers was at once summoned, but his injuries are so numerous and severe that little can be done to relieve him. His right arm and leg are terrly smashed, his head badly cut, and besides a number of serious internal injuries. The right leg was in such a condition that it had to be tied on by ropes before he could be removed.

Later.—Mr. Ashley died in about an hour after he was brought to town. The body is at Mr. George's undertaking establishment. — Port Hope Guide.

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Inc'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

New York, Thursday evening.— Mr. whose purchase around 114 we have been advising daily for nearly 3 weeks went to 114 1-4 and then advanced close to 118. It will go to 135. B.R.T. is a purchase around 49 and Acp near 80 as advised. Pa., St. P., L.N., U.S.Q., Ill., C., all proved a purchase for a quick turn. We think the rally has gone far enough and that another set back to about yesterday's low figures should take place we think that around to-night's high prices you can sell Atch. St. P., U.P., Mop., U.S.Q., T.C.I., Rdg, O.W., but would protect them with a stop order 2 points above to-day's top. To-day's top ought to prove high for some days to come. If no further complications occur in the far east and if the corn and cotton crops turn out all right the market will prove a good purchase on the next break. Leave wheat alone until after a good reaction.

New York.—Some of the unfavourable features in the stock market, situation have disappeared No new bull cards have developed. The technical position of the stock market is not this morning as strong as yesterday morning owing to the elimination of the short interest. Sentiment seems to be more cheerful. Professionalism still governs absolutely. The deduction of this condition is that it will be wise for the long to take profits on strong spots to-day, and await some further developments. Field is said to be bullish on A.C.F. We think Reading may be bought on weak spots for turn. The outlook still favours the trading position. We don't see why U.S.Q., Pa., and St. P. should not be a sale for a turn.—Town Topics.

There is an important deal progressing in the tractions and purchases of M.R. together with M.R. sec. will be highly remunerative. B.R.T. will rise sympathetically and so will Man. These who long Pa. and the coalers should maintain their position. Eries will likewise improve. The strength of Erie com. in itself indicates what will be done of the 1st. pfd. div. Do not worry about gold exports. There will be none immediately. Specialties buy U.P. convertible fours as they are cheap. Buy B.R.T.—Joseph.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

A Drunk and Disorderly Fined This Morning—A Boy Discharged.

At the Police Court this morning Allen McDonald appeared before Jas. Stevenson, Esq., on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was fined $1.00 and costs, amounting to $5.50 and was warned not to appear again on the same charge. He paid the fine and left the Court a poorer and a wiser man.

A boy was charged with throwing stones but the plaintiff was not present and the charge was dropped. The lad was given a heart to heart talk by the Chief and it is safe to say that he will not throw any stones for some time to come.

Pitiful Helplessness.

Victims of nervous diseases are most to be pitied because their ailment usually terminates in mental or physical helplessness. Paralysis, locomotor ataxia and insanity can only be avoided by building up the nervous system at the first signs of trouble and there is no preparation so well suited for this purpose as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great nerve restorative.

MILITIA CHIEF OF STAFF.

Col. Lake, Chief of Staff of First Army Corps, Is Suggested.

Ottawa, July 30.—(Globe Special.)—Sir Frederick Borden has taken the initial step toward the reorganization of the Canadian militia in accordance with the new Militia Act. He has applied to the Imperial authorities for a suitable officer to fill the position of chief of staff, one of the most imporant positions in the new militia council. The position of general officer commanding no longer exists, but Sir Frederick deems it advisable to obtain the services of an experienced Imperial officer of the militia, and would be well pleased if he could obtain the services in that capacity of Col. Lake, chief of staff of the first army corps, under Sir Evelyn Wood. Col. Lakes is well acquainted with the Canadian militia, having at one time been quartermaster-general of the militia, and on several occasions he acted as general officer commanding temporarily. He is a thorough soldier, who well understands and appreciates the conditions which prevail under the Canadian system. He was decidedly popular with all ranks, and on leaving Canada was highly recommended by Sir F. Borden to the Secretary of State for War. If his services can be secured, his appointment will no doubt meet with general favor among the militia.

Expects Big Yield.

Winnipeg, July 30.—The crops in the provinces are coming on finely, and the prospects are for the largest harvest yet gathered. The only setback has been due to the rain in some localities where crops are still a little green, but the season is now favorable. Many Americans are investigating the farming situation.

Matches Caused the Fire.

Toronto, July 30.—An open case of matches, one of some half a hundred, which were stored in the upper floor of the Eby Blain grocery warehouse on East Front street is held responsible for having been the cause of a fire which gutted the entire flat. The loss will be between $75,000 and $100,000.

PORT ARTHUR'S FALL IS ONLY RUMOURED

The Reports of Capture are Not as Yet Officially Confirmed.

STIFF FIGHTING IS IN PROGRESS

The Russian Gibraltar in the Far East Bombarded From Sea and Land—Russia Makes Protest to Britain re Contraband—Jap Cruiser and Gunboat Destroyed by Floating Mines.

Shanghai, July 30.—A telegram received here from Wei-Hai-Wei confirms other telegrams received here yesterday from Che Foo to the effect that Port Arthur has been captured. The Wei-Hai-Wei telegram says that the British fleet, which has been cruising, will return there to-day.

At Wei-Hai-Wei there is a British wireless telegraph station and the British warships are equipped with this means of communication. It is possible that Wei-Hai-Wei has been in wireless communication with the fleet and that the information of the fall of Port Arthur was received in this manner.

Not Confirmed.

London, July 30.—In view of the fact that there has been no confirmation of the report of the fall of Port Arthur, and considering the probability that such important news would be likely to reach other points near the seat of war besides Shanghai, from which it would be cabled, it would be well not to attach undue importance to the Shanghai despatch.

No further news regarding the reported fall of Port Arthur or war news of any kind has reached the London morning newspapers.

Legation in Dark.

Up to midnight the Japanese Legation had received no news indicating the fall of Port Arthur.

General Assault Begun.

Che Foo, July 30.—Refuges who have just arrived from Port Arthur confirm reports that a general assault has been begun by the Japanese on that fortress. The Russians are sanguine that the Japanese could not capture the place. The Russians, according to refugees' story, are still hoping for succor from General Kuropatkin. They are unwilling to believe the reports of his defeat at Tatchekiao.

Heavy Firing Heard.

Che Foo, July 30.—A junk, containing thirty refugees from Port Arthur, who are all foreigners of the better class, arrived here last night, having left Port Arthur on Thursday. The refugees report that exceedingly heavy fighting by land and sea to the east and northeast of Port Arthur, occurred on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week, and they express the belief that a general assault was begun on Thursday. They say that this bombardment was the heaviest experienced since the beginning of the siege and that the Russian forts made very little reply to the Japanese fire. These foreigners confirm previous reports of the serious condition of the Japanese fleet. Field Marshal Marquis Oyama accompanied by his staff, left Port Dalny on Tuesday. He is conducting the Japanese operations in person. The fresh meat supply in Port Arthur is exhausted. Only the troops are getting salt meat. Non-combatants are subsisting mainly on oatmeal and rice.

Firing Outside Newchwang.

Newchwang, July 30.—Heavy firing was heard outside Newchwang until 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Japs Lost Two Boats.

Che Foo, July 30.—Refugees who have arrived here from Port Arthur say that the Japanese lost a cruiser and gunboat last Thursday night, as a result of striking mines.

Russian Casualties About 2,000.

Washington, July 30.—The Japanese Minister has received the following cablegram from the Foreign Office at Tokio, dated yesterday "General Oku reports further that according to the statements of Russian officers captured during the recent battle, Gen. Kuropatkin was present on the battlefield, and that Generals Sakaloff and Kondranovitch were wounded. Also that the Russian casualties were about 2,000. The Japanese casualties were about 1,000, and Gen. Oku reports that investigations are being made regarding the number of prisoners taken and the quantity of munitions of war, etc., captured."

Kuropatkin Not Wounded.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—The general staff denies the report circulated in European papers of the wounding of Gen. Kuropatkin at the battle of Tatchekiao. The general, it is added, is perfectly well.

Russia's Protest to Britain.

London, July 30.—Russia has filed a formal protest at the Foreign Office against British shipments of contraband to Japan.

Report on the Arabia.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—A brief report was received by the Emperor yesterday from Vice-Admiral Skrydloff, announcing the arrival of the German steamer Arabia, captured by the Russian cruiser Gromboi, July 22, at Vladivostock. The report says: "The presence on the Arabia of a cargo declared by the Imperial Government to constitute contraband compelled Admiral Jessen to send the vessel to Vladivostock, as being the nearest Russian port, in order that the matter might be examined by the local prize court."

Squadron Near Tokio.

London, July 30.—A correspondent of The Times at Tokio, cabling under date of July 30, says:

"The cruisers of the Vladivostock squadron were seen south of the Island of Idsu (at the entrance of the Bay of Tokio) this morning. It is believed that the Russian cruisers will be driven off or brought to bay in the course of a day."

VATICAN AND FRANCE.

French Ministry Keeps Its Decision in the Matter Secret.

Paris, July 30.—The Council of Ministers, after sitting until 5 p.m., yesterday, discussing the Vatican situation, decided to keep its decision secret.

Premier Combes, when questioned after the Ministers had adjourned, declared that diplomatic etiquette forbade him to speak. This statement is interpreted to indicate a complete rupture of diplomatic relations with the Holy See.

The French Government's note was telegraphed last evening to M. De Courcel, the secretary in charge of the French Embassy to the Vatican, who will communicate it to the Vatican authorities to-day.

It is believed that the Embassy staff will leave Rome to-day, and that the Papal Nuncio will leave Paris.

Two Boatmen Drowned.

Toronto, July 30.—Information has been received of the drowning of two boatmen belonging to T. B. Speight's survey party on the Abbitibi River. It was contained in a letter from him to A. J. Van Nostrand, dated July 18. On the previous day Joseph Burns and a man named Defoe, connected with the party, set out to move about 800 pounds of supplies to a new camp. They were accompanied by David Lacelle and Arthur Fleury, two boatmen from Mattawa. Unfortunately the canoe was swamped, and both Lacelle and Fleury were drowned. Defoe grasped the canoe and managed to get ashore. Burns caught a box and with its aid drifted ashore half a mile below.

Many New Postoffices.

Ottawa, July 30.—The Postoffice Deparement continues to expand. The list for July makes provision for the distribution of the mails to 87 new offices, scattered throughout every province, with the exception of Prince Edward Island. There are five in Ontario, viz., Jocko River, Nipissing; Grenadier Island, Leeds; Pineland, Simcoe; Brough, East Middlesex; Lothian, Huron. Improved routes for distribution have been adopted for 42 postoffices, Algoma, has been changed to Dean Lake. Only five offices have been closed, including Kilgorie, in Simcoe County, and one at Mine Centre, Algoma.

"Slocum" Indictments.

New York, July 30.—Capt. Van Schaick, Federal Steamboat Inspector Fleming and former Inspector Lundberg were indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury in connection with the disaster to the General Slocum on June 25 last, when nearly 1,000 lives were lost.

Indictments also were reported against President Barnaby, Secretary Atkinson and Treasurer Dexter of the Knickerbocker Steamboat Company, and Capt. John Pease, the commodore of the company's fleet.

Were Papers Seen?

Hamilton, July 30.—There is considerable of a stir about some alleged irregularities of Principal Johnson of school section 4 of East Flamboro. He had charge of a class of ten pupils, all of whom passed. The allegation is that examination papers were tampered with in Mr. Johnston's school before the pupils wrote on the examination, which was held in the Watertown High School. Inspector Smith has reported the matter to the authorities

CANADA AND MILITARISM.

The Dundonald incident has developed a great deal of hysterical jingoism, and we have fire-eating newspapers, and newspaper correspondents, treading valourously in the footsteps of Mr. Seymour Gourlay, the harlequin of the jingo element of our population. It is advisable, and proper, to have our militia placed upon a good footing, properly equipped and drilled. It is a pleasure to note that this end is being attained, not as rapidly, it is true, as some would wish, but steadily and consistently with the advance of more pressing interests. It has taken a good deal of consideration and expenditure to regain the lost ground in respect of the militia caused by the inefficient militia administration of the late Conservative Government. Never before in our history have expenditures more generous and interest more intelligent and earnest been incurred and exhibited in the welfare and improvement of the Canadian militia, than by the Liberal Government during the past eight years. Under the Conservative regime at times money was not available for the annual drill, and both the efficiency and morale of the force suffered,

We in Canada are in the development period of our existence as a confederation, and have, the great mass of the people think, better use for our money than maintaining a bristling military establishment, expensive out of proportion to our needs, and extensive out of proportion to our reasonable requirements. The transportation problem calls more loudly for our available financial resources than almost any other national interest. The sober, thinking portion of our people attach more attention to these things than to the pomp and panoply of war. History shows us that nearly all wars owe their origin to the desire of aggrandisement — wars of conquest. The jingo section of the United States may think that country needs more territory, but it has so much now that it finds the task of administering it quite equal to its resources of administration, and there is indeed no probability, if, indeed, there is a possibility, of war that will involve Canada; and is it worth while to expend millions, which are so badly needed for development purposes, to keep ourselves armed to the teeth?

Moreover, is it not a fact that we might spend large sums to keep our "army" upon a war footing in time of peace, and with the average of administration by either party, when the hour of battle came, find ourselves unprepared? France, with all its immense expenditure upon its army, was not ready when the Franco-Prussian war came. Even Great Britain, with her lavish outlay with her ever-present necessity of being ever-ready, went into the South African struggle in a condition of lamentable unreadiness. from a military point of view, and if it had not been for her wealth of resources, she would have found the contest much harder than it proved to be. And Great Britain found that, pro rata, the most valuable assistance she gained, was given by the soldiers of a colony — the soldiers of Canada —trained under conditions, which, we are now assured by the arm-chair critics, are perflously inefficient, and which involved only a modern expenditure of money. Russia, after fabulously large expenditures, on account of her army and navy, was hurried into the present war as thoroughly unprepared for the struggle as it is possible to conceive.

On the contrary, Japan was ready at all points for the fray, and the secret of her success so far, comprises two chief reasons, one of which practically includes the other. Japan is fighting for her national existence, and for more territory. The aggressiveness of Russia threatened the loss of territory which Japan needed for expansion, for the territory of her own islands, though some six hundred in number, is all occupied and full to overflowing. The islands of Japan are the type of the highest development. A country of about 147,000 square miles, one third less than the area of the Province of Ontario, and twenty-five times less than the area of the Dominion of Canada, supports a population of nearly fifty millions, besides exporting comparatively large quantities of agricultural products. It is due very greatly to the intensive development of Japan's resources that she is able to take the position she has taken, one which justifies, while it accounts for the marvellous military development that has followed.

With twenty-five times more territory than Japan possesses awaiting development, Canada cannot afford to turn aside from this task to indulge in the unnecessary luxury of immense and burdensome military establishments and formidable fortifications and armaments. Our money is much more needed and will be more wisely expended for development purposes. Agriculture must be aided directly in many ways and indirectly —which is perhaps the most important, for private enterprise is inadequate—by the improvement of transportation media, railways and canals. The mass of our population is contented and, indeed, anxious to pursue a policy like this, leaving it to fire-eating jingoes to create party capital out of wild-cat proposals to spend millions to recruit and equip a nation of fighters from the ranks of a citizenship already too lightly manned for the conquest of the wilderness and the peaceful victories of the plough and the reaper and the other industrial weapons that constitute the true panoply of a progressive people.

BABY'S DANGER.

The summer months are a bad time for babies and an anxious time for mothers. Fermentation and decomposition in the stomach and bowels are the cause of the many summer complaints of babies and young children. This is the reason why the hot weather months are more fatal to little ones than any other season. Baby's Own Tablets should always be found in every home where there are young children and their prompt use during hot weather may save a precious little life. The tablets cure constipation, diarrhoea, and stomach troubles and are guaranteed to contain no opium or harmful drug. Mrs. Walter Rollins, Sissons Bridge, N. S., says: "Before using Baby's Own Tablets my little girl cried almost continuously with stomach troubles. I can truthfully say I never had any medicine act so promptly and give such satisfaction as the Tablets do. I do no think you make any claim for them which their use will not substantiate." The Tablets can be had from any medicine dealer or by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Price 25 cents a box.

White Silk Articles.

A good way to restore white silk articles that have become yellow in washing is to dip them in tepid soft water containing to each quart a tablespoonful of ammonia water and a few drops of bluing. Wring them out, and if still yellow add a little more bluing to the water until they are fully restored. Hang in the shade to dry partially and press with a hot iron between folds of cotton while damp.

HICKS' PREDICTIONS ARE QUESTIONED.

A Correspondent of the Examiner Says he is "Away off."

His Prognostications for the Month of August—Disturbances Early in the Month.

Regarding the weather prognostications of Rev. Mr. Hicks the Examiner has received the following:

"As a reader of the Examiner I have noticed on different occasions the weather forecasts of Rev. Irl Hicks, of St. Louis. Though I knew that his predictions were looked at askance by scientific men and ridiculed by the weather bureaus of Canada and the United States, I had the curiosity to follow his forecasts day by day for one month, namely, the month of June last. I am forced reluctantly to the conclusion from a comparison of his "forecasts" for that month with the weather that we really had, that his predictions are only guesses—and very poor guesses at that. The only period of the month that his predictions hit correctly was the last few days, although several other periods came somewhat according to his programme; the great majority of his "predictions" were away off — many wofully so. There is very much yet to be learned about our weather and what causes the different changes. It is pretty certain, however, that the planets have nothing whatever to do with changes in the weather. The moon is believed by many to exert an influence, but this is also denied by those who have made a study of the atmosphere."

Professor Ira Hicks, in his forecast of the weather for August, says:—

The first six days of August are covered by the combined disturbances of Vulcan, Mercury and Mars. The regular Vulcan storm period is central on the 3rd. The culminating days of the period will be the 3rd 4th and 5th. On and touching these days general storm conditions will develop and pass from west to east across the country. Sections which have been visited by many electrical, rain and hail storms during much of July and August, will most likely have the same character of storms during this period. In the absence of the Mars influence the Mercury disturbance added to this regular storm period would greatly increase the chances of general, diffused rains during this period; but sections which have had little rain for weeks prior, we fear, will get more threatening storm clouds and bluster than rain during these disturbances. The Mercury influence, blended with a regular storm period, as in the present instance, normally tends to copious and general rains; but the dominance of the Mars influence tends to fix and perpetuate local conditions, which prevail at the beginning of this period. After heavy, storm and bluster about the 3rd, 4th and 5th, look for rising barometer, westerly winds and cooler.

On and touching the 8th and 9th, under the influence of reactionary, storm forces, intensified by the moon's extreme north declination and conjunction with the sun, the temperature will visit many localities in their fall, and severe storms and blusterings of the summer, the barometer will visit many localities as their sweep from west to east. This heated spell will not break down until after the new moon on the 11th, with strong probabilities that it will last into the regular storm period extending from the 12th to the 17th.

The moon will be at new, or in conjunction with earth and sun, on the 11th, in perigee, or nearest the sun, on the 12th, and on the celestial equator on the 14th, the central day of a regular storm period. This period is also embraced in the oncoming Venus disturbance, which is central on the 24th. The warning influence of the mars disturbance will also combine with the causes named during this period. It is more than probable that equatorial disturbances will make their appearance in the gulf regions early in this period. The disturbances of this period, whether or not West India storms come up from the south, may be expected over most interior parts of the country from Saturday the 13th, to Tuesday, the 16th, the culmination falling most likely on the 14th and 15th. Vicious thunderstorms and high gales will centre about Sunday, the 14th. If equatorial hurricanes or cyclones should make their presence felt about our southern coasts at this time, the storms that visit interior states a few days later will be followed by unseasonably cool weather. Otherwise the heated term will not be broken effectually until after the storms of a subsequent period.

Reactionary storm conditions will return on and next to the 19th and 20th. This period will be within the brace of earth's autumnal equinox and near the centre of the Venus period, thus increasing the probabilities of equinoctial storms on the southern waters and along the southern coasts. There is almost a scientific certainty of such storms in such parts of the earth before the end of August, making it wise for those most vitally concerned to watch the first indications of every storm period.

It is well to remember that destructive Venus hailstorms are almost sure to attend the storms, especially in the great northwestern grain regions during the last half of August. Change to rising barometer and very much cooler, especially at night, will follow for some days, the reactionary storms centreing about the 18th and 19th.

The last regular storm period for August is central on the 26th, extending from the 24th to the 29th. Within this period the moon is at full on the 25th, in apogee on the 26th, and on the celestial equator on the 28th. This period is also at the centre of the Venus perturbation, and fully under the pressure of the earth's September equinox. We may, therefore, confidently anticipate some very marked storm disturbances at this time. These storms will touch inland sections and counter storm areas will be induced from northwestern extremes, bringing many heavy, and some dangerous storms throughout the Southern and Central States.

The indications are that the general disturbances of this last period will be followed by a general high barometer, with fierce high winds and unseasonably cold weather out of the northwest. If frosts make their appearance over the northern to middle regions of the country during the last few days of August our readers need not be wholly taken by surprise.

The dates upon which volcanic and earthquake disturbances are most likely to reach a maximum, generally over the globe, will be the 9th to the 13th, and the 24th to the 28th of August. We will name Thursday, the 11th and Thursday the 25th, as central days of these probable seismic periods of disturbance.

HERE'S GOOD HOT WEATHER NEWS.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Prove Their Value as a Tonic.

Doctors Failed to Help Amos Stewart, of Goderich, but Dodd's Kidney Pills Built Him up.

Goderich, Ont., July 29, (Special.)—The value of Dodd's Kidney Pills as a tonic has been proven by Mr. Amos Stewart, flour miller, of this town. In speaking of his cure Mr. Stewart says:

"I had been very poorly for about a year, and though I was treated by two doctors, I kept losing flesh all the time till I was down to 145 lbs.

"Then I commenced using Dodd's Kidney Pills and in ten days I had gained six pounds. I am still gaining a little every day and I am feeling better in every way, and I feel that I owe it all to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are nature's own tonic. They cure the kidneys. Cured kidneys take all poison out of the blood. It is the poison in the blood that causes the loss of strength and energy and flesh that makes a tonic necessary.

PLEHVE'S ASSASSIN

Police Have Not Yet Established His Identity.

HIS MURDER RESULT OF PLOT

Bomb Which Killed Russian Minister of the Interior Was of Foreign Make—Impressive Requiem Service at Dead Minister's House Attended By Mme. Plehve—M. Witte Named As Successor.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—The police have not yet established the identity of the assassin of M. Von Plehve or his accomplice, though it has been ascertained that the former is a little Russian, which accounts for his noticeable accent. The accomplice is a Jew. It has developed that the police for some time past have been aware that a plot was maturing against the Emperor and notified one of the ministers that a party of fifteen anarchists had arrived in St. Petersburg. Several arrests were actually made some days before the assassination of the Minister of the Interior and the police had the assassin's house marked and a trap set for his arrest on the night of July 14, but he did not return home.

Bomb Was Foreign Made.

The bomb which the accomplice dropped in the canal after the assassination has been recovered by the police. It is foreign made, though it is believed to have been loaded in St. Petersburg. It is small and melon-shaped, and is believed to be fully as powerful as the one that killed M. Von Plehve.

The requiem service at M. Von Plehve's house last night was most impressive. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers. Madame Von Plehve and her son were present at the ceremony, as were also many officials and diplomats. A nun in the habit of her order knelt before the coffin intoning prayers for the dead. These prayers will be continued without interruption until after the interment.

The Emperor was not present at the requiem last night, but he will attend the funeral Sunday afternoon.

M. Witte It Is.

London, July 30.—The Daily Telegraph's Berlin correspondent says that Emperor Nicholas sent a telegram to M. Witte, president of the Russian Council of Ministers, asking his advice, and offering him the post of Minister of the Interior with the title of Chancellor.

Russian Newspaper Comment.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—All the newspapers this morning agree that in the assassination of Minister of the Interior Von Plehve, a great personality has been taken off in the midst of his work.

The Novoe Vremya says: "M. Von Plehve was a strong, intellectual man, but, most of all, he had a thorough insight and knew well what particular features were wanting to make up a true balance of Russian national life."

The Russ declares that the dead Minister's faithful name will live in connection with agricultural and peasant reforms, and that it is an infinite pity he was taken off in the midst of his work, leaving his plans all unperfected.

The newspapers print unusually full and free accounts of the crime, having been officially notified that no restriction will be placed on news or comment, save as they might interfere with the work of the police in unravelling the conspiracy back of the crime, which work is already well under way.

King Sends Condolence.

London, July 30.—King Edward has telegraphed to Emperor Nicholas his sympathy with him on the loss of his distinguished Minister, Von Plehve, and has received a very appreciative reply.

Anarchists in New York.

New York, July 30.—Five thousand persons cheered themselves hoarse over the death of the Russian Minister of the Interior, Von Plehve, and shouted praise for his assassin in Cooper Union last night. Many anarchists, who waved red bandannas, were present.

WHEN ALL HOPE WAS ABANDONED

Elzear Cote Found in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets a Speedy and Permanent Cure for His Stomach Trouble.

"I suffered for four years from stomach trouble. I consulted three doctors and they told me that I had Dyspepsia and no remedy would help me." So says Elzear Cote, of St. Hedwidge de Clifton, Que. But Mr. Cote found a remedy that these doctors did not know. It was Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and it cured him. He says:

"Then I quit the doctors and started to take Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. After the first box I had no more trouble. It is now two years since I took them, and I am now well. I do all my own work. I am never tired. That's why I recommend all who have stomach troubles to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets digest the food themselves. This gives the overworked stomach a chance to rest and it naturally comes back to its normal healthy condition.

Union President Arrested.

Chicago, July 30.—President Geo. F. Goldon of the Teamsters' Union turned strike picket yesterday, defied Police Inspector Nicholas Hunt, and was arrested.

Albani's Father Dying.

Montreal, July 30.—Mr. St. Louis Dit. La Jeneese, the father of Madame Albani, the famous singer, is dying at his home in Chambly.

Good Digestion.

If you can keep your digestive system in proper condition the body will be well nourished and you need have little fear of disease. By regulating the kidneys, liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, ensure a healthy condition of the organs of digestion and for this reason are indispensible as a family medicine

WHEN SICKNESS COMES.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Should be Used to Bring Back Health

Sickness comes sooner or later in the life of everyone. Many who for years have enjoyed the best of health are suddenly seized with some one of the numerous ills of life. Most of the ills result from an impoverished condition of the blood; thus if the blood is enriched the trouble will disappear. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had a greater success than any other medicine in the world in curing sick and ailing people. These pills actually make new, rich, red blood, strengthen every nerve in the body and in this way make people well and strong. Mr. Alphonse Lacoussiere, a well known young farmer of St. Leon, Que., proves the truth of these statements. He says:—"About a year ago my blood gradually run down. Then suddenly my trouble was aggravated by pains in my kidneys and bladder, and day by day I grew so much worse that finally I was unable to rise without aid. I consulted doctors, but any relief I obtained from their medicine was only temporary and I began to despair of ever being well again. One day I read an article in a newspaper praising Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try them. I got six boxes and before they were all gone my condition was so greatly improved that I knew I had at last found a medicine to cure me. I continued the use of the pills for a while longer, and every symptom of my trouble was gone, and I have since enjoyed the best of health. I think so much of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I am never without them in the house."

It is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new blood that they cure such diseases as anaemia, rheumatism, kidney and liver troubles, neuralgia, indigestion and all other ailments due to poor blood. But you must get the genuine bearing the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around every box. Sold by medicine dealers everywhere or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

A Second Visitation.

Toronto, July 30.—Warwick Bros. & Rutter did not exhaust their bad luck in the big fire last April, but were visited again yesterday evening in their temporary premises on the south side of East Queen street near Yonge. The fire brigade did prompt work and prevented what might easily have been a disastrous fire. Mr. Rutter stated that it was impossible to give an estimate of the loss, which was over $5,000 and might run to $10,000.

No Canadian Cattle.

London, July 30.—(C.A.P.)—Secretary Tooth of the Foreign Cattle Traders' Association of Birkenhead, wires London that the result of the meat strike in America is very heavy arrivals of United States cattle, but no Canadian cattle are coming in at Birkenhead.

To Go to the Coast.

Montreal, July 30.—General Manager Hays of the Grand Trunk Pacific, William Wainwright and Hon. R. Prefontaine, Minister of Marine, will leave on Thursday next for Vancouver.

A PRESENT FOR THE OLD FOLKS.

FOR THE STOMACH'S SAKE.

An eminent physician says, "human life should last five times the years it takes to mature"—thus if twenty-one is maturity we should live over a hundred years, but there are not many reach the century mark. A great deal more longevity would exist if the stomach did not get crippled and played out—That organ gets plenty of abuse, and is deserving of attention—It is the starting point of most ailments, and it needs the first attention when symptoms of sickness appear. If an elderly stomach can be kept working right, you may be sure of a ripe and contented old age, comparatively free from physical burdens. The great new discovery, ANTI-PILL, the Great System Treatment, has a grand effect in helping old and deranged stomachs. Any aged person who will address a Postal to Wilson-Fyle Co., Niagara Falls, Ont., will get a free trial bottle by return mail.

IN THE FAR NORTH

TIME TO ASSERT OUR RIGHTS

Sir William Mulock Explains the Provisions of Bill Strengthening Alien Labor Law—Minister of Justice Categorically Denies Anonymous Charge Read By Mr. Taylor—Militia Estimates Monday.

Ottawa, July 30.—Two features of the proceedings in the House of Commons yesterday had special reference to Canada's assertion of her nationality and the guarding of her own interests, the introduction of a bill strengthening the alien labor law, and the passing of a vote of $200,000 for two vessels to protect Canada's interest in our northern waters.

The New Labor Bill.

Sir William Mulock explained the provisions of the new labor bill, which improves some of the features of the old act and makes general the clauses relating to the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, which specially safeguard the rights of Canada in regard to labor and contractors on subsidized railways.

Premier's Significant Statement.

Sir Wilfrid's explanation of the necessity for the patrol boats in our northern waters included the following significant statement: "The Government has been induced to come to this action, because it is evident that the time has come when our interest in these northern waters should not longer be neglected. At the present time there are whalers and fishermen of different nations cruising in those waters, and unless we take active steps to assert what is the undoubted fact, that these lands belong to Canada, we may perhaps find ourselves later on in the face of serious complications."

Amendment Rejected.

Earlier in the day the House rejected an amendment by Mr. E. D. Smith, censuring the Government for its alleged failure to secure proper transportation for perishable fruit. In supply various fragmentary estimates, largely justice and public works, to the amount of $1,435,881, were passed. A warm discussion took place on the vote of $60,000 for the wharf at Deven Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, during which Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick categorically denied an anonymous charge read by Mr. Geo. Taylor, that he had an improper interest in the passage of the vote. On Monday the militia estimates will probably be taken up.

Praise For the Army.

Mr. Fitzpatrick stated that an appropriation of $2,000 to pay for the supervision of paroled and discharged prisoners was put in the estimates at the suggestion of Superintendent Archibald of the Salvation Army, who had done an immense amount of good in connection with the prison gate work of the army. The Salvation Army had men to attend at the prison gate, knowing through information given by the police department when prisoners would be liberated. The liberated men are taken hold of, employment is found for them, and they are given all possible opportunity. It was absolutely necessary, Mr. Fitzpatrick said, to give a man a chance if he has fallen into trouble, and the best way when he gets out of jail is to let him see that society does not turn its back upon him.

The reading of the vote was changed to include traveling expenses so that it would be possible to buy a kit for a discharged convict or anything to enable him to earn a living. The item passed.

Session to End By Saturday.

Although the date for prorogation has not yet been definitely settled, it has been arranged between the Whips that the session shall not be prolonged beyond Saturday of next week.

A STRONG, VIGOROUS MAN

Is Liable to Break Down—Pe-ru-na is Sure to Restore.

ALDERMAN FRANK DUNN.

Hon. Frank Dunn, Alderman Twenty-Fourth District, writes from 232 East Fifty-Eighth Street, New York City:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen: "There is no remedy for a broken-down system that I know of which will so effectually restore health as Peruna.

"Whenever I am overworked or suffer from the consequences of a cold a few doses of Peruna builds me up again more quickly than anything I ever tried. I find it especially valuable for catarrh. Three bottles cured me three years ago of catarrh of the stomach and I have never had the least symptoms of it since."

Very truly,

FRANK DUNN, Alderman 24th Dist., N. Y. City.

A TONIC is a medicine that gives tone to some part of the system. There are different kinds of tonics, but the tonic most needed in this country, where catarrh is so prevalent, is a tonic that operates on the mucous membranes.

Peruna is a tonic to the mucous membranes of the whole body. It gives tone to the capillary circulation which constitutes these delicate membranes.

Peruna is a specific in its operation upon the mucous membrane. It is a tonic that strikes at the root of all catarrhal affections. It gives tone to the minute blood vessels and the terminal nerve fibres. Catarrh cannot exist long where Peruna is used intelligently. Peruna seeks out catarrh in all the hidden parts of the body.

Paul Landrum writing from Atlanta, Ga., says:

"In January last I began the use of your Peruna and Manalin for what was termed organic heart trouble. At that time I could scarcely walk to my place of business without stopping to rest and on arrival felt completely exhausted. Had severe pains in my heart and general dizziness. After using the first bottle of Peruna I began to improve and today I feel that I am a sound man and I work fourteen hours a day without any bad feeling."—Paul Landrum.

A. M. Ikerd, an employee of the C. B. & Q. R. R., West Burlington, Ia., writes:

"I had catarrh of the stomach and small intestines for a number of years. I went to a number of doctors and got no relief. Finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago and I met the same fate. They said they could do nothing for me, that I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was something awful. I could hardly stand it, it was so offensive. I could not eat anything without great misery, and I gradually grew worse.

"Finally I got one of your books, and concluded I would try Peruna, and thank God, I found a relief and a cure for that dreadful disease. I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin, and I now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peruna, and I keep a bottle in my house all the time."—A. M. Ikerd.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

PREPARATION FOR TELEPHONE SYSTEM.

Canadian Machine Telephone Company Actually at Work Here.

Mr. F. D. Mackay, manager of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, arrived in town last night, and will spend Sunday at Stony Lake.

Mr. Mackay informed the Examiner in a conversation this morning, that the plans for the installation of the system had been completed. These plans show that the whole town will be covered, and provide for an outside construction work costing nearly $30,000.

The material has also been purchased, and it will only be a matter of a short time until actual construction work will be commenced.

The underground work, according to the plan, embraces a considerably greater territory than the contract with the town calls for.

It is seen that from Dublin street to the C.P.R. station the wires on George will be underground, and the underground work alone is being planned for 2,000 subscribers.

The work is being taken up in a very thorough manner, and the really important work, that of preparing plans, and specifications and arranging for material has already been accomplished.

VISITING ENGINEERS ARE HIGHLY PLEASED.

American Engineers Express Appreciation of the Lift Lock and Canal.

It will be remembered that a week ago, a distinguished party of American engineers, and barge navigation experts, visited the Lift Lock, and were taken over the canal as far as Lindsay. Mr. R. B. Rogers, Superintending Engineer of the Trent Canal, has received letters from Col. Symons, C. E., of Washington, A.D.C. of the President of the United States; Mr. Edward A. Bond, C. E., State Engineer of New York, and one of the best informed experts on barge navigation, and Mr. E. L. Corthill, a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission. The tone of these letters, while appreciative of the personal attention extended by Mr. Rogers, indicates that the party was not only delighted with, but surprised at, the evidences of Canadian initiative and enterprise, as shown by the Lift Lock and the other works of the canal. If they had come with the expectation of finding primitive, obsolete and out-of-date conditions and methods, they were thoroughly undeceived. These gentlemen are all members of the Erie Canal Enlargement Advisory Board, and no doubt were well pleased with the "pointers" that Canada was able to give them through the Lift Lock, and other canal works. Their unqualified approval and admiration of what they saw, is something to be highly valued.

BIG EXCURSION FROM OSHAWA.

The Williams' Piano Company's Employees in Peterborough To-day.

To-day the largest excursion of the season in Peterborough. The employees of the Williams Piano Works in Oshawa, came in this morning at 10.45 by G.T.R. A double header, consisting of eight coaches, carried the crowd.

At the diamond about 800 passengers alighted, and went to the Wolfe street wharf, where the "City of Peterborough" was waiting, and it carried them on a special trip over the Lift Lock.

A good band accompanied the excursion, and went over the Lock with the boat. About 600 excursionists formed the party, and those who did not take the Lift Lock trip went around seeing the town, an occupation in which they apparently took considerable delight.

At the ball game this afternoon on the oval, the great majority of the excursionists may be found.

THE BAND CONCERT.

Large Crowd Heard a Delightful Programme Last Evening.

Last evening's band concert was attended by the usual large gathering of people. The programme was one of the most interesting yet presented this season and was rendered in an exceptionally acceptable manner, several numbers being heartily encored. The selections were of a popular nature. The overture "Poet and Peasant" was splendidly executed and was probably the best number of the evening. The cake-walk ("Coon Band Contest," in which the voices of the coloured gentlemen could be heard in song and otherwise made a hit with the audience last evening and the number had to be repeated. The selection "Reminiscences of Scotland," was also played very effectively as was the descriptive number "Forge in the Forest." The "Star Spangled Banner" and "Rule Britannia" were played in an inspiring manner and were a fitting conclusion to a delightful programme.

T. A. S. STILL REFUSE TO MEET DEFEAT.

The Boys Won Their Fifth Victory at Millbrook Yesterday

The Score was 8-2—A Gentlemanly Exhibition of Lacrosse.

The T.A.S. still continue to win and if they are not beaten pretty soon the R. R. Hall Trophy will rest in the rooms for the coming winter. The boys have not as yet learned what it feels like to finish with the small end of the score next to their names in a league match and as the sensation is perhaps not the most pleasing in existence the boys in red and black will make a desperate effort to finish the season without this experience. A clean sweep is what they are after and their chances at present look quite roseate. The team is playing the quality of lacrosse which wins—fast clean and sure and have certainly got the goods to be delivered. Five victories and two tied games is the team's record so far this season.

Yesterday afternoon, the team drove to Millbrook to play the return game with the team of that village and the score at the conclusion of the three quarters played was, T.A.S. 5, Millbrook 2. The score was much closer than in the game here on the previous week, Millbrook putting up a far better game on their own grounds and showed a vast improvement in all departments of the game. The T.A.S. did not over-exert themselves after the first quarter, but played good steady lacrosse throughout. The team was weakened by the absence of McCabe, O'Brien, McGrath and L. McCoy, but their shoes were filled by good players.

The game was a good, clean exhibition, no one being sent to the fence for rough work. The T.A.S. as per usual went right in on the goals at the start and had two points to their credit in the initial quarter. Millbrook then got two and the winners scored again in the third quarter. Crowley made a sensational run almost the length of the field at one time, easily outsprinting all would-be checkers.

The game was played on the Exhibition Grounds which were in good shape and was witnessed by about 200 spectators.

The teams were:—

Millbrook.	T. A. S.
Goal.
Richards	Boyle
Point.
Strain	Mahoney
Cover Point.
Irwin	Whaley
First Defence.
Reynolds	W. Donovan
Second Defence.

Donnelly	J. Gorham

Fisher	Parnell

Johnson	H. Donovan
Outside Home.
Russell	Judd
Inside Home.
O'Brien	Derocher

The T.A.S. have but one more game to play in this district with Port Hope here next week. This game will without doubt be the best of the season, as the teams are very evenly matched and both have strengthened considerably during the past few weeks.

TURF.

Everything is in readiness for the big race meet of next week. The flyers are here with but few exceptions, and are setting a fast clip in training at the track. When Looking Glass, Sphinx B and Jubilee get coming down the stretch together there promises to be something doing in the hair-raising finish line. Some fast running horses from Toronto will be here to compete in the running races. The entries for Monday's running races close tonight. With favourable weather conditions there should be some of the best racing ever witnessed in this district.

While Nat Ray, the Toronto steeplechase jockey, was riding Cook Robin in the steeplechase, at Brighton Beach, on Wednesday, a thief stole $2500 from a leather hand satchel which Mrs. Ray held while she was sitting in the grand stand. No trace has been found of the thief.

Gipsy Girl was third in the 2.17 pace at Detroit on Thursday, Bob Hughes winning and John Burns being second. Angus Pointer won the pace, Leda the 2.25 trot, and Frank Yoakum, the 2.05 pace.

LACROSSE.

The I.C.B.U. team, which will cross sticks with the T.A.S. team here on Monday, is one of the best in the Toronto Senior League, and can be relied upon to give the red and black one of the hottest games of the season. This is the first visit of a Queen City team to Peterborough this year and a large crowd will no doubt turn out to see the game, which without doubt will be a fast one.

GOLF.

On Monday afternoon, August 1st, a tea will be given at the Golf Links in honour of the officers of the Ottawa Foot Guards. The officers of the 57th Regiment and their wives are invited. The members of the club are asked to be present at four o'clock.

• • • •

The ladies who are going to the tea on Monday afternoon are invited to accompany the officers on the boat, which leaves the Wolfe street wharf at 3 p.m.

Catholic Order of Foresters' Excursion.

Otillia and Lake Couchiching have been selected by the St. Peter's Court, Catholic Order of Foresters, as the attractive point for their Civic Holiday excursion. This is a favourite spot at this holiday season of the year, and combines strong features for interesting excursionists. Round trip tickets from Peterborough have been placed as low as $1.15 for adults, and 60c. for children, good for two days. In addition to other crowd-pullers a lively game of baseball between the T.A.S. and a picked Orillia team is being arranged. See posters on Monday.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

"HAVE THEY found him?" This is the pathetic question one often hears in cases where there has been a drowning accident, and the body of the victim is still an object of search. How thoughtlessly inappropriate is the question. There is no "him," when the spirit, the "fleeting wavering sprite," left the body — the soulless clay was all that was left. The ego, the real man or woman, has departed forver — whither, we know not, except in the general way that he or she, that is the real man or woman, has gone back to the God who gave it, and all that is left is but dust, and all that we can do is to bend mournfully over all that is visible and tangible of what we once knew and loved, and have "lost awhile," as the bereft mother bird flutters around the nest despoiled of her younglings.

DOUBTLESS THIS WAY of referring to the bodies of the departed is but a careless form of speech — facon de parler — but is, for that reason, that it deserves attention. Have you ever noticed when in company how careless and slipshod is the speech we hear? A girl — a dream of artistic and expensive attire, beautiful to look at as a new blown flower—kills the charm the moment she opens her mouth—"Whajusajacksaid—Didn'tketchon," is the illuminating question that slops and slurs through her pearly teeth, and the equally intellectual reply that comes from a like dream of fair women—"Rats, keepyrearsopn." Why do we spend millions of dollars a year to maintain schools if this is the result. Certainly it is not worth while to spend so much money merely to teach a child how to compute the value of twelve eggs at twelve cents per dozen or how to read "Duchess" novels or the sporting or fashion pages of a newspaper. Our schools do not teach the proper employment of the beautiful and forceful English language. Clear, clean speech, refined expression, and somewhat considered choice of words, constitute the charm of good talking. A society woman may chatter the veriest verbal froth, but if it is invested with the inexpressible delight of clear, distinct enunciation, refined intonation and good humour, it has its charm, though it be the veriest tissue of nonsense. It is a good thing to teach children to express themselves clearly as well as elegantly, and slang language should be frowned upon as the next worse thing to foul language, on an other wise sweet girl's tongue.

WHILE there is room, like an open prairie, for improvement in our style of speech and language, there is also need for improvement in the appearance of our streets. Generally Speaking has reason from time to time to "jump" upon the council for its short-comings; at the same time, in order to give the balance an even beam, credit is also given. Nothing but commendation is due to a proposed bylaw of the council. This is rendered necessary by the vandalism—no milder word suits—of the general public. We see corners of boulevards and lawns tramped down, the grass destroyed, by the public, or the baser sort of the public, taking "short cuts." We see men, and women, too, to save a few steps, tramping across lawn corners. Their haste is not the excuse, for we see them a moment or two later stop and chatter for half an hour with some encountered acquaintance. It seems that it is not the shorter distance but to indulge the original sin that lurks in every human heart. Now, it is to the credit of the town that a bylaw to put an end to this is in contmplation, if not indeed in preparation. It is understood that this bylaw will vest the boulevard in front of the property owned or occupied in the owner or occupant. This will permit of persons tramping across the corner of a boulevard being prosecuted for trespass the same as if he invaded private property. This is a step in the right direction and it is to be hoped that it will be carried to a vigorous conclusion. We see street corners disfigured with more or less unsightly structures of posts and wires to protect grass plots or boulevards. At the same time the council should co-operate with private property owners in maintaining boulevards in good form. The bylaw spoken of should permit owners of property adjacent to use the city water on the boulevards. The city water is owned by the people, and it should be allowed to be used for the benefit of the people.

WHILE GIVING credit to the council in this regard, the council deserves a rap over the knuckles for its delay in opening George street extension. It has been pointed out in these columns that there was no excuse for delay. We all want the street cars in operation, yet we find the council impeding the enterprise. The franchise bylaw prevents the railway line being laid on Crescent street, but with George street closed, it will have to be laid on Crescent street to reach the river. The special committee, to which was referred the opening of George street, has been prodding the council to expedidate the matter, but so far, to no avail; the matter seems to be in the same stage it was six months ago. Will the council wink at a breach of the bylaw and allow the company to renew their tracks on Crescent street, and make the town liable for damages in case a funeral runs away, or some accident happens, owing to the presence of the car line on a forbidden street. Why in the world doesn't the council wake up?

ANOTHER MATTER that deserves the attention of the council is the necessity of showing hospitality on the part of the town authorities to excursionists coming to town. This has been too much neglected in the past. When the North York Farmers' Excursion came to Peterborough there was no civic welcome, and it is known that they were very much displeased at the lack of hospitality shown. Last year the McLaughlin Carriage Company's excursion to town met a similar chilling reception. This year they went to Barrie instead, and were met by the mayor and council, received a royal reception, made cordially welcome, and given other inexpensive but appreciated attention. Peterborough is becoming a favourite excursion town, and it should be the care of the Mayor and council to make the visitors welcome, extend the glad hand and make them pleased with the spirit of our greeting. This is a small thing to do, but it is something whose neglect will tend to injure the good name of the town. Let the council get their heads together and consider this matter. The more people, even transient visitors, we can get to Peterborough, the better.

You can go into any Clothing Store and buy a TEN DOLLAR SUIT—all the stores keep them; but you'll get just what you ask for—a TEN DOLLAR SUIT.

Now, we brought into view this morning a large number of ALL-WOOL SUITS that have just been finished for us, to our order for fall trade, and which we propose to sell for TEN DOLLARS, as an illustration of what we can do in the way of a special offering.

The Suits are in Single Breasted and Double Breasted

If you have bought a Suit as well made and as nicely finished as one of these, for $3.00 or $4.00 more than our price of $10.00, you received your money's worth, which is the same as to say that in buying THIS Suit at THIS price you received more. SEVEN SISTERS WITH THE LONGEST AND MOST BEAUTIFUL HAIR IN THE WORLD LIVING PROOFS OF ITS MERITS

SUTHERLAND SISTERS HAIR GROWER

The Great Hair Tonic is a Positive and Thorough Antiseptic

and will quickly eradicate all traces of scalp bacteria, which is the cause of hair falling, dandruff and baldness. NO HAIR CAN REMAIN HEALTHY AND NO HAIR CAN GROW WITH THESE DISEASE-BREEDING GERMS. They undermine the hair and devour all the nutriment or life-sap of the scalp, without which the scalp dries up and peels off, forming dandruff and causing the loss of hair. SEVEN SUTHERLAND SISTERS HAIR GROWER AND SCALP PURIFIER ARE THE ONLY REMEDIES IN THE WORLD THAT WILL DESTROY THESE GERMS. They penetrate the scalp thoroughly, carrying with them all the necessary properties to quickly regenerate all the impoverished parts. They rebuild the lost tissues of the scalp and renew the growth of the hair in every case. A few applications will make the hair fairly ripple with new life and vigor. They cause healthy hair to grow twice as long and twice as fast as it does normally.

BRITISH ATTITUDE

Premier Balfour Defines It in an Important Statement.

THE SEIZURES IN THE RED SEA

Case of the Knight Commander Is More Serious, and Britain and Russia Have Not Yet Completely Threshed the Matter Out—Premier, However, Thinks Russia Will Adopt British View.

London, July 29.—In the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, Premier Balfour said the acute stage of the Red Sea incidents had passed, and that the Russian volunteer fleet vessels would be withdrawn. He laid down the British view that no belligerent warship could issue from the Black Sea, and that the volunteer fleet vessels in issuing therefrom, if they took belligerent action either had no right to issue or no right to take such action.

The strongest possible exception had been taken to the seizure of the Malacca on the above grounds, the Premier added. The Russian Government had met the British contention in regard to this particular incident. As to the Knight Commander case, the Government had earnestly protested that the sinking of that vessel was contrary to the accepted practice of nations.

Seizures in the Red Sea.

Mr. Balfour said regarding the Russian assurances on the subject of the seizure of the Malacca and other vessels were as follows: The Russian Government have met us in this matter, I will not say on general principles, but in regard to this particular instance. The Malacca could not be stopped before she left Port Said, but she has now been released at Algiers. The Russian Government at the same time gave us assurances that if the vessels of the volunteer fleet made further captures before instructions could reach them that, pending the discussion of the general principle involved, no action should be taken, and that those captures should be regarded as not having occurred. In accordance with that arrangement the Ardova and Formosa have been released. We have received assurances that the volunteer fleet vessels are to be withdrawn from the Red Sea, and we have little doubt that there will be no further desire on the part of Russian Government to employ them as cruisers. So far, therefore, as those ships go, the controversy has passed out of the acute stage. I will not say that the Government of this country and Russia have reached an agreement upon the general principle; but I think we need not anticipate any practical violation of the view which we very strongly hold is likely to occur."

Case of the Knight Commander.

Mr. Balfour assumed a more serious tone as he referred to the Knight Commander. "There are, I am sorry to say," said the Premier, "other questions not connected with the incident at all which must cause some discussion between the two Governments, and like all discussions between Governments there may be legitimate cause for anxiety. We hold that it is not proper that on the authority of the captain of a cruiser that goods alleged to be contraband of war should be taken from a merchant ship without trial."

This statement of the Premier was greeted with an outburst of cheers.

"The proper course," continued Mr. Balfour, "according to international practice, is that any ship reasonably suspected of carrying contraband of war should be taken by the belligerent to one of its own ports, and its trial should there occur before a prize court, by which the case is to be determined. Evidently, if it is left to the captain of a cruiser to decide on his own initiative and authority, whether particular articles carried on a ship are or are not contraband, what is not merely a practice of nations, but what is a necessary foundation of equitable relations between belligerents and neutrals, would be cut down to the root."

Contrary to Practice.

This statement of the Premier was also cheered. He continued: "More serious than the others is the case of the Knight Commander. If, as our information leads us to fear, she was sunk by a cruiser of the Vladivostock squadron, on the ground that she carries contraband of war, in our view it is entirely contrary to the practice of nations in war time, and we have earnestly pressed our view on the Russian Government. We are under a strong impression that when the case is brought, as it has been brought to us, before the Russian Government, that they will give such orders as to prevent a recurrence of unfortunate incidents of that character. I feel confident that will be the case."

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering

'I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from Chronic Diarrhoea for ten years, and during that times I tried various remedies without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well, and I have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favour of that wonderful remedy." This medicine is for sale by all druggists.

Obstinacy or Determination?

How often do we speak of a child as obstinate and pigheaded when he is merely determined! We fail to see that what we take to be obstinacy to give up some pet project is really a courage and tenacity of purpose which will prove a successful shield in years to come, when fighting the battle of life. What a terrible mistake we make then, when we try to subdue the child and, as we say, "break his spirit"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

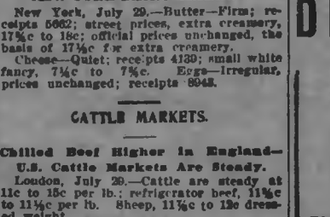
An Encouraging Message



I have a message of hope and good cheer, of encouragement and inspiration to every suffering woman. I have endured the torture due to female troubles and the consequent despondency and mental agony almost to the point of despair, and I have been restored from this condition to a state of vigorous health, and to the happy, exhilarating frame of mind which accompanies physical well-being. This change has been brought about wholly by the use of ORANGE LILY.

In addition, I have had the privilege and pleasure of inducing multitudes of other suffering women to give ORANGE LILY a trial, and have received thousands of enthusiastic acknowledgements of the blessings it has brought to them. The following is a sample:

Truro, N. S., April 5, 1904.

Dear Mrs. Currah,—Your very kind letter was received yesterday. In reply to your question about my health, I am thankful to say that I am very well. As I have never given you a statement of my case you may be interested in it.

For several years I have suffered untold agony. This suffering was continuous, but I would have violent attacks every few weeks, each attack lasting several days. The first Sunday in November, I felt the pain increasing and so did not go to prayers. The rest of the family did go and soon after the forcing down pains seized me and I had to remain on the floor until their return. I was in great pain all night, and was very sick for a whole week.

Then Mrs. L. came to see me and told me of your wonderful medicine. I got my husband to send for it right away, as I was too sick to write myself. (My doctor could do nothing for me.) I have used 5 boxes of ORANGE LILY, have had three months of good rest, and am now well, never better in my life. I have not had the old pains since. I often ask my husband if it is myself that is going around and doing my own work. I can scarcely believe it. It brings tears of joy to my eyes. I could shout it to all the world. I cannot speak enough in its praise.

Your friend, MRS. E. H. F.

Receiving as I do, dozens of such reports each day, I felt impelled to make known to my suffering sisters the merits of ORANGE LILY. It differs from the other so-called remedies in that it is not taken internally. It is a strictly local treatment, and is applied directly to the affected organs. Its curative elements are absorbed into the congested tissues, expelling the stagnant foreign matter which has been irritating the membrane and oppressing the nerves, and a growing feeling of physical and mental relief is noticeable almost from the start. It is a positive, scientific remedy, and even if you use no more than the Free trial Treatment you will be very materially benefitted.

FREE TRIAL OFFER.

I want every reader of this who suffers in any way from painful monthly periods, irregularities leucorrhœa, inflammation or congestion of the womb, pains in the back, etc., to send me their addresses, and I will forward at once, without charge, 10 days' treatment. If your case is not far advanced it may entirely cure you, and in any event it will do you much good. I am so earnest in making this statement, and so positive that it is true, that I trust every sufferer who reads this notice will take advantage of my offer and get cured at home, without a doctor's bill.

MRS. F. C. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT.

DEATH OF WM. M'LENNAN.

Distinguished Canadian Died at Vallambrosa, Italy, at 48 Years of Age.

Montreal, July 30.—News was received by cable yesterday of the death at Vallambrosa, Italy, of William McLennan, the distinguished Canadian author. He was 48 years of age, and was the second son of the late Hugh McLennan, in his time one of Montreal's most prominent merchants. Deceased graduated from McGill in 1880, and after practising law here gave his whole attention to literature.

Mr. McLennan's best known publications included "Songs of Old Canada," translated from the French; "Montreal and Some of Its Makers," "A King for a Week," "A Gentleman of the Royal Guard," and many short stories, essays and poems.

Safeguard the Children

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Mr. Frank Riggs, of Franklinville, N.Y., in speaking of this remedy, said: "I have found it expedient to have a supply of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand. It has been a family safeguard, and while especially beneficial to children it is equally good in adult cases. I recommend it cheerfully and without reservation." For sale by all druggists.

Boy of 7 Drowned.

Carleton Place, July 30.—A sad drowning accident occurred yesterday, by which Wilmer Neil, a boy aged 7 years, only son of Wm. M. Neil, lost his life. The little fellow and another boy named Melville Poivin were playing along the edge of the millrace, near Gillies' machine shops, when young Neil fell in.

Senator Gibson to Marry.

Ottawa, July 30.—Senator Wm. Gibson, according to The Brockville Recorder, is leaving to-day for Scotland to be married. The bride prospective is Miss Mackie, an accomplished and attractive lady of Peterhead, in Aberdeenshire, the boyhood home of the sturdy Senator from Beamsville.

Trains Crashed Together.

Sharon, Pa., July 30.—A passenger train and a freight train on the Pennsylvania were in collision near here early yesterday and both trains were wrecked. Engineer James Robinson was instantly killed, Fireman McWilliams fatally hurt, and two other trainmen badly injured.

Mrs. Thos. Covert, Highland Grove, Peterborough County, Ont. writes:—"I was a sufferer for years with stomach trouble and terrible headaches, and spent a good many dollars in medicine without receiving any benefit. Hearing Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills highly recommended, I determined to give them a trial, and did so with most satisfactory results, as I was very greatly benefited and do not hesitate to recommend this treatment as the best obtainable for such ailments."

CRETAN LEPERS.

Their Numbers Are Swelled by Their Food and Their Filth.

In the small island of Crete leprosy is shockingly prevalent. The Cretans have themselves to thank for this state of affairs. The houses may be pretty and whitewashed on the outside, but within the filth is fearful. And the food they eat is just what encourages leprosy. The Greek forbids meat about 200 days out of the year, so as good Christians they must live on salt fish, which is not improved by its long journey from northern seas to southern heat. The olive oil is so plentiful—they export 20,000 tons each year—that they use it to excess, even adding it to the milk of a rice pudding. But the crowning evil is pork, the favorite fare of the Cretans on days when the church allows them to eat meat. The leper is not cut off here as he is in the Fiji islands or at the Cape. Outside each village may be seen a little white house called the "leprochorion." Here the lepers live. Their estates, if they have any, are administered for them by friends and any one passing by the door may speak to them. If the sufferers be poor the state provides each day a loaf of bread, and the charity of passersby adds the luxuries.

Know It.

She—I suppose you flatter yourself you are a great man? He—I do not flatter myself. I merely recognize a fact.

To know how to be silent is more difficult and more profitable than to know how to speak.—Dumas.

Going for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Don't put yourself in this man's place, but keep a bottle of this remedy in your home. There is nothing so good for Colic, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and Diarrhoea. It is equally valuable for Summer Complaint and Cholera Infantum and has saved the lives of more children than any other medicine in use. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

You, or some one of your family, are sure to need this remedy sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly; you will need it quickly. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? Price, 35 cents.

WOMAN'S WORLD

KATE WALLER BARRETT.

The Superintendent of the Florence Crittenden Missions.

Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett of Washington, vice president of the Women's National Council of the United States, is known on two continents through her labors as general superintendent of the Florence Crittenden missions, established nearly twenty years ago by a wealthy citizen of New York in memory of a daughter. As the wife of the dean of St. Luke's cathedral in Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. Barrett was revered and loved for her philanthropic work and in order better to minister to the sick and needy she took a college course and degree in medicine. She is a woman of fine intellect and remarkable executive ability, and after her husband's death, a number of years ago, the founder felt that in her he had found the one woman of all the world fitted in every respect to assume charge of the Crittenden missions for unfortunate women. These now number sixty-six in this and other countries and care annually for about 4,000 girls, finding permanent homes for them and extending continued protection. The national headquarters and training school for those who are placed in charge of these missions are in Washington, under Mrs. Barrett's direct supervision. She has studied methods of rescue work in most of the European capitals and in Japan, China and Mexico, and she frequently visits the missions throughout the United States and Canada, making personal inspection of their work. Mrs. Barrett was a delegate at large and secretary of the woman's board of the Atlanta expedition in 1895, was sent abroad to represent its interests and was also a representative of philanthropic work at the Paris exposition in 1900. She founded a medical college and training school for nurses in the south and inaugurated and built a home for women, where an average of fifty women and children are constantly cared for. She is a strong writer and eloquent speaker.—Independent.

Punctual Housekeepers.

We hear and we read and we talk about the business woman, meaning the woman who is employed downtown.

Every woman who is responsible for the home and household duties is or should be quite as much of a business woman as her office sister.

A few business principles applied to the management of the home would change many homes from chaos to paradise.

How many women regularly practice punctuality?

How many make a business of having breakfast on time?

How many are sure that luncheon is placed before the children promptly? A child's favorite excuse for afternoon tardiness at school is, "Mother didn't have lunch on time."

Punctuality in the home is more important than punctuality in business, for the homekeeper is responsible for the habits of the children of the home, and the formation of character is more important than the management of any branch of business.

$500 REWARD FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

"There are thousands of sick women dragging out a weary, miserable existence, who would be well and happy did they but have my experience with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. Annie Leaman, of 105 Jackson St., Atlanta, Ga. "Four years ago I was nearly dead with inflammation and ulceration. I endured daily untold agony, and life was a burden to me. I had used so-called medicines internally and externally until I had made up my mind that there was no relief in sight for me. A friend of mine endorsed your 'Favorite Prescription,' and I determined then to give it a trial. It took patience and perseverance for I was in a bad condition, and had to use your medicine for nearly four months before I was cured, but what a change it brought; from despair to happiness, from misery to the delightful, exhilarating feeling that only health brings. I would not change back for a thousand dollars. Your 'Prescription' is a grand medicine. I wish every sick woman would only try it and be convinced."

We boast that no wrinkles disfigure her face;
She's healthy and bright and I've oft heard her say:
'Tis because she has used Abbey's Salt every day.

No matter how hearty the old folk appear, their digestive organs are on the wane. The stomach and bowels are noticeably weaker. The liver often sluggish. Nature needs assistance.

ABBEY'S SALT is the tonic laxative to keep the old folk in healthful vigor. It is so mild—yet so effective—that it puts the stomach, bowels and liver in perfect order without the least discomfort.

Failed Lovers.

He is a callous individual who after breaking a girl's heart will congratulate himself upon having got out of his engagement. He is the type of the false lover, for he will promptly go and make love to some other girl. He is always in love with some one in his own short lived fashion. Believing himself to be truly in love, he sets about making the girl return his affection, and after much wooing she may give him the love of her life. Once engaged the false lover gives up much of his love making, and his weak affection dies completely out. He has not intended to be hard hearted. It is only that he does not feel so keen upon marrying as he did. He begins to picture some other ideal, and before long things have come to such a pass that he feels he must jilt the girl he has asked to marry him, must throw her over and be free again. Hard it may be for the girl, but if she only could see it in the right light how thankful she should be that she has escaped. For a loveless husband is far, far worse than the inconstant lover.—McCall's Magazine.

Proper Adjusting of Hosiery.

Annoyance from premature tearing of hosiery may be avoided to a degree by a little precaution in adjusting it to the foot. The following cautions will prove helpful:

Move the stocking upward on the foot by holding between the soft parts of the hands. Never use the ends of the fingers, as the nails are liable to cut the threads of the delicate weaves now so popular. Turn the hose inside out, properly adjust to the foot and then bring the upper portion in place by slowly drawing up with the soft parts of the hands. Never catch by the extreme top and pull. Hose supporters should be attached to the double portion or hem of the stocking, as the buttons will invariably break the single weave. Supporters should be shortened until they just reach the hem of the stocking. In warm weather a slight sprinkling of talcum powder will both cool the foot and facilitate adjusting the hose.

A Music Roll.

For the girl student in music a roll in which to carry selections is almost a necessity. An inexpensive one may be made of dress lining, using two sixteen inch square pieces quilted with straight rows of machine stitching. One end is rounded for the flap and the edges are bound with brown braid. A strap one inch wide and twelve inches long is made of linen and braid stitched together and finished with a buckle. The strap is fastened on the center of the outside. A handle is made like the strap and is stitched on about three inches of the edges, near the rounded end of the roll. If the linen is stretched and pressed thoroughly to make it stiff the roll will wear as well as a leather one.—Woman's Home Companion.

Nurses and Matrimony.

The latest report of the royal national pension fund for nurses of England practically states that there is no other work for women which so surely gets them married as nursing. This fact is not hard to understand. Nurses are often literally angels of mercy, gliding into the sickroom, gently but firmly dispelling awkward helpers and quieting the patient by their very calmness. While a nurse's personality does count for something with the patient, still many of those little qualities which appeal to him so strongly are as mechanical as a rule in mathematics.

Pianos and Plants.

A growing plant should be kept in the room with a piano, says a piano tuner. As long as the plant thrives the piano will. The reason that a piano is injured by a dry, overheated room is that all the moisture is taken out of the sounding board. The board is forced into the case so tightly that it bulges up in the center and, though the wood is supposed to be as dry as possible when this is done, it contains some moisture and gathers more on damp days. When this moisture is dried out the board flattens and finally cracks.

The Real Reason.

A chief reason why so many of the very best women, who would make the best mothers, remain unmarried is because there are not enough good and worthy men to provide them husbands. The fact is that there are two good, pure, high minded women to one such man. Many such women do not meet the man worthy of them who can seek them in marriage, and they will not marry a man whom they cannot respect. They do right. The only remedy for this evil is the cultivation of nobler men.—Independent.

One Girl's Comfort.

A New Orleans girl spends her days in pajamas. The moment her father has left the house she divests herself of her skirts and dons her pajamas and sandals, to spend the remainder of the day till dinner time in these easy going garments. She says no woman who persists in wearing her skirts has the remotest notion how "comfy" it is to practice, read, take a nap and do a girl's little chores free from the bother of them.

Ice Cream and Pepper.

A prominent physician once advised peppering ice cream with cayenne when eating it after a hearty meal. The cream, he said, was so cold it was apt to retard digestion, sometimes with serious results, but the cayenne taken with it warmed the stomach, and unpleasant results were averted. There is no taste whatever of the cayenne, the coldness of the cream preventing any peppery taste.

Meal Beverages.

Milk may serve as a beverage at a meal consisting of fish, fruit, eggs and cereals, but should not be taken with meat. Neither should it be used when vegetables are eaten.

Coffee goes with meat.

Tea goes with eggs and fish, but not with meat, the tannin of the tea having a tendency to harden the meat fiber.

THE PRIMITIVE STAGE.

How the Drama Flourished in the Time of Elizabeth.

The great plays of Marlowe, Shakespeare and Jonson were performed by actors in Elizabethan dress in front of a curtain, usually in daylight, on a little stage partly occupied by the gallants of the period, with their pages and tobacco pipes. There was no fashionable actress, no orchestra, no limelight, yet the drama was more popular than churchgoing and held its own even with such gentle sports as bull baiting and "wiping of the blind beare." The little that we know of the actors shows them, with the exception of Burbage and Nathaniel Field, to have been very ordinary workaday people, with empty pockets and domestic affections and other modern characteristics. Yet the protests of the Puritans, the avaricious records of the censor and the continual erection of new theaters in spite of the solemn threats of the city fathers are evidence enough of the marvelous popularity to which the art attained in that "spacious time" of playhouses most remarkable for lack of space.—London World.

Ruined His Stomach For Science.

One of the most singular things about the great nervous specialist, Dr. Brown-Sequard, was the way in which he saved his nerves for science, but injured his stomach for the same cause. Throughout his life he was opposed to the use of tobacco. "I never smoke," he once said, "because I have seen the most evident proofs of the injurious effects of tobacco on the nervous system." But his desire to investigate the contents of his own stomach by swallowing sponges to which a thread was tied and pulling them up to examine the gastric juice which they had absorbed brought on a rare affection, known as merycism, or rumination, which compelled him to masticate his food a second time.

Colored Clothes and Health.

The health value of colored clothes is infinitely superior to that of sable fabrics. You will find more microbes to the square inch on dark than on light garments. Black arrests the health giving rays of the sun. It is strange that Mme. la Mode should turn out to be only the high priestess of health in disguise and that the microbes of Mayfair and the bacilli of Belgravia should be more afraid of a butterfly of fashion than of a sable coated doctor of medicine.—Chic.

To-day's market was somewhat of an improvement over last Saturday's. The prices were about the same and most of the produce was sold before noon. There was a good supply of berries and summer vegetables of all description. Eggs could be bought at 14c, 15c or 16c, for twelve, while butter sold generally at 19c. and 20c. per pound. Chickens were fairly plentiful and sold anywhere from 50c. to $1.00 a pair, according to size, age and other properties. Ducks were worth 50c. to 80c. per pair. Potatoes per bag were worth $1.00 and per peck 30c. Green apples, which the small boy enjoys while eating, but not afterwards, sold at 25c. per peck. The other prices were about the same as usual.

A NEW BUILDING MATERIAL IN USE

Cement Blocks Being Used in Peterborough for the First Time.

HAVE MANY ADVANTAGES.

Visit to a House on Aylmer Street Being Constructed of the New Material —Better Than Stone or Brick.

The increasing scarcity, and the consequent high price of building material, has led enterprising minds to devise a plan by which building might be accomplished at a less cost, and with greater facility, than is possible with the prevailing scarcity of the popular varieties of building materials. The unprecedentedly large number of buildings that have been, and are being erected in Peterborough this year, has created conditions hitherto unknown, and methods hitherto unthought of have been adopted.

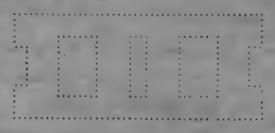
The march of science may perhaps have had something to do with the introduction of a new building material, which the object of this article is to describe.

The development of the cement industry, and the adaptability of that article of commerce to so many different forms of construction, have been wonderful during the past few years, and the prediction that it will come into more general commercial use in the near future, seems to be one which has considerable foundation in fact.

The latest use to which it is being put is in the construction of dwellings in the form of hollow blocks.

To-day the Examiner inspected the first house in the construction of which these blocks are being used, to be constructed in Peterborough. This house is situated on Aylmer street, near the corner of Edinburgh street, and at the present time is just above the first story. It will be a two story structure, and when it is completed, will be one of the nicest-looking little dwellings in Peterborough.

In this house the entire wall is composed of cement blocks, the standard size of each block being 32 inches long, and 9 x 10 inches. Each block is hollow, being constructed in this shape:



looking at it from the top.

While the main blocks are this shape, they may be made into any shape and size to meet conditions for corners, chimneys, etc.

The face of each block is made to represent rough stone, and to one who did not examine the structure closely, it appears like a stone house.

It is claimed that this substance has a great many advantages recommending it to general use. A house thus constructed will be much dryer and warmer than if built with stone or brick, the hollow portions of the blocks making an air space in the wall from top to bottom, and doing away with the necessity for scantling studding on the inside to provide that space, as is necessary in a solid brick or stone structure.

In a house of this kind there will be very little wood, much less than in an ordinary brick house.

The cost will probably be about the same as brick, or a little less, certainly not more, and when the advantages are considered, it will be considerably more economical to use this material than either brick or stone, that is, of course, providing that the advantages claimed for it, are substantiated in actual practical use, of which there seems to be little doubt. These blocks, which are composed of cement and sand, more than usual of the former being used, are harder than the ordinary stone used for building purposes, consequently the structure in which they are used, should be more durable. Water has practically no effect on them.

The one house in Peterborough being constructed of this material is that being erected for Mr. Crowley by Mr. McKee, who is making and supplying the blocks, and Mr. Fred Tuggey, a practical stone mason, has charge of the construction work. Mr. Tuggey, who has but recently arrived in Canada from England, stated to the Examiner that this was his first practical experience with cement blocks, but that he felt highly pleased with them as building material. The fact that any stone mason or brick layer can lay the blocks, is attested to by the fact that Mr. Tuggey, with no experience in laying them is making a first-class job of it, and the house is beginning to look really handsome.

Of course, the durability and practical value of the use of these blocks for building depends upon their quality. Mr. Tuggey said that he had seen in another town a building being constructed of this material, but the proportions of sand and cement in the blocks was not right, and the consequence was that it was a failure, there being too much sand for the cement.

The blocks used here, however, were quite different, in fact it was stated that there was a greater quantity of cement in them than was prescribed by an American technical journal, giving instructions to make the blocks for this purpose.

The machine with which the blocks referred to are manufactured is on Mr. Thos. McKee's property, on Division street, where a large quantity of the manufactured product is to be seen.

It can be made in almost any conceivable shape and size, all that is necessary being that moulds be procured for the designs desired. For ordinary building, the imitation stone is the style almost universally used, but for ornamental work, floral and scroll designs may be made. Window sills, which usually are of stone, are equally as good made of this substance.

A number of practical builders, who have inspected this house, are very favourably impressed with the advantages which the blocks offer for building purposes, and the prospects are that in the near future a large demand will be experienced for this material. Already arrangements have been made to erect a house on Water street with the blocks, and others are in prospect.

At present Mr. McKee is the only person in town manufacturing this style of blocks. Wm. Taylor and Company make a block which is being used very successfully for foundations, and they will probably branch out into the material for the upper construction in case its use becomes popular, a fact which at present seems very probable.

BABY'S ECZEMA

Top of Head Covered with Scales Which Peeled off Taking Hair with Them.

CURED BY CUTICURA

Now Six Years Old with Thick Hair and Clean Scalp. Cure Permanent.

"My baby was about six weeks old when the top of her head became covered with thick scales, which would peel and come off, taking the hair with it. It would soon form again and be as bad as before. I tried several things and then went to the doctor. He said it was Eczema, and prescribed an ointment, which did not do any good. A friend spoke of Cuticura Soap. I tried it and read on the wrapper about Cuticura Ointment as a remedy for Eczema. I bought a box and washed her head in warm water and Cuticura Soap and gently combed the scales off. They did not come back and her hair grew out fine and thick. She is now a year and a half old and has no trace of Eczema."

MRS. C. W. BURGES, Iranistan Ave., Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 21, 1903.

Mrs. Burges writes Feb. 26, 1903:

"My baby, who had Eczema very badly on her head, as I told you before, after using the Cuticura Remedies was cured. She is now six years old and has thick hair and a clean scalp."

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Inc'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

New York, July 30th, Friday evening.—The market proved a sale around last night's closing prices. There were declines of about 1 1-3 points in U. P. Atch., R.G., Mop., U.S.Q., while Met. advanced over a point, to 113 7-8 We continue bullish on the tractions, especially Met., also B.R.T. and Man. and would buy them whenever they reach 3 points or more. Shorts put out around yesterday's close may be covered on any further decline around Wednesday's low prices. If the market is strong during the first hour to-morrow it will go lower by Monday and no shorts should be covered until then. We look for only a traders' market for 3 or 4 days and then a resumption of the bull movement, provided no further foreign complications or crop disaster occur in the meantime. Wheat was very strong. You ought to be long and if so can afford to stay long.

No confirmation received yet confirming the fall of Port Arthur.

No Liverpool market to-day.

New York.—Wheat advanced on reports of rust in the North-west. The bullish factors in wheat overcome heavy winter wheat receipts.

R. I. is backing a steamship Co. to operate between New Orleans and South Africa. No increase in U.P. com. dividend expected in near future. Early settlement of Fall River strike expected. Expected beef strike will fail through without help from railroad men. Anthracite trade conditions unfavourable, but strike unlikely. Bradstreets say more activity in places, but disposition to wait assurance on crops.

Crop news from wheat belt unfavourable.

New York.—The outlook this morning favours another irregular stock market to-day particularly as the professions will even up the prospect is for a good bank statement. Unfavourable crop reports are causing selling of grangers. The Northern Securities action is against the good of Union Pac. A bright spot occurs occasionally here and there in the steel trads and one comes to-day, but we still believe U.S.Q. is a sale on rallies. Bull talk continues on the tractions. Particularly Met. issues. We do not feel very bullish just at present on the active list, but prefer to await the settlement of certain developments over Sunday before taking a decided stand either way.— Town Topics.

New York, July 30th.—A warm wash with temperature extending to 98 degrees overspread Kans. and Neb. Good forcing weather for crops. Stock markets will be narrow and limited profits should not be scorned. The holding up of Northern Securities div. does not alter complexion of the suit purchases of the Trenton iron Co. by U. S. steel corp. is favourably accepted. Tractions will work higher. Buy coalers on reasons.

TAKING A LOOK INTO AUGUST

A Lively Forecast

August is the month to make a dollar do duty for two at the Golden Lion. As the ranks of the summer goods get thinner the prices get slighter and slighter.

Savings rampant all over the store. Here is a woman buying a Shirt that she has been longing for two months, and it costs her half what it would two months ago. Here is a prudent one buying three Shirt Waists at their reduced prices and tucking them away for next winter.

That is the "how" and "why" of August bargains here. The low prices will make it very easy for you to finish out the summer with a new Hat and other new dress accessories, for there is a sharp cut in every department of Fair's.

If we're not making money we're making friends. Doing lots of business with little money in it; but clearances are absolutely necessary. That's how we look at it. The extraordinary values we will offer this month will attach many friends permanently to the store.

It costs quite a little to pack and store away odds and ends that accumulate at the end of a season's business, and it ties up a lot of capital, too.

Is it any wonder, then, that this progressive store wants to save all such items of expense, and that we are willing to lose our profits for the sake of a clean stock and the ready money.

Now is the time. This is the month that the price ticket speaks loudly at Fair's.

CANADA GARRISONS

ARNOLD-FORSTER'S FIGURES

Canada Pays Half the Cost of the Troops, 362 in Number, at Esquimalt, Namely £22,100—Hon. Mr. Lyttelton Pays a High Compliment to Work of Colonial Medical Men.

London, Aug. 1.—In a written reply to a question by Mr. Runciman as to the number of British troops stationed at Esquimalt and Halifax, the annual cost and what contribution is made by the Canadian Government, Mr. Arnold-Foster, the Secretary of War, says there are 362 at Esquimalt, and the annual cost is £44,200, half of which is contributed by the Canadian Government. There are 1,785 at Halifax, and the annual cost is about £20,500. There is no Canadian contribution.

Hon. Mr. Lyttelton, addressing the members of the British Medical Association at Leamington, said no men were doing more splendid work on behalf of the Empire than the medical men of the colonies in attacking diseases fatal to those in the administration of Britain's tropical possessions. The meeting in 1905 will be held at Leicester. An invitation to Toronto was under consideration.

JAPS FORTIFYING THEIR POSITION.

Important Point Around Port Arthur Now Occupied.

ARE CORNERING KUROPATKIN

Hard Fighting at Port Arthur—Engagement Reported Going on Near Haicheng—Five Jap Officers Killed and 41 Wounded at Port Arthur—The Vladivostock Squadron Gets Away Again.

Che Foo, Aug. 1.—A Japanese merchant has received word from a Chinese whom he trusts to the effect that the Japanese have occupied every position surrounding the besieged fortress of Port Arthur, with the exception of Golden Hill. The Chinese stated that both sides suffered tremendous losses in the operations necessary to bring about this state of affairs. The members of the Russian Intelligence Bureau here, while denying the report that Port Arthur has been captured, are inclined to believe that the reports are true to the extent that the Japanese have made great progress about the operations of the besieged fortress.

Still Standing.

Tokio, Aug. 1.—The rumored fall of Port Arthur is officially pronounced to be untrue.

Siege of the Fortress.

Tokio, Aug. 1.—The General Staff announced Saturday evening that five Japanese officers had been killed and forty-one wounded, in the fighting which has been going on around Port Arthur since last Tuesday. The losses in the ranks are not given.

This is the first announcement of its kind since the beginning of the siege of the fortress, and it indicates that there has been serious fighting.

Cornering Kuropatkin.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—Although public attention has been distracted from the events of the war during the past week, first, because of the fear of international complications, and, second, because of the assassination of Minister of the Interior Von Plehve, the situation at the front is regarded as critical.

The enveloping movements of three Japanese armies of Generals Kuroki, Nodzu and Oku around Gen. Kuropatkin's position appears to be almost complete, and the extended line of the Japanese seems to be the only drawback to concerted action. It is realized here that the Russian general must now either fight or withdraw the whole army northward. He is being closely pressed at Haicheng. At that place Gen. Kuroki's northern column makes it extremely dangerous to remain there, because, while holding the position to give battle against the Japanese, whose advance is notoriously slow and careful, Gen. Kuroki might push through and cut his railway communications to Liaoyang.

While nothing is definitely known, there are some unofficial indications that matters are rapidly maturing for either a battle or a retreat.

A few days are expected to determine which course Gen. Kuropatkin has elected to pursue. The indications are that the Baltic squadron is on the eve of an important movement. The Emperor had arranged to inspect the squadron, but his plan was given up, owing to the assassination of Minister Von Plehve.

Fighting at Haicheng.

London, Aug. 1.—A telegram received from Haicheng says the Japanese attacked the Russian southern army on Friday morning. The Japanese infantry pushed from the south along the railway in the face of a heavy artillery fire. The Japanese continued to advance until 11 o'clock, when at last they were checked. Later in the day the fighting was vigorously renewed.

Fighting For Two Days.

London, Aug. 1.—The correspondent of The Daily Mail at Newchwang, in a despatch dated July 31, says that there has been heavy fighting for two days in the marshes south of Haicheng, during the gradual retreat from Tatchekiao of 5,000 Russians forming the rear guard, and that the peril of this force increases daily.

Russian Warships For East.

Copenhagen, Aug. 1.—Two Russian cruisers and two torpedo boats have traversed the great belt going northwards.

Back to the North.

Frankfort, Germany, Aug. 1.—The Tokio correspondent of The Zeitung says that the Vladivostock squadron has returned to Vladivostock.

No Details Received.

Valdivostock, Aug. 1.—No details have been received here of the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander by the Vladivostock squadron, except the statement to the effect that a portion of the crew and passengers and the ship's papers are held for production as evidence in court to justify the claim that the ship was a legal prize, and therefore subject to confiscation.

Prize Court For Arabia.

Vladivostock, Aug. 1.—The prize court here will begin an examination into the case of the Portland and Asiatic Liner Arabia, which was seized by the Russian Vladivostock squadron, to-day. The German captain of the steamer declares that when the American companies in Portland hired the boat he did not know that he was expected to carry contraband material.

ARREST OF DR. TELFORD.

Charged By Coroner's Jury After a Two Days' Session—Police Looking For A. G. McHarg of Vancouver.

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 1.—A coroner's jury, after two days' session, has brought in a verdict charging Dr. Robt. Telford, one of the proprietors of the Bernard Sanitarium in this city, with causing the death of Miss Hattie Bowell, daughter of Collector of Customs Bowell, by performing an illegal operation. Dr. Telford has been placed under arrest.

Warrant For McHarg.

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 1.—A. G. McHarg of Vancouver, who is wanted by the police on a charge of criminal complicity in the death of the late Miss Bowell of Vancouver, daughter of Collector of Customs Bowell, and granddaughter of Sir Mackenzie Bowell of Ottawa, in the Burnard Sanitarium, Victoria, was in Victoria Friday night and is now believed to have escaped to the Sound. McHarg is charged with having taken a prominent part in the procuration of the operation, which, it is alleged, resulted in the death of Miss Bowell, whose body has been exhumed by order of the authorities. The police are searching the city for McHarg.

Beloved By A

A Vancouver paper of July 25, in announcing the death of Miss Bowell, said. The news of the death of Miss Hattie Bowell came as a sad shock to the many friends of the family. Early this morning, after a brief illness, she passed away surrounded by her sorrowing relations. Born in Winnipeg in 1883, she came to Vancouver when her father, John M. Bowell, was appointed collector of customs at this port in July, 1887, and was educated here. Clever and bright, she was greatly beloved by all who knew her.

ONTARIO'S PREMIER HOME.

Says He Had a Good Time and Looks Well Again.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—Hon. George W. Ross, Premier of Ontario, arrived in the city from Buffalo on the 4.10 train Saturday afternoon. He was evidently feeling very well, and looked as if his prolonged visit at Hot Springs, Virginia, had benefited him greatly. His color was remarkably healthy. "I have had a most enjoyable time and am extremely well pleased with my trip and with the results," he said.

COLON IS EXCITED.

Rumor Circulates That High Officials Have Been Declared Traitors.

Colon, Aug. 1.—News from the coast of Cartagena says rumors are in circulation of an upheaval in Bogota.

President Marroquin and President-elect Reyes are, the rumor says, declared to be traitors, and Congress has been closed. Few boats come down. The Magdalena River is dry. The town is frantic. The people of Cartagena are anxiously awaiting confirmation of the rumors.

Killed Near Milton.

Milton, Aug. 1.—Richard Knox was struck by a C.P.R. freight one mile west of Milton, about 1 o'clock yesterday morning, and instantly killed. The body was found by Duncan Reed, who immediately returned to Milton and notified Constable Bradley and Coroner McCall, who took charge of the remains and brought them to Milton. An inquest will probably be held this morning. He formerly resided at 117 Markham street, Toronto, where his mother lives, and was employed by the Toronto Pressed Brick Co.

Found Dead.

Merrickville, Aug. 1.—Thomas Mussel, aged about 66, was found dead in the barn of one of the local hotels Saturday afternoon. He had been drinking heavily of late. There is no reason to suspect foul play, and consequently no inquest will be held.

HIS DEATH WAS SUDDEN.

Prof. Campbell Succumbs to Clot of Blood on Brain.

AT MUSKOKA ISLAND HOME

His Unexpected Demise Was a Great Shock to His Friends—Sketch of His Career—Until a Few Weeks Ago Was Professor of Church History and Apologetics in Presbyterian College, Montreal.

Port Cockburn, Muskako, Aug. 1.—Prof. John Campbell died suddenly at his summer home, Yo Ho Island, seven miles from here, Saturday morning. His death was entirely unexpected, as the professor seemed to be in the best of health when he came here from the general assembly at St. John, N.B., in June, and went to his summer home on Yo Ho Island.

It will be remembered that Prof. Campbell resigned his place as professor of church history and apologetics in the Presbyterian College at Montreal last June. The occasion of his resignation was the appointment of a successor to Principal McVicar.

Career of the Dead Scholar.

John Campbell was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1840. He was educated at Roxboro House Preparatory School, London, and on the continent. His father, the late James Campbell, the well-known Toronto publisher, designed him for commercial life. John Campbell was in a business occupation first in New York and afterwards in Toronto, till 1861, when he entered Toronto University. He was a member of the University Company and fought at Ridgeway in 1866, and while a student helped Robert Baldwin to establish the Y.M.C.A. of Toronto. Completing his theological course in the New College, Edinburgh, he was ordained in 1868, and became minister of the Charles street Presbyterian Church, Toronto, where he remained until he was called to his life work in the Presbyterian College, Montreal. Prof. Campbell was married in 1875 to Mary Helen, eldest daughter of John S. Playfair, and a cousin of Lord Playfair.

Funeral in Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—The body of the late Prof. Campbell arrived from Gravenhurst early on Sunday morning and was conveyed to the residence of his sister, Mrs. J. Hubert Mason, "Ermleigh," 677 Sherbourne street. It was accompanied by Mrs. Campbell, Gerald Campbell, youngest son of deceased; Mrs. Mason and Stuart Playfair. The funeral will take place this afternoon at three o'clock, and the interment will be at the Necropolis, where Prof. Campbell's father and mother are buried. Death was due to a clot of blood on the brain. The deceased left a family of three sons, Dr. R. P. Campbell of the Montreal General Hospital staff, who arrived here yesterday; Dr. John Campbell, surgeon on a steamer now on its way to the west coast of Africa, and Gerald, who was with his father in Muskoka.

CHAMPION OF THE WORLD.

London, Aug. 1.—Geo. Towns, who won the world's professional sculling championship from Jacob Gaudaur at Rat Portage, Ont., in 1901, successfully defended his title Saturday in Australia by defeating the challenger, Richard Tressider.

Tressider was no match for the champion. Towns won very easily by seven lengths.

The race was for £250 a side and the championship of the world. Towns had great difficulty in raising the money to defend the title.

Both scullers are Australians, although Towns has spent considerable of his life in England.

GERMANY'S DEMAND.

If Not Complied With Minister Will Leave

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Aug. 1.—It is reported that Herr Pelldram, the German Minister at Caracas, has delivered an ultimatum demanding the immediate payment by the Venezuelan Government of the interest on the amount of the Award to be paid to Germany as stipulated in the protocol signed by Herbert W. Bowen, representing Venezuela, in February, 1903. If this demand is not complied with, the report says, the Minister will leave Caracas, Aug. 4.

Joe Martin in Dignified Role.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 1.—Because his invitation to attend the opening of the Westminster Bridge did not include the official luncheon Hon. Joseph Martin wrote Premier McBride declining to accept. His reply says: "I have looked over the program as set out in your invitation, and it would appear that the only item on the program that is not open to the public at large is an official luncheon at 2 p.m. I also find by the slip enclosed that your invitation does not cover this item. Under the circumstances, therefore, I cannot see that any invitation at all is extended, and as the honor seems a most empty one, I must decline it."

A POPULAR MAN.

It must be very difficult to find good ground on which to make a stand against the Laurier Government. The Mail and Empire has tried all kinds of positions, and appears to be quite at a loss how to shape its attacks. Mr. Fielding's speech, it says, was not a success as a bid for Sir Wigfrid Laurier's place. "In fact," says the Mail in its solemn manner, "after that deliverance, it would not be surprising if the caucus from which Mr. Fielding extorted the promise that he should succeed Sir Wilfred were to revise its judgment." Extorted a promise from a caucus! Here is a dark hint to the Mail readers that the terrible Mr. Fielding wrung a promise from the Liberal caucus by violence of some kind. What useful purpose can be served by writing such nonsense as that cannot be guessed. It can surely deceive nobody. The whole country knows that Mr. Fielding is an extremely popular man with his party. At Ottawa he is held in high regard by all the members. Personally he is in high favour with the Conservative members, who, although they criticize his policy, like the man, and show their good will in many ways. That the leading newspaper of the Opposition should picture Mr. Fielding as one who "extorted" an expression of confidence in himself, from the Liberal caucus, is mere foolishness, for the confidence his party has in him is unbounded, and is given expression to on all occasions. It is to be feared that the Mail is trying to prove partizan enough to suit the desires of the Kingston News, which accuses it of being over-fair to the Liberals.

There cannot be much to say against the Government and its policy, when the Mail is reduced to such devices as this.—Toronto Star.

BOY OFFENDERS.

(Toronto News.)

A revolutionary change of policy in the treatment of boy offenders was that by which the young fellows confined in the Penetanguishene Reformatory were taken out and distributed over the Province in foster homes. So far the experiment is reported as working admirably. The boys are doing well.

For years the practice was to incarcerate by violators of the law in the institution at Penetanguishene, which was a prison for juveniles. At one stroke they are set free, at least to the extent of being paroled and articled to employers in various parts of the country. The change is revolutionary, and yet, startling as it is, the facts seem to indicate that the disposition made of these boys is a satisfactory one. The old plan of imprisoning them would appear to have been unnecessary. They are at large with no evident injury to the country, and no doubt with great moral advantage to themselves, for nothing can well be more injurious to the character of a boy during the formative years of his life than the disgrace of imprisonment, the tyranny of jailers, and the companionship of youths who may be inherently vicious.

The opinion has often been expressed in these columns that it should only be in the last extremity and with extreme reluctance that the State should consent to classify one of its children as belonging to the criminal class. Once done it can never be undone. A young man once sent to prison is unmade for life. He is likely to go from bad to worse. Even if he does not he loses the self-esteem without which he can prove of little use to himself or others in the world. At times young fellows are prosecuted and jailed for offences that are, in essence, not criminal, but have their origin in mischief or animal exuberance. To brand these young fellows as jailbirds, to introduce them into the criminal brotherhood, to shove them down hill because they have inconsiderately ventured to the edge—cannot be the wise course for the State to pursue. Once branded, once caged and numbered, once disgraced and hardened to it, a young man's ruin is half accomplished.

The law should save its fury for the incorrigible, and imprison a young man a first time with the very greatest reluctance.

Bought By the Trust.

New York, July 30.—It was announced yesterday that the wire plant of the Trenton Iron Company has been purchased by the United States Steel Company. The price was in the form of 5 per cent. second mortgage bonds of the steel corporation. There are now of these about $107,000,000 outstanding. The plant was founded by Peter Cooper in 1847. The Trenton Company is capitalized at $2,000,000, with but $400,000 issued.

PERSONAL NOMENCLATURE.

Ancient Names and the Modern System of Surnames.

Neither Hebrews, Egyptians, Assyrians, Babylonians, Persians nor Greeks had surnames, and in the earliest period of their history the same may be said of the Romans. In course of time, however, every Roman citizen had three names—the praenomen, or personal name; the nomen, or name of the gens or clan, and the cognomen, or family name, as Publius Cornelius Scipio. Conquerors were occasionally complimented by the addition of a fourth name, or agnomen, commemorative of their conquest, as Publius Cornelius Scipio Africanus.

It is impossible to state with any degree of certainty when the modern system of personal nomenclature became general. It has been stated that the practice of surnames began in Normandy and extended to England after the Norman conquest, but a document in the Cottonian MSS. quoted in Turner's "History of the Anglo-Saxons" contains reference to Hwita Hatte, a keeper of bees in Hathfelda; to Tate Hatte, his daughter, mother of Wulsige the Shooter, and Lulle Hatte, sister of Wulsige. The date of these records of the Hattes is not to be ascertained, but they were certainly written before the year 1066. So far as antiquarians have been able to discover, Hatte is the first surname whose existence can be traced in England. It is not improbable that the founder of the Hatte family was so called because of some unusual or noticeable headgear that he was in the habit of wearing.

MY SHIP.

I stood marooned on a desert isle,
With my gaze o'er the white-capped sea,
And hope leaped up in my heart the while—
My ship—would it come to me?
My beautiful ship with its sails of snow,
Swanlike on the ocean's blue;
While ever I gazed where the sky hung low,
And ever my longing grew.

Long, long I watched in the burning sun
And just at the close of day,
A glint of white where the fog banks run
Flashed up like a whitecap spray—
Flashed into my sight on the low sky line;
Then out of the sea upreared
The black storm-cloud, and this ship of mine
Was lost in the blackness weird.

All night I lay on the damp seaweed,
With the spray on my sodden head;
The mad waves howled, but I took no heed,
Now reckoned of their raving dread.
All night in the storm with a chilling breast,
When lo! at the break of day,
There, dancing at anchor with sails at rest,
My ship in the harbor lay!

My beautiful ship! When the night was black,
When the sky was the hue of lead,
O'er rock and reef, through the thundering rack,
She sailed with a steady head!
Oh, faltering one! when the dark hour falls,
Deem not that all hope is past,
But bark for the sound of the Pilot's calls—
For your ship will come in at last.

A GHOST STORY.

The Creepy Experience of a Dianer Guest in South Africa.

Recently, it is said, an army captain, a "quiet, thick-set, level-headed man, with a clear eye, a strong will and common sense," went to dine with some lady friends at an old Dutch manor house at Stellenbosch, in South Africa. On his arrival he was startled by the appearance on the veranda of a huddled up old woman "with a long, yellow face and thin lips," and later on in the evening, when, after some music in the drawing-room, he returned to the dining-room for a whisky and soda, he noticed that a half-length portrait hanging on the wall was swaying from side to side with a slow, deliberate swing and that the eyes of the man it represented were watching him enviously. Then it seemed to the captain that a fog or mist was rising in the room. It crept up and up till it reached his chin, and then, with a shiver of wild terror, he felt two hands fasten on his throat—hands with thin yet muscular fingers that clutched ever tighter, as if growing strength as they materialized. And the man of the portrait, hanging clear of the gathering mist, still watched him with an evil leer. With an effort he managed to get away, but again, as he hurried from the house, he was startled by the vision of the old yellow-faced woman.

On the following morning he heard that his friends had left the house, and one of them declared that she had been nearly strangled in the night. Afterward the captain discovered that the house for some time had been used as a temporary hospital and that two of the sick, who had been placed in the dining-room had screamed for help during the night, imploring their attendants to take them away, as some one had tried to choke them.

From local inquiries the captain learned that the amiable gentleman whose portrait had brought him so strange an experience had hanged himself about 1810 after strangling his youngest daughter in the dining room. Von Holtz was his name, and the legend of the tragedy is still whispered in the district.

Sleeping Room Windows.

Simple hemstitched hems and a tuck or two in sheer muslin are by far the best window hangings for sleeping rooms. Easily laundered and looking well until they are worn out, they look much better after seeing service or being washed than the ruffled kind.

An ever ready glue pot is a most useful piece of property. It is easily prepared by putting naphtha in a wide mouthed bottle and dissolving shellac in it.

Two long linen runners, one each way of the table, are now used in some fashionable circles in preference to the whole cloth or doilies.

Rub a drop of olive oil on your knives and forks before putting away, and they will retain their brightness.

MINER AS SURGEON.

Extraordinary Scenes in a Scottish Village—Bloodless Surgery That Is More Successful Than That of Prof. Lorens.

Hundreds of cripples, mostly from the mining and factory districts of Lancashire, are now at Blantyre, in Lanarkshire, awaiting treatment by William Rae, the miner bone-setter, whose methods in bloodless surgery are proving more successful than those of Prof. Lorens. Blantyre, where Mr. Rae was born, is the village famous as the birthplace of David Livingstone. It was the scene, some years ago, of a mining disaster in which 200 lives were lost.

Mr. Rae is now 63 years of age, says Lloyd's Weekly. For over 30 years he worked as a miner in the district coalpits, and one day he discovered that he had an extraordinary ("by-ordinar," to use his own more expressive phrase) gift of treating the lame. A collier who worked beside him was badly injured, and Rae administered first aid, after which the miner declared himself as fit as a fiddle. Rae then set himself to study anatomy and physiology, and with characteristic determination he conquered his difficulties.

In the interval he gave many proofs of his skill, but his reputation was confined to his own locality, until a few months ago, when he was consulted by Settle, of the Bolton Wanderers (an International football player). After treatment, Settle returned home cured. Rae's fame then spread throughout Lancashire. A Bolton chemist brought his daughter, a martyr to spinal disease. Her trouble had baffled some of the best surgeons in the kingdom, but where they failed Rae succeeded, and the girl was soon at play.

A Bolton gentleman upon whom he operated successfully sent him a cheque for £11. The honest miner returned it, pointing out that his fee of 10s. had been paid, but suggesting that the money might be used on behalf of poor Boltonians who could not afford the journey over the border. The suggestion was acted upon, with the result that seldom a day passes in which some sufferer from the County Palatine does not consult the Blantyre specialist with benefit.

The miner surgeon treats only bone diseases, and promise no aid where the deformity is the result of nervous disorder. He works with finger and thumb, which, from practice, are as strong as a vice. With spine troubles he goes over the spine inch by inch, again and again until there is relief. Last month a Burnley girl, a vocalist of repute, was cured of spinal disease. An Accrington man had the use of his right arm restored, and a boy who had been compelled to use crutches owing to physical deformity, is now able to romp with his companions. Another patient, a young lady, is so far recovered as to be able to join in the galeties of the London season.

On Tuesday a Daily Chronicle representative visited Blantyre. That very morning an early train brought about 20 families from Bolton—fathers, mothers, children, infants, old men and bent women. Alighting from the train they first secured lodgings, and then made their way to the bone-setter's cottage, where they were given a number and directed to await their turn. One mother brought her two infants, both helpless little mites, swathed almost from head to foot with bandages and surgical appliances. They were suffering from hip and spine disease. As she carefully made her way amongst the crowd, other women turned aside in pity, and then waited anxiously whilst she sought the "doctor." Im half-an-hour she came out radiant the bandages all gone, declaring that the little ones had been cured.

Another case was that of a young woman, who readily gave details of her experience upstairs. She came from Bacup, she said. For years she had been suffering from hip disease, one leg being shorter than the other. Doctors she had tried without relief, and at last friends advised her to go to Blantyre.

"It didn't hurt me a bit—not one bit. He just got hold of my leg, gave it a pull, then pushed it right back, and it was all over. Of course, I walk just a bit lame still, as you see, but it feels, oh! so much easier. I am to bathe the joint every morning with cold water and walk as much as possible. Eh, he's a clever man, he is."

The day long one could hear similar stories, but it should be said that in no case was the cure instant. There always seemed to be a certain amount of lameness after the operation, though the verdict was always the same—"It feels better and easier."

Patti's Fee.

A treasure which Mme. Patti values highly is a fan which bears the autograph of nearly all the European sovereigns of her time. The late Queen Victoria has written: "If King Lear spoke the truth when he said that a sweet voice was the most precious gift a woman could possess, you, my dear Adelina, must be the richest woman in the world."

The Empress and Emperor of Austria have simply written their signatures, but the Kaiser has added these words: "Der Nachtigalls aller Ersten." Tsar Nicholas wrote. "Rien comme votre chant." The Queen Regent of Spain's words are: "L'Espagnole, une reine qui la est fiere de compter au nombre de ses sujets," The Queen of the Belgians has written the first bar of the "Russwalter."

Protection Disastrous.

London, July 30.—(C. A. P.)—T. Ritchie, M.P., late Chancellor of the Exchequer, addressing a letter to the president of the Walton and Croyden Conservative Association, stating his position, says he is more than ever convinced that protection would be disastrous to Britain. The executive, in replying, regretted the divergence of view necessitating his decision not to re-contest the constituency.

CHURCHES AND OUTLAWS.

Ancient Laws That Gave Shelter and Protection to Criminals.

In early times, when life and property were accounted cheap unless defended sword in hand, the church offered shelter and sanctuary to those who had occasion to fear the arm of the law. In the middle ages whoever crossed the threshold of a church was considered under divine protection and could not be arrested, while several churches and cathedrals still preserve the knockers used by those who had fled thither for shelter and claimed admittance. In some buildings the fugitive from justice sat upon a chair or stool, and the register of a church in Durham, England, covering a period extending from the year 1464 to the year 1524, included, besides other crimes, 198 murders and homicides, in which 283 persons seeking protection were concerned. To attempt to violate sanctuary by force was in those days a very serious matter, and when the outlaw decided to save his life by leaving the realm he did so in the following manner: "When a robber, murderer or other evil doer shall fly unto any church upon his confession of felony the coroner shall cause the abjuration to be made thus: Let the felon be brought to the church door and there be assigned unto him a port, near or far off, and a time appointed to him to go out of the realm, so that in going toward that port he carry a cross in his hand, and that he go not out of the king's highway, neither on the right hand nor on the left, but that he keep it always until he shall be gone out of the land, and that he shall not return without special grace of our lord the king."

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

The eighty-fourth birthday of Miss Florence Nightingale, which has just been celebrated at her English home, will recall to the minds of the passing generation the great services she rendered to her own nation during the Crimean war fifty years ago, and the still greater services she has both before and since rendered to humanity everywhere by her personal influence in securing improved hospital management in times of peace. It is right that the younger generation, which has only an historical knowledge of her work, should have its attention directed to what a devoted and self-sacrificing spirit may achieve, in spite of the hampering effect of physical weakness and chronic ill-health. Every hospital nurse might be the better for knowing something of Florence Nightingale's lofty ideals, resourceful ingenuity, intense sympathy, and heroic endurance.

Her name first came prominently before the public when she was appointed, at her own request, to take part in the task of increasing the efficiency of the British military hospitals in the Crimea, and the Government wisely gave her full charge of the work. For such a responsible position she had fitted herself by careful study and preparation, and also by practical experience in England and Germany. In our own day we have been enabled by the descriptions of the South African war to comprehend the state of utter inefficiency into which a military hospital service may fall through the incompetence or negligence of those to whom it is entrusted. The case was immeasurably worse half a century ago. It was the part of Miss Nightingale and her assistants to bring order out of confusion, to substitute systematic and intelligent treatment for haphazard and perfunctory service, and to extend sympathy to the wounded for whom nothing else could be done.

Well was that part performed. The official head of the nursing staff was by far the most competent member of it. "By affording care and consolation she alleviated the sufferings of all, saved the lives of many, and earned the blessings of the sick and wounded, as well as the gratitude of her country." In recognition of her services a fund amounting to nearly a quarter of a million dollars was raised by voluntary donations, but with characteristic liberality she stipulated that it should be devoted to the establishment of "Nightingale Home" as an institution for the training of nurses. Miss Nightingale has put on record the results of her experience in works that have had a wide circulation, and during the Civil war in America and the more recent Franco-Prussian war she was frequently consulted by the military administrations of the United States and Prussia. How her military hospital work was appreciated by contemporary observers, irrespective of nationality, is shown by Longfellow's beautiful poetic tribute to her under the title of "Santa Filomena."

Storing Up Newspapers.

The newspaper department of the British Museum library has grown and is growing by such leaps and bounds that some time ago it was decided to erect a building at Hendon which would contain such newspapers as are seldom demanded by those whom curiosity or interest takes to Bloomsbury.

This building is now approaching completion, and it is to be hoped that it will be ready for occupation some time next month. By the provisions of the Copyright Act of 1857 every newspaper published in the United Kingdom is bound to furnish the museum with a copy of each number of its issue, and last year alone the single copies received amounted to 199,067. In addition to these, 28,735 numbers of current colonial and foreign newspapers were presented, and 14,633 numbers were purchased by the authorities.

It must not be inferred from this that the British Museum is a convenient place, wherein one may look over the day's papers. London newspapers, for instance, are, generally speaking, available one year after date, though the leading ones are bound as closely up to date as possible. Country newspapers are generally available two years after date.

The museum, be it remarked, is working for posterity, and its prime object in making this collection is not to furnish the public of to-day with newspaper files for purposes of reference, but so to act that the reader of 2004 A.D. may discover what sort of newspaper his great-grandfather read in 1904.

The newspaper room is largely used for purposes of reference by solicitors and others interested in the doings of the last generation or its immediate predecessor.

To Keep Roses Fresh.

Fill the vase or pitcher with very warm water, and as each rose is inserted cut off the tip of the stem with scissors under the water so that no air may reach the freshly cut stem. Do this every morning, leaving the flowers to cool in the same water until the next day, when repeat the process. All hard stemmed flowers can be kept fresh in the same way.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Inventive Genius.

"Women have no originality, no inventive genius."

"Nonsense; I have seen my stenographer make a memorandum with a hatpin on a cake of soap when she had no paper handy."

It is a good thing to remember when accepting favors that the time is liable to come when they will be thrown up to you.

Modesty should be the virtue of those who possess no other.—Lichtenberg.

THE WORK OF NOVICES.

Inventions That Have Worked Wonders in Glassmaking.

In 1827 a carpenter of Sandwich, Mass., wanting a piece of glass of a particular size and shape, conceived the idea that the molten metal could be pressed into any form, much the same as lead might be, writes William R. Stewart in the Cosmopolitan. Up to that time all glassware had been blown either offhand or in a mold, and considerable skill was required, and the process was slow. The glass manufacturers laughed at the carpenter, but he went ahead and built a press, and now the United States is the greatest pressed glassware country in the world.

In 1890 a novice in the plate glass industry, Henry Fleckner of Pittsburg, whose only knowledge of glass had been acquired in a window glass factory, invented an annealing "lehr," the most important single improvement ever introduced in plate glass manufacture. In three hours by the lehr the same work is done which under the old kiln system required three days.

About the same year Philip Argobast of Pittsburg, also a novice in glassmaking, invented a process by which bottles and jars may be made entirely by machinery, the costly blow over process being avoided and the expense of bottle making reduced one-half.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

The Way Two Englishmen Captured Four Hundred Prisoners.

Toward the close of the peninsular war 400 prisoners were captured by John Colborne, afterward Field Marshal Lord Seaton. Colborne, who was wounded at Talavera, had been disabled for some time, but in 1813 he was in active service again, and when Wellington's army crossed the frontier into France he performed what was indeed the most amazing feat of his career.

When riding, with no comrade but the famous Sir Henry Smith, separated from his column, he saw 400 French soldiers passing along a ravine below him. "The only way was to put a good face on the matter," he wrote. "So I went up to them, desiring them to surrender. The officer, thinking, of course, the column was behind me, surrendered his sword, saying theatrically, 'Je vous rends cette epee, qui a bien fait son devoir.' (I surrender this sword, which has done its duty well.) The 400 followed his example." Sir Henry Smith used to declare that he had never seen such cool presence of mind as Colborne displayed on this occasion.

ANCIENT MIRRORS.

The Old Egyptians Made Theirs of Highly Polished Metal.

Wilkinson shows that we are indebted for our mirrors to the ancient Egyptians. At first they were made of metal, so well compounded and polished that some recently dug up from Thebes have regained a wonderful luster after burial for thousands of years. Oval in shape, they were fastened to carved wooden handles. References are made to such looking glasses in Exodus and Job. The Greeks and Romans made similar mirrors of silver.

Pliny says that the earliest glass mirrors were made of black volcanic glass. Through the middle ages glass backed with thin metallic sheets came into use, and "bullseyes," or glass globes into which while hot a metallic mixture was blown for backing.

At Murano, near Venice, in the thirteenth century, the republic protected the trade and jealously guarded its secrets, securing a lucrative business for a century and a half. Mirrors were then made from cylinders of glass flattened on stone, carefully polished, beveled at the edges and silvered by an amalgam.

Ancient Ventriloquism.

Ventriloquism was undoubtedly known both to the Jews and to the Egyptians. It was used by many persons for purposes of deception. The wizards who employed it declared that their "familiar spirit" resided in the abdomen, whence the voice was supposed to proceed. The Old Testament Scriptures abound with denunciations both of persons who had these familiar spirits and of those who went to seek their advice and assistance. They were treated as though they were in familiar intercourse with the evil one and according to Jewish law received no mercy. Instances, however, are very frequent in much later history of deception being successfully practiced by persons having this peculiar gift.

Carlyle's Picture of Rogers.

Carlyle gives this striking picture of Samuel Rogers, the poet: "I saw Rogers awhile ago at dinner with Taylor, a half frozen, old, sardonic Whig gentleman; no hair at all, but one of the whitest bare scalps; blue eyes, shrewd, sad and cruel; toothless, horseshoe mouth drawn up to the very nose; slow, croaking, sarcastic insight, perfect breeding—staterooms where you are welcomed even with flummery; internally a Bluebeard's chamber, where none but the proprietor enters!"

Still One.

"Hello, Bill, old man! Well, well! I haven't seen you since the old days, when we used to run around together!"

"No, Jack. Ah, those old days! What a fool I used to be then!"

"I tell you, I'm glad to see you. You haven't changed a bit, old man."

His Long Wait.

Tommy—Oh, but all great men have smoked. Daisy—My dear boy, if you will only wait until you are great before you smoke I shall not complain.

Not Her Role.

Edith—Why did you refuse him? Ethel—He has a part. Edith—But he can blot it out. Ethel—Perhaps, but he can't use me for a blotter.

NAME OF "THE KNAVE BIBLE."

Some Errors in Early Editions Not All by Accident.

"The British Diamond Bible" was printed in Bristol in 1774 by W. Pine, and published with notes, as a commentary, "to evade the King's printer's monopoly. The notes were spaced off from the foot of the page and cut away when the book was bound. It was a cunning way of evading the law as it then existed and of affording a profit to the publisher.

"The Pearl Bible" was issued in 1658, and the edition, so called on account of the diminutive type was printed in London by John Field, and is noted for its wonderful typographical blunders. Field was an unscrupulous forger, and it is said of him that he received £1,500 from the Independents for corrupting the text of Acts vi., 3, by substituting "ye" for "we," to sanction the right of the people to appoint their own clergy. Among other errors in this version may be mentioned "unrighteousness" for "righteousness" in Romans vi., 13, and in I. Corinthians vi., 9, the text read, "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall inherit the kingdom of God?"

The "Religious Bible" was published in Edinburgh during the year 1627, and the line in Jeremiah iv., 17, which refers to the commonwealth of Judah, instead of "Because she hath been rebellious against me, saith the Lord," was printed, "Because she hath been religious against me."

All Scriptural misprints are not the result of accident. It was the design of a printer's widow in Germany to upset the whole system of domestic economy. A new edition of the Bible was being printed in her house, and one night, when all the workmen were absent, she rose from her bed and proceeded to the printing room, there to tamper with the type and falsify a text that had caused her much trouble. Her better half had, without doubt, given her frequent cause to protest in her heart against that sentence of woman's subjection which is pronounced upon Eve in the third chapter of Genesis. To rescue her sex from its false position, she resolved to alter the relative situations of the parties, and, taking out the first two letters of the word "Herr," cunningly replaced them by "Na." By this means the decree ran: "And he shall be thy (Narr) fool," instead of "he shall be thy (Herr) lord." This substitution, though submitted to in domestic life—as, perhaps, was the case—was not suffered to pass by those who were in authority without punishment, and the widow was burned for heresy.

Even the writers of the Scriptures were not always at their best, for in the thirty-seventh chapter of Isaiah it is written: "Then the angel of the Lord went forth and smote in the camp of the Assyrians a hundred and fourscore and five thousand, and when they arose in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses," which the revised version makes "dead bodies."

Whitaker Wright's Palace.

The palace which the late Whitaker Wright reared him at Lea Park, and the estate on which it stands, are to be put up for auction, by order of Mrs. Wright, the executrix of the dead financier.

This wonderful country retreat cost Whitaker Wright some three-quarters of a million sterling, and on it he lavished all that money could buy or a particular sprightly fancy could suggest.

The estate comprises 1,450 acres of freehold land, as well as 1,350 acres of open heath, part of which is the celebrated tract of Hindhead, including the section of country known as the Devil's Punchbowl. The park is surrounded by a great wall, which cost a small fortune. It is entered by five fine gates with lodges, and is covered with timber.

Three lakes, boathouses, terrace walks, Italian gardens, and beautiful statuary are some of the features of this paradise. Under one of the lakes is built a tea room with a glass top, through which the water can be seen.

The mansion itself, with its great staircase and immense ballroom, its electric light, and stables, is an exquisite building.

Who is going to purchase this extraordinary legacy of the sky-rocket financier? The inquiries are already many, and the offers not a few. Some have come from members of the aristocracy. Perhaps another financier may enter into the wonderful inheritance.

Penniless London.

London, says Mr. Sydney Brooks in a recent magazine article, is very hard up just now. The shopkeepers are complaining that business was never so slack, that people are spending nothing on luxuries, and that they are overwhelmed with demands for extended credit—a woman who pays her dressmaker within twelve months thinks herself a model of punctuality. The same depression is felt by the theatres, restaurants, booksellers, art dealers and business houses. The cause of all this, says Mr. Brooks, is chiefly South Africa. The fiscal issue has probably been a contributive cause, and the Russo-Japanese war has also done much to unsettle things.

Miss Corkran and Whistler.

Miss Corkran, a painter, says of Whistler: "I remember meeting him at a mutual friend's. He enquired how I was getting on with my painting. I told him that Leighton had remarked that I did not finish enough. 'Oh! retorted Whistler, fixing his eyeglas, glaring at me, his white lock erect like a feather. Then, making a queer sound, something between a grunt and a jeer, he remarked: 'You ought to have answered by retorting: "Why did you ever begin?"' It was so quaintly uttered that I laughed. He reminded me then of a picture of Lucifer I had seen."

On Sunday morning Mrs. S. Adams, Sr., met with a painful accident at the residence of her son, Alderman Adams, Robinson street. The trap-door to a cellar stairway, seldom used, was left open and Mrs. Adams entering the room fell down the opening and sustained a fracture of one of the bones of the forearm, besides receiving a generally severe shook to her system. Mrs. Adams is now resting comfortably and will, it is hoped, soon recover from the effects of her mishap.

POPULAR PASTOR BIDS FAREWELL.

Rev. J. Bastow, M. A., Preached His Last Sermon in Murray Street Church.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION

Fellow Ministers Pay a High Tribute to His Worth—Close of a Successful Pastorate.

Yesterday was a day which contained elements of sorrow to the members and adherents of the Murray street Baptist church. The cause of this sorrow was the fact that after having spent five and a half years in faithful service as pastor of that congregation, Rev. J. Bastow, was preaching his farewell sermons, preparatory to leaving Peterborough for Renfrew, where he has accepted the pastorate of the Baptist church.

That the departure of the reverend gentleman from the pastorate of this church was deeply regretted by the members and attendants of the church, was a fact which an observer at yesterday's service would have plainly noticed, and that his departure from town will be regretted by those outside the particular church with which his activities were identified, was evidenced last night, by the fact that two clergymen, members of another communion, the English church, came to Murray street church after their own services, to express to the congregation gathered there, the regret which they and those they represented, felt at Mr. Bastow's approaching departure. Other evidences that his going away will bring a feeling of sorrow to many are not wanting.

Rev. Mr. Bastow during the period of his pastorate at Murray street

church, has made himself particularly beloved not only by those attending that church and becoming associated with him in that way, but by the citizens of the town at large, and Rev. Mr. Davidson when he said that Mr. Bastow had been more than the pastor of the Murray street church, spoke the truth. The church at both preaching services yesterday was filled, and Mr. Bastow was kept busy after each, bidding good-bye to those who had come to respect and love him during his pastorate here.

Last night his text was Acts 20; 32:—"And now brethren, I commend you to God, and to the work of His grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among those which are sanctified."

When Paul wrote these words he had been preaching to the church at Ephesus for three years, the longest period that he had spent in any one church, of which we know. Consequently he felt a great responsibility towards it. During the years that he had served this church he had counselled them wisely and helped them in every way, and the church had exerted a considerable influence.

Before his departure to preach to the Gentiles Paul called the elders of the church to Miletus to review the work of the three years.

The conditions of the departure of Paul from the church at Ephesus were somewhat similar to those at Murray street, said Mr. Bastow, and he hoped his listeners would think the text an applicable one. Paul said that he had preached the whole truth, and kept back nothing. He had not only preached the gospel, but lived it. It is a great thing when the preaching and the life are in harmony. Paul had loved the Christians at Ephesus and felt bound to them by the strongest ties. Very few ministers are as successful as Paul was. Mr. Bastow said that he felt that his ministry here was far short of Paul's, but he could truthfully say that this was the model that he had in his mind.

Paul was sorry to part with the church, but found joy in the fact that while he would not meet them in this life again, he had the hope that he would meet them in the future life.

Farewells have a peculiar pathos of their own; we scarcely know the love we feel for our friends until we come to say good-bye, and the more we think of it, the sadder we become. But it is also an inspiring experience to a Christian. Christians feel that although they part from friends on earth, their union with Christ and fellowship with him cannot be broken.

Mr. Bastow said that no sentence could better express his feelings than that forming the text. There were two striking features of this text. First there was a tender and affectionate spirit breathing through it. He cled them brethren. There are two senses in which that word may be used. In one sense we are all brethren, and children of one father. Nowhere except where the Bible has been do we see this spirit of brotherhood, justice, kindness, patience and material helpfulness, come into play.

Mr. Bastow remarked that during his stay in Peterborough, he had looked upon all with whom he had come into contact as brethren, and he thought that those to whom he spoke would recognise this fact. The second sense in which brotherhood may be applied is that of the Saints. Those who have been born into the kingdom are members of the Divine society, and in them the word brother means more.

Another thing which bound Paul to the Ephesians was the fact that he was their spiritual father, and consequently he loved them as a father. A pastor loves the members of the church to which he ministers, and if he should be their spiritual father it adds another link. He believed that the pastoral relation next to the marriage relation is the closest of any on earth. Paul also felt a deep concern for their future safety. He looked into the future and wondered what would become of them. He foresaw that dangers would beset them, and uttered a warning, which ministers are frequently called upon to do.

There is, however, a place of absolute safety. It is in "God, and the Word of His Grace." The security of a church does not depend upon a pastor because he frequently moves, but it depends upon God, and the speaker said that he would feel no concern for Murray street church if they were only in God's hands. He urged them to cultivate the consciousness of the presence of God. The one final result would be that he would give them an inheritance among those that are sanctified. In this Paul had in mind the giving of the promises but to the Israelites. This inheritance is not to be worked for, but is given to us. The beginnings of this inheritance are seen in this life, but in Heaven we will see it in its perfection. It will be all we can ask or expect, and will be all that we can possibly enjoy. This inheritance is for everyone, and he urged everyone to accept it.

A PRESENTATION.

At the conclusion of the service, Col. Edwards and Dr. Scott ascended the platform and the former stated that at a meeting of the church after the morning service a resolution of appreciation of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Bastow's services was unanimously adopted by a standing vote and it was also decided to present it to him at the evening service. He then read the following address:—

To the Rev. Johnathan Bastow:—

The members of the Murray Street Baptist Church, Peterborough, desire to place on record an expression of their high appreciation of the very valuable services, which have been rendered by you during the period of five and a half years of your pastorate over this church. It has been a period of growth and progress in every branch of church work. During this time the church has grown in membership from 199 to 323, considerably over 200 members having been received, and of these 110 have been received by Baptism.

The Sunday school and all other organizations connected with the church have grown in numbers and in spiritual life and interest. The interest in Missionary work has increased in at least a proportionate rate. You have proved yourself an able minister of the Gospel and a very faithful, active and zealous pastor. You have taken a high place as a citizen in this community and have gained, to a marked degree, the respect and esteem of the people of all the churches of the town. You have ably represented this church in the Association and in the Convention, and have done good service to the Baptist cause in Canada.

The members of this church greatly deplore the loss which they will sustain in the removal of both yourself and Mrs. Bastow from their midst. Mrs. Bastow has, in the Women's Circle, in the Sunday school, in the Mission Band, and in every department of church work, proved herself a true helpmeet to the pastor. In the Sunday school, especially, in which she has filled the position of Assistant Superintendent, she will be greatly missed. Her influence in leading and guiding many boys and girls into the right path, her zealous work, and bright example of Christian activity, have been an inspiration to others, and the position which the school occupies to-day may be largely traced to her influence and efforts.

This church will always hold both you and Mrs. Bastow in affectionate remembrance, and will wish you both many years of blessed service for the Master.

On behalf of the Murray Street Baptist Church we ask you and Mrs. Bastow to kindly accept of this purse, as a slight mark of our esteem and affection for you.

Signed on behalf of the church,

Peterborough, July 31st, 1904.

Mr. Bastow acknowledged the address and presentation in a short speech, in which he thanked the congregation heartily for the kindness shown Mrs. Bastow and himself. He said that the five years and a half that he had spent in Peterborough had been happy ones to him. He loved the work here and the people, and because of this fact his ministrations had been made easier. He was greatly pleased that the young people in the church had stood by him so well, and in this connection he referred to the assistance of Mr. Raddon had rendered in making him acquainted with the young people. Had it not been for his services, Mr. Bastow thought his work would have been much harder. He was gratified with the Sunday School's progress, and was glad to find that the young people did not leave the school when they grew up to a certain age.

Speaking of the other ministers of the town, Mr. Bastow said that his relations with them had been most cordial and he had thoroughly enjoyed his association with them. He had counted the clergymen of the Church of England as his special friends. The general public, too, came in for some complimentary remarks. Mr. Bastow said that they had always been most courteous to him, and he wished to thank them for their kindness. The general tone of morality, too, of the town was a thing which pleased him greatly. The press of the town came in for some praise from Mr. Bastow. He said that he had never been in a town where the press was as fair as that of Peterborough. His stay in Peterborough, he characterized as having been very pleasant, and he left the town with only the kindliest feelings for everyone.

Mrs. Bastow, who was on the platform, addressed the meeting briefly, saying that she appreciated very much the reference to herself in the address. She said she was very happy to have spent the five and a half years with the people of the Murray street church, and she would have been sorry indeed had not those five and a half years come into her life. Her residence in Canada had broadened out her life, and she had learned a great deal of a country of which she had hitherto known but little. She thanked the congregation heartily for their kindness expressed in so many ways, and she felt very much enriched by the times she had spent in Peterborough.

FELLOW MINISTERS' TRIBUTE.

Rev. J. C. Davidson, president of the Ministerial Association, and Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M.A., of St. Luke's church, arrived at the church while the address was being read, and both spoke, paying high tribute to the worth of Mr. Bastow. Mr. Davidson, who spoke first, said that the Ministerial Association wished him to say that the Association had passed a resolution expressing its deepest regret that the town was losing the services of Mr. Bastow. Personally he had been closely associated with him, and he had felt warmly drawn to him. The other members of the Association also have the very highest regard for Mr. Bastow, who was certainly much more than the pastor of Murray street church, and he had given the other churches a higher idea of the communion to which he belonged. The day of narrowness, he said has gone by and a spirit of liberal-mindedness should characterize the churches, in their relation with each other. Although on the other hand, each church should stand up for the truth each seeks to present. There was no time for the churches despoiling one another. They can all work in harmony without yielding one jot or tittle of their heritage.

Peterborough, he said, was a loser by the removal of Mr. Bastow, and he hoped that his successor would be able to fill the place made vacant by his removal.

REV. E. A. LANGFELDT.

Rev. Mr. Langfeldt, who followed, corroborated the words of his predecessor in paying a tribute to Mr. Bastow. He remarked that he had asked for this privilege of saying a few words to the congregation of Murray street church, on the occasion of Mr. Bastow's departure. He said that Mr. Bastow had come to be very dear to his heart, and he wished publicly to thank him for all the kindnesses he had shown him. He was not there for sentimentality, but felt that it was a duty and a pleasure to add his tribute to that of Mr. Davidson. The people of St. Luke's feel that they have a very warm friend in Mr. Bastow. In these times we need men who will stand firm for the faith against sin. In this he had found Mr. Bastow a true defender of the faith, and he was perfectly conscious that wherever he goes he will be a helper. He felt sure that he would succeed in his new field of work in Renfrew, and he would carry with him the very best wishes of the citizens of Peterborough.

The meeting was brought to a close by the congregation singing "Blest be the Tie that Binds," and "There's a Land that is Fairer than Day."

Mr. Bastow was at the door of the church after the service and shook hands with his many friends.

He will leave on Saturday for Renfrew, where he has accepted the pastorate of the Baptist church.

See T. Hurley on Monday and buy some of the properties he is advertising. Call early as he has to return to Toronto.

MORE HONOURS FOR THE 57TH REGIMENT

Wins First Prize in Shooting Competition of Dominion Rifle League.

Major Winters Made the Announcement Yesterday

Yesterday at the Drill Hall after the church parade, Major Winters, Adjutant in the Foot Guards, and secretary of the Dominion Rifle League made the pleasing announcement that the local regiment had won the first prize in the rifle competition which has been conducted in all the regiments throughout the country, the shooting taking place on the local regiment's own range.

In this competition Peterborough lead with the 13th, of Hamilton closely following. The Royal Grenadiers, of Toronto, and the Vancouver Rockey Mountain Rifles, of British Columbia, were also well up in the average.

It is certainly a matter for congratulations that the 57th Regiment can produce marksmen surpassing in ability to those of such old regiments as are mentioned above.

PRESENTATION TO MR. R. A. ANSON

Who is Severing His Connection With C. G. E Works.

Saturday there was a gathering of men from the C. G. E. Co. of town, met to bid farewell to a fellow employee who was severing his connection with local interests.

The chair was taken by Mr. M. Mowry who called Mr. R. A. Anson forward, and briefly communicated to him the object of the meeting and conveyed to him the feeling of the men of the works. Mr. Anson has been for some years foreman in the machine shop, and has won for himself the regard of the men and the esteem of his employers, and these things were pointed out by the chairman, who also added hearty wishes for his success in the future. Mr. Anson goes to England for a holiday and to look up old associations and returns to take up work further west.

The following address was read by Mr. W. A. Patterson, and the presentation of a Masonic keystone pendant and gentleman's shaving outfit was made by Mr. R. Shephard, each of these gentlemen making a few suitable remarks.

To Robert Anson, Esq.

Esteemed Friend,—Once more we are called upon to bid farewell to one who has come into our midst and been accepted in our heart of friendship. He came, he saw, he conquered. Now he leaves us and sad are the hearts that are left behind.

Robert Anson, we are bidding farewell to you, a comrade-at-arms in the field of labour, understanding that you visit your motherland and again return to Canada, but not to us.

We all appreciate the many acts of kindness shown by you while foreman with the Canadian General Electric Company, and on this eve of your departure we ask you to accept this memento as a token of our regard and a remembrance of the friends you leave behind.

Farewell, and may your future be bright and prosperous.

Signed S. DRURY,
J. WILSON,
R. H. SHEPHERD,
F. E. DERRICK,
M. MOWRY.

Mr. Anson replied in suitable terms, and referred to pleasant relations at all times existing between himself and the men in the department, and which he ascribed largely to the good sense and loyalty of the men.

During the evening songs were sung by Mr. R. Shepherd, Mr. M. Anson, Mr. Bert Turner, and a recitation was given by Mr. E. Desautel. The meeting broke up with cheers and congratulations for Mr. Anson, and hopes for a pleasant trip.

Off for Midland.

Messrs. J. Titterson and J. H. Simmons, members of the Maccabees' Civic Holiday Excursion Committee, who were selected to go over the route to make special arrangements for the accommodation of their party, left on the G.T.R. this morning on their advance trip. PETERBOROUGH'S WELCOME TO THE VISITING SOLDIERS

Governor-General's Foot Guards Being Entertained by 57th.

THE CHURCH SERVICES

Two Hundred and Fifty of Ottawa's Crack Regiment Here—Yesterday's Band Concert—To-day's Programme.

Peterborough is proud to do itself the honour of entertaining for two days one of the best regiments in the Canadian Militia.

Yesterday and to-day have been given over to our military visitors, and their entertainment is the first thought of the portion of the citizens who are identified with military affairs.

Nor is this duty an unpleasant one, for the Foot Guards, in this visit, have well sustained for the regiment the good reputation made on the occasion of a former visit, thirteen years ago, and to those who participated in that visit, either as entertainer or entertained, very pleasant memories are revived by this visit.

The Governor-General's Foot-Guards constitute one of the smartest regiments in the whole Canadian service, and that they have decided to visit Peterborough again, is a matter which brings pleasure to its citizens, who will welcome them gladly.

Yesterday morning about five o'clock, a special C.P.R. train, bearing the members of the regiment, pulled into the C.P.R. station from Ottawa, the home of the regiment. The men were allowed another hour in which to sleep, when upon the arrival of the deputation from the 57th Regiment, appointed to welcome them, they detrained and marched to their camping grounds on the T.A. S. park, where preparations had been made for them on Saturday.

The officers of the 57th were represented by Lt.-Col. Miller, commanding officer, Major Stevenson, and Lt. Smith, while the Non. Com. officers and band were also represented.

Col. Miller, on behalf of the regiment, extended to Lt.-Col. Roper, commanding officers of the Foot Guards, a warm welcome to Peterborough. Upon arrival at the camping grounds the men were dismissed, and took breakfast in the different hotels in town.

Both regiments attended divine service yesterday morning. At 10.15 they met at the drill hall, and after about half an hour formed up, marching down George street, headed by Lt.-Col. Edwards, late commanding officer of the 57th, followed by a squad of the service corps. The band of the Foot Guards, 35 strong, was next, followed by the Protestant section of that regiment and of the 57th. These turned east on Hunter to St. John's church.

The second section, commanded by Major Hayes, and headed by the band of the 57th, went west on Hunter to St. Peter's cathedral. Both churches were crowded to the doors, and in each an appropriate sermon was preached.

AT ST. JOHN'S.

The larger party attended St. John's church, and the members of the two regiments almost filled the church. The service here was considerably shortened on account of the extreme heat and the lateness of the hour at which the regiments arrived.

The lesson was read by Lt.-Col. Miller and was taken from I Kings. It recounted the healing of Naaman, the captain of the Syrian host, of leprosy, by Elijah.

It was on this incident that Rev. J. C. Davidson, chaplain of the 57th Regiment, preached his sermon.

Prefacing his sermon, he remarked that his commanding officer, Lieut.-Colonel Miller, had directed him to extend to the Commanding Officer, Lt.-Col. Roper, his fellow officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Governor-General's Foot-Guards, a warm welcome to the town of Peterborough. This welcome, he added, is one in which the citizens of the town will also join heartily. "Men of the Governor-General's Foot-Guards," said the chaplain, with a hearty ring in his voice," we particularly wish you to enjoy your visit to Peterborough. The town is yours, in so far as we can give it."

Mr. Davidson then went on to speak of the healing of Naaman, who he said, quoting the description given of him in the Scripture narrative, was "a mighty man of valour and great with his master, but he was a leper."

The ambition to be great is a healthy one, and one which to some extent, and to some degree, may be realized by every man. To ordinary persons, he said, the home circle, business life, work in the world, the State, and most of all, the Militia, offer opportunities for advancement and the realization of greatness.

But, said the reverend gentleman you must take the right path, if you would be great. A man must not be self-assertive, but must be prepared to yield to duly constituted authority. He said that he admired the military and army service for providing opportunities for this training. Speaking of the military service he said that the private deserved great praise, for it was from them that the real work came. He also paid a high tribute to the work of the non-commissioned officers. They stand between the commanding officer and the rank and file, and through them the commander touches the men. True greatness, he continued, may be obtained, just where we stand. "Who," asked the speaker, "is the soldier, whose name since last Monday, has been on the lips of every Canadian? It is Private Samuel Perry, who won the King's prize, the emblem of highest marksmanship in the Empire. He won distinction as a private."

Continuing the narrative of Naaman, he said that he was an honourable man. Every true heart respects an honourable man. Commercial prosperity may be achieved by sharp practices, but greatness never is. There is a way to greatness, but it is by the old way of square dealing.

Naaman was also a mighty man of valour. This is the soldier's first qualification, and everyone needs it. We will need courage to meet the difficulties which exceptional circumstances will bring to us. We should cultivate a spirit of heroism and self-sacrifice.

Naaman was a great man but he had one disfigurement—he was a leper. This fact might not have been known to those surrounding him, but he knew that some day the disease would spread so that his condition would be known to those around him. In the heathen countries, leprosy was not considered as giving sufficient cause for separation from one's fellows, while among the Israelites it was, and one who was afflicted with the disease was considered unclean. Making a personal application, he asked, "How many 'buts' are there in your life?" He said that while there might be things in the lives of those listening to him that were wrong, they might get rid of them if they wished. There is a Fountain open for this purpose for sin and uncleanness. It will take some persistency to do this, and he counselled all present to exercise this quality, and give themselves to God, and fight the good fight, and aspire not only to be great, but also to be good.

After the service the parts of the regiments attending St. John's marched to the drill hall by Hunter and George, at which corner the St. Peter's section was in waiting, and both marched to the drill hall and were dismissed.

AT ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

The Roman Catholic members of the Foot Guards, with the 57th and bugle bands, attended divine service at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, and heard an excellent sermon by Rev. Father Bader, of the Redemptorist Fathers, Saratoga, New York. There was a very large congregation present. Mass was sung by Rev. Dr. O'Brien.

One of the most edifying sights in the house of God, began the speaker, is to see a number of men in the presence of God, to show Him due homage, and to worship His holy name. It is our privilege this morning to see brave men, who have shown courage, and have made sacrifices to be on the alert to defend our country, and we are pleased to welcome them to our church service. But it is not sufficient that you put on the uniform of a soldier, you need the quality of a brave heart, and I assume this a part of your make-up, because of your presence in the house of God. The man who acknowledges his God can alone be brave of heart, a true soldier and a defender of his country. If you neglect this sacred duty to be true to your God, you will of a certainty neglect other less important duties to your earthly leaders.

You came here this morning because of the faith that is in you. Almighty God commands that "Thou shalt keep holy the Sabbath Day," and you are acknowledging this commandment by being present. The motive which actuates you giving homage to Him is the faith within you. I exhort you to be men, not only endeavouring to defend your country, but to defend your faith. There is a difference between believing and understanding. The Catholic faith is the acknowledgment of the revelation which God has made to us, knowing it to be true, not because it is understood, but because he has revealed it. That is an act of faith. Every day in our business, whatever it may be, we are required to make acts of faith, and we should be much more willing to acknowledge acts of faith in what God has revealed us in temporal matters. When we have the authority of God it must be true and we need not understand His truths to believe them. In short, Catholic faith means that you believe all that you are required to believe, knowing that God cannot deceive.

You should have a practical faith, continued the reverend gentleman, and a belief which is not oscillating. It should be a universal faith, touching all which God has revealed, and our Holy church teaches. Our faith should be purchased in our daily life, not being Catholics simply for a time on Sunday, but be Catholic men in business, in work, in relation to our fellowmen, in practising Christian charity always being honest, just, observing the commandments of God, and in all thinking, speaking or acting we should ask ourselves whether we are pleasing God.

As soldiers be faithful above all to your God and show that though soldier boys, you are good practical Catholics. As Catholics you make sacrifice to be faithful to your religion, and as soldiers you make sacrifice to be faithful to your country. To be soldiers you must be brave and may you always exercise this bravery in regard to your religion. No soldier could be braver on the field of battle than the Catholic who prepares his heart to meet his God before entering the conflict and he has no fear at the thought of death. In closing, let me exhort you to be good practical Catholics and good loyal soldier boys.

The sermon was a practical and forceful discourse and very appropriate to the occasion.

The weather during the early part of the afternoon was anything but promising, and a heavy shower of rain fell. It cleared, however later in the day, and the sacred concert rendered by the Foot Guards Band in Victoria Park, was attended by an immense crowd of people, who thoroughly enjoyed the excellent programme given by the band under the leadership of Bandmaster Brown.

THE BAND CONCERT.

Despite the threatening weather, several hundred people gathered in Victoria Park yesterday afternoon to hear the sacred concert by the Foot Guards Band. The band is one of the finest Canadian organizations which has ever visited Peterborough, and their programme was one greatly enjoyed by the large audience. The instrumentation of the band is excellent, the reeds being especially fine, while the brass is soft and sweet, lacking that objectionable "brassy" tone so prominent in many bands. The shading and expression were well marked in each number. The two opening numbers were of a patriotic nature, the first being a medley of several old English songs, and the second including "The Red, White and Blue," and "Rule Britannia," which was played with inspiring effect, and brought forth loud applause. The well known overture, "Poet and Peasant," was delightfully rendered. The exquisite harmonies were shown forth to the best advantage. An arrangement of a number of hymns was a very fine number, giving ample opportunity to display the splendid qualities of the different parts of the band. "The Holy City," with cornet solo, was one of the most enjoyable numbers on the programme. The last two numbers were played with the same dash and brilliancy, combined with artistic movements for effect, which marked the previous numbers. The whole programme was a delightful one, and the strains of the National Anthem came far too quickly for the majority of the music lovers.

Yesterday evening the officers of both regiments took tea at Major Halliday's home.

This morning the steamer City of Peterborough was placed at the disposal of the visiting soldiers, and made a trip over the Lift Lock, carrying the greater part of the members of the Guards, all of whom were greatly pleased with the trip, and expressed surprise at the stupendous nature of the work.

This afternoon the non-commissioned officers of both regiments will take a trip down the river, while the officers will be entertained similarly by the officers of the 57th, and tea will be served at the Golf Club House, after which at 6.30, the officers will hold a banquet at the mess rooms at the drill shed, and the visitors will leave for home at 9 o'clock to-night.

OLDEST CLOCK IN ENGLAND.

Erected in 1220 and One of the Towers of Peterborough Cathedral.

Peterborough cathedral has the oldest working clock in England. It was erected about 1220 and is probably the work of a monastic clockmaker. It is the only one now known that is wound up over an old wooden wheel. This wheel is about twelve feet in circumference, and the galvanized cable, about 300 feet in length, supports a leaden weight of three hundredweight, which has to be wound up daily.

The clock is said to be of much more primitive construction than that made by Henry de Nick for Charles V. of France in 1370. The clock chamber is in the northwest tower, some 120 feet high, where the sunlight has not penetrated for hundreds of years, and the winding is done by the light of a candle.

The gong is the great tenor bell of the cathedral, which weighs thirty-two hundredweight, and it is struck hourly by an eighty pound hammer. The going and the striking parts of the clock are some yards apart, communication being by a slender wire. The clock has no dial. The time is shown on the main wheel of the escapement, which goes round once in two hours.—London Chronicle.

THE TOWER OF HUNGER.

A Famous Prison of Pisa Long Since Destroyed.

"The Tower of Hunger" was a name given to the tower of Gualandi, in Pisa, celebrated because of the reference made to it in Dante's "Inferno."

Ugolino, count of Gherardesca (1220-89), was the head of a leading Ghibelline family in Pisa. Deserting the Ghibellines, he went over to the Guelphs. Afterward he returned to his own side and joined that uncompromising faction which regarded Archbishop Ruggieri as their head, until dissensions arose between him and them after he had killed the archbishop's nephew in a quarrel.

In the summer of 1288 Ugolino was seized by the Ghibellines and sent a prisoner to the tower of Gualandi, with his two sons and two grandsons. Here they were kept till March, 1289, when the door of the tower was fastened, the keys thrown into the Arno and the prisoners left to die of starvation. The tower, which was ever after known as the "Tower of Hunger," was in ruins at the end of the fifteenth century and was finally destroyed in 1655.

AFRICA.

The Way That Name Was Bestowed Upon the Continent.

The name Africa was given by the Roman conquerors, after the third Punic war, B. C. 146, to the province which they formed to cover the territory of Carthage. It was most probably adopted from the word "Afrygah," the Carthagenian term for a colony.

This original Africa was limited in extent. Its borders reached, according to Pliny, from the River Tusca on the west, which divided it from Numidia, to the bottom of the Syrtis Minor on the southeast, though Ptolemy carries it as far east as the bottom of the Great Syrtis, making it include Numidia and Tripolitana.

In later days the whole African continent took its name from this part, which in its narrower limits corresponded with the modern regency of Tunis and was called by the Greeks Lybia. Africus, the stormy southwest wind, was so called in Italy because it blew from Africa.

Implements of Warfare.

There is a story of a privateer's crew of forty to fifty men capturing a Turkish galley with 500 seamen and soldiers on board by means of a swarm of bees judiciously thrown among the unspeakable ones. However this may be, there are enough authentic instances of strange methods of attack to provide amply sufficient material for the casuist in deciding what is fair and what unfair in war. Burning naphtha, boiling lead, birds, carcases of men and horses, Chinese stinkpots, besides the implements already mentioned, have all been used for offensive or defensive purposes in actual warfare.

Frank of the Lightning.

In 1844 a fishing smack off one of the Shetland isles was struck by lightning during a fierce storm. The bolt first struck the mast, which it splintered completely. It then passed to a watch in the pocket of a man sitting close to the mast and completely melted it. The man not only was uninjured, but he did not know what had taken place till he took his watch from his pocket and found it fused into a mass.

Windmills.

"I never knew till now why this was such a windy country," said the bright little girl traveling through Illinois.

"And have you discovered why?" asked her father.

"Of course. See all the windmills on these farms we're passing."

His Method.

Mrs. Newpop—Why don't you stop whipping the child? You make it holler. Mr. Newpop—I'm licking it to make it stop hollering.

Cause For Sorrow.

Brown—Croker's down with brain fever. The doctor says if he recovers his mind will be a blank. Green—I'm sorry to hear that. He owes me $10.

That they are sinners few are willing to deny; that they are sinning few are ready to admit.

A LESSON IN ASTRONOMY.

You Can Study It and Perform a Trick at the Same Time.

With an eggshell and a breakfast plate our boys and girls can perform a little trick that will interest and instruct at the same time.

The next time you eat a boiled egg moisten the rim—not merely the edge, but all the raised part—of your plate and place the empty eggshell on the wet surface.

The shell should be broken off evenly all around so as to form a little cup.

Now, if you hold the plate up and tip it slightly, the egg will not merely slide but spin along the rim, and by continually altering the inclination angle of the plate you can make the shell spin all the way around it. I do not mean that it will spin rapidly like a top, but that as it goes around the plate it also revolves slowly about its own axis in the same direction.

Now this, you know, is just what the earth does in traveling around the sun, so here you have an easy and pretty lesson in astronomy at the breakfast table.

It is not exactly nice to muss with one's food, but in this case it may be allowable to make a daub of egg yolk in the center of the plate, with rays streaming out all around to represent the sun.—New York Mail.

THE HORSESHOE.

How a Peasant Taught His Little Boy a Good Lesson.

A peasant was going on a journey with his son Thomas. "Look," said the father, on the way, "there is a horseshoe lying in the road; pick it up and put it in your pocket."

"Oh!" said Thomas, "it is not worth the trouble of stooping down."

The father picked up the iron without saying anything more and put it into his pocket. In the next village he sold it to the smith for a few farthings and bought some cherries with the money. They both traveled on. The sun was shining very fiercely; far and wide there was no house, no tree, no spring to be seen, and Thomas was almost fainting with thirst.

His father now let drop—as if by accident—a cherry. Thomas picked it up as eagerly as if it were gold and put it directly into his mouth. After awhile his father let another cherry fall, and Thomas stooped down as eagerly for that. In this way from time to time his father let him pick up all the cherries, and when Thomas had devoured the last, he turned round to him laughing and said, "See, now, if you had been willing to stoop down only once for the horseshoe, you need not have stooped down so many times for the cherries."—From German of C. von Schmid.

A Robin's Queer Home.

Although any member of the bird tribe is apt to do this, the robin is the most frequent violator of the laws of bird propriety. A robin if it followed the laws laid down for it by nature would build in some shallow hole or depression in a grassy knoll. Some are content to do this, others are not.

For example, one robin chose an old tin kettle that was lying on one side under a hedge. This was in full view of the passers by and in constant danger from marauding cats and dogs. But it was waterproof and extremely convenient, so the robin chose it in saucy defiance of inquisitive visitors. Another robin chose a still stranger nesting place, and where do you suppose? In church!

The Smallest Church.

Until very recently the little church in the village of St. Lawrence, on the Isle of Wight, was the smallest church in existence. It was built nearly 900 years ago and was probably at first only used as the private chapel of some wealthy family. It was twenty-five feet long, seven feet high and eleven feet broad. It held only twelve people. Not long ago it was slightly enlarged and is no longer the very smallest church, although it is still quite small.

Reminding the Hen.

"It's well I ran into the garden,"
Said Eddie, his face all aglow,
"For what do you think, mamma, happened?
You never will guess it, I know.
The little brown hen was there clucking;
'Cut-cut!' she'd say, quick as a wink,
Then 'Cut-out!' again, only slower,
And then she would stop short and think.

"And then she would say it all over—
She did look so mad and so vexed,
For, mamma, do you know, she'd forgotten
The word that she ought to cluck next!
So I said, 'Ca-daw-cut, ca-daw-cut!'
As loud and as strong as I could.
And she looked round at me very thankful.
I tell you, it made her feel good.

"Then she clapped and said 'Cut-cut-ca-daw-cut!'
She remembered just how it went then.
But it's well I ran into the garden—
She might never have clucked right again!"

OIL ON THE WATER.

Its Soothing Effect Was Known as Early as the Sixth Century.

A few gallons of oil cast upon stormy seas moderates their violence and prevents the waves from breaking with force. That this is the case has long been known. Theophylactes, the Byzantine historian of the sixth century, propounded the question, "Why does oil calm the sea?" and answered it to the effect that as the wind is a subtle and delicate thing and oil is adhesive and unctuous the wind glides over the surface of the water on which oil has been spread and cannot raise waves. The wind, in fact, slips over the water without being able to obtain a grip.

In the gulf of Mexico there is a remarkable stretch of water about two miles long by three-quarters of a mile broad to which the name of "oil spot" has been given because in the worst of storms the mariner finds still water there.

Its character as a safe harbor of refuge is said to be due to an oily property of the mud stirred up by the storm.

Peru's Whistling Jars.

Among the ruined cities of Peru nearly fifty different kinds of musical instruments have been found. Unique among these are many double whistling jars or musical water bottles. Near the top of the first or front jar, which is usually surmounted by a human or animal figure, is the opening of the whistle. When the jars have been partly filled and are swung backward and forward a number of whistling sounds are produced. As the vessel swings forward and upward the water is lowered in the first jar and rises in the other. In the backward motion it rushes back into the first, forcing the air out through the whistle.

Customs In Mongolia.

Tea, with an admixture of salt and mutton grease, is the common beverage in Mongolia. It is not recommendable. Snuff taking is universal, and the offer of the snuff bottle is the general method of greeting. Mongols appear to seclude their women in some measure, at least, from strangers, and a traveler's arrival is usually the signal for a hasty departure of the ladies of the family for the tents of their next neighbors.

The Whole Story.

Robert—Has your wife much curiosity? Richard—Oh, an awful lot. If I began to tell her what you told me standing on this corner she wouldn't hear a word of what you said until I told her what corner we were standing on.

COMFORT IN DRESS.

Tight Clothes Are a Mistake and Are Not Essential to Style.

A woman who is healthy and happy (and the terms are synonymous) does not wear her clothing uncomfortably tight. She has grown wiser. Women's clothing is cumbersome enough at best, but when vanity and a mistaken sense of style prompts the wearing of tight shoes which distort the feet, high collars which beget throat troubles and cause the face to flush and darken, and tight corsets, then the woman of civilization is but a step removed from the women of China, who hobble on maimed feet. Many women have an idea that comfort and untidy looseness of attire, coupled with lack of style, go hand in hand, and are victims of "nerves" in consequence. How this wrong idea still obtains it is hard to imagine, in view of the fact that perfect cut and fit have made the loose outer garment and shirt waist artistic and a pronounced success for years past. If all women would apply this knowledge in the selection or making of other garments all might be as comfortable as men, who scorn a garment if it pinches. If the corset is properly fitted and loose enough for perfect comfort, and shoes, belt, etc., fitted on the same principle, woman's health would be much better than it is. An hour a day spent in exercise will not undo the work of ten or twelve hours of improper living, hence the absurdity of women trying to obtain better health by exercise and gymnastics when they go from such exercise directly into the mistake of tight fitted clothes.

RULES FOR THE HOME.

Ten Commandments That the Wise Housewife Will Follow.

1. Make your household one harmonious whole, no matter how small the scale.

2. Use only what you can comfortably afford in good quality and ample quantity.

3. Let your home appear bright and sunny. It is not easy to be unpleasant in a cheerful room.

4. Treat you servants wisely and kindly, and it will be impossible for them to either impose or oppose.

5. Have time for everything and be never in a hurry.

6. A certain formality is necessary to save everyday life from triviality and freedom from looseness.

7. Do not forget that "society" is the death of home life, hospitality its flower.

8. Know how to talk and how to listen, how to entertain and how to amuse.

9. Have many interests and no studies.

10. Do not forget your home should not only be a well conducted dormitory and boarding place, but truly a home, the center and focus of all interest, pleasure and happiness for everybody connected with it.—Harper's Bazar.

ECZEMA ON LEG FOR TEN YEARS.

Would Scratch Till the Blood Flowed—Entirely Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. Hiram Frey, Norwood, Ont., states:—"I was troubled for ten years with eczema on one leg. The itching was terrible, and when scratched the blood would come. The doctors could not cure me. Fortunately I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and its persistent use has completely cured me. There is now no trace of the disease left.

My little girl two years old, has also been cured of Eczema by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Her face was a mass of sores and we had to bandage her hands to keep her from scratching it. To-day her face is clear of even the scars which the ugly sores made, and she is thoroughly cured. I am glad of an opportunity to let people know what a blessing Dr. Chase's Ointment has proved itself to be."

WATERLOO ANECDOTES

REMINISCENCES OF FAMOUS WELLINGTON-NAPOLEON BATTLE.

"A Slight Difference of Opinion"—An Old Guardsman's Reply: "We Know Our Duty"—Young Heroes—His Third Sword—Trick That Failed—Gap Filled—Two-Fold Gallantry—Noble Duke—Divine Thanks.

This famous battle was fought on June 18, 1815, in Belgium, when the Duke of Wellington, with 67,500 men and 156 cannon, defeated Napoleon Bonaparte, who had 72,000 men and 246 cannon. Only 24,000 of the troops under Wellington were British, the others being Germans and Belgians.

Difference of Opinion.

When the battle was beginning by a French attack on Hougomont on the right, the Rifles watched the scene from their post in the centre. While the officers stood in front of their men, General Sir James Kempt rode up and said: "Now, gentlemen, here you are, as usual, congregated together talking." An officer, named Stillwell, replied: "Oh, yes, Sir James. We were just observing that there appeared to be a slight difference of opinion down yonder," pointing to the fierce fighting at Hougomont!

Guardsman's Reply.

A striking incident occurred when the British troops were awaiting the French onslaught. An aide-de-camp from Wellington galloping up with some orders for the commanding officer of the Guards, and as he was returning along the front of the line, he cautioned the men to reserve their fire till the enemy were within a short distance. "Never mind us," replied a veteran soldier; "Never mind us, sir. We know our duty!" The aide-de-camp then knew that the men were in the right trim, and he smiled pleasantly as he hurried away.

Young Heroes.

One extraordinary fact about the British soldiers opposing the French veterans was the extreme youthfulness of the majority. There were hundreds of raw lads, drafted from the militia, who had never been under fire before. The 14th Foot, for instance, now the West Yorkshire Regiment, had 14 officers and 300 men under twenty years of age! When a certain General Mackenzie inspected them at Brussels a few days before the battle, he gasped with astonishment. "Well," he said, "I never saw such a set of boys, both officers and men!" Yet these same boys hurled back Napoleon's veterans time after time, and at last drove them off the gory field.

His Third Sword.

In the course of the heavy cavalry charge, when two French eagles were captured, scores of the British distinguished themselves by feats of personal strength and valor. "You are uncommonly savage to-day," said an officer to a friend, a young man of rank, who was arming himself with a third sabre after two had been broken in his grasp. "What would you have me do?" asked the other, by nature one of the most gentle and humane of men; "we are here to kill the French, and he is the best man to-day who can kill most of them!" He then threw himself into the midst of the combat.

Trick That Failed.

When the French cavalry found they could not break the firm British squares by charging they tried trickery. Two regiments were brigaded together under Sir Colin Halket, and to no square did the French pay more frequent visits, without, however, shaking them for a moment. At last, foiled in his charges, the French commanding officer lowered his sword, and several of the British soldiers called out, "Sir, they surrender!" But Sir Colin saw through the simple design at once, and he promptly answered, "Be firm, and fire!" The order was speedily obeyed, and the French were sent to the right about, a laugh of derision ringing in their ears.

Gap Filled.

The various British squares suffered terribly from the French artillery, and some of the balls killed six or eight men at once. The 73rd Foot, now the 2nd Black Watch, had only 50 unwounded men left out of over 500 at the close of the battle. Once, and only once, during the dreadful carnage did they hesitate to fill up a gap which the relentless iron hail had torn in their square. Their colonel, William C. Harris (afterwards Lord Harris) at once pushed his horse lengthwise across the space, saying, with a smile, "Well, my lads, if you won't, I must!" The soldiers immediately led the horse back into the square, and the ranks closed up.

Two-fold Gallantry.

In one of the French assaults a characteristically British incident took place. Some skirmishers of the 14th Foot fired on the enemy's Cuirassiers, and one of the latter was thrown from his horse. A comrade nobly returned and offered him the help of his stirrup. A light infantryman of the 14th Foot levelled his musket, and was about to fire, when Sergt. Samuel Goddard, of the same regiment, stopped him saying, "No, Whitney; don't fire. Let him off; he is a noble fellow!" The two Frenchmen thus got away. The gallant sergeant afterwards became a captain and a Military Knight at Windsor.

Noble Duke.

An instance of Wellington's magnanimity at Waterloo may be mentioned. The French artillerymen often fired at the Duke and his staff, with the result that at the end of the battle everyone of the latter had been either killed or wounded. A British artillery officer, thinking it only fair to take reprisals on the French, went to Wellington, and, saying he had a distinct view of Napoleon and his staff, asked permission to fire. His Grace instantly and emphatically exclaimed, "No, no! I'll not allow it. It is not the business of commanders to be firing upon each other."

Divine Thanks.

After the victory the Duke, on getting back to his quarters, ate hastily and heartily, and, when he had finished his meal, he held up both hands in an imploring attitude and said, "The hand of Almighty God has been upon me this day!" He had, indeed, experienced some narrow escapes. Many officers at his side were killed by the enemy's balls, yet the Duke himself was untouched. One of these officers, Sir William De Lancey, when mortally wounded at the Duke's side, gasped out to those who came to his assistance, "Leave me to die; attend to the Duke!"

Narrow Chests.

The old theory that consumption was inherited is utterly discredited by modern medical science. The germs of consumption must be received from without. These germs are every where. They are constantly being received and cast out by the healthy system. It is the narrow chested whose inheritance is weakness who fall a prey to consumption because they are too weak of lung to resist and throw off disease.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes weak lungs strong. It cures obstinate deep-seated coughs, bleeding lungs, weakness, emaciation and other conditions which if neglected or unskilfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption.

$3,000 FORFEIT will be paid by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y., if they cannot show the original signature of the individual volunteering the testimonial below, and also of the writers of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing, thus proving their genuineness.

"In the spring of 1900 I was taken with hemorrhage of the lungs, and became very weak and short of breath, lost flesh and had no appetite," writes Mr. E. L. Robinett, of Kerens, Texas. "I was persuaded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The first few bottles seemed to do me but little good. Thought I would soon be a victim of that dreaded disease, consumption. Had almost given up in despair when my friends persuaded me to give your 'Golden Medical Discovery' a fair trial. I commenced its use. I weigh 160 pounds now, and when I commenced I only weighed 140 pounds. If any one doubts this statement I will be pleased to answer any inquiry."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." Nothing is "just as good." Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from impurities.

HIDE AND SEEK.

A Serious Game That Results in Queer Findings of Things Lost.

Mr. Harold Macfarlane gives curious instances of what he calls "The Serious Game of Hide and Seek" in Good Words. In 1894, a married lady lost her wedding ring at Choppington Colliery, and three years later it was found in the inside of a potato being prepared for the family dinner by the daughter of the loser. A Glasgow lady lost her wedding ring at the Isle of Arran. Twelve months later, on a succeeding visit to the place, a farm servant engaged in crushing boiled potatoes for the pigs discovered inside one of the tubers the identical ring that had been lost. A son of the master of the Holderness hounds lost his watch while hunting in a turnip field. It was found months later in the same field, which had in the interval been plowed, harrowed and sown. An ancient silver watch was found last February imbedded in ice in a skating pond near Huntingdon. A Glasgow lady lost a valuable diamond in a shop. A couple of months later the diamond was found imbedded in the solid leather heel of her daughter's boot, who had accompanied her in the shop. It had been worn on all sorts of roads without being injured. A Clapham gentleman lost a diamond valued at $65 when out driving. Eight weeks later the coachman of a local doctor found it imbedded in a patch of mud which had been thrown up by the action of the carriage in driving. A snake ring dropped by a lady when feeding swans in a pond was found seven years later by a little boy testing the depth of the pond with a walking-stick, and bringing up the ring with the end of his instrument. A lady dropped a diamond brooch valued at several hundreds of pounds over the side of a yacht in Dover Harbor. It was returned to her a few days later by a sailor, who, when dredging brought up the ornament from the bed of the sea.

Alake Visits Burdett-Coutts.

The Westminster Gazette says the Alake of Abeokuta, at present in England as the guest of the British Government, having expressed a wish to pay his respects to the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, was received by her Ladyship at Stratton street one afternoon recently. The interview was of a most interesting character. Arrayed in the gorgeous robes and ornaments now familiar to many Londoners, the Alake and his suite saluted the aged Baroness by kneeling according to their native custom. The Alake then stated that one of his first desires on visiting England had been to see the Baroness, in order to thank her for a great boon she had conferred on his country in his father's time. He reminded her that over forty years ago she had sent out to his father the two first cotton gins seen in Abeokuta, and that on that small beginning the chief industry of his country was founded. The Baroness recounted the terrible incidents of the great Lancashire cotton famine, and said that the Alake's reminiscence cast at least one ray of light on those painful memories; and that she was much touched by receiving such a graceful tribute from a far distant land in her ninetieth year.

The Alake replied with much feeling that he was glad that she had lived to hear from his lips what she had done for his father and his country. The interview lasted half an hour, and on its conclusion the Alake was shown through the principle rooms. He was greatly interested in the portrait of Sir Francis Burdett, the history of his championship of popular rights, and the fact that he was the last State prisoner in the Town.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Too many eggs will make waffles tough instead of tender.

A custard pie will bake a nice even brown if a little sugar is sprinkled on the top before putting in the oven.

If you happen to get a cake too stiff, don't add milk. Beat up an egg and add it gradually until the desired consistency is obtained.

The white of an egg added to cream will not alter the flavor, though increasing the quantity, and will cause it to whip to a froth more readily.

To obtain a drop or two of onion juice for seasoning cut the onion across the grain and, holding it firmly, draw a sharp edged spoon across the cut edge, holding the spoon so as to catch the juice.

A custard or gelatin preparation containing eggs should always be strained after adding the eggs in order to remove the "spiral spring" that holds the white and yolk together and that does not "beat up" with the rest of the egg.

Blankets and Woolens.

The old fashioned soft soap of our grandmother's day is still the best thing to wash blankets and woolen garments. Allow a tablespoonful of the soap and one of liquid ammonia to each gallon of washing water, which should be just hot enough to bear one's hand in. Let the blankets soak fifteen or twenty minutes in this mixture. Wring out and repeat the operation in a similar lot of suds. Rinse in clear water of the same temperature, and hang in a nice airy place to dry, out of doors if possible. In washing eiderdowns, be particular to shake them frequently during the drying process to prevent them from thickening. It is less expensive to wash such articles at home than to send them to a laundry, and with a good wringer the amount of labor entailed is small.

Silk Underwear.

For washing silk underwear I would advise making a lather of a tablespoonful of soap jelly and a teaspoonful of ammonia to a gallon of warm water. Squeeze the garments well through this, and repeat if much soiled. Then rinse them twice in clear water, wring as dry as possible and roll in a clean cloth, ironing while still wet. This applies also to any kind of silk handkerchief, blouses, ties and such articles.—London News.

Silk Ribbons.

Silk ribbons may be washed in suds made of lukewarm water and good soap, but they must not be wrung or they will be badly creased. Wash in a second lot of suds and rinse in clear cold water. Then lay on a table or board and with rather a stiff nailbrush brush sideways till all the creases are removed. Leave till thoroughly dry.

The Making of Character.

The order of the world is moral in every fiber. Men may do what they please within certain limits, and because they do what they please society seems to be in a state of moral chaos, but every word and deed reacts instantly on the man, and this reaction is so inevitable that since time began not one violation of any law of life has ever escaped the penalty. He has paid the price of his word or his deed on the instant in its reaction upon his character. God does not punish men. They punish themselves in their own natures and in the work of their hands. —Hamilton Wright Mabie.

SMILING AND SELLING.

There Are Times When the Two Do Not Blend Successfully.

"If you cannot learn to smile you cannot learn to sell," says an exchange. Now, we are willing to agree that a happy disposition is a very essential quality for a salesman to have. But, taken literally, the statement is not true. Perhaps 85 per cent of successful salesmen sell goods with a smile and find that it pays. But, on the other hand, there are 15 per cent or more who scarcely ever indulge in a smile while waiting on customers.

Take, for example, some of the women who make up the highest class of city trade—the kind that drives up to a shop in a swell turnout, enters like a queen, snubs the floorwalker, seats herself in a comfortable seat and looks around impatiently to be waited on. If you know much about selling this class of trade you know that if you smile benignly and perhaps remark about the beautiful weather you will receive a frigid stare from the customer that will make you shake. In most of the stores where this class of trade is catered to you will find salesmen who are expert at handling it. They sell evening slippers, carriage boots, riding boots, leggings, etc., with a cold politeness that would drive away an ordinary shopper.

There are times and places for everything, and the time and place not to smile are in a shoe store when one of the human icebergs which inhabit the Four Hundred swishes in to buy $40 or $50 worth of footwear—that is, if you expect to sell to her.—Shoe Trade Journal.

MUSIC IN COURT.

Occasions When Melody Decided Questions at Law.

On one occasion all who were present in the court of justice at Berlin had the great pleasure of listening to a free performance by Professor Joachim, the famous violinist. It appeared from the evidence that a dealer in musical instruments was charged with cheating a customer by representing that a violin which he offered for sale at $1.25 was an instrument that could be played. The great professor was called in as an expert witness, and, taking up the impugned instrument, he proceeded to play upon it. Under his magic fingers it really sounded like a violin, but in a few moments, much to the regret of his listeners, the maestro laid the instrument down with an evident air of contempt. But he had secured the accused's acquittal.

The great tenor Mario once had to give a free exhibition of his magnificent vocal power in court in order to gain freedom for himself. He had been arrested in Madrid in mistake for a mischievous political agitator and in vain proclaimed his identity to the powers that be. Finally he was told that if he really was the famous singer his voice was a certain means of convincing the court of the truth of his claim. For seven or eight minutes Mario held all within hearing spellbound, and he was then allowed to take his departure, with profuse apologies for his arrest and detention.

Straw For Hats a Century Ago.

In the early part of the last century there were fewer factories in this country than now, and many things were made by hand which today are the work of machinery. This was especially true of the braid for straw hats. Rye straw was commonly used, although wheat was also in demand. But the rye straw had longer stems and was more easily handled.

In driving along the country roads, in Massachusetts particularly, late in the summer one would see great bundles of the straw hanging on the fences to dry. When the sun and wind had done their share of the work, it was placed in casks where sulphur was burning until it was bleached to a pale yellow. Then it was split into narrow widths suitable for braiding.—St. Nicholas.

OSHAWA WON A GREAT GAME.

The Locals Defeated by 2-1 on Saturday.

A Pitchers' Battle Full of Excitement —Quinlan's Great Twirling- How it Happened.

"Great game that, eh?" "Hard luck to lose." "Say, isn't Quinlan a peach?" "I've seen worse ball than that in the Eastern League," and other such expressions floated around the atmosphere after Saturday's baseball game with Oshawa.

Three little solitary runs were scored in nine innings and the heart-breaking part of it is that we got but one of the three. Figuring it out from the mathematics we learned at school the score was Oshawa 2, Peterborough 1.

"Bruce Quinlan, otherwise known as "Prunes" stand forward please. You pitched great ball on Saturday and well deserve all the praise coming your way, and furthermore, you deserved to win that game." It might be mentioned in passing that it was Quinlan's first appearance in the Midland League in a championship game and the fact that he allowed but three hits, one of which the fielders should have had, struck out 14 men, gave one base on balls, drove in the only run for his team by a two bagger is worthy of mention. With a little more experience, he should develop into a star.

But much as the Oshawa's enjoyed the fanning-out process, the Peterboroughs equally well appreciated the sensation and 14 of the locals slugged vainly at the sphere. My, it was mournful to see one and often two usually sure hitters do the fan act with a man on third or second when a hit meant a run. But Parker was practically invincible with men on bases and that tells the tale.

The field was as smooth as a baldhead and consequently the few errors perpetrated by the infield had not that mellow juiciness of some contests witnessed here. Only one error was costly and that was excusable as Sheridan made a clean pick-up, but slipped and the runner beat the throw. There were two gone and two on bases at the time, and Brockman came dancing along with a hit and two runs were in and the game was lost.

The team changed their batting order slightly for Saturday's game but it was no avail as the boys couldn't have hit a pumpkin on Saturday with men on bases.

Manager Whitcroft got as far as second base in the ninth and everybody got up and yelled lustily, but Parker was too lazy even to go up in the air and he fanned three in a row. Terrible, terrible, but he's a fine pitcher just the same.

Listen to the tale of woe:—

First innings. — Hambly missed three, Crowley grounded to Sheridan and Brockman did likewise to Lamont. For the locals, Ted Pilling opened with a nice single to right. "Going to be something doing in the swatting line to-day," whispered a fan. But not so, Pilling was left standing on the initial sack while Lamont and Graham fanned and Whitcroft grounded to second.

Second effort,—Costello and Bowden missed three drops, and Cawker grounded to Quinlan. For the locals, Sheridan fanned, J. Pilling fouled to Bowden and Earls went out on strikes.

Third spasm,—Guinett hit to first and Whitcroft who covered the bag, dropped the spheroid. Guinett was caught stealing second, Giles fanned and Parker grounded to Lamont. The locals were easy. McDonald fanned, Quinlan flew to Parker and T. Pilling's long fly was captured by Hambly.

Fourth innings. — Hambly fanned, Crowley got a charity, Whitcroft missed Brockman's liner, and Crowley was caught off second. J. Pilling missed Costello's difficult fly, and it looked dangerous, but Bowden grounded to Whitcroft. For Peterborough Lamont got a pass, but was caught going to second, Graham flew to Parker, and Whitcroft grounded to first.

Fifth attempt. — Cawker hit to pitcher, Guinett flew to centre field, and Giles was called out on strikes. Sheridan to vary things singled nicely to right, but was doubled up on J. Pilling's fly to Brockman. Earls grounded to first.

Sixth innings. — Parker fanned, Hambly grounded to Lamont, Crowley hit a slow one through Sheridan and Lamont, which either should have held; Brockman fanned. For the locals, McDonald fanned, Quinlan grounded to Parker; J. Pilling smashed out a hit for two cushions but Lamont fanned, and a chance to score was lost.

Lucky seventh. — Costello and Bowden very obligingly fanned, and Lamont made a beautiful pick-up of Cawker's grasser. After Graham and Whitcroft had fanned, Sheridan banged out a two base hit, but J. Pilling grounded to Parker.

Unlucky eighth. — All the scoring was done in this innings. Guinett singled to centre and Giles fanned. Parker sacrificed. Hambly hit to Sheridan, who made a clean pick up, but slipped, and the runner reached first, Guinett going to second. Crowley swatted the sphere for a single and two runs went in; Brockman grounded to second. For Peterborough, Earls fanned; Long, who replaced McDonald, made a nice single to right, and scored on Quinlan's corking two bagger. T. Quinlan sacrificed Quinlan to third, but Lamont again fanned.

The wind-up. — Quinlan struck out Costello, Bowden and Cawker in a row. For Peterborough, Graham fanned, Whitcroft hit to short, and beat out the throw, which Bowden dropped. Whittie stole second, but Sheridan and J. Pilling fanned, and it was all over.

NOTES.

It was the best game of the year.

Both teams were weak at the bat.

Teddy Pilling batted finely. He had a single, a two bagger, a sacrifice, and flew to left field on four times up. H also captured a nice fly.

Parker looks the essence of laziness, but he can pitch good ball.

Graham caught well. Only one tried to steal second, and he was easily caught.

Sheridan fanned twice, and had two nice hits, including a two bagger.

Lamont's fielding was fine, but "Reddy's" batting eye was off on Saturday.

It was a good move to put Long to bat in the eighth. He cracked out a nice single.

Oshawa only got two respectable hits. The other an easy one, went through Sheridan and Lamont without either touching it.

All the locals' hits were clean drives to the outfield, but they didn't come in bunches.

Quinlan deserves another trial.

TURF.

With two more days of weather like this, the Turf Club's races should be the most successful in the history of the club.

TAKING A LOOK INTO AUGUST

A Lively Forecast

August is the month to make a dollar do duty for two at the Golden Lion. As the ranks of the summer goods get thinner the prices get slighter and slighter.

Savings rampant all over the store. Here is a woman buying a Shirt that she has been longing for two months, and it costs her half what it would two months ago. Here is a prudent one buying three Shirt Waists at their reduced prices and tucking them away for next winter.

That is the "how" and "why" of August bargains here. The low prices will make it very easy for you to finish out the summer with a new Hat and other new dress accessories, for there is a sharp cut in every department of Fair's.

If we're not making money we're making friends. Doing lots of business with little money in it; but clearances are absolutely necessary. That's how we look at it. The extraordinary values we will offer this month will attach many friends permanently to the store.

It costs quite a little to pack and store away odds and ends that accumulate at the end of a season's business, and it ties up a lot of capital, too.

Is it any wonder, then, that this progressive store wants to save all such items of expense, and that we are willing to lose our profits for the sake of a clean stock and the ready money.

Now is the time. This is the month that the price ticket speaks loudly at Fair's.

LIFT LOCK AGAIN INTO COMMISSION.

Slight Mishap Yesterday, but Everything Lovely To-Day.

A slight mishap occurred at the Lift Lock yesterday, while the Foot Guards, in the City of Peterborough, were going over the lock. The chamber containing the boat was raised nearly to the top when it stopped, the immediate cause of the stoppage being a small chip which had become lodged in the main valve operating the lock. The low water in the canal above the lock contributed to this also.

When the trouble occurred, the lockmaster emptied both presses, allowing both chambers to go to the bottom and some time was required to pump them full again.

The lock was ready for operation last night at six o'clock.

JAPS OCCUPYING SIMOUCHENG.

Gen. Stackelberg's Command Isolated from Kuropatkin.

RUSSIAN ARMY CUT IN TWO.

Kuroki's Army Fights From Daylight Till Sunset When the Japanese Centre took the Town of Simoucheng—Fierce Fighting Raging Around Russian Positions—Kuropatkin Going North—Decisive Battle.

GEN. KUROKI'S SUCCESS.

Special G. N. W. Despatches to the Examiner.

Tokio, Aug. 2.—After two days' fighting, Gen. Kuroki yesterday defeated the Russians in two separate actions, the first at Yushulikuz and the second at Yen Suiling.

London, Aug. 2.—A despatch to a news agency from Tokio says there is reason to believe that, after two days' fighting, the Japanese occupied Simoucheng, thus cutting off General Stakelberg from General Kuropatkin.

Kuroki succeeds.

London, Aug. 2.—The correspondent of The London Times with Gen. Kuroki in the field, in a despatch dated July 31, says:

"This army began a general attack at daylight to-day, which lasted until sunset. The Japanese centre took the town, capturing the enemy's northeastern positions.

"The left advanced and occupied a position jeopardizing the Russian right.

"The Japanese right carried the position against superior numbers.

"There was tremendous artillery firing throughout the day, and the infantry finished with a brilliant march under the enemy's shrapnel.

"I believe that the Russian position will be untenable to-morrow."

Successful Near Haicheng.

Tientsin, Aug. 2.—It is reported here that Gen. Kuroki was successful in the battle fought near Haicheng Sunday.

Decisive Battle Begun.

St. Petersburg, Aug 2.—At last the decisive battle of the campaign seems to be in progress. Having completed his enveloping movement of the Russian position, General Kuroki has ordered simultaneously an advance from all points against Haicheng and Liaoyang. Fighting is raging on both fronts, and still continues. The latest reports contain nothing yet confirmatory of the rumors that General Kuropatkin has been defeated.

According to Kuropatkin's official despatch to the Emperor, the battle began for the possession of the important position at Simoucheng, which is located at the juncture of the Fengwangcheng and Eluyen roads. Two separate armies were launched from the east above the two roads, while a third, under General Ku, moved up east of the railroad from Tatchekiao to try to cut off the Russian force there from Haicheng. If the latter move is successful this force will be crushed.

A portion of General Kuroki's army at the same time advanced against General Keller's positions at Ikhavuen, east of Liaoyang, trying the favorite Japanese plan of outflanking him on the right. Still further north on the Saimatsza-Liaoyang road, the Japanese moved forward against Houtslatze (25 miles from Liaoyang). At all points the Japanese employed artillery to the best advantage.

General Kuropatkin's situation will be desperate in the event of his defeat. The keenest anxiety is felt at the war office for news of the progress of the battle. The general staff seems utterly dumbfounded at the number of men the Japanese possess, and consequently Kuropatkin's statement that they are landing another heavy force at the port of Newchwang, adds to the solicitude.

Japs Landed Off Yinkow.

The Emperor yesterday received a despatch, dated July 31, from Gen. Kuropatkin, in which he says: Intelligence has been received of a considerable number of Japanese landing off Yinkow under the cover of several warships.

Kuropatkin Moving North.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—A report from an apparently reliable source late last night is to the effect that General Kuropatkin's main force had been rapidly moving north for several days.

According to this report, no troops proceeding to the front from Russia had gone past Harbin in the past three days. They will be detrained there, and every available piece of rolling stock will be rushed south empty for the removing of troops at Liucyang and other points to the northward, leaving a skeleton force to contest the Japanese advance at vital positions.

Charged Heights With Bayonet.

Haicheng, Aug. 2.—The Japanese on Saturday attacked the heights of Kangwa Pass, the right of the Russian position at Simoucheng. Under cover of their artillery, the Japanese infantry charged, but the Russian guns drove them back in confusion and silenced two of their batteries. The Russian losses were slight.

On Saturday night the Japanese made a desperate assault on Kangwa Heights with the bayonet, and a hand-to-hand fight ensued, but the Japanese were again repulsed, fleeing down the hill in confusion.

The Japanese renewed the attack at daylight Sunday, training all their guns on Kangwa Heights. The Russians are holding all their positions at the hour when this despatch was sent from Haicheng.

An Artillery Duel.

Liaoyang, Aug. 2.—Artillery firing occurred at Simoucheng Sunday. It is reported that the Japanese retired. Trains are running half way between Haicheng and Tatchekiao. The reports of skirmish fighting along all parts of the front are confirmed.

Off to Scene of War.

Frederick's Haven, Island of Jutland, Aug. 2.—The Russian auxiliary cruisers Don and Ural and two torpedo boats passed here during Sunday night. At the Skaw (Cape Sagen, the northern extremity of Jutland) the torpedo boats returned and proceeded to Odesund.

Cruiser Division Also.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—Preparations have been completed for the departure, under the command of Rear Admiral Enquist, of the cruiser Division of the second Russian Pacific squadron, now lying off Cronstadt. The warships will weigh anchor and put to sea under sealed orders within three days.

LT.-GEN. COUNT KELLER KILLED.

First High Russian Commander to Lose Life in War.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—The report of Lieut.-General Count Keller's death is confirmed. He was killed on July 29, while repelling the preliminary attack of Gen. Kuroki's army on the Yanze Pass, 30 miles east of Liaoyang. The general was standing near a battery which was subjected to a terrific fire, when a shell burst close to him and he fell, mortally wounded, dying twenty minutes later.

Before he expired Gen. Keller had the satisfaction of knowing that the Japanese attack had been repelled.

Gen. Keller was the first high Russian commander to lose his life in this war. Gen. Zassalitch may now command the First Siberian Army Corps.

The loss of Gen. Keller is deeply felt in court circles. He was a personal favorite of the Emperor. His sister, Countess Kleimichel, is one of the leaders of St. Petersburg society.

Lieut.-Gen. Count Keller, at the opening of the war, was in command of the Second Siberian Army Division. He was 54 years old, and resigned the Governorship of Ekaterinoslaff in order to go to the front. He sustained two reverses at the hands of the Japanese recently—July 4 and July 17—being repulsed in attacks on the Motien Pass.

Heading For Red Sea.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The State Department has official information that two Russian warships passed Copenhagen Sunday en route to the Red Sea to replace the volunteer cruisers to be withdrawn from there.

Arabia Prize Court Sitting.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—The Associated Press is informed at the Foreign Office that the trial of the Arabia is now progressing at Vladivostock and that it will have to be completed before the question of her release can be determined upon.

"YOUNG WOMEN:—I had frequent headaches of a severe nature, dark spots before my eyes, and at my menstrual periods I suffered untold agony. A member of the lodge advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I only scorned good advice and felt that my case was hopeless, but she kept at me until I bought a bottle and started taking it. I soon had the best reason in the world to change my opinion of the medicine, as each day my health improved, and finally I was entirely without pain at my menstruation periods. I am most grateful."—NETTIE BLACKMORE, 28 Central Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

"MAILISMS."

(Toronto Star.)

Do you know what a "Mailism" is?

No; you are wrong. It is not to be described by a little word of three letters. It is easy to see how that idea might arise; but it is totally inadequate as a definition of a "Mailism."

A "Mailism" is peculiar to one paper. No other journal in Canada takes such liberties with the self-respect and sanity of its readers. Perhaps an example will be the best definition. The following is the close of an article on the Globe's demand that Lord Dundonald give an explicit denial to its charges of extravagant military proposals:

"But the organ is pretty confident that no notice will be taken of its new attack upon the Scotch general, or it would not entor upon the assault. This episode is very regrettable. It was a pity that a paper which speaks to many Scotch people should misrepresent and attack a great Scotchman, to please Bourassa."

You will notice the use of the Scotch cry and the Bourassa bug-a-boo. Of course they have nothing to do with the subject. The Scotch Globe is not attacking Lord Dundonald because he is a Scotchman, nor is it moved by any love for that perpetual thorn in the flesh of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Mr. Bourassa. No one who knowns anything of politics at all would dream of believing either of these insinuations.

But that does not prevent the Mail from using them. The absolute silliness of a fabrication is no bar in the Mail's eyes—it is, indeed, the sure mark of a "Mailism." Sensible Conservatives see no use in this sort of thing. They know that it can't make votes, and that it can only disgust many people who see it.

Take another "Mailism" from the same issue:

'It seems that while the farmers of North York were perspiring behind the plow Sir William Mulock was junketing in Mexico, whither he was taken in one of the private cars for which the farmers of North York, with the rest of us, have to pay. It must be a pleasure to the North York farmer to know that while he is working for a living Sir William is whining and dining on the Government car. No one knows how much the farmers of North York owe to Sir William Mulock."

Imagine this being seriously—not to say dishonestly—printed in the columns of the chief organ of the Conservative party. No one has ever used private cars built at the expense of the Government more freely than the Conservative Ministers. Ontario has not forgotten seeing the Conservative Cabinet making its tours through the Province at election times in a private car. To use these cars is one of the signs of official dignity which we allow our representative Ministers—and under Liberal rule the cost of running them is paid for by the Ministers themselves. As a matter of fact, the car which Sir William Mulock took to Mexico was one that was built for the tour of the Duke and Duchess of York (now Prince and Princess of Wales); and there is not a Conservative in the country who would have said that it should not have been built at the public expense for that purpose. The Mail does not say that one dollar of the cost of Sir William Mulock taking that car to Mexico falls upon the treasury of the country. The whole cost of running it there and back came out of Sir William's own pocket. This fact the Mail knew, and it chose its language accordingly.

It is this kind of thing which makes people ready to believe that the local Conservatives are negotiating for the establishment of a new organ. Men who have reached voting age are only amused at the puerility of the picture of the horny-handed farmer "perspiring" while Sir William "dines and wines" — at his own expense—"on a Government car." The only harm that a "Mailism" does is to itself and its proprietors.

A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

Horse Falls on James Anderson Coachman at Cobourg.

Cobourg, Aug. 2.—A shocking accident here yesterday morning was a rather inauspicious opening to Home-Comers' Day and Civic Holiday. James Anderson, coachman for J. C. Rose, of Pittsburg, who is summering here, was perhaps fatally injured by a horse, which he was riding. The horse shied at something on the street and reared on its hind legs. It lost its balance, and fell back on top of its rider. In its struggles to rise, the horse severely trampled Anderson as he lay on the ground, and when picked up it was found that he had suffered several fractures—one of the spine, one of the hip, of the harm and of the leg. He was unconscious. Although living at a late hour last night, he has no possible chance of recovery. Anderson is 38 years of age, and came from Pittsburg. He has a wife and two children in Cobourg.

Drowned at Stratford.

Stratford, Aug. 2.—The pleasure of Stratford's Civic Holiday yesterday was marred by a drowning accident, whereby Alexander Ainsworth, a machinist, employed in the Grand Trunk shops, lost his life. Ainsworth, with two companions, went in swimming in the river, and it is supposed he became entangled in the weeds. Deceased had been in the country only a few weeks, and leaves a wife and child in Scotland.

Sad Homecoming.

Ste. Flavie, Que., Aug. 2.—Miss Delia Hamilton, coming from Montreal, destined to Ste. Gabriel, a parish near Ste. Flavie, jumped off the train on to the platform while it was still in motion. Before assistance could be given she fell onto the track under the wheels and had her two legs cut off above the ankles. Amputation is necessary, and she is not likely to live. The unfortunate girl had been away from home for 12 years, and is paying her first visit to her family since she had left them. Her father, who is advanced in age, was at the station to witness the terrible scene.

Car Floor Gives Away.

London, Aug. 2.—On the Pere Marquette Railway in the St. Thomas yards yesterday afternoon, an excursion train of Londoners bound for Port Stanley was leaving St. Thomas when the floor in the second to last coach gave way at the rear end, throwing the other end to the ceiling. About a dozen seats were jammed together, throwing their occupants in all directions. Several people were hurt, all Londoners, Miss E. Hamilton, daughter of A. M. Hamilton, being particularly unfortunate. The physicians say her case is very grave, the shock of the accident tending to break up her nervous system. The other injured passengers escaped with nothing more than a few bruises and a severe shake-up.

EVIDENCES OF PROSPERITY.

Improved Financial Condition of the Farming Community.

THE MIDLAND COUNTIES.

(Special Correspondence of the Globe.)

Peterborough, July 28.—The unanimous testimony of the implement men is that the financial condition of the farmer has greatly improved during the last five years. Long dates for payments on machines were formerly the rule; now short dates have the call. Cash sales are not uncommon; formerly they were rare. One implement man says more mortgages and bad debts have been paid off in the last five years than in the previous twenty. Less money is loaned by private banks, and money-lenders than was common, and the extension of the branch system of chartered banks makes it possible to discount their paper at reasonable rates. To be politically free is itself a boon under any conditions, but economic freedom in addition is of priceless value, for, freed from the oppression of debt, the tax of the money-lender or the undue influence of the representative of the big implement companies, the farmer can contrast his position with that of ten years ago and count himself a fortunate and prosperous man.

GOOD RESULT OF DAIRYING.

Dairying has done great things for the midland counties. There is considerable waste land in the northern parts. Between the time of taking off the timber and the incoming of dairying and stock raising those parts were not prosperous. But to-day much of the land that never could give a good crop of grain is yielding a big return as pasture land. Including Lindsay, Madoc, Campbellford and Peterborough districts, from four to five thousand cheese are offered for sale each week, and the returns from that large quantity are distributed in cash in the district. The output of cheese this year is about 10 per cent. greater than a year ago, notwithstanding the lower price. The falling off in cream is only about equal to that of other Julys. There is not the shortage of labour here found in some other parts of Ontario, and hence there are no indications of giving up dairying, but quite the reverse.

THE YIELD OF HAY AND GRAINS.

The reports of a good crop of hay so common all over Ontario hold good in the midland counties. The yield is heavy and the quality on the whole quite good. The catchy weather of the past week has interfered with hauling in and the curing of the crop. This district is not so early as the north and west. The outlook for clover is quite good, and a fair return from clover seed will likely be made. Wheat does not figure as a large factor down here. There is a larger acreage in peas than in wheat in many sections, and they are reported as of good promise and not much troubled with bugs. Wheat is only about a two-thirds crop, and not too good a sample. Quite a lot of spring wheat was sown, and it has done well. They go in for very little rye in this district; there is probably not 1,000 acres of rye in the whole County of Peterborough.

LOTS OF OATS AND GOOD BARLEY.

There are lots of oats, but they are only an average crop, and are affected with smut. There is more barley than usual, and the quality is No. 1 so far. Seeing that most of it is used for feed, it matters little whether it is coloured with the rain. The root crops are looking well, and there is no likelihood of a shortage. Both mangels and potatoes are grown in large quantities, and it looks now like a big crop of both. Apples will not be heavy. Quite a number of trees are reported killed by the frost. Such was not the case in western Ontario.

They are going more into stock down here, yet not so as to dispute the other branches of farming. Hogs are in plenty, as is always the case in a dairy country. The quality of cattle and horses raised is by no means equal to the central west of the Province, but there are efforts made and money spent to improve the stock and raise the standard.

FALLEN OUT BY THE WAY.

Last year a large quantity of sugar beets was grown in the midland counties under contract with the Peterborough Sugar Factory, but that concern did not work up any beets, and shipments to the western factories were not satisfactory. The Peterborough Company has fallen out by the way, but there are indications that it will be financially strengthened, and again enter the field of sugar production with sufficient capital to insure the success of the industry in the midland counties. In the meantime a very small acreage is given up to beet cultivation this year. The one year's experience in growing sugar beets demonstrated the adaptability of the land in Peterborough County and all along the Trent Valley for the production of sugar beets. It was not to be expected that farmers inexperienced in raising such a crop would get a big yield the first year.

LAND WELL ADAPTED FOR SUGAR BEETS.

The average was about ten tons to the acre and twelve tons was not uncommon. But the point to be noted is that the beets grown here tested higher than those grown elsewhere in Ontario or in Michigan, according to Mr. J. W. Garvin, of the Peterborough Company. In a shipment of 22 cars of sugar beets to Wallaceburg the percentage of saccharine ran from 16 to 17.8 for the lot. Another good quality about the crop was the low tare. It did not average over 10 per cent. That was due to the fact that land in the Trent Valley is mostly clay loam and does not adhere as does a clay soil. The return from sugar beets which averaged up as did those grown here would be $5 a ton, or an average of $50 an acre. Allowing $30 an acre for labour and seed, there remains $20 clear profit, which is more than can be made on any grain.

There ought to be a future to the sugar beet industry in Peterborough, but the fact that a halt has been made, in the forward movement makes it certain a hard task is before the company to regain the confidence of the farmers and secure a big acreage of sugar beets for the Peterborough factory.

VALUE OF THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

The recent completion of the lift locld brought before the mind and eye of the public the Trent Valley Canal. That great work, begun in 1833 and laboured on intermittently since that time, is, thanks to the aggressive canal policy of the present Government, nearing completion. About four and a half million dollars have been expended, and there are now 165 miles of completed canal available for navigation. Though there are only three miles of actual canal yet to be made, there will be the construction of several locks, including two hydraulic lift locks, so that the total cost will be perhaps equal to the amount already expended. Amid strom the advantage to the commerce of the Dominion, there will be a distinct gain to all the midland counties. The grain, dairy and root products of the district could be taken to the lake and to Toronto and Montreal at low rates; the water privileges, would lead to the erection of many mills along the canal, and an increase in the value of land, not only in the towns, but also in the whole district.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 2.—One of the best known western engineers who has been employed on the Canadian Northern Railroad, arrived from Manitoba Sunday night, having been arrested at the point of a revolver by mounted police and ordered to leave the Dominion. The man's name is withheld for the reason that he has taken steps to interest the United States Government in his case, as well as that of others who have been driven over the border during the last week under the Canadian labor laws. The engineer says the Canadians are jealous of the American engineers.

ANOTHER FISCAL DEBATE

A Vote of Censure Moved By the Opposition in the British House of Commons —Mr. Chamberlain Declared the Colonies Want His Policy—Historic Reason Against Taxing Wheat.

London, Aug 2.—(C.. A. P.)—The House of Commons was crowded when Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman (Liberal leader) rose and moved his vote of censure to the effect that the House regretted that certain of His Majesty's ministers had accepted official positions in a political organization which formally declared its adhesion to a policy of preferential duties involving the taxation of food. He said that the absorption of four ministers into what he contended was an annex to the Tariff Reform League was incompatible with the non-taxation of food and was inconsistent with the assurances given from the treasury bench definitely pledging the Government against a preferential tariff and a duty on imported food.

Lord Hugh Cecil, comparing the German Zollverein with the proposed colonial system of preferences, said that thirty years after the Zollverein Prussia had violently annexed two states also in the Zollverein. It was a mistake to assume that increased trade necessarily meant an increase in affection. Britain had a larger trade with Germany than with Italy, yet they did not love the Germans more. There was preferential trade with Canada down to 1860, but were the Canadians then more loyal than they were now?

Mr. Chamberlain said an attempt had been made to prove Premier Balfour's policy was identical with his absolutely. If so, there would not have been any necessity for his leaving the Government. "From the very outset the Premier had said he sympathized with my policy, even if it involved a slight addition to the duties on food, but he thought it was not practicable at the moment, nor was the country ripe for it. In my opinion," continued Mr. Chamberlain, "this policy is ripe enough at the present to be submitted to the people of this country. I do not say it will be accepted at once by the people accustomed for 60 years to another policy, but that it will be accepted I am as certain as that I stand here, and the sooner it is submitted to the country the sooner that consummation will come. If it is legitimate to make a reciprocal arrangement with a foreign country why in Heaven's name is it not proper with your own kinsfolk.

"The colonies wanted this arrangement. Canada had given the most absolute proof, short indeed only of an actual treaty. Will you accept the views of three successive Prime Ministers of Australia? The preference opportunity was sliding away, and if not accepted within a reasonable time the offer of the colonies would no longer remain open."

Premier Balfour ridiculed the idea that every member of the Cabinet must agree on every point before the country. He was a free trader, but did not accept all the definitions of free trade put forward by the Opposition. He believed there was an historic reason for the feeling that existed against the taxation of wheat.

Sir Gilbert Parker said he held in his hand a letter from a great colonial statesman, who said that once the British people grasped the fact that the colonies were asking nothing but preference for preference, the struggle would soon be over.

The Government's Majority.

London, Aug. 2.—(C.A.P.)—In the House of Commons yesterday the Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, moved a vote of censure concerning the part taken by Cabinet members in the Liberal-Unionist Council sessions, July 14, at which the fiscal policy of Joseph Chamberlain was approved. The motion was rejected by 288 to 210.

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by all druggists.

MILITIA OF CANADA

Sharp Debate in the House on Sending Them Out of Bounds.

LOYALTY CRY AGAIN HEARD

Sir Frederick Borden and Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick Met the Charges of Disloyalty With Dignity and Crushing Effectiveness — After Compromise Amendment Was Accepted the Militia Bill Was Reported.

Ottawa, Aug. 2.—The old cry that the Liberals are disloyal was revived by Conservative members of the House yesterday, and formed the basis of a hot debate for upwards of four hours. Sir Frederick Borden proposed an amendment to the militia bill, providing for the calling of Parliament within fifteen days in case the militia are placed on active service "anywhere in Canada or beyond Canada for the defence thereof."

Charges Met With Dignity.

Mr. W. F. Maclean and Mr. Seymour Gourley at once objected to placing any restrictions on what Canada might want to do for the Empire, and Mr. Gourley, in a characteristic speech, declared there was a separatist movement on foot in Canada. Sir Frederick Borden and Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick met the accusations of disloyalty among the Liberals with dignity and crushing effectiveness. It was shown that the new clause was the same in effect as the old one, and, moreover, the same in words as that adopted in Great Britain, and the same in effect as in all other colonies.

Approved By Imperial Authorities.

Still more pointed was the declaration that the very clause had been considered and absolutely approved by the Imperial authorities. Mr. R. L. Borden assumed a moderate attitude in the matter, and said his opposition to the amendment was a sentimental one. After a lengthy discussion the Government accepted a compromise suggested by Mr. Borden, that the words "anywhere in Canada or beyond Canada for the defence thereof," be struck out, and the bill was reported. This leaves the power in the hands of the Governor-in-Council to place the militia on active service anywhere in Canada.

Postoffice Amendment.

Early in the day the House accepted an important amendment by Sir Wm. Mulock to the postoffice act, providing that pamphlets, books, newspapers, etc., containing advertisements of marvellous or improbable cures may be excluded from the mails. The general inspection act, a general bill respecting the terms of railway subsidies, and the bill respecting the inspection of grain were given third readings, after brief discussion.

Treadgold Report.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier laid on the table of the House the report of Mr. Justice Britton upon the Treadgold and other concessions in the Yukon, together with all exhibits and the evidence. The documents were in two large bundles, which stood about eighteen inches in height when placed on the table.

Algoma Dropped.

On the bill to amend the Dominion Elections Act, Mr. Fitzpatrick said the Government had decided to drop Algoma from the list of those constituencies where elections will be held at a later date than the general elections. This means that all the constituencies of Ontario will choose members on the date of the general elections.

If you can keep your digestive system in proper condition the body will be well nourished and you need have little fear of disease. By regulating the kidneys, liver and bowels, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, ensure a healthy condition of the organs of digestion and for this reason are indispensible as a family medicine

Storm Hits New York.

New York, Aug. 2.—During a heavy thunderstorm in this city yesterday afternoon, lightning shattered the flagstaff on the Federal building. The Third avenue elevator, near 52nd street, was struck, the third rail blazing up, and two horses are reported to have been killed by the same bolt. The flag pole on the "flat iron" building at 23rd street and Broadway was struck and a piece of the pole fell to the ground. No one was hurt, and the building was not injured.

Rebels Near Mush.

Constantinople, Aug. 2.—Official telegrams report that a band of Armenian revolutionists ambushed a party of soldiers near Mush. On the arrival of reinforcements the Armenians fled, setting fire to three villages on their way. Another band of Armenians number sixty attacked the village of Moosum, in the vilayet of Erzurum, but was repulsed by the garrison and attempted to escape to the Russian frontier. The escape of the band, however, was prevented by the frontier guards, only four of the Armenians getting away.

REGULAR COUNCIL MEETING.

Ald. Morrison Occupied Post of Mayor—Routine Business was Transacted.

The regular meeting of the town council was held last evening in the council chamber, the following members being present:—Aldermen Johnston, Edgcumbe, Morrison, Rush, Mason, Hicks, Adams, Clinkscale, Batten and Best.

In the absence of the Mayor, Ald. Morrison took the chair, upon the motion of Ald. Adams, seconded by Ald. Rush.

The minutes were adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Town Solicitor to T. A. S. Hay, Town Engineer, re the sewer on Park street. The Solicitor pointed out that clause 14 of the agreement with the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, provides that should a sewer be constructed on Park street, the company are to remove and relay their ties and rails at their own expense. Clause 5 provides that in cases where the council requires the company to construct the railway on additional streets, if a sewer is constructed on such streets within ten years after the construction of the railway, the corporation will at its own cost move and replace the rails and ties. This was referred back to the Board of Works.

On motion of Ald. Adams, seconded by Ald. Johnston, the Street Railway Company will be notified that the town intends constructing a sewer on Park street north. Also that the sewer on Park street south of Charlotte will be constructed in the middle of the street.

From the T. A. S. applying for remission of taxes on their grounds. The society's taxes [illegible] to $40. —Referred to the Finance Committee.

From the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, stating that they have now located their lines for the new telephone system which they are installing under a franchise granted them by the town, and have their plans prepared showing the streets to be traversed, and the location of their poles, manholes, etc. They respectfully ask that this matter be referred to the town engineer to report thereon.—Referred to the Board of Works.

From Court Chemong, I.O.F., of Peterborough, saying that the High Court of this Society for Eastern Ontario, will convene here on August 17th, 18th and 19th, when 250 delegates will be present, and asking for a grant of $50 to aid the local Court in carrying out their programme more creditably than they could do otherwise.—Referred to the Finance Committee with power to act.

The application of the Young Women's Christian Association for remission of taxes was referred to the Court or Revision.

From W. H. Meldrum, Otonabee Power Company, asking for an immediate decision on his application of three weeks ago for permission to lay a siding on the south side of Simcoe street from the C.P.R. spur to the American Cereal Company's mills.—Referred to the Committee of the Whole Council, to meet on Thursday night.

From H. Calcutt, calling attention to some very necessary repairs to the Wolfe street wharf. He suggested that the south end be extended in line with the remainder of the wharf for the security of passengers.—Referred to the Board of Works.

The C. P. R. asked permission to run a short track across Wolfe street for the purpose of serving a firm they propose to locate on their property at the corner of Aylmer and Wolfe streets.

From Dumble and Johnston stating that they are instructed to bring an action against the town for damages in consequence of the flooding of the cellar of Ormond and Walsh, by reason of the town's negligence in not providing sufficient ways of escape for water brought to their store by street graded and maintained by the town. The Clerk was instructed to write Dumble and Johnston to the effect that a sewer will be constructed to remedy this condition.

The council adjourned.

THE STEAMBOAT INSPECTOR HERE

Mr. W. R. Davis, of Kingston, Will Give Evidence To-night.

A despatch from Kingston says: "M. R. Davis, steamboat inspector, has been summoned to Peterborough to give evidence on Tuesday at the enquiry concerning the death of Olive Kidd, drowned off the steamer North Star on Monday last. It appears that Mr. Davis examined the boat ten days ago, but had not issued a certificate, as further equipment had to be got for the steamer. Mr. Davis will be asked to testify in connection with the condition of the pipe railing on the boat, as it seems that the girl fell into the water through a piece of this railing giving way with her."

LAWNS TO BE WATERED BETWEEN FOUR AND NINE

Water Commissioners Make Important Change and Rule.

At a recent meeting of the Water Commissioners it was decided to make a change in the bylaw regarding the hours during which the city water may be used for watering the lawns. According to the new regulations the water may be used between five and nine o'clock in the morning and four and nine o'clock in the evening, instead of five and nine as previously. The rule will be strictly enforced, and parties violating the same will be prosecuted.

CHAMPION LOU SCHOLES AT FATHER PHALEN'S PICNIC.

Will Give an Exhibition of Rowing in the Champion Shell.

The outstanding feature of Rev. Father Phelan's annual picnic at South Beach, Young's Point, on Civic Holiday, August 15th, will be the presence of Mr. Lewis Scholes, the champion amateur oarsman of the world, fresh from his victory at Henley-on-Thames. Scholes will be accompanied by Manager Mulqueen, and will give an exhibition of the rowing stroke which has made him the greatest living politician — the man with the strongest pull — in the world. In addition to this crowning event the picnic will present an interesting programme of sports and games, including a football match between the Quakers and the Indian River team, boat races, etc., etc. Posters will give additional particulars.

Park Street Church.

Alderman Joseph Batten preached with much acceptance on Sunday morning last. His subject was "The Personality of the Spirit." Rev. A. H. Brace preached in the evening, when the ordinance of Baptism was observed. The hand of fellowship will be given to those baptized at their first communion on Sunday next.

ASSESSMENT AND TAXATION.

The Town Council is theoretically, at least, supposed to represent the people and to exist for the protection of their interests. These relations presume that the public business will be managed with the same care, consideration and efficiency, which the individual citizen would bestow upon his own concerns. There is one matter, however, in which the council seems to come lamentably short of doing its duty fairly and faithfully. This is the matter of assessment. From time immemorial there have been persons who kick against their municipal assessment, no matter how reasonable and equitable it may be or have been. But the present way of assessing property is open to the gravest and most vigorous objection. The assessment is unreasonably high and continues to climb. Let any one take his tax bill of this year and compare it with that of last year and he will see that there is a serious difference amounting to an increase, in many cases, of as much as twenty-five per cent. This, with the assessment rate half a mill less on the dollar should not be, unless the assessment had been unreasonably increased. The way the assessment is made is absurdly unjust. The proper and ligitimate mode of valuing property for assessment purposes is at two-thirds of its market value, yet there are instances where the assessors, acting, doubtless, upon instructions from the council, have placed assessment so high that the councillors who may be willing to pay a good stiff price for the properties in question may have them at a price equivalent to the assessed value. The owners if they wish to sell would consider that they had got a good price. This is wrong, decidedly wrong, and unfair to the citizens. The council need not think that the public do not see that the former seeks to cover large, if not extravagant, town expenditures under a scheme of high assessment. But as remarked, a ratepayer has only to look at the price of his tax bill and compare it with previous tax bills to see that with a lower rate he has much higher taxation. The wayfaring ratepayer, though a fool, can see that the assessment has been hoisted to bring about such a result. The council may be anxious to present a good balance sheet as a claim for re-election. It may sound very well to say that we have a low rate, but in the practical working out that is a small matter of boast. It is known that while the rate of taxation in Peterborough may be lower than other towns, it is also a notorious fact that the assessment is generally much higher than other towns. The people should be dealt with fairly and openly. If civic requirements demand increased expenditure, let the council act openly, take the people into their confidence, and impose a rate necessary to meet the necessary expenditure. The people generally, apart, of course, from those who object on principle to paying taxes of any amount, do not object to paying taxes so long as they get reasonable value in the shape of improvements for their benefit; but if money is frittered away, without good results, as it seems to be on our streets, judging by the wretched condition of many of them, the people have reason to kick. It is only a transparent subterfuge to conjoin high assessment with a low rate, to delude the people into the idea they are not being taxed more highly. This may work with the few that do not look into these matters, but in respect of these the action of the council in seeking to mask high taxation under the guise of high assessment, and a low rate, represents a principle, which, if introduced as a feature of the report of the board of directors of a company, would, if not denounced as sharp practice, be severely condemned by the shareholders, as trifling with their intelligence and interests.

FIRST DAY OF PETERBORO RACES

Some Pretty Finishes at Driving Park Yesterday.

JUBILEE WAS FIRST IN 2:16

Three Good Races--Some Fast Horses in Different Events.

Yesterday afternoon the annual summer meet of the Peterborough Turf Club opened under very favourable circumstances, and the races, as far as the first day are concerned at least, were very satisfactory.

The fact that yesterday afternoon had been declared a half holiday by the Mayor, and that many business places closed up for the half day, doubtless increased the attendance, at any rate the grand stand was well filled, and a large number of spectators were spread over different parts of the grounds.

Three races were on the card yesterday, and each provided some interesting heats. Two trotting events, the 2.40 and 2.16 were well contested, and some pretty finishes were seen in each.

Some of the best horses that have ever been on the local track, are entered for this meet, and yesterday the famous "Looking Glass" was one of the fast ones in the 2.16 class.

The track was in almost perfect condition, and some fast time will doubtless be made on it during this meet.

The running race attracted eight entries, and the starting of this race caused the only delay of the whole afternoon. Over an hour was spent before they were off for a good start.

The summary of yesterday's events follows:

2.40 Class, Pace or Trot.

Minnie Keswick, c.m., Curtis, Lindsay	1	1	1
Pearl Wilks, b.m., Brown, Niagara Falls	2	2	2
Headlight, b.h., Acton, Gananoque.....	4	4	3
Donna Belle, b.m., Johnston, Peterborough,.....	3	5	4
Johnnie P., b.g., Clark, Gananoque.....	5	3	5

In the first heat in this race Minnie Keswick set the pace and was never headed. This mare run a beautiful race, and finished as fresh as she started. The second heat saw a repetition of the first as far as the first finish was concerned; there was a pretty contest for second place, Pearl Wilks and Johnnie P. going neck and neck for the last quarter, the former beating by a head. In the last heat Minnie Keswick again took the lead and was never in danger of being headed. At the half the order was, Minnie, Pearl Wilks, Headlight, Johnnie P., with Donna Belle in the rear. In the third quarter, Donna Belle, by a nice burst of speed went up to third place and looked good for a second or third finisher, but she broke and her place was lost. In this heat the race was for third place. Minnie Keswick and Pearl Wilks were well in the lead for the two first places, but Headlight and Johnnie P. were close at the finish, the latter being slightly ahead. He was set back to fifth place, however, for making an irregular gait, making Headlight third with third money, and Johnnie P. in the last place.

2.16 Class, Pace or Trot.

Jubilee, b. g., Wood, Hamilton.	1	1	1
Looking Glass, b. g., Watson, Uxbridge...	2	2	5
Bertha W., b. m., P. Moher, Toronto...	3	3	2
Sphinx B., r. g., Powell, Orillia...	4	4	3
Blucher, blk. g., Connors, Peterborough...	5	5	4

Time, 2.17 1-4, 2.17 1-4, 2.17 3-4.

In the first heat Bertha W. led until the third quarter, with Sphinx B. a good second. Jubilee, who was third at the third post, came up and finished first easily. Looking Glass also made a good finish, taking second place. Sphinx B. lead in the second heat for the first half, and looked good for first place, but he could not hold the pace, and in the second half was distanced by Bertha W. and Jubilee, who in the first half made a nice run for second place. In the third quarter Looking Glass came up from the rear, passing Sphinx B. and Bertha W., and finished second, following Jubilee, who was again first. In the last Bertha W. got away first and for a time lead the procession. Sphinx B., however, soon overtook her, and led at the first half, with Jubilee second and Bertha W. third.

At the third quarter the order was Jubilee, Bertha W., and Sphinx B., in which order they finished.

Mike Clancy, of Toronto, was the winning horse in the running race, with Percentum second. The two heats in this race were interesting, a long wait, however, ensued before the first heat was started. One or two of the horses were very high strung, and were hard to get to the wire, which with the large field, made a start difficult.

Mike Clancy, Elwood, Toronto...1 1
Percentum, Graham, Peterboro...3 2
Michaelmas, Furlong, Toronto ...2 3
Golden Cocade, Paterson 4 4

The distance horses were:—
Logan Landermin, C. Bowland, Owen Sound.
Dementon, McGinnis, Belleville.
Sea Foam, Mitchell, Peterborough.
Hypo, Wilson, Hamilton.

The track officials were:—
Starter—Sid Passmore, Orillia.
Judges—F. Peake, Campbellford; W. Leahy, Lakefield.
Timers—Alex. Elliott, B. and P. and P. Callaghan, Peterborough.
Clerk of the course—Jas. O'Shea.

Some good races will be seen again to-day. The following are the entries:—

2.29 Class, Pace and Trot.

Ernie Hunter, bay gelding, by Capt. Hunter; G. A. Abbott, Coldwater.
Minnie Keswick, chestnut mare, by Keswick; G. Curtis, Lindsay.

MONTREAL HOUSE SCENE OF BURGLARY.

Thief Broke Into the Hotel Yesterday Morning.

Rifled the Till and Secure Some Coppers—Small Reward for His Pains.

Another daring burglary was perpetrated on Sunday night or early Monday morning when the till at the Montreal House of which Mr. J. B. Larocque is proprietor, was lightened of its contents to the extent of $3.20. Last October thieves entered this hotel by prying open one of the bar room windows. The same thing was attempted on Sunday night, but as the window was barred, the attempt proved futile. The thief or thieves then secured a plank lying near the sidewalk and placing it against the bar door made an entrance to the hotel; through the window above the door, it was a small coloured glass window and was not locked. The till which is a National register, was unlocked and contained $3.20 in coppers so that the thief must have filled about all the pockets he found available. The exit was made through the front door, which was found unlocked in the morning.

So far no trace has been found of the thieves.

PETERBOROUGH OLD BOYS HOME AGAIN.

350 of Them Come to the Old Town From Toronto.

About 350 members of the Peterborough Old Boys from Toronto visited the old town yesterday, and were entertained by their friends. This year the Old Boys came home in their individual capacity, and not as a body, although they are still organized. They spent the day in visiting friends, and a number of them attended the races, in the afternoon.

Accompanying the Old Boys were a large number of their friends, many of whom were in Peterborough yesterday for the first time. The praises of this town had often been sung by those who were born or raised here, and this had its result yesterday in inducing them to visit the town to see for themselves the town about which so much had been said.

Mr. John Braden, the vice-president of the Association, was one of the number of Old Boys to come home.

SUCCESSFUL CLOSE TO FOOT GUARDS' VISIT.

A Banquet Closed the Most Pleasant Visit the Regiment Ever Had.

Scene at the Station Last Night—Yesterday's Entertainment was an Enjoyable One.

"The best trip we ever had!"

In this manner the Commanding Officer of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, characterised the visit of the regiment to Peterborough. The men, since their arrival here on Sunday morning till their departure last night at ten o'clock, had apparently enjoyed themselves, and if indications count for anything, the assertion referred to above would seem to express the feelings of those constituting this regiment.

Yesterday was another day given over to pleasure on the part of the visitors, and they apparently enjoyed the day to the full.

In the morning the men of the regiment were taken on the steamer "City of Peterborough" for a trip, which was intended to have included a trip over the Lift Lock, but this feature of the trip had, unfortunately, to be abandoned. The outing, however, was enjoyed, and the men expressed pleasure at the entertainment provided.

In the afternoon the 57th Band engaged a steamer and took the members of the Foot Guards Band on a trip down the river, while the non-commissioned officers of the 57th entertained the non-coms. of visitors.

During the afternoon the officers took cabs and had a drive around the town, and went to the Wolfe street wharf, where they embarked on the steamer in waiting, and went around the Little Lake, and up through the first lock, where they again disembarked and took the cabs and drove to the Golf Club House, where they were entertained to a five o'clock tea by the ladies of the club.

After the tea the drive was continued back to town, and a banquet at the mess rooms closed the day's proceedings. The mess room was very tastefully decorated for the occasion and presented a very pretty appearance.

Those who sat around the festive board were: Surg.-Major Halliday, president of the Mess; Lieut.-Col. Roper, commanding officer; Majors Taylor, Bate and Winter; Capt. Surgeon Kidd, Capt. Quartermaster Rothwell; Major Robinson, of the 21st Regiment, attached; Captains McLean, Graham, Cunningham, O'Hara and McLaren; Lieuts. Prince, Alexander, Bate, Ross and Chrysler; Sergt.-Major Mahoney, Bandmaster Brown, Quartermaster Sergt. Birtch, Staff-Sergt. Firth, Drill-master Cawardine, Staff-Sergt. Donaldson, Staff Sergeant Thoburn, of the Foot Guards; Lt.-Col. Miller, Commanding Officer; Majors Stevenson, Hayes and Denistoun, Captains J. C. Davidson, Chaplain; Cluxton, Clegg, Mills, McWilliams, Hounsell, Bennett and McPherson, Captain and Quartermaster Eastwood; Lieutenants Wilson, Langford, Amys, Hamilton, Smith, Higgins, McLean, Watt, Glover, Gemmell and Comstock, of the 57th Regiment. Col. H. C. Rogers, Col. J. Z. Rogers, Col. Edwards, Capt. W. C. Ackerman, Major W. Hall, Serg.-Major Young, Mr. D. Hughes-Charles and Rev. Father McColl.

The first toast after that to "The King," was one to "Our Guests," proposed by Surg.-Major Halliday, who spoke of the pleasure it gave the local regiment to entertain their visitors, and hoped they would make a return trip some time in the near future. Col. Roper replied, on behalf of the visitors, and said that the Foot Guards to a man had thoroughly enjoyed their visit to Peterborough, and characterized it as the best trip they had ever taken. They would long remember the two days spent in Peterborough.

A solo by Capt. O'Hara was next followed by a recitation by Lt.-Col. Miller, and after solos by Major Denistoun and Lt. Prince, the latter of the Foot Guards, the toast to the 57th Regiment was proposed by Col. Drury in a neat speech, to which Lt.-Col. Miller replied, reiterating the words of the chairman as to the pleasure the 57th felt in being honoured with the visit of the Guards. Rev. Father McColl was called upon for a speech and responded, speaking briefly in a happy view. A recitation by Capt. O'Hara and the singing of a mess song, "The Bold McIntyre," closed a most enjoyable evening.

The Regiment then fell in and marched to the C.P.R. station, where they took train for home, the train leaving about 10.30.

The platform at the station, and the street up to Dalhousie, was crowded with townspeople who were bound to make the visitors feel that were welcome. The train pulled out amid the cheers of the crowd, and the visit to Peterborough of the Foot Guards was at an end.

BURIAL OF VON PLEHVE.

Attended By the Emperor and the Dowager Empress—Czar Was Visibly Moved—Murderer in Prison.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—M. Von Plehve, late Minister of the Interior, was buried yesterday, and in every city and hamlet of this vast Empire church bells were tolled and masses and prayers said for the repose of the soul of the murdered Minister. The services were of an impressive and imposing character. At 1 o'clock yesterday morning high mass was said in the stately chapel adjoining the Ministry of the Interior. Emperor Nicholas and the Dowager Empress stood with the widow and children of the Minister at the foot of a great mound of flowers, on which rested the casket.

The Emperor was visibly moved, and upon the conclusion of the mass he followed the casket, which was taken upon the shoulders of the ministers and borne down the broad marble staircase to the street. The body was placed in a great white open hearse drawn by six black horses. A black-garbed groom stood at each bridle, and in advance went sixteen similarly clad lantern bearers. The Emperor walked a short distance, but as the Novedevichy monastery, where the burial took place, was over five miles, he soon returned to the Peterhof Palace. It is the custom in Russia to walk at funerals. The sidewalks along the route were crowded, but lines of police kept the streets clear. Fifty thousand people watched the procession.

The murderer of M. Von Plehve has been removed from the hospital to the Wyborgsky prison. The police decline to reveal his alias, on the ground that it might defeat the ends of justice.

Father of Assassin Arrested.

Helsingfors, Finland, Aug. 1.—The father of Eugene Schaumann, the assassin of Gen. Bobrikoff, Governor-General of Finland, has been sent to St. Petersburg under an escort of gendarmes.

Prof. Gummerus of the University of Finland has been exiled to Russia, being the fourth professor from this institution to be exiled since the murder of Gen. Bobrikoff.

Nothing is known here of Leglo, the alleged name of the assassin of Minister Von Plehve, though rumors are afloat that he was here three weeks ago.

Count Ignatieff Plehve's Successor.

London, Aug 1.—A special despatch from St. Petersburg to The Agence Russ says that Count Ignatieff will succeed the late M. Von Plehve as Minister of the Interior.

Nicholas Paulovitch Ignatieff was born at St. Petersburg in 1832, and entered the guard when seventeen years old. Later he was appointed military attache to the Russian embassy in London, and in 1858 was sent on a special mission to Khiva and Bokhara. In 1860 he was appointed Russian ambassador at Pekin, and ambassador to Constantinople in 1864. He was appointed Minister of the Interior under Alexander III., but was dismissed in 1882, though he remained a member of the Council of the Empire. He has since been conspicuous as a leader of the Pan-Slavic party in Russia.

Pitiful Helplessness.

Victims of nervous diseases are most to be pitied because their ailment usually terminates in mental or physical helplessness. Paralysis, locomotor ataxia and insanity can only be avoided by building up the nervous system at the first signs of trouble and there is no preparation so well suited for this purpose as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great nerve restorative.

Another British Bye-Election.

London, Aug. 1.—Joseph Chamberlain's prestige has sustained another damaging blow from the Oswestry election, where a Liberal free-trader was returned for the first time. Oswestry lies within the electoral zone known as the Birmingham sphere of influence, and is the first seat to be won by the Liberals within that sphere. The Unionist candidate was a Chamberlainite protectionist. Chamberlain wrote him a strong letter of recommendation.

Shooting at St. Louis.

East St. Louis, Ill., Aug. 1.—While Deputy Sheriff Louis Burke was making an arrest Saturday night, Wm. McLaughlin, a packing strike sympathizer, interfered and Burke drew a revolver and shot McLaughlin, killing him instantly.

A short time later two unidentified negroes employed by the packing houses to take the place of strikers, became involved in a quarrel with Otto Swartz and Bud McCandless, striking employes. One of the negroes fired several shots, and the white men were badly wounded.

WHAT WOMEN SHOULD KNOW.

That the cause of a great deal of suffering, usually supposed to be on account of female disorders, is overcome by ANTI-PILL, the discovery of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt.

A great amount of womens' ailments are caused by the food that is taken being turned (through improper digestion) into poison instead of nutrition. This poison carried by the blood throughout the system, makes weak women—women who are hardly ever well—nerves in dreadful condition—limbs ache, back aches, head aches—billious, constipated. ANTI-PILL, the Great System Treatment, will correct these troubles—it starts its work by making a well stomach—it insures strength to weak women—It is harmless at any stage or condition of a woman's life, and there is no time ANTI-PILL cannot be used with safety. Any woman who cares to may use a bottle of ANTI-PILL free from any expense. If satisfactory results do not follow its use, mail us wrapper with name of druggist from whom purchased and get your money back by return mail. Wilson-Fyle Co., Niagara Falls, Ont. A month's treatment for 50 cents.

RAILWAY COMMISSION.

Several Rulings Which Cut Railway Freight Rates Given Out.

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—The Railway Commission has given out several decisions. In the matter of Scobill vs. the Kingston and Pembroke Railway Company, the latter is enjoined against charging higher freight rates on cedar timber and its products, such as fence posts, ties, telegraph poles, etc., than on other timber and the products thereof of like description, and the railway is ordered to revise its freight tariffs accordingly, so that the tolls on cedar lumber, cedar posts, etc., shall not be higher than on pine, hemlock and other kinds of lumber, poles, etc.

An order is also being issued that Canadian freight classification No. 12 is to be amended so that rails, fence posts, telegraph poles and ties of all descriptions, which are now carried by Canadian railways by special contract only, shall be added to the list of commodities which are included in the term common lumber, and are classified 10th class in carloads.

In the case of the Sutherland-Innes Company and the Wallaceburg Cooperage Company, manufacturers of cooperage stock, at Wallaceburg, Ont., and other points, it is ordered that the railways must carry cooperage stock at the same mileage tariff rates as common lumber; and further that coperage stock from Wallaceburg, etc., to Montreal, be carried, in carloads, at the rate of 16½ cents per 100 pounds for local delivery, and 18 cents per 100 pounds, including Montreal cartage and port charges when for export. The present rates are 18 and 19½ cents respectively.

In the case of the Sydenham Glass Company of Wallaceburg, Ont., who applied to the Commission for relief in connection with shipments of glass bottles in carloads, railways are directed to reduce their rates to the following basis, namely:

To London, 8 cents per 100 pounds.
Toronto, Hamilton and Berlin, 13 cents.
Montreal, 23½ cents per 100 pounds, exclusive of cartage.

The present rates are 18 cents to Toronto, 19 cents to Hamilton and Berlin, and 25 cents to Montreal.

RAILS FOR TEMISKAMING R. R.

Soo Mills Ask For Contract and Commission Is Considering.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—The Temiskaming Railway Commission held a session on Saturday at which a proposition was made on behalf of the reorganized Lake Superior Company of Sault Ste. Marie to supply the steel rails for the remaining portion of the Temiskaming Railway to be constructed to the junction with the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific. J. K. Drummond of Montreal, appeared on behalf of the Soo Company and assured the commissioners that it would be able to supply the required material.

Robert Jaffray, chairman of the Commission, stated that the proposition was under consideration, and the Commission would make known its decision at a later date.

OLIVER BELZ IS DEAD.

Toronto Leap-the-Gap Performer Succumbs at Buffalo.

Toronto, Aug. 1.—People who a fortnight ago were watching the performance of "leaping the gap" at Hanlan's Point will regret to learn that Oliver Belz, the young fellow who made a rather sensational debut at the game, has had his adventurous career cut short by death.

Belz was injured at Crystal Beach, near Buffalo, on Wednesday, the wheel slipping over the runway, precipitating him some 40 feet to the ground. He received a depressed fracture of the vertebrae, and was partially paralyzed. He died on Saturday morning.

Killed By a Train.

Woodstock, Aug. 1.—Robert Watson, residing on the Puslinch side of the town line, of East Flamboro, met with an untimely end Saturday afternoon. He was crossing the C. P.R. track when the train struck him, and threw him off to the side. His neck was broken. The deceased was 83 years of age, and nearly a long life resident of Puslinch. He leaves a large family.

Cholera Infantum.

This disease has lost its terrors since Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy came into general use. The uniform success which attends the use of this remedy in all cases of bowel complaints in children has made it a favourite wherever its value has become known. For sale by all druggists.

Press Is Almost Ruler.

George Meredith, the father of contemporary English letters, has been giving vigorous expression to his opinions on current affairs. Regarding journalism, he says:

"It is most likely that practical journalists, like practical politicians, will have to go largely on opportunist lines. Though most of my work has been imaginative, I have done a certain amount of journalism, and I recognize its difficulties. But it has extraordinary power, too, and great opportunity for fine influence. It almost has taken the place of government.

"It is true that the editorials in nearly all the newspapers have fallen off very much, only quite recently, in power and character. I don't know what the reason for that is, but still newspapers have very great influence.

"The powers and functions of Government are undoubtedly diminishing. I don't know whether we shall reach the time when there will be no Government at all, as some people hope, but certainly that is the tendency. Tyranny, which is the complete form of Government, has been tried and proved to be impossible. We shall never have that again unless democracy betrays itself."

Going for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Don't put yourself in this man's place, but keep a bottle of this remedy in your home. There is nothing so good for Colic, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and Diarrhoea. It is equally valuable for Summer Complaint and Cholera Infantum and has saved the lives of more children than any other medicine in use. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

You, or some one of your family, are sure to need this remedy sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly; you will need it quickly. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? Price, 35 cents.

SYSTEMATIC HOUSEWORK.

Try to Arrange a Time and a Place For Everything.

In all your work be systematic. Have a time and a place for everything. Adopt the best methods. Teach the children early to help by the regular performance of daily tasks. Require order and neatness, beginning with the "wee toddler." Cook simple foods—few kinds at one time, but always deliciously prepared and daintily served. Use substantial foods and fruit, avoiding pastries and highly seasoned dishes. Vary the bill of fare. Insist upon the best homemade bread—the more good brown or oatmeal bread the better. Make clothing simply, using good garments. Have all the conveniences about the house you can afford, but never live beyond your means. Have none but durable and useful furnishings. Discard all trappings and draperies that are simply for ornament. Use plenty of water internally and externally. Good food, pure water, fresh air and sunshine are cheaper than doctors' bills and superior to any patent medicine. For success study your housekeeping as you would any other business. Make of yourself a ray of sunshine under all circumstances, remembering that a happy home is the only paradise on earth.—Woman's Home Companion.

DRESS HINTS.

Shoe laces if slightly rubbed with wax will not come untied.

Wash enameled shoes with sweet milk, wiping with a dry cloth. This gives them a good polish and will, it is said, preserve the leather from cracking.

A gown is no better than its lining. That means that clothes are like houses. They must have the best of foundations if they are to present a good appearance.

White waists and dresses that have turned yellow from lying too long or from careless washing may often be restored to their original whiteness by dipping in boiling water in which some cream of tartar is dissolved, then rinsing thoroughly.

A woman whose wardrobe includes a number of gowns in delicate hues keeps these dainty frocks in a large closet set apart especially for them. The dress skirts and silk petticoats are inclosed in wide bars of white or cream cotton goods.

Yellow and White Bedroom.

For the wall have white paper decorated with large yellow roses and the ceiling covered with a white moire paper to continue down the wall about two feet and finished where the drop ceiling ends with a narrow white molding. To cover the floor any light carpet may be used, or, for summer, matting will be found clean and cool. The dressing table and chairs should be white, and either a white or a brass bedstead could be used. The pretty flowered muslin spread for the bed should be made with ruffles, and ruffled white lawn curtains should be tied with large bows of yellow satin ribbon hung at the windows. A pretty cushion for pins is made in the shape of a large yellow rose. This makes a dainty room for a young girl.

An Important Adjunct.

It may seem a bit strange to place the seat of beauty in the stomach, and yet the fact remains that if one indulges in edibles that are too rich or not sufficiently nourishing the complexion will soon induce wrinkles. If the stomach be empty, there is a gnawing inside which is very productive of wrinkles, and pain of any kind will bring them into the face very quickly. Do not neglect the stomach. Keep it nourished and comfortable. Take something before going to bed if you are inclined to be delicate in body. Do not think that the stomach is unimportant.

For Hot Dishes.

The housekeeper who cannot have a zinc covered kitchen table will find several squares of hard wood an inch in thickness and about five inches across a great convenience for setting hot dishes on. The wood should be sandpapered and each block have a screw eye with which it is hung under the ledge of the table.

Poorly Rehearsed.

"What is your favorite opera?" asked the young woman who was trying to make conversation.

Mr. Cumrox looked startled.

"I can't say," he answered. "My favorite poem is 'The Recessional,' and my favorite painter is Rembrandt, but I forget what mother and the girls told me to say my favorite opera is."

ALL RELATIONS SEVERED.

The French Government's Brief Note to the Papal Authorities.

Paris, Aug. 1.—The note severing the relations between France and the Vatican was couched in the following terms:

"After having on several occasions pointed out the serious blows struck at the Government's rights under the concordat by the Vatican, dealing directly with the French bishops, without consultation with the power with whom the concordat was signed, and seeing that the Pontifical Secretary of State, in his reply of July 25, affirmed those proceedings, the Republican Government has decided to conclude official relations which, at the Holy See's desire, has become objectless."

Trolleys Collide.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 1.—By an accident Saturday night on the Rochester, Charlotte and Manitou Railroad, a trolley road running from Ontario Beach, a distance of about 11 miles, thirteen persons were seriously hurt, three or four, it is feared fatally. The trains came together at full speed. Among those hurt is Anna Blakeley, Madoc, Ont., whose right kneecap was torn off and ligaments crushed; leg will have to be amputated.

G.T.R. Fireman Killed.

Hamilton, Aug. 1.—Arnold E. Stonehouse, a fireman on the Grand Trunk, died in this city Saturday night from injuries received by being struck by an express train at Burlington. The unfortunate young man, who is about 25 years of age, while he was standing on one track watching a C.P.R. express pass, going to Toronto, a G.T.R. express from Toronto struck him. On his arrival here he died.

Ottawa Loses 10 Hotels.

Ottawa, Aug. 1.—On Saturday night ten hotels in Ottawa shut up shop as the result of having the licenses cut off in conformity to the bylaw passed by the City Council reducing the number of licenses.

Found Baby's Body.

Toronto Junction, Aug. 1.—While Charles Oakes, a C.P.R. conductor, was walking across the vacant lot between Hoskin avenue and Victoria streets, which adjoins the C. P. R. property, about 1 o'clock yesterday, he found the body of a small child lying in a cluster of weeds. The remains were those of a new born female child and were wrapped in an old apron. Dr. Clendenan will hold an inquest.

Will Run For Presidency.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 1.—In a telegram received here Saturday, Thomas E. Watson of Georgia states that he will accept the nomination for President, recently tendered him by the national Populist convention.

ECZEMA ON LEG FOR TEN YEARS.

Would Scratch Till the Blood Flowed—Entirely Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. Hiram Frey, Norwood, Ont., states:—"I was troubled for ten years with eczema on one leg. The itching was terrible, and when scratched the blood would come. The doctors could not cure me. Fortunately I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and its persistent use has completely cured me. There is now no trace of the disease left.

My little girl two years old, has also been cured of Eczema by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Her face was a mass of sores and we had to bandage her hands to keep her from scratching it. To-day her face is clear of even the scars which the ugly sores made, and she is thoroughly cured. I am glad of an opportunity to let people know what a blessing Dr. Chase's Ointment has proved itself to be."

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box. 9

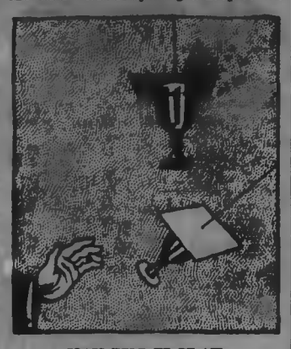
A FRAGILE PENDULUM.

How Air Pressure Will Hold Up a Glass of Water.

You know of course that if you fill a tumbler or goblet to the brim or a little above the brim—for you can "pile up" the water a little bit by pouring very carefully—and then press a large card down tightly on the top of the filled glass with one hand, grasp the glass with the other and turn it upside down you can take away the hand that holds the card without spilling a drop of water. The card will stick to the edge of the glass as if it were glued there, and it will hold up the glassful of water.



GLASS HELD UP BY AIR.

You know, too, that it is the pressure of the air that supports the card and the water. The air presses upward on the lower face of the card with a force of fifteen pounds for every square inch of surface, and as the top of the glass measures five or six square inches there will be a pressure of seventy-five or ninety pounds to hold up the card and water, which weigh only about half a pound.

It is only the size of the mouth of the glass, not the size of the whole card, that counts, because on the outside part of the card the air presses up and down with equal force and so has no effect.

Now, as the force of the air is many times stronger than is needed to lift the water, suppose we make it lift something else in addition, say the heavy glass.

To do this press the card on the full glass as before, but instead of inverting the glass lift up the card by two opposite corners. If you are very careful and the card is very stiff you may succeed in lifting glass, water and all in this way, but the card is apt to bend and let in a little air somewhere, which of course spoils the trick. Here is a better plan.

Make a little hole in the middle of the card, pass a cord through the hole, make a knot on the end of the string close to the card and stop the hole tightly with a drop of sealing wax. Now, if you press the card on the glass of water carefully you can lift the whole affair by the cord, and if you fasten the other end of the cord to a hook the curious pendulum will swing a long time if you cautiously set it going.

It is best to rub a little grease on the rim of the glass to make it fit the card perfectly and adhere slightly, and it is advisable to experiment with a cheap glass in a place where water may be spilled without damage.—New York Mail.

When Sea Birds Drink.

Did it ever occur to you to wonder where the sea birds get the water they drink—sea gulls and the many other kinds that fly miles and miles out over the ocean? You know they cannot drink the sea water, for that is salt, and sometimes they are too far from land to reach any fresh water streams.

So what do you suppose they do? They follow the rain clouds and catch the drops as they fall. They are able to scent a storm many miles away and will hurry after it with the most remarkable speed.

But when there are no convenient storms about the birds sometimes go days and perhaps weeks without any water at all.

Origin of "Greenbacks."

The popular term "greenbacks" for speaking of paper money is said to have been first used by the Hon. Salmon P. Chase, who was secretary of the treasury during the civil war.

The green tint used on the reverse side of the notes was first produced by a Canadian and is invaluable, as it cannot be easily photographed or counterfeited.

The money in circulation in the southern states during the war had a blue design on the reverse, and these notes were commonly called "blue-backs" to distinguish them from the northern issue.

The Scarlet Tanager.

A very interesting bird is the scarlet tanager. The main body is bright scarlet, with black tail and wings. In the winter it stays in central and northern South America. It feeds upon larger insects, also seeds and berries. The nest is put loosely together with twigs and bark, being lined with the finer inner bark and rootlets. The eggs are three or four in number, greenish blue, marked with faint brown. It is usually found in oak groves.

THE DINING TABLE.

How It Should Be Protected to Preserve Its Beauty.

A handsome, polished dining table is a prize and worthy an effort to secure, but if it is to be left to careless treatment one might as well put the expense into something else and be satisfied with a cheaper table. A hot dish thoughtlessly allowed to stand a few minutes leaves a perpetual stain. It can be made less noticeable by various treatments and much rubbing, but it will never be entirely obliterated. The wooden or straw mats used years ago are never seen on well set tables. The crocheted white mat occasionally appears, but does not really protect the wood. The only actual protection is by a tile on feet or a nickel rack for tea and coffee pots and asbestus mats for platters and hot dishes.

To make an asbestus mat or dolly cut a circle of linen and two half circles with the selvage for the long straight edges. Put together the edges of the two half circles. The edges should match neatly. Baste round and make the edges in scallops with a small spool as a guide. Work the scallops in button hole stitch with mercerized floss or embroidery cotton, but never with silk, and then trim. Now slip in a round piece of asbestus cloth through the opening on the under side and the asbestus doily is complete. To launder, slip out the piece of asbestus. Do not add more embroidery, as the dish covers the center. Oblong mats to fit the platters are cut by using a smooth edged platter as a pattern for marking. Use medium weight white linen.

A FATAL THEORY.

It Is Dangerous Work Marrying a Man to Reform Him.

Next to the fatal theory that every woman must love is the equally mischievous doctrine of woman's love. One of the greatest and the cruelest delusions practiced in this world is that which leads us to make a generous and enthusiastic woman believe that she can change a man by loving him. It is what induces a woman to marry a man on trust instead of on appraisement. She never looks at what he is. She only contemplates the miracle that she is going to work by her affection. If he has no money, no business training, no way of making a living, it doesn't matter. She is sure that people in love are never hungry anyway and that her love will inspire him with financial sagacity. If he drinks, it doesn't matter either. She is anxious to make a Keeley cure of herself. If he has a past, she shuts her eyes to it. She knows that he will never sin again when she places her little hand in his, and it is only after she has brought misery on herself that she finds out that the efficacy of a woman's love is a fairy story and that as a reformatory agent it isn't worth a row of pins. You can't love a lazy man into being industrious or a drunken sot into sobriety, and that is all there is to it.—Twentieth Century Home.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Never leave medicine, drink or food uncovered in the sick room.

For ringworm apply with a feather one part of sulphuric acid to twenty parts water.

A lemon cut in half and rubbed occasionally across the forehead or temples will in a short time cure the most violent headache.

It is asserted that the very painful burns caused by carbolic acid can be quickly relieved and blisters prevented by the prompt use of iodine.

Powdered charcoal, if laid thick on a burn, causes the immediate abatement of the pain. A superficial burn can thus be healed in about an hour.

Vinegar and cooking soda in solution are said to make a capital cure for warts. If the wart is kept moist with it for ten minutes several times a day it will disappear in the course of a week or so in ordinary cases.

$500 Reward For Women Who Cannot Be Cured.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

"I used four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mrs. Elmer D. Shearer, of Mountjoy, Lancaster Co., Pa., "and can say that I am cured of that dreaded disease, uterine trouble. Am in better health than ever before. Everyone who knows me is surprised to see me look so well. In June I was so poor in health that at times I could not walk. To-day I am cured. I tell everybody that Dr. Pierce's medicines cured me."

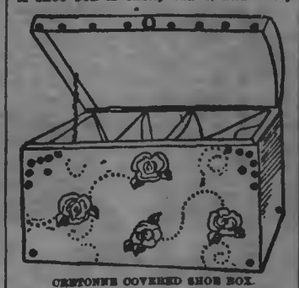
BOX FOR SHOES.

It Is Easily Made and Helps to Preserve One's Footwear.

Women as a rule are not particular enough about the care of their shoes. These important articles of dress should not be thrown about the room or thrust carelessly into a closet, but each pair should have its own compartment in a specially provided box. A shoe box is easily made, and every woman should have one. Cretonne, that old favorite, is never really crowded to the background by newer fashioned fabrics, although some seasons it may not be as conspicuous in draperies and box coverings as in others. The latest style of shoe box shown in the accompanying illustration is covered with cretonne in deep cream and pink tones and serves the double purpose of use and ornament. The interior, as is indicated, is divided into compartments suited to different varieties of footwear, and the lining matches the prevailing tone of the outside.



CRETONNE COVERED SHOE BOX.

A Strong Cement.

A strong cement which may be used for mending stone jars, stopping leaks in kettles, to fasten in lamp tops and for all sorts of other purposes is made of glycerin and litharge made to the consistency of thick cream. This cement will resist the action of hot and cold water and is well adapted for the mending of all sorts of things which are intended for use as well as for ornament and therefore are supposed to be fit for hard wear. The one point to be remembered is that the cement takes a long time to dry. So after the repair has been made it is well to set the jar or whatever it may be away on a shelf for a week or more that the cement may become perfectly hard before it is used.

Emergency Bag.

An emergency bag is in reality a collection of compartments which the mother of a young family will do well to keep where it can be got at readily. In one all the soft, wornout linen handkerchiefs should be tucked. Another may contain absorbent cotton. Cord of varying thickness is neatly rolled up in balls in another, and one tiny pocket contains court plaster as well as sharp little round bladed scissors to cut it with. A rolled bandage or two of sterilized gauze, and then she is ready for any of the cuts and bruises which come into the daily experience of romping, healthy youngsters.

The Glass Teapot.

The glass teapot finds considerable favor among expert tea makers. These pots come from England. They are of stout tempered glass and are delicately trimmed with bands of silver. Beside the pot itself a hollow ball of silver rolls about and by prompt acceptance of the heat of the boiling water prevents the glass from cracking. The charm of the crystal pot lies not wholly in its beauty, but in the fact that the tea maker can see just what she has on hand and the strength thereof.

Cleaning Knives.

The German fashion of cleaning knives is much simpler than ours and saves much manual labor. Take a stout cork, dip it into the knife powder, which must be previously moistened. Place the knife flat and rub it with the cork. In a few seconds the knife will be quite clean and polished and only requires wiping with a duster.

Bread and cake bowls or any dishes in which flour and eggs have been used are more easily cleaned if placed in cold water after using.

If hairbrushes be cleansed daily and the scalp massaged the hair and head will keep clean much longer.

Never use cornmeal to cleanse a carpet, as it will attract vermin.

WASHING DISHES.

The Right Way to Go About Doing This Disagreeable Task.

The dirty dishes and plates should be put into a dish tub of warm water at once when taken from the table. By this means half the trouble of washing them will be saved, as it will prevent the gravy juice, mustard, etc., from cooling and drying on the plates and dishes. When you commence washing them add sufficient boiling water to make it very hot and with a dishcloth or mop wash on both sides, one at a time. Then rinse in a pan of hot water or under a running tap. This makes them clean and bright looking and removes any little grease that might remain. Now put them in a rack or on one side to drain; then polish them.

The saucepans and pots which have been used for cooking should be cleaned next. The proper plan is to fill them with warm water as soon as the food has been taken out of them, and whatever may hang about the sides cannot stick or dry on hard, and they will clean much more easily. Clean the insides with soda, and if very dirty the soda should be boiled in them. They should afterward be well rinsed with boiling water and made perfectly dry by being placed upon the kitchen range. Pay attention to the rims of saucepans and the rims and insides of the lids.

If tin saucepans are not completely dry they will soon get rusty, and if copper ones are not perfectly cleaned and dried they are apt to become poisonous. Never leave food of any kind in a saucepan to become cold.—Pittsburg Press.

For the Hair.

When the hair is dry and dandruffy the following lotion used every other night will be found beneficial: To four ounces of rose water add half a dram each of sulphur, glycerin and borax. This will clear the scalp of dandruff and prepare it for the new growth of hair. While the head is in the abnormal condition indicated by the presence of dandruff the hair will neither be glossy nor of a good color nor will there be a healthy growth of new hair. There need be no anxiety over the falling of the hair unless it falls to excess provided new hair keeps on appearing, but no head of hair is so rich and luxuriant that it can stand indefinitely being depleted even by one hair a day if there is no corresponding gain to balance the loss.

Flower Holders.

A set of lead flower holders is a good investment. Four constitutes a set, three side pieces with four or five holes each, and a triangular center piece. The side pieces bend easily to fit any shape of vase, and as few pieces may be used at a time as desired. Set in a bowl of water the flowers are fitted into the holders and arranged in graceful lines. For long stemmed flowers the holders are excellent. When flowers are very expensive a few may be made to go a long way in table decoration by their means.

Scorch Marks.

To remove scorch marks bake an onion, then squeeze out the juice and mix it with an ounce of fuller's earth, a wineglassful of vinegar and a small quantity of shredded soap. Heat together till the soap has melted, leave till cold and then apply to the scorched linen. Let it dry on and then wash in the usual way.

VISITING TEAM DEFEATED.

T. A. S. Won Yesterday's Lacrosse Game in Easy Fashion

I. C. B. U. Team of Toronto Beaten by a Score of 12-3—Large Crowd Saw the Game.

The T.A.S. lacrosse team added another victory to their string yesterday afternoon by defeating the I.C.B.U. team of Toronto, in easy fashion by a score of 12—3. The game was witnessed by several hundred spectators including many supporters of the visiting team. The boys in red and black were in fine form and went right in to win from the drop o fthe hat and the result was never in doubt. The losers put up some fair lacrosse in the last quarter, but were up against a better team in all departments of the game. The combination of the winners was very effective and asia rule accurate, and though there was some wild shooting on goal from apparently easy chances, the boys kept Ryan busy with their shots.

The game was the most gentlemanly exhibition of the season, not a man on either team being even warned for anything approaching rough play.

All the winners played well and are deserving of credit for their good work. McGrath's playing at centre was a source of great strength to the home, his great speed and daring rushes being responsible for several of the tallies. The defence showed up well when hard pressed and refused to be drawn out.

The line-up was as follows:—

I. C. B. U.	T. A. S.
Goal.
Ryan	Boyle
Point.
Corkery	Mahoney

Referee—R. M. Glover.

The ball was faced shortly after 3 o'clock by Rev. Dr. O'Brien. The T.A.S. went right in to win at the start. The score by quarters is as follows:

First Quarter.

T. A. S., McGrath, 3 1-2 min.
T.A.S., H. Donovan, 5 min.
T.A.S., F. McCoy, 3 min.
T.A.S., Judd, 3 1-2 min.

Second Quarter.

T.A.S., H. Donovan, 5 min.
T.A.S., L. McCoy, 2 min.
T.A.S., H. Donovan, 1 1-2 min.
T.A.S., F. McCoy, 2 min.
T.A.S., Parnell, 2 1-2 min.

Third Quarter.

I.C.B.U., McDonald, 3 min.
I.C.B.U., Smith, 2 min.
T.A.S., McGrath, 1 min.
T.A.S., F. McCoy, 4 min.
I.C.B.U., Sauvex, 5 min.
T.A.S., Parnell, 1 min.

Only three-quarters were played. The I.C.B.U. is playing in the intermediate series of the Toronto Lacrosse League and stands tied for first place.

The grounds were in very poor condition for a lacrosse game, the long grass and a growth of weeds preventing the players at times from finding the ball, and as a result the game was at times ragged. It's up to the grounds management to "make hay while the sun shines," and clean up the grounds for future games.

BOWLING-ON-THE-GREEN.

The Grand Duke sees spots on the sun.

The sun took on a very yellow tinge at the Brookside Lawn yesterday, and at least to the somnolent fascinated weary eyes of Grand Duke Alexie Kerr and his volunteer fleet of Kur-o-pats, Sawe-offs and Padreweskis, it seemed composed of nothing but a gay assemblage of the yellowest kind of yellow sun-flowers, a flower that unknown generally to mankind, vies with the ox-eyed daisey and the red pickling cabbages, for modesty.

The Yellow Peril downed the Cream-of-Tarter Rans to the modified Bryan-ic tune of 13—to 8.

The Grand Duke was only permitted to have three glimpses of sunlight and then only for the briefest possible moment—in perambulators at that.

The Nit-akis had mined the lawn with lemonade. This distracted Togo Johnsing's attention and he made some very erratic blockade running, and made Nodsu Moore so indignant that he failed in certain flanking movements, hence permitting the Siberians to get into the open as afore said.

Oku Kernaghan's name is changed to O. K. Kernaghan (subject to digression in future.)

Field Marshall The Yang-Ste-Kiang Kurocky Frost was a Lift Lock Picture, as with one eye on the lemonade and the other vainly endeavouring to encompass as much of the horizon as was not hidden from view by feet (which were not cold,) he directed the operations against the Siberians.

The Yellow Peril await with unruffled equanimity the next onslaught of the remaining 1,689,616 combinations possible against them.

TOOL MAKERS AT JUBILEE POINT.

A Successful Excursion Conducted on Saturday.

The excursion of the employees of the C. G. E. tool room on Saturday was an entire success. The boat being unable to get away on time disappointed the excursionists for a while, but this was soon forgotten after the dock was once left behind. All hands settled down for a jolly good time, which they had with the aid of Messrs. Sam Stewart, and T. Reutsch, both popular tool room comedians.

The boat reached Jubilee at five p.m., and immediately the ball game was called by Umpire Howell, and was much enjoyed by the spectators. The game resulted in a victory for the single men by 8 to 3. The young ladies particularly were overjoyed, and showed their appreciation by giving the boys a grand tea, for which the latter returned hearty thanks. The boat left at 7.30 p.m., and reached Peterborough at 10.30.

The day was brought to a close by everyone on board singing "Old Lang Syne." A hearty vote of thanks was also extended to the committee for their kindness, and the success of the first excursion—which they intend to make an annual affair—is largely due to the committee in charge, which was composed of S. Stewart, D. Holt, and T. Reutsch.

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

Features of Market as Told by Special Wires.

New York, Monday evening, August 1st.—The whole market was exceedingly strong under leadership of Met. M.R. is going much higher and would stay long of it and not take profits till we tell you to. A.C.P. was also strong. Barring unforeseen accidents it should sell sixty before 50. T. C. I. and C.E.I. showed good advances and are going higher. Would hold on for much higher prices. Lead is a purchase near 20. It is certainly good for at least 10 points. To-day's advance may be followed by another reaction to-morrow, when stocks should be bought. The bull market will not culminate before Sept. The low and medium priced stocks are the best purchase and R.I. should approach 29 and Tex about 32. Wheat will go much higher. — Wall Street Information Bureau.

New York,—U.S.Q. should work higher. The condition of trade is improving. Keep long of some Atch. and buy Penna. and St. P. conservatively. The low priced Gould shares on crop conditions should be bought. Specialties. Saratoga is bulling A.C.P., B.R.T. and A.C.P. —Joseph.

Liverpool opening, wheat 1 higher; corn 1-4 higher.—since Friday.

New York.—Stg. Exchange easier, Cons higher on buying for both accounts Bullish crop news.

New York,—Labour Commissioner Wright does not expect coal strike. Penna. June earnings gross Dec. lines east of Pittsburg. $1,050,300 net inc. $196,900. Western traffic managers report a general increase in business. Russia suffers further serious reverses in far east 25 roads for June show avge net Dec. 2.09 p.c.

There seems to be a condition on the part of those responsible for yesterday's moderate improvement, that they can induce the short interest to cover further to-day because of the comparative scarcity of stocks and the professional character of the market, which has become over sold by the too enthusiastic bears who would not take small returns. We do no believe any substantial advance will occur and hold at present any still recommend the trading position. The tractions should continue strong, but we would not neglect small returns on the long side in Met. It should be purchased on reactions. A. C.P. can be put higher. This is a specialt smarket and upon the assumption of activity in specialties, they should be taken hold of. The damaging reports from wheat sections deter us from advising the purchase of the grangers at present. As we have said the big short interest in U.S.Q. always make it liable to be oversold, but we cannot enthuse on the bull side of it, although it may go a little higher on this rise.—Topics.

TAKING A LOOK INTO AUGUST

A Lively Forecast

August is the month to make a dollar do duty for two at the Golden Lion. As the ranks of the summer goods get thinner the prices get slighter and slighter.

Savings rampant all over the store. Here is a woman buying a Skirt that she has been longing for two months, and it costs her half what it would two months ago. Here is a prudent one buying three Skirt Waists at their reduced prices and tucking them away for next winter.

That is the "how" and "why" of August bargains here. The low prices will make it very easy for you to finish out the summer with a new Hat and other new dress accessories, for there is a sharp cut in every department of Fair's.

If we're not making money we're making friends. Doing lots of business with little money in it; but clearances are absolutely necessary. That's how we look at it. The extraordinary values we will offer this month will attach many friends permanently to the store.

It costs quite a little to pick and store away odds and ends that accumulate at the end of a season's business, and it ties up a lot of capital, too.

Is it any wonder, then, that this progressive store wants to save all such items of expense, and that we are willing to lose our profits for the sake of a clean stock and the ready money.

Now is the time. This is the month that the price ticket speaks loudly at Fair's.

ONE DEFENCE FALLS AFTER HARD FIGHT.

Russians Lose Shantaikow After Three Days' Struggle.

JAPS HAVE MANY SUCCESSES.

Crisis of the War is Apparently Begun—Kuroki Takes Strong Positions and Some Guns—Fight Near Port Arthur—Vladivostock Squadron Reports on the Sinking of Steamers.

Tokio, Aug. 3.—It is reported here that after three days of desperate fighting the Japanese have captured Shantaikow, one of the important defences of Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—General Kuropatkin reports that the Japanese have occupied Ikhavuen (east of Liaoyang) and the Yangse Pass (30 miles east of Liaoyang).

Tokio, Aug. 3.—After two days' fighting General Kuroki has defeated the Russian forces in two separate actions fought at Yushulikzu and the Yangse Pass. The Yangse Pass, or Yang Se Pass, is situated 30 miles east of Liaoyang. The Russian army engaged there is generally known as the eastern army, and was commanded by the late Lieut.-Gen. Count Keller, who was killed by the explosion of a shell.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—It is officially announced that the Russians have fallen back from Yangse Pass, but are holding their positions on the Saimatsza road, and at Haicheng Monday.

Liaoyang, Aug. 3.—After a fierce battle the eastern Russian force has evacuated Ygantaculing (six miles west of Motien Pass).

OUTFLANKED BY NODZU.

Newchwang, Aug. 2.—Gen. Fukushima arrived here this morning, having marched up from Port Dalny. The Japanese here are confident that the reported capture of Haicheng by their troops is true. They say the Russians there probably were outflanked by Gen. Nodzu.

OKU CAPTURES HAICHENG.

Newchwang, Aug. 2.—Rumors are current in Chinese quarters that General Oku captured Haicheng yesterday afternoon. They cannot, however, be verified.

NEARING HAICHENG.

Haicheng, Aug. 2.—The battle raged the whole day July 31 along the southern and eastern fronts. The Japanese advanced with overwhelming forces, flanking the Russians on their right. The losses of the Russians, however, were slight. The Seventeenth Siberian Regiment drove the Japanese out of one position.

KUROKI HAMMERS THE ENEMY.

Tokio, Aug. 2.—Gen. Kuroki has administered a severe defeat to the Russian forces which defended the Russian east flank at Liaoyang, winning separate actions at Yuskulikzu and Yangse Pass. These two places are 26 miles apart, but the two actions were fought at the same time. The Russians held strong positions. The thermometer registered over 110 degrees Fahrenheit and the soldiers suffered cruelly from heat exhaustion.

At Yuskulikzu the Russians had two divisions of infantry and some artillery, and they resisted the Japanese assaults vigorously. Both attacks were begun at dawn Sunday, July 31. At Yuskulikzu the Japanese carried the Russian right and left wings, but on account of the strength of the main Russian position they were unable to press the attack. The two armies rested Sunday night, facing each other. At dawn on Monday the Japanese resumed the attack, and by noon they had dislodged the enemy and had driven him four miles to Laoholing.

At Yangse Pass also the Japanese were successful. The artillery opened on the enemy and the infantry moved forward from Makumez. The attack on this place was made at 1 o'clock on Sunday, and by nightfall the Japanese were in possession of a majority of the Russian positions, altho the enemy had resisted with determination. The Japanese force passed the night in battle formation and another assault was made on Monday at dawn. By 8 o'clock Monday morning Yangse Pass and the surrounding heights had been captured.

Gen. Kuroki explains the slowness of these actions by saying that the difficult topography of the battlefield made it impossible to secure good artillery positions, and the great heat fatigued his troops.

The Russian force at Yangse Pass was estimated at two and one-half divisions and four batteries of artillery. The enemy retreated toward Tanghoyen. Gen. Kuroki reports the capture of some field guns, but the number is not given. The Japanese casualties are being investigated.

SAKHAROFF'S REPORT.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—Gen. Sakharoff, under date of Aug. 1, reports obstinate fighting in the direction of the Saimaissa-Liaoyang road, July 30 and July 31, the Russian vanguard retaining its position until Aug. 1, when it retired to Yangse Pass.

During a reconnaissance in the direction of Fengwangcheng, July 30, Gen. Sakharoff reports that two officers and 34 men were wounded, and on July 31, during a reconnaissance in the direction of Laokhautsia, two officers were killed and one officer and twenty men were wounded. The same day, when the Japanese occupied the pass between Yanshukan and Houtsiatsee (25 miles from Liaoyang), five officers and 40 men were wounded.

Gen. Sakharoff also says: "The enemy is acting undecidedly on our south front."

WHAT HAPPENED AUGUST 2.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—The Japanese and Russian reports seem to agree on the main points of the military developments up to Aug. 1, but both stop short at the interesting point, namely, regarding what happened on Aug. 2, when it is possible that a decisive struggle was going on east and south of Liaoyang.

It is evident that the Russians abandoned Yangse Pass, falling back on Liandiansian, a strong defensive position in the hills 24 miles southeast of Liaoyang. Gen. Kuropatkin admits that there were heavy losses along the Saimatsza-Liaoyang road, July 31. The official account indicates that altho the Russians withdrew their advanced posts, Kuropatkin hoped to be able to hold his main positions even in the face of the superior Japanese force, and that he evidently expected heavy fighting along this line, probably about Anping. This battle possibly was proceeding Aug. 2.

Meanwhile a serious enveloping movement of three Japanese divisions was maturing around the Russian left at Haicheng, where there already was heavy fighting on July 31.

WHY THEY WERE SUNK.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—In a lengthy telegram to the emperor Vice-Admiral Skrydloff relates the doings of the Vladivostock squadron under Rear-Admiral Jessen.

With the cruisers Rossia, Gromboi and Rurik, Admiral Jessen left Vladivostock July 20. After sinking a small Japanese vessel the cruisers held up the British steamer Camara, but let her go.

A Japanese coasting steamer was next met, but "as most of her 50 passengers, were women, we determined to release her."

Two Japanese schooners were sunk. Then Admiral Jessen fell in in quick succession with the British steamers Arabia and Knight Commander. "The Knight Commander only stopped after the fourth shot," the admiral reports. Her cargo being railroad material, "undoubtedly contraband for the belligerent party, and not being able to bring her to the nearest Russian port, owing to her not having enough coal, without manifest danger to the squadron, we sank the Knight Commander, after taking off all her crew and removing her papers."

Two more Japanese schooners laden with salt were then sunk.

ST. PETERSBURG GLOOMY.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—The feeling at the war office here was distinctly gloomy this morning. No official telegrams had been received by the general staff from Gen. Kuropatkin, who was communicating direct with the emperor, but from private sources at the front it already was apparent that Simoucheng (fifteen miles south southeast of Haicheng, at the junction of the Fengwangcheng Siuyan roads), had been lost, Gen. Stakelberg's outposts having fallen back to Haicheng.

RUSSIANS REPORT A JAPANESE DISASTER.

A Dispatch From Chefoo Says That 20,000 of the Japs Were Lost.

Attack on Port Arthur, According to Russia, was Unsuccessful—A Fierce Battle.

Chefoo, August 3. — A desperate three days' assault on the inner defences on the northern and eastern sides of Port Arthur has failed. A Russian states that the earth trembled under the terrific cannonading which began on July 26, and ended during the night of July 28, when the assault ceased. A Chinese who has arrived here on a junk, confirms the Russians' statement that the Russian killed and wounded during the assault number between 5,000 and 6,000. The Japanese in their repeated assaults against the eastern forts on the hills, through barbed wire entanglements, and over the mines, displayed fanatical bravery. They were mowed down by the hail of shells and bullets and the explosion of mines under their feet. Their losses are estimated at 20,000. The Russian declares that his countrymen held all the eastern forts leading to Golden Hill, and that the Japanese, shattered and exhausted, retired to the eastward.

SUMMER COLDS

Produce Chronic Catarrh.

Madame Isabella Ellen Bavess.

Madame Isabella Ellen Bavess, Lady Governor Grand Lodge of Free Masons of England, in a letter from Hotel Saratoga, Chicago, Ill., says:

"This summer while traveling I contracted a most persistent and annoying cold. My head ached, my eyes and nose seemed constantly running, my lungs were sore and I lost my appetite, health and good spirits. Doctors prescribed for me all manner of pills and powders, but all to no purpose.

"I advised with a druggist and he spoke so highly of a medicine called Peruna, that he induced me to try my first bottle of patent medicine. However, it proved such a help to me that I soon purchased another bottle and kept on until I was entirely well."... Madame Isabella Ellen Bavess.

Summer colds require prompt treatment. They are always grave, and sometimes dangerous. The promptness and surety with which Peruna acts in these cases has saved many lives. A large dose of Peruna should be taken at the first appearance of a cold in summer, followed by small and oft-repeated doses. There is no other remedy that medical science can furnish, so reliable and quick in its action as Peruna.

Address The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book entitled "Summer Catarrh," which treats of the catarrhal diseases peculiar to summer.

DUNDONALD AND HIS "FRIENDS"

No man ever came to Canada to enter into official relations with the Canadian Government, as representatives of the Canadian people, with brighter prospects, than Lord Dundonald, and perhaps no man of equal prominence ever so thoroughly destroyed his usefulness, and discredited his great name. He was capable of doing excellent service in reorganizing the Canadian militia. No man ever had better material to work upon, and if he had confined himself to a regard for his appointed responsibility, and a loyal observance of the definite relations with his employers, his presence in Canada would have resulted less unpleasantly than has been the case. In a moment of pique he made statements and charges against the Government, in a way, and with a temper, that could not be overlooked, hence the necessity of dispensing with his services. It was for him to recommend measures looking to the improvement of the militia, and the defence of the country, and it was for the Government to accept, or decline, his recommendations, as in their judgment the interests of the country suggested. Lord Dundonald's course in breaking with the Government because his recommendations were not accepted, was not any too dignified a course. But this course was lofty in its character compared with his plunging into party politics, and permitting his pique, or wounded amour propre, to lead him to lending himself as a figure-head, to a political clique, which has made the most of its opportunities, in making Lord Dundonald a tool in their hands to make party capital against the Government. Lord Dundonald made certain charges, and when asked by his employers for an explanation, he took the wrong course. Instead of placing his lengthy defence in the hands of the Government, he placed it in the hands of one of the most bitter opponents of the Government. By this action, he at once exhibited a most discourteous disrespect for his official superiors — his employers — and became an ally of a partisan clique, which has exploited him from one end of the country to the other as an appendage of the Conservative party machine. He made charges, and they were denied, and, as to their substantial character, disproved, but that did not prevent the party from making use of Lord Dundonald. In like manner the member for Manitoulin made charges against a Minister; these charges were categorically denied and completely disproved upon thorough and impartial investigation. Yet that did not prevent the baser elements of the Conservative party from exploiting as a hero the man whose contradictory stories in the witness box and his suspicious actions discredited his own charges, and parading him about the country. Curiosity attracted as large crowds to Massey Hall to see and hear this man as those which greeted Lord Dundonald in the same place. There is no intention, Heaven forbid, to place Lord Dundonald and the member for Manitoulin upon the same plane in person and character, but there is a striking similiarity in the positions they occupied—both made the tools or instruments of promoting party interests. The exploiting of both Dundonald and Gamey by the Conservative party is a mere party move and the apparent share of the public is largely accounted for, in one case, by sympathy with the career of a distinguished soldier, and in the other by curiosity respecting a political freak. If Lord Dundonald and his real friends regret his having fallen into such questionable company he and they have to thank the members or rather manipulators of the party who to serve partisan ends have used him as as an instrument. His military experience and his training as a soldier should have taught him a greater exercise of the caution characteristic of his countrymen. Lord Dundonald has rendered great military services to the Empire. He ranks as a star of the first magnitude and while he was content to shine in his true orbit all was well, but the moment he listened to evil advisers, and attempted to mix military administration with party politics, disaster came. He may claim that a section of the press has rather severely criticized him, but all the criticism employed, even had it been ten times as severe, would not have done one-tenth of the injury to his reputation, which has resulted from a political party taking advantage of his impulsive temper, to drag him through the dirty pool of party politics to serve sordid party ends regardless of how a great name name might be besmirched or the interests of Imperial relations and the harmony of Canadian citizenship might be injured. Lord Dundonald has acute reason to exclaim "save me from my friends," for none of those whom he wrongly may regard as his enemies, has struck him so unkindly a blow as that delivered by his questionable "fiends." If Lord Dundonald had shown more diplomacy—more elasticity in his counsels he would have accomplished a great good to the militia of Canada, which he has learned could not be accomplished by too positive and self-assertive methods. Canada will accept advice, but not dictation. The people of Canada through their representatives to whom they have delegated authority, are the best judges of what money should be expended for purposes of military preparation and defence.

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT ALERT.

The charge made by the late General Officer Commanding the Canadian militia, that the Liberal Government is indifferent to the interests of the militia, is not very well sustained by the facts. It is a matter of opinion as to what length our military expenditure should go — it is for the people of Canada to decide what they shall contribute to military preparations. The Conservative party, or a section of it, claims to be the champions of the militia. Their good faith is to be fairly measured by what that party did when it was in power, and could do something more than talk. Without going into detail, it may be mentioned that it is a matter of very recent history, that when the Conservative Government was in power, the militia was shamefully neglected—money not being forthcoming for even the annual drill. Even the clothing, and other supplies, for the militia, was made under that Government by sweat shop methods. The Liberal Government has developed the militia, and doubled the expenditure of the Conservative Government. A day or two ago it was announced in the House of Commons that a start had been made in the direction of developing a naval militia. A day or two previously Sir Wilfrid announced that he had taken steps to assert Canadian sovereignty over Hudson's Bay. It is therefore apparent that there is little weight in the charge of Lord Dundonald—who has permitted himself to be made a catspaw by the Conservative ward politicians — that the Liberal Government is indifferent to the interests of the militia and of Canadian defence. Lord Dundonald "recommended an immediate capital expenditure of twelve million dollars, together with an increase of two million dollars per year, making in twenty years, for militia and defence, an increase of not less than fifty-two millions of dollars." Here is an amount sufficient to complete ten Trent Valley canals, or make needed improvements, which will tend to develop Canadian resources, and add to the wealth, power and influence of Canada in a way that no military expenditure could do. Yet, because the Government did not rise to this modest proposition, did not jump like a trout at a fly, the servant of the Government, under salary, like any Government employee, took occasion to publicly denounce his employers, and commit the cardinal sin of a soldier, insubordination and disrespect for his superiors. He took a course which made his dismissal a necessity. He came to Canada a hero of South African, and other campaigns; he left Canada the hero of a group of political partisans.

SCOTCHMEN WANT ONLY SIMPLE JUSTICE.

Resent Exploiting Lord Dundonald for Party Purposes.

Woodstock, July 30.—At last night's meeting of Camp Edinburgh, Sons of Scotland, the following resolution was passed unanimously after a vigourous discussion: "Moved by James Weir, seconded by Robert Anderson, that Camp Edinburgh, No. 95, Sons of Scotland, while deeply regretting the circumstances which led to the recent retirement of Lord Dundonald from the command of the Canadian Militia, and while recognizing the right of every Canadian to hold and express his individual opinion thereon, and while fully appreciating also the distinguished services of Lord Dundonald to the Empire, services of which all Scotchmen, in common with all Britons, have a right to be proud, we nevertheless strongly deprecate the systematic and persistent attempts that are now being made for political party purposes to excite the resentment of Scotchmen because of Lord Dundonald's retirement, and this Camp protests that such attempts are dangerous to the peace and good-will among all classes of Canadians and are likewise an insult to Scotchmen and to sons of Scotchmen, whose traditions and history show that they expect only equal rights with their fellow-citizens, and that while always ready to approve and support full justice justice and fair play to a brother Scot, they would scorn to ask more than this for anyone, however, worthy, who may have erred, whether that error has been from the head or heart."

RETURNING TO HIS NATIVE HEATH.

Mr. Edward M. Taylor, of St. Louis, Mo. on his Way to Peterborough.

The Woodstock Sentinel Review says of a former Peterborough man:—

Edward M. Taylor, a well-known commission merchant of St. Louis, Mo., spent yesterday and to-day in the city and this evening he will leave in company with Mr. Waud, manager of the Molsen's bank, for the quarters of the Rice Bay Fishing Club, where he will be a guest of his friend, James Canfield, Mr. Taylor is a native born Canadian, Peterborough being the scene of his boyhood days. When but a young man he went t othe west and for forty-four years he has been a resident of St. Louis and like many other Canadian boys, who went west in the sixties, he has prospered and grown with the country. Before returning to his home Mr. Taylor will visit Toronto, Port Hope and Peterborough. In the last-named place he will await the arrival of his eldest brother from Wellington, New Zealand, whom he has not seen in nearly fifty years. The brother referred to was at one time a resident of Ingersoll and will no doubt be remembered by some of the older residents of that town as "Ned" Taylor.

Speaking to the Sentinel-Review Mr. Taylor said that he was amazed to find the change and growth that had taken place in Woodstock since he last visited it forty-four years ago. He thinks it one of the cleanest, brightest and most prosperous looking little cities he has ever visited. The abundance of shade trees he very much admired, and clear, sparkling water that springs from every tap, he thought to be the greatest blessing that nature could bestow. He said that if the people of St. Louis could procure such water in such quantities it would be worth millions to the city. Concluding his conversation Mr. Taylor said: "Yes, Woodstock is an ideal city in many respects, and it must be a pleasant place in which to spend a few weeks, but I would advise to arrange their arrival for some other day than a Sunday. When I stepped off the train on Sunday morning I was surprised not to find a hack or bus or a wheelcon any kind, and I had to work my way up town the best I could; and this is not easy job, particularly when one does not know where he is going and has no means of finding out. It was a case of going it blind. However, I finally got located at one of the hotels and then came trouble number two—no means of getting my baggage from the station. It seems that people are too religious here to draw a trunk on Sunday. You know after travelling all day on the cars in this hot weather a fellow doesn't care to separate himself from his baggage for any longer than was really necessary. However, I got my trunk up this morning twenty-four hours after it reached the depot, so I suppose I shouldn't kick too much."

Cordasco Deposed.

Montreal, Aug. 3.—As a result of Judge Winchester's investigation into the importation of Italians, which cursed Montreal last spring, they changed their methods of engaging these foreign laborers. Antonio Cordasco, "King of Italian laborers," who was shown at the investigation to have made such handsome profits out of employment of Italian immigrants for the C. P. R., has been deposed, and Mr. Spencer, of the C.P.R. staff, will, in future, look after the Italians for the road.

Case Was Dismissed.

Stratford, Aug. 3.—King vs. Mrs. Wilson. The defendant was charged with attempting to poison some cattle belonging to her neighbors, Mrs. Hodge and Mrs. Vivian, of Mitchell, by sprinkling Paris green, mixed with salt, on the roadway near her house at the west end of the town, where the cows were feeding. Judge Barron found the defendant not guilty and the case was dismissed.

$70,000 station For Sydney.

ALGOMA CROPS ARE LOOKING WELL.

Farmers of Algoma Expect This to be a Banner Year.

Haying Will Soon be Completed—This Crop the Best for Years—Roots and Vegetables.

The following article from the Sault Ste. Marie Daily News is reproduced with a view of correcting an erroneous impression held by many persons that the portion of country through which the Algoma Central Railway runs is worthless:—

While Algoma is not particularly known to fame as an agricultural district it is nevertheless a fact that the farming industry is carried on to quite an extent along the north shore of Lake Huron and with a success that gives promise of developing the country into one of much importance in that respect. Nature has been especially favourable to the farmers hereabouts this year and in the matter of crops a banner season is looked forward to. A growing season that was somewhat late in coming has been characterized by the most favourable weather and all crops are looking better now than they have for many years past. As a result the farmers are naturally highly elated and unless the weather takes a decided change for the worse, record harvests will be gathered in. But even should the weather become unfavourable from this on it could not do any damage to Algoma's principal agricultural product, for that is now being stored away safely in the barn and in stacks, it being hay.

One of the prominent farmers of the district said yesterday that this year's crop of hay is the best he has ever seen in this country and he has harvested many. It has grown thick and high and the yield averages between two and three tons per acre. The weather has especially favoured the hay crop as there has been plenty of rain and sunshine to be followed after the maturing of the crop by a good "haying time." Sixty per cent. of the land under cultivation in the neighbourhood of the Soo is given to hay as the farmers have found such to be more profitable. The yield is always good and there is scarcely ever any danger of the weather interfering with it as would be the case with other crops. The question of a market is the farmer's least trouble. Good prices can be obtained in the Soo and thousands of tons are brought in annually while there are thousands of acres in the district waiting to be put to use.

Grains are not grown extensively in Algoma. In the townships adjacent to the Soo there is only one man who grows corn to any extent, and he is ever in fear of the early frost that prevents others from attempting it. Some barley is grown but not regularly, it being sown as a late season crop. Buckwheat is in the same class.

Oats constitute the principal grain and the crop in this section is more than ordinarily good this year. Indications are that the yield will average from 25 to 30 bushels per acre. This is better than last year. Rust is what the farmers fear with their oat crops, but in the fields there is yet no sign of that. The weather man has provided sunshine and rain in their proper proportions and the rust has not made its appearance.

Peas are also good and will compare favourably with the other crops. A particular feature about the peas grown in Algoma is that there are no worms in them. Whole fields could be gone through and not a worm found, while in other parts of the country these enemies spoil a good portion of the crop. The absence of worms is a feature that the agricultural community appreciates very much. The experts are still figuring out the cause for it.

In roots and vegetables Algoma leads the world. It was Algoma potatoes that captured first prize at the World's Fair in Chicago, and they have not failed to take awards wherever they have been shown since and they are at every big fair in the Dominion. The East Algoma Agricultural society holds diplomas awarded at the Toronto Exhibition for competitive displays of roots and vegetables. The crops are this year quite up to the average. A long winter made the season rather late in arriving and the potatoes were late in going into the ground, but they have been doing well since and while they will not be exceptionally good the farmers hope with reason for a good yield. Other vegetables are doing well.

This is not a fruit district, although it has been demonstrated that nearly all kinds of fruit can be grown here, including grapes. Fruit, however, takes so much care that the farmers have found it more profitable to devote their time to other lines of work and buy what they want in the way of fruits. However, a number of the St. Joseph island farmers are the growers of excellent orchards and there are also others along the north shore.

On the whole the season so far has been a good one and the growth good, so that unless the late summer brings a setback this will be the best season from the farmers' standpoint there has been for many years.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DIED IN THE SHAFT

A Shocking Accident at the Shakespeare Mine.

SIX MINERS GO DOWN TO DIE

After An Explosion, Before the Gas Had Time to Disperse, They Descended the Ladder, and Dropped Successively to Their Death—Manager MacMillan and Engineer Reid Were Victims.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 3.—So far as loss of life is concerned the most disastrous mine accident New Ontario has ever had occurred yesterday forenoon at the Shakespeare Mine, near Webbwood, east of here. Six men are dead as a result of it, including the manager and chief mine engineer. Their names are:

Death in the Gas Fumes.

The heavy casualty list was caused by fumes gathering at the bottom of the mine shaft, following upon a blast. The shaft is 10 feet deep and perpendicular. Ladders are used for ascending and descending. The men who went down to their death in the morning either did not know of the condition of the shaft or thought there had been sufficient time following the explosion for the fumes to pass out.

Evidently these were so heavy that they would not mingle with the air, and the moment the men descending the ladders entered the portion occupied by the fumes they were overcome without even an opportunity to give a word of warning to their fellow workmen following. It was just a succession of men dropping dead off the ladders to the bottom of the shaft all unknown to those on the surface. When the fate of the miners was learned shortly after there was the greatest consternation among those about the mouth of the shaft, the terribleness of the situation being intensified by their inability to attempt a rescue.

No Chance of Rescue.

If there had been any opportunity whatever of getting the unfortunate men out it would have been grasped eagerly, but there was none, and the only thing to do was to wait until the gases in the bottom of the shaft had dispersed. The bodies were taken out yesterday. Coroner Dr. Fisherty will hold an inquest into the cause of death. He inquired yesterday of the advisability of that course and was instructed to proceed. The inquest will likely be held to-day, and Mr. Kehoe will go down to represent Crown Attorney J. J. Kehoe for the Crown.

Immediately after the receipt of word of the accident, J. B. Miller, a prominent member of the company owning the property, former Manager Captain McKenzie and Joseph Webb went from here to Webbwood. The people of the Soo are taking a deep interest in the particulars, as Mine Manager MacMillan was up to a few days ago a resident of the town. It was only a week ago that he was appointed to the position. He formerly managed the Mikado mine in the Lake of the Woods district, and had previous experience in South Africa. He leaves a wife and two children, who went from here to Webbwood last Wednesday to make their home with him.

Fell 20 Feet, May Die.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—Early yesterday morning a young Englishman named Arthur Wheeler, employed in Hon. E. J. The ladies and Dr. John Burwash jumped and saved themselves. The chancellor went over with the vehicle under the horses' heels. He was badly shaken up, and had nine stitches put in his hand. Dr. John Burwash had his shoulder dislocated by jumping.

Heavy Man Drowned.

Kingston, Aug. 3.—George Zeigler, sr., a retired brewery employe, went to Lake Ontario Park yesterday forenoon, and in the afternoon his lifeless body was found in the water. He was a heavy man. The Way of Servants.

Subbubs—I see Cashman has announced himself as a candidate for governor. Citiman—Yes; he declares it is his "great ambition to be the servant of the people." Subbubs—Servant? What! Doesn't he mean to keep the place if he gets it?

Whist.

She—Do you really enjoy whist, Mr. Finesse? He—Do I enjoy it? Not at all, madam; not at all. I play a distinctly scientific game.

RECRUIT UNION DESERTERS.

Most Pushers Have Largest Live Stock Receipts Since July 12.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Declaring the strike broken and that the working force has been recruited by more than 1,000 men and women, many of whom had deserted the union cause, the packers yesterday began operations with the largest receipts of live stock that have reached the stock yards since July 12, when the strike began. There were 15 cars, carrying 25,000 cattle, 35,000 hogs and 17,000 sheep, in the day's shipments from the west.

Assertions that the strike is broken were scouted by the strikers as absurd.

1,200 Workmen Rendered Idle.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Twelve hundred workmen at the Pullman car works have been laid off since June 1, because of lack of orders. Half a dozen departments of the big plant are idle.

Discriminated Against Unionists.

Lebanon, Pa., Aug. 2.—Seven hundred members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers struck at the Lebanon plant of the American Iron and Steel Company yesterday. They charge discrimination because of union membership.

No Strike.

Scranton, Aug. 2.—It is assured that there will be no strike.

Britain Both Protest.

London, Aug. 2.—Answering a question propounded to the Government, the Under Foreign Secretary, Earl Percy, said in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, that Foreign Secretary Lansdowne had instructed Sir Charles Hardinge, the British Ambassador at St. Petersburg, to protest to Russia against the inclusion of foodstuffs in the list of articles declared contraband, and with regard to cotton it is claimed that it should only be treated as contraband when destined for the manufacture of explosives.

Tolstoi's Son a Volunteer.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—Count Tolstoi's son is leaving for the front as a volunteer in the 217th (Kromy) Regiment of Infantry.

To Leave Black Sea.

London, Aug. 2.—The Sebastopol correspondent of The Times asserts positively that the entire Russian volunteer fleet now in the Black Sea, with other large steamers, which have been taken over by the Government, are under orders for Government service outside the Black Sea at an early date.

Stubborn Skin Diseases.

Nothing is more discouraging than a case of eczema or salt rheum which refuses to heal. By using Dr. Chase's Ointment, however, you will soon see that new skin is forming and the sore part is becoming smaller and smaller. The itching is entirely overcome after a few applications and you are given satisfactory evidence that a continuation of the treatment will bring a thorough cure.

Murderous Rage of An Engineer.

Kingston, Aug. 2.—James Brown, an engineer, who, in a rage, fired several shots from a revolver at J. Babcock, is under arrest. While drunk he bothered Babcock, who put him on the walk. Then Brown with a revolver peppered away at Babcock, but with no effect. He is to be tried to-day.

May Succeed Von Plehve.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—As Von Plehve's successor as Minister of the Interior, M. Krist, the Governor of Moscow, is now prominently mentioned.

Celebrated Emancipation Day.

Windsor, Aug 2.—The streets were filled yesterday with colored people of this town and the surrounding country, who come here to celebrate Emancipation Day.

Sir Percy in England.

London, Aug. 2.—(C. A. P.)—Sir Percy Girouard reached Southampton yesterday by the Walmer Castle.

Thieves Use Chloroform.

Beamsville, Aug. 3.—Monday night burglars entered the house of Jacob Hoffman, about two miles south of Beamsville. Going straight to the room occupied by Mr. Hoffman, they chloroformed him, tying a handkerchief soaked with the anesthetic over his face. While he was unconscious from the effects of the drug the intruders made a most complete job of the ransacking of the whole house. Until Mr. Hoffman recovered from the effects of the drug the robbery was not discovered. A lady's gold chain, $25 in bills, four cans of fruit and a half dozen cigars were taken.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 3, 1904.

Acknowledgment.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Kidd, wish through the columns of the Examiner, to very gratefully and cordially acknowledge the great kindness they received under all the circumstances connected with their great affliction and bereavement, in the lamented death of their only daughter. Particular gratitude is due Captain Harris, of the North Star, who placed his steamer at the disposal of those who so kindly engaged in the search for the body. Without further particularizing, they wish to most heartily thank one and all for the great kindness shown.

Rochester as an Excursion Point.

Nature has bestowed on the Flower City of Rochester, and its environments, some of the most picturesque sights convenient to our border. Situated so close to our shores it naturally contains many Canadians who have become residents, among whom are not a few well-known Peterborough people. The sail across Lake Ontario in the fine steamer North King, possesses a charm which is a delight and refreshment to everyone on a hot August day. The Oddfellows of Peterborough have made this a popular annual trip on Civic Holiday in the past, and the small outlay of cost doubtless make it always popular. Special G.T.R. train leaves town at 10.45 a.m., and the rate for the round trip by train and boat to Rochester is only $1.80, good for three days. Excursionists may remain over Sunday by paying single fare from Port Hope to Peterborough on return. Every arrangement is made for a pleasant trip. ws

CAPTAIN HARRIS WAS EXONERATED

Verdict of Jury at the Olive Kidd Inquest.

DEATH WAS ACCIDENTAL.

Captain and Crew not to Blame—Jury's Recommendations—The Evidence Heard.

"We, the jurors, sworn to enquire into the death of Olive Kidd, find that she came to her death by accident, falling off the steamer North Star, on the night of July 25th, 1904, and fully exonerate the Captain and crew from negligence in the matter as passengers are not allowed on this part of the boat.

We would respectfully recommend that more secure fastening be provided for the railing, both fore and aft, and that notices be posted up, forbidding passengers to be in these places."

The above was the verdict brought in by the jury at the inquest last night to enquire into the circumstances of the death of the late Olive Kidd. The inquest took place in the Council Chamber before Coronor Gray. The jury was as follows:

C. N. Brown, foreman; W. H. Dayman, W. Salisbury, S. A. Oke, J. W. Butcher, R. McWhinnie, W. Rudkins, F. J. R. Mitchell, W. R. G. Higgins, G. W. Fitzgerald, Wm. Armstrong, J. D. Tully, D. Davidson.

Upon the arrival of the North Star from Rice Lake about 8 o'clock, the jury made an examination of the boat and especially of the bow where the accident occurred, and then adjourned to the Council Chamber.

Mr. R. Davis sworn, said:—"I am inspector of hulls and equipments of steamers. I have an associate who inspects boilers and engines. I inspected the 'North Star' on July 20 and examined the railing on upper deck and at stern. The railing at the bow was not in place at the time. I knew there was a railing for the bow but it had been removed temporarily for the removal of freight. Mr. W. C. Harris is the registered owner of the boat. He was present when I was inspecting. We had no conversation about the bow railing this year. I have not examined the bow rail this year, but did so in former years and know its construction. I drew attention to the fact that it might be stronger, but as it was on a part of the boat where passengers were not supposed to be allowed and as it was frequently removed for the handling of freight, I considered it a hardship to insist on the railing being made stationary. This railing was more for preventing a man falling overboard when about his duties as a member of the crew than for protection of passengers. The railing was formed of piping supported by stanchions, with "T" tops into which the pipes fitted. As I remember there was a space of 2 or 2 1-2 feet between the cabin and end of the railing. Passengers should not be allowed on that part of the boat. It is the duty of the officers of the boat to see that the regulations are complied with. I think the crew would be blameable if a passenger fell overboard, over this railing as there are proper places for the passengers. Notices are often put up forbidding passengers to go on such parts of the boat. We often call the attention of the officer of boats to the necessity of keeping passengers from going in such places. I do not consider it a part of my duty to see that said railing was in place, as the cabin and cabin deck are properly fitted for passenger service. It might be allowable for the bow of the boat to be without a railing, but passengers should not be allowed to go there. I notified the captain verbally to put a hand railing on the stairs. I have not issued a certificate to Mr. Harris. We issue certificates on the return to our offices after being out on an inspection trip. I intended issuing his certificate as usual. A piece of the stern railing was missing, which Mr. Harris promised to have attended to at once. Mr. Harris knows the bow and stern are not intended for passengers. A pipe railing is difficult to fasten in place so that it will not become loose, and for that reason officers should be careful in looking after passengers and preventing them going to parts of the boat not intended for them. There is no written law unless we put it in the certificate forbidding passengers to go on the bow or stern. If the door to the bow is locked passengers would be prevented from going there. We also inspect the life-preservers and other life saving apparatus. We see that the boat is fit for traffic, but no other man visits that boat for twelve months to see that the law is carried out. The law says life preservers must support 15 lbs. of iron, and every life preserver on the boat was up to requirements.

To Mr. Hatton, the witness said: "If the railing was in the same condition when the accident occurred as last year when I inspected the boat, I would consider it safe, and issue a certificate. The stairs leading to the stern deck, is for the use of the crew only. So far as I knew the crew was competent. There should be a qualified engineer, captain, mate, and deck hand. The door leading to the bow should be locked. I was misrepresented in the Kingston Whig to the effect that I would not issue a certificate to Capt. Harris until certain requirements had been furnished the boat."

Thos. Donnelly, sworn, said he was for ten years Government inspector of steamboats, but was not at present. He inspected the North Star when she was first built, and for two years afterwards. He remembered the railing on the bow, stating that it ran around the edge of the bow from one side to the other. The bow was not intended for passengers, and the crew should see that passengers were not allowed there. If the captain warned the passengers three or four times the witness would consider that he had done his duty. He considered Mr. Harris a very careful man, having known him as master for five or six years. The bow would not be a safe place for children: a careful adult passenger might be perfectly safe there.

Letitia Elliott was on the bow of the boat at the time of the accident. She knew the deceased. She did not see her fall overboard. The boat had turned and was coming up the river. She heard the splash when deceased fell. The witness was not warned to keep away from the bow. There were about a dozen at the bow when the accident occurred.

Marion Lyle was also on the bow at the time of the accident. She saw deceased sitting on the anchor post, facing the water. There was no one between her and the water. She did not see her fall overboard but heard a cry that someone was overboard.

Robt. Dormer was sitting at the bow of the boat. He knew the deceased and saw her the night of the accident. He saw the deceased walk towards the side of the boat, and fall over. The boat was stopped as soon as possible. Part of the rail next to the cabin was missing immediately after the accident. He saw the man put up the railing upon leaving the dock. Deceased fell off at the left hand side of the boat. He could not say whether or not deceased put any weight on the railing.

Beatrice Tovey, sworn, said: — "I was on the boat but not with Olive Kidd. I saw her sitting on a post near the railing. She seemed to have one hand on the railing which gave way and she fell forward. I saw her after she fell into the water and heard her shout. She was sitting down when she fell. I was on the upper deck at the time and had been talking to her previously. I think she was holding the piece of railing next the cabin."

Rob. Reed sworn, said:—"I was in the boat and saw the people in the bow. Was in the wheelhouse with the captain. Heard the captain warn people several times to stay off the bow. I heard him warn them at the wharf, crossing the lake and at the locks, and at other times. A person in the wheel house could see the bow of the boat. I also heard the mate warn the people to stay off the bow. I helped the mate put in the railing upon leaving the wharf. We had to hammer it to get it in its place."

R. J. Kidd sworn, said:—"I was on the boat. I am father of the deceased. Was present at the finding of the body. The place where we found it was about 400 yards from scene of accident. Cannot say whether there were any injuries on body."

Other witnesses had been summoned but were not called as they had not seen the accident.

FORMER PETERBOROUGH BOY IS MARRIED.

Nuptials of Mr. William Archibald Porter Wood and Miss Ida Dixon.

The St. Thomas Journal has the following account of the wedding in that city of Mr. Archibald Wood, a former Peterborough boy: "The marriage of Miss Ida Catharine, daughter of the late William Dixon Anderson, to William Archibald Porter Wood, of Toronto, took place at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Anderson, 28 Queen street, on August 1st, at 7.30 p.m. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Young, and was attended only by the near relatives of the bride and groom. The bride was attended by her sister, Dr. Lazelle Anderson, and Mr. J. S. McLean of Toronto, supported the groom. After a trip east Mr. and Mrs. Wood will reside at 194 Ettingham street, Toronto, and will be at home to their friends after October 1st."

A Delegation From the Local Branch Went to Lindsay To-day.

A number of the members of the local branch of the Knights of Columbus, went to Lindsay this morning, at which point they will join an excursion party composed of the members of the Lindsay Branch of the same Order, who arranged a trip around the back lakes, going as far as Cameron Lake.

The party will return to Lindsay to-night, and the Peterborough contingent will arrive home this evening. Rev. Dr. O'Brien and Rev. Father Phelan accompanied the party from Peterborough, which comprised a large number of the local members with their ladies.

WHAT CONSTITUTES CRESCENT STREET?

A Fine Point Being Raised in Connection With the Street Railway.

Railway Company Claims the Tracks are not Laid on That Street—Reasons for This Claim.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, the solicitor for the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, was interviewed this morning by the Examiner, on the question which has occasioned considerable comment recently, viz., the fact that the street railway would be operated on a part of a street which has generally been considered as Crescent street, upon which, according to the franchise, no railway can be run.

There is no very clear conviction that the part of the street between Lake street and the corner of Lock and Crescent streets, upon which the rails are now laid, is Crescent street. By consulting the map of the town it is seen that Lock street continues north of Lake street as well as south of Crescent, and the contention of the railway people is that the whole thoroughfare from the upper end of Lock street running to Little Lake, to the lower end of the street, running past the exhibition grounds, is Lock street, as they claim it would be absurd to suppose that a break would be made in the street, as would be the case if Crescent street started from Lake street.

At the time that the streets were numbered a board was put up at the corner of Lake street calling the intersecting street Crescent street, but it is claimed by the railway solicitor that this fact does not officially constitute that part of the street as Crescent street. The franchise of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, gives that company the right to operate a railway on the streets upon which the old Peterborough and Ashburnham Railway Company operated, consequently since the latter used this street, the new company would have the right to use it also.

The Railway Company has secured from the Privy Council the right to cross the G.T.R. on Lock street, and has started to extend the former line on Lock street to the river, and if they were to be compelled to take up this track and run it down the proposed extension of George street, it would entail considerable additional expense, not to speak of delay.

From the public standpoint, however, it would seem that it would be a great convenience to those wishing to reach the race track and the exhibition grounds, if the railway were to run straight down George street, but that extension has not been made yet, and there is apparently no immediate prospect of its being made.

LABOUR DAY TRIP TO JUBILEE POINT.

The Trades and Labour Council Will Run an Excursion.

The labour organizations of Peterborough will this year depart from their usual method of celebrating Day, and at the last meeting the Trades and Labour Council decided to run an excursion to Jubilee Point Point on Monday, Sept. 5th, Labour Day. They having engaged the whole fleet of the Calcutt Steamboat Line, the steamers City of Peterborough and Water Lily, and the palace barge, and will make a trip to the Point, where a good programme will be held during the afternoon. The sporting events will include a football match between the teams in the City League, for a purse of $25; a tug of war for an equal amount, and 100 yds. foot race, hurdle race, 100 yds.; fat man's race, boys and girls races and others, for all of which valuable money prizes will be offered.

In addition to the sporting events, Mr. Jas. Simpson, of Toronto, President of the District Trades Council, and an eloquent speaker, will be present and deliver an address.

This should prove an attractive day's programme, and one which doubtless a great many persons will be glad to participate in.

Ain't You Glad You Waited?

This is the month that price reductions at Stratton's Bookstore speak loudest, and make you feel glad you waited. The drop in hammocks is one-fifth former prices; in croquet sets, it's a tenth off, and in sporting goods it's twenty off. This is about the way it goes in hundreds of other articles. As the ranks of summer goods get thinner the prices get lighter. A. H. Stratton & Co.

Sons of England's New Trip.

The Sons of England have gallantly joined hands with the Daughters of England in a joint excursion on Civic Holiday, August 16th to Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon. Special arrangements have been entered into with the G.T.R. for an early train to leave Peterborough at 8.35 a.m., so as to connect in Lindsay with the fine steamer Esturion for Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon. The tickets are only a dollar for adults and 50c. for children. This is not a new alliance, so far as parties of the first and second parts are concerned, but it is a new trip for them, and it's going to be a "Rule Brittannia one."

BARRIE FIRE LADDIES WILL COME TO TOWN.

Will Run an Excursion Here on Monday August 8th.

A badge bearing the inscription, "We are going to Peterborough, Civic Holiday, August 8th, with the Barrie Fire Brigade," has been handed the Examiner. It is one of the thousand or more that will be worn next Monday by the excursionists from Barrie, which will, in all probability, be the largest excursion to come to Peterborough this summer.

Last year the Firemen of Barrie went to the Georgian Bay, and took about 1200 persons along with them. This year they calculate that at least 1000 will be on the excursion. They are always well attended, and the town next Monday will be invaded by a host from Barrie, who will make the town lively.

Mr. R. A. Dutton, who is a Barrie Old Boy, has been largely instrumental in bringing this excursion here, and has had charge of the arrangements in connection with the Peterborough end of the trip. An excursion over the Lift Lock will probably form part of the programme arranged.

The town should do something to welcome these visitors, and make them feel that they are not imposing on us by making this town the objective point of their excursion.

ARRIVALS AT THE BARNARDO HOME.

A Party of 116 Girls Come From England on Monday Morning.

On Monday morning a party of 116 girls arrived from England to the Barnardo Home here. These girls, who are all under 14 years of age, and average from 10 to 13 years, were part of a large party sent to Canada from Dr. Barnardo's Home in Enland. They sailed on the Dominion Liner "Southwark," and in addition to the party of girls, over 300 boys came on the same steamer. Mr. Owen, the general agent went over to England to take charge of this party across the Atlantic, and he was assisted by a number of official stewardesses.

Twenty-two of the girls who arrived on Monday, were sent out this morning, the majority of them going to Hamilton, from which place they will be sent out into the country.

Last Night's Toronto News contained a large half tone cut of a portion of the party of boys, who went to Toronto direct, when the greater part were sent to Manitoba to the Barnardo Farm. The new arrivals, both boys and girls, are very intelligent-looking and should make a welcome addition to the population of Canada.

SHAREHOLDERS DECIDED AGAINST ENLARGEMENT.

Proposition to Engage in Sugar Manufacture was Voted Down —Yesterday's Meeting.

The adjourned meeting of Cold Storage & Provision Co. was held on Tuesday afternoon, August 2nd, at 2 o'clock in D. O'Connell's office. The representation was not quite so large as the previous meeting of the 26 ult.; but a much larger representation were there under the Proxy system of voting which the farmers, as stock holders know how to manipulate in order to give their voice on any subject, which may be under consideration. The momentous question was brought forward with great enthusiasm to enlarge the powers of the company in order to tack on the sugar industry, which the farmers, as stockholders had for the past week given consideration. The Pro's and Con's were livelily discussed on both sides as regarding the tacking on of additional expenditures and liabilities, together with the possibilities that might be verified in the future. Also the various technicalities and legalities of a movement of this kind, which had a very thorough investigation. There seemed to be a certain amount of objective ideas in the mind of some that capitalists were not required. Others maintained that it was a farmers' cold storage industry that they were promoting for the handling of their new products and that they had assigned their stock for no other purpose, therefore would not yield themselves into any other kind of corporation than what they had started out with and had been incorporated. After two hours animated discussion the climax of the meeting was reached when the yeas and nays were called saying sugar or no sugar, which culminated in the defeat of the attachment of the sugar industry proposition thus leaving the Cold Storage Provision Co. exactly in the same condition as previous to this proposition, viz: chartered at a capital stock of $300,000; empowered to build both wholesale and retail houses, ware houses, slaughter houses and abbattoirs to carry on the export trade in eggs, poultry, butter, cheese, beef, lamb and pork, together with any products of the farm. So onward marches the cold storage industry to meet the demands of this present age.—Com.

—The fact that in a great majority of cases the uses for which railings on boats are intended, are utterly disregarded, is exemplified by a photo which may be seen in Roy's show case. The photo in question is one taken of the City of Peterborough on Monday morning, just as she was entering the Lift Lock, with the members of the Foot Guards on board. By consulting the picture it will be seen that for fully half the length of the boat on the upper deck men were standing outside of the railing. It is little wonder that with such disregard, that there are accidents. In making this statement there is no suggestion made that in the sad event upon which the inquest was held last night, the use of the railing was abused, but it is simply to call attention to a common disregard of their use on the part of passengers generally. It also goes to prove that nine-tenths of the accidents are the result of carelessness.

CANADA AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

HER EXHIBIT PROVOKES ADMIRATION FROM THE JEALOUS-MINDED.

Horticultural Exhibit Is Second Only to That of California, Which Spent $350,000 Upon It—"Gosh! How Canada Is Spreading Herself"—Forestry, Fish and Game the Finest at St. Louis—Our Economic Minerals.

Canada has reason to feel proud of her display at the World's Fair, not only for the quality and extent of the exhibits, but for the example of brisk business management which the Canadian Commission has shown to a country which plumes itself on its business ability. There is not a State Commission on the grounds that could not take a lesson in promptitude, efficiency, and intelligent contrivance from Mr. Hutchinson and his loyal staff.

Canadian Promptitude.

Everything that Canada had to set up was there on the stroke of the clock. When the Fair opened the Canadian exhibits were in place and ready for inspection. Nothing had to be altered, or removed, or pulled down and put back again. Commissioner Hutchinson's experience led him to adopt a general plan and to stick to it. Where the State Commissions showed nothing but confusion and hesitation, the Canadian Commission went ahead, with such fine results in the way of continuity and harmonious effort that it provoked the admiration even of the jealous-minded. It was impossible for that to happen in regard to the Canadian exhibits which happened to many of the State exhibits.

Poor Kentucky!

Kentucky's is a typical case. Kentucky had appointed a Commission that knew more about politics than it did about World's Fairs. The outcome was that the appropriation was exhausted by injudicious expenditures, and Kentucky had to withdraw her horticultural exhibit altogether and curtail her agricultural exhibit very largely. What money is left now is being spent on the State building, and the social functions that take place inside its walls. Many other State exhibits are incomplete for similar reasons. It might almost be said that Canada was the only nation on the ground that was ready to open out when the band began to play. This is one of the advantages of having an experienced commissioner, assisted by a staff that has been there before. The good example of Canada should teach the United States that expert commissions are the proper thing. The expert commission involves the idea of permanency, and permanency implies that the commission is given time to learn its book and to profit by it.

Advantage in Permanent Commission.

Another advantage of the permanent commission seems to be that better results can be obtained for the money. Any Canadian who takes the trouble to examine the four great exhibits managed by the Canadian Commission—the exhibits, that is, in the Forestry, Horticultural, Agricultural, and Metallurgy buildings—will admit that every Canadian dollar has gone as far as four American ones. Take, for instance, the horticultural exhibit. California spent on her display of fruits alone $350,000; and yet the Canadian exhibit, which got only its share of a modest appropriation, is the next best in that building. Similarly in the Metallurgy building Canada yields place only to Colorado, which spent almost her entire appropriation on that department of industry. In the Agricultural building Canada is first in the character and quality of her display. Missouri is just a little bigger, but what her exhibit gains in size it lacks in arrangement and instruction.

A Land of Performance.

The magnitude of the Canadian exhibits is a moral support to the immigration literature which Mr. Sifton's department sends into the United States. The Americans are aware that many of their friends and kinsmen are leaving the United States for the fertile plains of the Canadian Northwest. This exhibit tells them that the land of promise is a land of performance. The effect on the public mind may be gauged by the remark of an old Hoosier, who had gazed his fill on that wonderful kiosk of grains and grasses which is the centrepiece of our agricultural exhibit. "Gosh!" he exclaimed. "How Canada is spreading herself."

"Canada" and Exhibits.

Commissioner Hutchinson's idea is that it's a good thing for Canada to spread herself at World's Fairs, if she does it in the right direction. The Commissioner does not believe much in signs. A big sign with Canada on it affects an American in one of two ways. Either he is so possessed of the exclusive greatness of his own country that he will not walk across the aisle to look at what goes with the sign; or he feels resentment at the country which is drawing off thousands of his best citizens, and views the exhibit with partisan alarm. In view of all the circumstances, Commissioner Hutchinson thinks it best to make the signs just big enough to assert our dignity, and to let the exhibits do the loud talking. For the rest, he depends on a color scheme of red and gold, by which you may pick out the Canadian exhibit in whatever building you may happen to enter, and he fills in the panels of his pillar decoration with chirpy statistics about the gold and wheat, and cattle and butter and cheese we produce every twelvemonth, not forgetting to mention those things in which we beat the world, and also the fact that something like fifty thousand Americans settled in Canada last year.

Canadian Hospitality.

The loyal Canadian begins his tour of the Fair with a visit to the Canadian building—a homely place, with comfortable verandahs, where people are allowed to sit in the shade and eat their lunches. This makes it one of the most popular buildings on the grounds, for in the State buildings this privilege is not allowed. There seems to be a conspiracy everywhere else than in the Canadian building to drive the Fair visitor to high prices and the restaurants. But in the Canada building everything is free—free chairs and free cushions, free sitting-rooms and toilet-rooms, and a piano that can be played on by whosoever is musically inclined. The water is filtered and the water is free—anywhere else that kind of water is a cent a glass. The soft carpets and the pleasant coolness and the unobtrusive Canadian hospitality are all free to everybody, and no questions are asked. The building is always thronged, for it is on one of the busiest thoroughfares of the Fair.

To Attract the Farmers.

The building is on the road to the Agricultural building, which everybody goes to see, and particularly the farmers. Now, the farmers are the people that Canada wants to attract, and if a tired gcanger and his tired wife drops into the Canada building who knows what may happen? There is a little room at the back of the building, and it is brilliantly lighted. The farmer, being curious, steps in there, and is confronted by an object lesson—a series of pictures illustrating life in the Northwest, the frames composed of the grains and grasses of the country. The pictures show a Northwest farm at various stages of development, from the prairie to the cultivated steading, with the home lot, the brick house, and the green orchard. One of these pictures represents a Northwest settler signing the patrol sheet of a Northwest Mounted policeman, who is on horseback.

Yankee Delusion Dispelled.

"I suppose," said a swarthy old farmer, as he strove to comprehend it, "that that's the downtrodden Canadian paying his taxes to the British soldier."

Whereupon one of the Commissioner's staff who was standing near found it incumbent on him to dispel the delusion which Yankee politicians would keep alive. He explained that we are not an oppressed race, and that more true liberty and better protection to life and property may be found under our flag than there is in the land of the free and the home of the brave.

And so the good seed is sown. The American is impressed with the calm and abiding democracy of the Canadians, not the kind of democracy that finds expression in stilted platitudes, but the kind that displays itself in courteous manners and good works.

Canadian Building Free.

The Canadian building is the first of a series of object lessons. Everything, as I have said, is free. Unlike other State buildings, it is never closed to the public for receptions or social functions. It has no catchpennies. It is the people's house, and the people are allowed to use it without vexatious restrictions. It reads a lesson to the nations of Europe. Go to the British building; you will find there an English accent and a cold stare; all the doors are marked private; the chief object seems to be to keep the crowd out and to maintain a haughty exclusiveness. Go to the Austrian building. Closed. Cardinal Satolli is inside, and needs the whole building to see things. Go to the French pavilion—a pretty place, with a pink marble effect. A notice is posted on the gate—passes must be procured in another part of the grounds, a mile distant. Drop into the Holland building. The only thing worth while is the Vandyck room, for which the Government of Holland charges ten cents admission. Go to Italy—chains across the door—not ready for a week yet. Here is a little palace—Ceylon. The Government of Ceylon is evidently engaged in selling tea—it costs five cents a cup, and Ceylon will make expenses. All this, while the Canadian building yearns for you. The doors are wide open; you enter without money and without price; and it costs you nothing to get out.

Forestry, Fish and Game.

In the Forestry, Fish and Game building Canada has the finest exhibit. California has a better display of polished woods, but Canada excels in general character and scope. The collection of stuffed animals—bears, musk oxen, wolves, and so on—is admittedly the finest at the Fair. The polar bear is a magnificent specimen, just about three times the size of the big fellow at Riverdale Park. Some of the other exhibits in the building derive a great deal of their attractiveness from the products of the Canadian forests. For instance, the central decorative feature of the Winchester exhibit of firearms is a moose head, splendidly antlered. That particular moose was shot by a Canadian in the woods of New Brunswick, and it cost the Winchester people five hundred dollars to make it their own. The colony of beavers, which is a special feature of the Canadian exhibit, draws great crowds. Our national emblems are thriving. Only one accident has happened, and that befell when two of the ferocious males got together and destroyed each other. Put two male beavers together and they will behave worse than a Democratic convention. It is worth remarking that only two railways have had the enterprise to make exhibits in this building, and they are both Canadian—the Intercolonial and the Grand Trunk.

Our Agricultural Exhibit.

But it is on the agricultural exhibit that the Commission has lavished the most pains. It is, as I have said before, the most complete, the most attractive, and the most instructive agricultural exhibit at the Fair. There is a toothsome display of maple sugar, with a sugar bush in small in active operation. There is also a fine display of cheese and honey, which proves to all and sundry that Canada is the land of milk and honey which is mentioned in the Bible. The centrepiece of the exhibit, however, is a huge kiosk made of grains and grasses, artistically conceived and carried out with splendid attention to detail. The kiosk illustrates the products of the country through which the new Transcontinental Railway will run; it also represents the cereal products of the settled lands of Canada from Nova Scotia to British Columbia. It is so well arranged that the casual observer can follow the lesson with his own eyes; and in this way it combines beauty and utility in the most effective manner. The grains and grasses are handled so as to make frames for painted panels which depict the cattle fed on these prairie grasses.

Nature-Sown Grasses.

Mr. Turpin, who is the cicerone, does not fail to impress the questioner that these cattle live on the grasses which Nature sows, and not on grasses sown by hand as in the United States. Another lesson of the kiosk is that wheat can be grown all over Canada; another that cattle can be fed with the best results on peas, barley, oats, and grasses. There are little points of details about the kiosk which will dazzle the beholder, as, for instance, a sample of oats grown in Alberta which ran 140 bushels to the acre. The gold-lettered pillar panels do not forget to press home facts like these, for example—that during the year ending June 30, 1903, forty-nine thousand four hundred and eight settlers came to Canada from the United States.

Best Apples in the World.

The horticultural exhibit, which is second only to that of California, demonstrates that Canada grows the best apples in the world for texture and flavor. Our Northern Spies, our McIntoshes, our Golden Russets, are quite unapproachable. The exhibit is tastefully displayed and carefully kept. No spotted or blemished fruits are allowed to remain on the trays, which is an example that might be followed to advantage by the various States. Mr. Race, the head of this department, states that it is a matter of constant surprise to the visitors that Canada, which they have considered a bleak and inhospitable wild, can produce such splendid plums, grapes and peaches.

Finest Display of Economic Minerals.

Prof. Day, the Government expert at Washington, concedes that Canada has the finest display of economic minerals at the Fair. Neither in extent nor arrangement does any other exhibit in the Mines and Metallurgy building approach it, except that of Colorado, which is intended for a college museum when the Fair is over. The Canadian exhibit are in knock-down cases, ready for some other fair, but only to that extent does the display suffer by comparison. It is a great source of satisfaction to Mr. Broadbent that in the United States, where they make a boast of having the biggest of everything, Canada can show the biggest features in this particular building. We have, for instance, the largest exhibit of minerals of mica, of corundum, of graphite, of nickel ore, of cobalt, and a nine-ton pyramid of iron ore from Londonderry, N.S.

Where Ontario Shines.

Ontario shows the largest mineral map in the building, besides an impressive display of cobalt and silver from Lake Temiscamingue, nickel from Sudbury, gold ore from the Rainy River district, and graphite, corundum, and feldspar from other places in the north country. The exhibit includes coal from the Rocky Mountains and Nova Scotia, asbestos from Megantic, in Quebec, chromic iron from Quebec, silver and gold from British Columbia. A pet feature with Mr. Broadbent is a perfect crystal of sercon, a curious gem embedded in apatite. The United States Government would like to buy it for the collection at Washington, but Canada will not let go. The largest sheet of mica that was ever mined was seven feet long. It was found at Sydenham, Frontenac County, and a section of it is exhibited here. One crystal from Quebec weighs 1,900 pounds.

Yukon Gold Cabin.

The most popular feature of this exhibit is the Yukon gold cabin. It is built of the characteristic minerals of the various Provinces, and is in that respect a well-contrived object lesson for those who are scientifically minded. The cabin is lighted with electric lamps, and behind plate glass and iron bars is displayed a glittering assortment of Yukon gold in grains, nuggets, and bars. The cabin is guarded night and day, for the gold is worth fifty thousand dollars. The idea of the cabin is Commissioner Hutchinson's, who says he is content to leave the scientific part of the show to somebody else, so long as he can run what he calls the vaudeville end. By that he means that he will dig out the happy thoughts which will draw the crowds our way.—H. F. G., in Toronto Star.

Honors Fifty Years Ago.

We learn that Mr. Chief Justice Robinson has received an intimation that it is Her Majesty's intention to bestow upon him the title of Baronet. His Lordship, if we remember rightly, was offered Knighthood in 1837, but declined it. . . . We presume that Mr. Lafontaine, Chief Justice of Lower Canada, will receive the same title as Mr. Chief Justice Robinson. Titles command little respect in this Canada, and in consequence do little harm.—From The Globe of 1854.

His Criticism.

Edmund Burke once showed a painting to Sir Joshua Reynolds, whose opinion he invited. Sir Joshua looked long and attentively at it. "Well," he said, "I really don't know what to say. It's a cleverish thing, but whether there's sufficient promise in it to justify my advising the young man to adopt art as a calling I really cannot say." It was Reynolds' own work, done many years before.

ECZEMA ON LEG FOR TEN YEARS.

Would Scratch Till the Blood Flowed—Entirely Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mrs. Hiram Frey, Norwood, Ont., states:—"I was troubled for ten years with eczema on one leg. The itching was terrible, and when scratched the blood would come. The doctors could not cure me. Fortunately I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and its persistent use has completely cured me. There is now no trace of the disease left.

My little girl two years old, has also been cured of Eczema by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Her face was a mass of sores and we had to bandage her hands to keep her from scratching it. To-day her face is clear of even the scars which the ugly sores made, and she is thoroughly cured. I am glad of an opportunity to let people know what a blessing Dr. Chase's Ointment has proved itself to be."

LUSTROUS LINEN.

Cheap Looking Cloths Will Spoil the Charm of Fine Dishes.

Every woman of refinement loves to be the possessor of a liberal quantity of fine dining room and table linen. To achieve this desire it is necessary to use a great amount of discretion in the collection of her linens and in the care of them after they are collected. There is a pleasure in the possession of fine linens, even surpassing that in possession of fine glass or china, for, no matter how fine the quality of the dishes may be, half the charm is lost when they are placed upon a cheap, gleasy or ill laundered cloth. Then again the durability of really good linen adds greatly to the pleasure of its possessor. Every dollar added to the amount paid for a really fine tablecloth is an economy, for its wearing qualities are increased at a greater ratio in linen than in almost anything else.

A tablecloth measuring two and a half yards and costing $5 will wear three times as long as one costing a dollar a yard. This is not the only advantage to be considered. The quality of the linen shows at a glance the difference between a cheap cloth and an expensive one. The patterns and designs are far more attractive, and there is a fullness as well as a body that adds greatly to the beauty of the cloth when laundered and causes it to hold its own when in use.—Table Talk.

Good for Parsons' Sons.

The old theory that a clergyman's son was calculated to be a "bad egg" receives quite a smashing blow by the statement of the London Commonwealth that "Of the Englishmen whose names figure in our most reliable list of great men, the 'Dictionary of National Biography,' no less than 56 per cent. are sons of parsons. This is rather a tremendous fact."

WOMAN'S WORLD

MME. MADELINE LEMAIRE.

She Earns a Larger Income Than Any Other Woman Artist.

Mme. Madeline Lemaire, as she is always called in French society, is said to earn a larger income by her art than any other woman artist now living, and this is the more remarkable in view of the fact that her best work consists of wonderfully delicate water color paintings of flowers, though she has been, according to some critics, equally happy in fine aquarelle figure work.

Mme. Lemaire comes of a family famed in the annals of French art, and the works of several of her forbears may be found both in the Louvre and in the Luxembourg, while she inherits her delicate talent from her aunt,

MME. MADELINE LEMAIRE.

Mme. Herberlin, who stood among the first half dozen of the French miniaturists of the nineteenth century. Mme. Lemaire was only nineteen when she exhibited at the salon of 1864 a portrait which made a considerable sensation, but she soon gave up oils for water colors, and it is as a water colorist that she is known. Doubtless her artistic triumphs have been, to a certain extent, aided by the fact that she is a very prominent leader of society in the French capital.

House Furnishings.

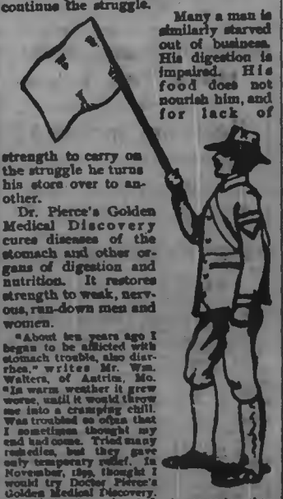
Catharine Markham, writing in the Twentieth Century Home, warns house mothers who are setting up new roofirees against some evils often overlooked in the enthusiasm of moving. Cellars and drains should be especially inspected and the bathroom trapping and sinks given a thorough test. The furnishings ought to be harmonious and in woodwork should be always in simple lines and smooth finish. Carved and tufted furniture, with its weary dusting, is of an era gone by, that tore up bolts of calico to fashion mysterious constellations and miraculous flowers for bedquilts.

Walls ought to be done in solid colors or small figures as an unobtrusive background for people and pictures. Woodwork painted a rich dull black, with paper of some rich solid color, makes living rooms a surprise and an endless charm. Burlap is always a strong, simple and restful finish. Sleeping rooms may be papered with flowered trellises and swinging parrakeets, but one grows weary sooner of such paper than of the plain.

Beds, where we spend one-third of our lives, ought to be of the most comfortable kind. A buyer will do well not to buy a mattress in one long parallelogram, but rather in two pieces—one square pieced out by an oblong. This square may be turned so that the sides may also take turn at head or foot. The mattress is thus preserved from the ridges and ruts that often are worn in one not thus adjustable.

STARVED OUT.

Many a garrison has been forced to give up the fight and hang out the white flag of surrender, when lack of food has weakened the men past all power to continue the struggle.



Many a man is similarly starved out of business. His digestion is impaired. His food does not nourish him, and for lack of strength to carry on the struggle he turns his store over to another.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores strength to weak, nervous, run-down men and women.

"About ten years ago I began to be afflicted with stomach trouble, also diarrhea," writes Mr. Wm. Walters, of Antrim, Mo. "In warm weather it grew worse, until it would throw me into a cramping chill. Was troubled so often that I sometimes thought my end had come. Tried many remedies, but they gave only temporary relief. In November, 1899, thought I would try Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I got six bottles and took five in succession, then thought I would wait for a time and take the one left. Soon found I had symptoms of the trouble coming back, so took the sixth bottle and it cured me. I have enjoyed the best of health this summer, and the credit all belongs to your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I can't express my many thanks to Dr. Pierce for his remedy, for it did so much for me. Words cannot express how severely I suffered.

"If any doubt the above statement let them address me, and I will take great pleasure in answering."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

NOT JUST AS GOOD

Did you ever inquire at a store for certain articles and get for a reply "We have something just as good"? Did it ever occur to you that "Something just as good" is something the dealer has been able to buy much cheaper than the articles you inquire for? This is true in drugs, fabrics, groceries, hardware, and in fact every line, including silver-plated ware. If you inquire for 1847 Rogers Bros.' Knives, Forks or Spoons, don't accept any bogus Rogers' stamp because your dealer tells you it's just as good.

1847 ROGERS BROS. TRADE MARK

The above trade mark has been stamped on every article of the original and genuine Rogers Bros.' goods for over 50 years. Get this and you get the best that is made.

To Amuse Young Children.

All children love to cut paper, a fact which is full of suggestions for the wise mother.

Let all papers and old books containing pictures be carefully saved. Get the child a pair of small blunt scissors and teach him to cut out pictures well, with margins and names preserved. A shoe box serves nicely as a receptacle for the pictures.

Now take a tablet of good heavy paper, if possible 10 by 6 inches. Unfasten the leaves and fold them in pairs crossways. Sew these inside a strong manila cover cut the same size. The unlettered parts of a clean flour sack make a good cover. Pretty little books containing ten pages are thus made and if sewed with bright colored silk or worsted are made still more attractive.

Supply the child with smooth paste and small brush, teaching him to use both neatly. Show him the importance of placing the picture straight and exactly in the middle of the page. He knows more about playing than anything else, so let his first book be a "play book." Allow him to exercise his taste and judgment in selecting the prettiest and most effective illustrations. Talking them over as they are pasted in and afterward may inculcate many important lessons.

Next a "work book" may be made of pictures showing the different occupations. An "animal book" is another good subject.

How Woman Influences.

It was an instance of how little we guess our unwitting influence that a quiet, middle aged man, the father of two small daughters, thus spoke to his wife one day recently: "If I thought my little girls would grow to be as sweet looking and as pretty mannered young women as Miss So-and-so, I should ask nothing more for them."

Considerably surprised by his earnestness and by the fact that he, who was supposed to be altogether unobservant, should have reflected at all upon the matter, his wife exclaimed: "That is quite true. I am sure Miss So-and-so is everything you say. But have you ever met her? I did not imagine you knew her at all."

"I don't," he confessed. "I judge only by passing her sometimes on the street. I guess, though, that I am right."

That he was right, that the young woman in question richly deserved all he could say in her praise, was but proof that there is a part of our personality of which we are usually profoundly ignorant and that he who runs may read.—Harper's Bazar.

Cucumber Cologne.

It was noticed long ago that the pretty girls of the south, who rode and drove in the sun and the wind, who boated, sat upon the verandas and invited sunstroke generally, came out with an excellent skin at the end of the season. One day a northern belle discovered on the dresser of a southern beauty a bottle of fluid which was labeled cucumber cologne, and on being pressed the pretty girl gave up its secret. Cucumber cologne, which has been famed for more than a half century, is made by taking two ounces each of spirits of cologne, orange juice, flower water and rose water. A pinch of powdered borax softens this, and six drops of benzoin affords a tonic for the skin. This can be shaken up in a bottle, set away and used upon the skin after it has been exposed to a sharp wind.

A Sermon on Marriage.

Don't pick out a man for a husband simply because you love him. The most important thing is whether he loves you. A woman who loves her husband better than he does her is a door mat on which he treads, says Woman's World. If he loves her better than she does him he looks up to her as a goddess and spends his life trying to win her favor. A too adoring wife bores a man with her affection, but no woman ever had enough love given her to satisfy her, and the more affection the man lavishes upon her the stronger the claim he establishes. After marriage a thousand things draw a woman's heart to her husband. A thousand things estrange him from her.

Lingerie Baskets.

Frenchwomen keep their dainty underwear in what is termed a lingerie basket covered with cretonne or silk and trimmed with ruchings and lace interlined with plain color. The cover is generally wadded, a large flat bow on the top. Ribbons form the hinges, and there are pockets inside for holding sachet bags. In these baskets the garments are not in any way crushed. Sometimes the baskets are divided in four, with a series of trays for each kind of lingerie. The basket is large enough to hold a petticoat at the base, and the corset covers are stowed away under straps of ribbons in the lid. These baskets are mostly of wicker.

Eggs a la Bird's Nest.

Deviled eggs can be served up a la bird's nest. Hard boiled eggs are cut in half (through their shorter diameter) and "scooped" with a fork. The yolk is then mixed with pepper, salt, a few drops of best olive oil and chopped pecans. This is replaced in the white cups and packed down until smooth, when the two portions are pressed together so that the joining is practically invisible. The "nest" is formed of bits of parsley and water cress built all around them. Select as small eggs as possible, as it adds very much to the attractiveness of the dish.

Dainty Curtains.

Denim curtains of rose color with a border of white chints flowered with roses are very effective for a green or rose room. The chints is bought by the yard, cut in strips and sewed on the curtains. Cotton fringe edges these curtains in shades of rose and green and white. An endless variety of pretty effects can be obtained by cutting flowered chints in strips and applying it as borders to plain colored fabrics.

Oiling the Wringer.

Do not fail to oil the wringer every time you wash. If oiled often there is less wear on the machinery, and less strength is expended by the operator. To clean the rollers rub them first with a cloth saturated with kerosene oil and follow with soap and water. Always loosen the rollers before putting the wringer away.

A Milk Suggestion.

When milk has been standing for some time it is well to pour it, without shaking, into another pitcher or bowl, leaving just a little in the bottom of the first receptacle, as it is this settling that contains disease germs injurious to mankind.

Turn a lamp flame down at least halfway before lifting the lamp from one place to another. If this rule were followed there would be fewer accidents.

Aloes.

The most valuable aloes come from the island of Sokotra, which lies just off the east African coast from Cape Guardafui. The drug itself is the bitter resinous juice of the leaves of the aloe plant that has been hardened in the sun. These leaves are of a fibrous, fleshy nature, and, in addition to the juice, the natives make this fiber into rope, many insisting that it makes a better rope than hemp.

Cause and Effect.

Mrs. A.—You say brandy is a good remedy for colic, but I don't agree with you. Mrs. B.—What do you know about it? Mrs. A.—A great deal. Before I had brandy in the house my husband never had colic more than once or twice a year, but as soon as I kept a supply he had colic almost every day.

A Different Thing.

"I didn't suppose that Cupid could move a stony hearted man like Jones."

"Cupid has nothing to do with it. Cupidity is what moved him."

Going for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Don't put yourself in this man's place but keep a bottle of this remedy in your home. There is nothing so good for Colic, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and Diarrhoea. It is equally valuable for Summer Complaint and Cholera Infantum and has saved the lives of more children than any other medicine in use. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

You, or some one of your family, are sure to need this remedy sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly; you will need it quickly. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? Price, 35 cents.

FRENCH MAY QUEENS.

A Pretty Custom Which Is Still in Vogue in Some Villages.

An ancient custom which still obtains in many villages in the south of France is a pretty variation of the choosing of the May queen with which we are so familiar. The mayor and six of his political officers choose from among the village maidens the most beautiful girl. As soon as the choice is made known the queen, dressed in white, even to a long white veil and a wreath of white roses, assembles with her parents and all the villagers in front of the mayor's house. Here he and six friends, dressed in frock coats and top hats, form in procession, the mayor and queen leading, and march to the church, where there is a short ceremony.

They then march back to the mayor's house, where a favored few are entertained at luncheon. When he proposes her health he enumerates her virtues, kisses her on both cheeks and hands her an envelope which contains the prize, $200 in money. But the ceremony does not end here. They form in procession, the band leading this time, and in a sort of "follow my leader" game walk through the village, up lanes and over hills for three hours. That evening a ball is given at the inn, where the queen dances first with the mayor and his six friends and afterward with the lads of the village, and so the celebration ends. The queen's white veil, with the veil and wreath, are carefully folded away and are brought out again only when she becomes a bride.

A HEAVY DIET.

What the Fikes in Tipperary Waters Like Most as Food.

There is a professional fisherman of my acquaintance in Tipperary who kills many pike during the winter months, for which he finds ready sale in the town. He told me of one customer of his who was in the habit of so beating him down in price that he felt justified in resorting to somewhat questionable means to increase the weight of his fish. In the manner of the winner of the stakes in the celebrated "Jumping Frog" sporting event, he would introduce some weighty substance into their interior, stones, bits of iron railing, etc.

Once he went so far as to stuff two old handless flatirons he had picked from a refuse heap down the gullet of one before taking it to his customer, who, having weighed it carefully and, after much haggling, paid him a fraction less per pound for it than he might have perhaps obtained elsewhere. Meeting him next day, he was instantly aware there was trouble in the wind by the opening remark, "What do pike feed on, Paddy?" "Och and indade, your honor, but there's mighty little that comes amiss to thim lads," he answered. "Frogs and fish, sticks and shtones they like well, but they would give their two eyes for flatirons."—English Country Gentleman.

The Value of a Sunny Soul.

The world is too full of sadness and sorrow, misery and sickness. It needs more sunshine. It needs cheerful lives which radiate gladness. It needs encouragers who will lift and not bear down, who will encourage, not discourage.

Who can estimate the value of a sunny soul who scatters gladness and good cheer wherever he goes instead of gloom and sadness? Everybody is attracted to these cheerful faces and sunny lives and repelled by the gloomy, the morose and the sad. We envy people who radiate cheer wherever they go and fling out gladness from every pore. Money, houses and lands look contemptible beside such a disposition. The ability to radiate sunshine is a greater power than beauty or than mere mental accomplishments.—Success.

The Best Qualified Graduate.

It is the custom of the graduating class of the medical department of Queen's university of Kingston, Canada, to designate by ballot the fellow student who they believe could be expected "to do the right thing under all circumstances." The successful student is honored with a special prize by the faculty. We believe that such a man is really the most capable of his class and if not identical with the gold medalist is probably his superior in all that goes to make up the scientific and successful practitioner.

SECOND DAYS' RACES WELL CONTESTED.

Minnie K., Rob Roy and Michaelmas Yesterday's Winners.

Straight Heats Again—Finishes Were Close—A Good Attendance.

The second day's programme of the Peterborough Turf Club's race meet attracted a good crowd of spectators to the Driving Park yesterday afternoon, when some further excellent racing was witnessed. The weather was all that could be desired, and the track was fast. The three events on the card were each decided in straight heats, but the finishes were as a rule close and each race was most interesting.

The 57th Band was again in attendance, and added to the enjoyment of the afternoon by the rendition of selections between the different heats.

The races were run off more promptly than on the previous day, though some further improvement in this respect would be appreciated. The running race, which took such a time to start on Monday, was yesterday started by having the horses stand in front of a rope, and go as soon as it was lifted. The scheme worked very well, and there was no unnecessary waste of time.

The summary is as follows:

2.29 Class, Pace or Trot, Purse $300.

Minnie Keswick, Curtis, Lindsay	1	1	1
Jim Watson, Grey, Barrie	3	2	2
Ernie Hunter, Abbott, Coldwater	2	4	3
Nellie Bay, Hambly, Gananoque	4	3	4

Time, 2.24 1-2, 2.24 1-2, 2.26.

In the first heat, Ernie Hunter, who had the pole, took the lead, closely followed by Minnie Keswick, Minnie Watson and Nellie Gray. It was a pretty race for the first lap, when the last horse began to fall behind, leaving the other three to fight it out. Coming up the reach, Minnie Keswick by a great burst of speed, passed Ernie Hunter, and won by a head in the most exciting finish of the day.

In the second heat Minnie Keswick jumped into the lead at the start, followed by Ernie Hunter, Jim Watson and Nellie Bay. Jim Watson took second place at the quarter post and held it until the close. Nellie Bay closed up on the stretch and took third place from Ernie Hunter by a close margin.

In the third, the order of the start was Minnie Keswick, Jim Watson, Ernie Hunter and Nellie Bay. The latter broke badly at the start and fell behind, but Ernie Hunter also broke at quarter pole and dropped into last place at the half mile post. The finish was close with Minnie Keswick a good first, and Jim Watson slightly ahead of Ernie Hunter, who passed Nellie Bay on the stretch.

Rob Roy, Powell, Orillia	1	1	1
Robt. Henry, Brown, Niagara Falls	4	2	2
Blucher, Connors, Peterboro	2	4	3
John R. Gentry, Brooks, Peterborough	3	5	4
Commodore K., Dennison, Coldwater	5	3	5

Time 2.24 1-4, 2.24 1-4, 2.24 3-4.

In the first heat Rob Roy took the lead, followed by John R. Gentry, Blucher, Robt. Henry and Commodore K., who fell away behind at the start and was never in the hunt. The horses remained in this position until the finish, when Blucher spurted and beat John R. Gentry by a narrow margin. The race was a pretty one throughout.

In the next heat, Rob Roy, the pole horse jumped into it with Blucher, Robt. Henry, John R. Gentry and Commodore K., at her heels. The first half mile was a very pretty race, the horses being well bunched. Robt. Henry moved up to second place and held this place until the end; Rob. Roy winning easily, Commodore K. by a fine spurt came in third with Blucher next and John R. Gentry last.

In the final heat Powell's horse was again in the lead, followed closely by Robt. Henry, Blucher, Commodore K. and John R. Gentry. The latter two horses both broke badly and fell far behind, the latter moving up to fourth place. Robt. Henry gave Rob Roy a hard run for first place, but was beaten by a length. The tire of Commodore K's sulky came off the rim in the second lap and remained so until the finish when the rim and spokes were badly wrecked.

Three-quarter Mile Running Race. Purse $150.

Michaelmas, Furlong, Toronto	1	1
Mike Clancy, Ellwood, Toronto	2	3
Demanton, McGinnis, Toronto	5	2
Logan Laudaman, Bolan, Owen Sound	4	4
Golden Cockade, Patterson, Toronto	3	5

Time, 1.16 1-2, 1.16 1-2.

Mike Clancy took the lead, followed by Michaelmas, Golden Cockade, Logan Laudman and Demanton, the latter got a very bad start and never had a chance to win; Laudaman went up to third place at half way, but fell back again. At the stretch, Michaelmas took the lead and won by two lengths.

In the second Demanton took the lead but was soon passed by Michaelmas, which won handily. Mike Clancy was third, Logan Laudaman fourth and Golden Cockade last.

The entries for the 2.50 class pace and trot this afternoon were:

Donna Bell.
Johnny P.
Pearl Wilks.
Nellie Wright.

There was also a free for all, and a 3-4 mile running race over six hurdles.

BANDITS ON A RAILROAD.

Three Canadians Among Victims in a Daring Train Hold-Up.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Four highwaymen, all heavily armed, and two of them wearing masks, Monday night held up the passengers on the Illinois Central's Chicago and St. Louis express train, known as the "Diamond special," on the outskirts of Chicago, as it neared Matteson, Ill. The robbers secured all the money and valuables, worth about $1,000, carried by the thirty passengers in the two Pullman sleepers, stopped the train and escaped in the darkness. William Toolen of Lansing Mich., and Leonard Christmas of Ottawa, Canada, who were beaten on the head, were able to walk from the train, but Toolan was in a dazed condition. Among the other passengers who were robbed was W. H. Lavelle of Toronto.

L. V. Combs, conductor of the train said he was positive that the men who robbed them were former railroad employes.

Lavelle Had $50.

Toronto, Aug 3.—William Lavelle of 597 West Queen street, one of the passengers in the holdup, left on Monday morning's train. He had with him about $50 in cash, and was going through to St. Louis to see the fair and visit his uncle. It was his first trip of any great length. He is 24 years of age.

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Ind'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

New York, August 3rd, Tuesday evening.—The reaction should go further in these stocks which have a good long interest, such as U.S.Q., Mop., Iso., Atch. and B.R.T. These stocks could easily go 2 or 3 points lower, as the public seems to have bought considerable of them. In fact the market so far has been a traders' market. If the market is weak to-morrow morning and the lowest prices of the morning are made around noon moderate purchases may be made of A.C.F., L.N., St. L. & St. pfd. Lead. We look for a traders' market only up to Friday, but after that we look for much greater activity to last for the rest of the month. Dec. wheat advanced 3 points further to-day. If wheat opens very much higher to-morrow Wednesday, and advances about a point above the opening price we advise you to get out of long wheat and go short for 10 points. Oct. Cotton went to 9.9/ and then broke over 30 points.—Wall Street Information Bureau.

New York.—Irregularity is forecast in the stock market this morning by developments over night. The action of yesterday's market showed the advisability of assuming a trading position selling on rallies and buying on dips. So far as the active list is concerned we would not be surprised to see some further bearish aggression under specially strength probably in S. P. again or A.C.F. We do not believe the rise in M.R. is over, nor the reaction in the Grangers, including U. P., St. P. and Atch. which ought to be sold on strong spots for small profits. The crop scare will blow over when the market becomes over sold.—Town Topics.

New York. — There will be wheat enough to go around while corn and other grains will be in bountiful supply and cotton will be abundant. Put your trust in the southern and south-western stocks. Buy So. Ry. com. it is every bit as good as O.W. S.P. is being well bought. Keep long of some. Erie directors meet to-day. Make a bet on the regular dividend on prfd. Keep long of some Met.—Joseph.

RUSSIANS RETIRED FROM HAICHENG.

Compelled to Abandon Haicheng by the Victorious Japs.

HARBIN THE RUSSIAN MECCA

Reported Disastrous Repulse of the Japanese at Port Arthur—20,000 Placed as Their Loss, and That of the Russians 6,000 Men—No Official Confirmation—The Japs Capture Six Field Guns.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—In a despatch to the Emperor, dated August 2, Gen. Kuropatkin says:

"Our troops have retired from Haicheng along the road toward Anshanshan. The movement was accomplished in perfect order and the enemy did not disturb us. The terrible heat has caused many sunstrokes, and measures have been taken to diminish the equipment the troops have hitherto been obliged to carry by transporting it in supply carts. There is no serious news from the eastern front."

Kuropatkin's Armies Concentrating.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—General Kuropatkin's armies are now concentrating upon Liaoyang, falling back respectively upon Anshanshan, Liandiansian and Anping. These three points form a ring of closely-knit defences around Liaoyang and enable General Kuropatkin to risk a general engagement.

HARBIN RUSSIA'S MECCA.

Curious Order From Gen. Kuropatkin re Winter Quarters.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—According to a message received from Harbin, Gen. Kuropatkin has ordered the removal from that place of all useless civilians, in order to provide the greatest possible accommodation of winter quarters for the Russian army.

Czar Gets Alarming News.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—The correspondent of the Associated Press hears that Emperor Nicholas has just received a telegram at Peterhoff, containing alarming news. It is also reported that Vicoroy Alexieff, who had gone to Harbin on his way to Vladivostock, returned to Liaoyang Tuesday, and conferred with Gen. Kuropatkin regarding the situation.

Russians Pay Promptly.

Liverpool, Aug. 4.—The owners of the British collier Foxton Hall, which was detained at Port Arthur from the time of the first attack made by the Japanese until early in March, and which suffered damage during her detention, have received compensation from the Russian Government. The speedy settlement of the claim by Russia has greatly gratified shipowners here.

Windfall For the Japs.

London, Aug. 4.—It was rumored on the stock exchange yesterday that the Japanese discovered $25,000,000 in an abandoned Russian camp.

Couldn't Retake Motien Pass.

Motien Pass, Manchuria, July 17.—(Via Seoul, Corea), Aug. 4.—The Russians, in their second unsuccessful attempt to re-take Motien Pass early on July 17, were forced back to their original position, after five hours of severe fighting. They suffered heavy losses, compared to the Japanese casualties. The Japanese think that their casualties amounted to about 200. The Russian casualties are undoubtedly much greater than in the former engagement.

20,000 JAPS SACRIFICED.

Story of Three Days' Assault on Port Arthur From Russian Sources, But It Is Discredited.

Che Foo, Aug. 4.—A desperate three-days' assault on the inner defence, on the northern and eastern sides of Port Arthur has failed. A Russian states that the earth trembled under the terrific cannonading, which began July 26 and ended during the night of July 28, when the battle ceased. A Chinese who has arrived here on a separate junk confirms the Russian's statement that the Russian killed and wounded during the assault number between five and six thousand. The Japanese in their repeated assaults against the eastern forts on the hills through barbed wire entanglements and over mines displayed fanatical bravery. They were mowed down by the hail of shells and bullets and the explosion of mines under their feet. Their losses are estimated at 20,000. The Russian declares that the Russians hold all the eastern forts leading to Golden Hill and that the Japanese, shattered and exhausted, retired to the eastward.

Togo Shelled the Forts.

As related by the passengers from the two junks, the Japanese advance, which began from Kwokau before daybreak July 26, was directed against Kikwan, Kinkitun, Kinkishan and Pichtoushan forts, lying near shore. The Russian outposts were driven back. In the meantime Admiral Togo shelled the forts at long range, but the return fire of the forts kept his ships at a safe distance, rendering the co-operation of the fleet ineffective.

On the morning of July 27 the Russian fleet steamed out, keeping under the protection of the Golden Hill guns. The Russian vessels did not fire on the Japanese and soon returned to their anchorage. The assault on the northern side of the city occurred July 27. The Japanese left at Haikau, advanced on the Russians at Shinahiying, but were repulsed. The junks were within hearing distance for three days after leaving, but no more firing was heard.

The Russian hospitals at Port Arthur are said to be swamped. Thousands of wounded are lying in houses and shops of the Chinese, the owners having been evicted, with the exception of one, who acts as caretaker of each place. Medical attention is adequate.

Russian Consul's Confirmation.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—The first Russian report of the storming operations at Port Arthur has just been received from the Consul of Russia at Che Foo, dated yesterday. It says a general attack began Saturday, with the Japanese in immense force. There were two days of a bombardment of unprecedented violence. The Japanese at the time of sending this despatch, the Consul adds, had everywhere been repulsed with great loss. The Japanese casualties possibly reached 20,000, but the Russian losses were insignificant. The Consul further reports that the Russians have an abundance of ammunition.

RUSSIANS LOSE 1,500 MEN.

The Battle of Simoucheng—Japanese Had 400 Casualties.

Tokio, Aug 4.—The Japanese defeated the Russians at Tomucheng (Simoucheng) and drove them toward Haicheng in a sharp fight which began last Saturday and ended on Sunday. The Russians left 1,500 dead on the field and lost six guns. The Russians occupied a range of high hills north of Tomucheng (Simoucheng), which were strongly defended with covered trenches, a fortress and covered emplacements, which consumed months in constructing. The Japanese seized a range of heights to the southward on Saturday. They began the attacks at daylight on Sunday. The Japanese left wing encountered severe opposition. The Russians were gradually reinforced and their artillery was increased to 21 guns. The Japanese, who were also reinforced, renewed the attack at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and drove the Russians northward. The Japanese right, exposed to a severe artillery fire, was forced to halt. The Russians, who were reinforced, assumed the offensive at 5.30 o'clock in the evening, but were repulsed with a heavy loss. The Russian artillery prevented the Japanese from pursuing, and during the night the Russians withdrew toward Haicheng. The Japanese casualties were about 400.

Gen. Kuroki has telegraphed that in the two days' fighting at Yangtsuling and Yushulintzu his losses were six officers killed, sixteen officers wounded and nine hundred and fifty men killed and wounded.

NEWINGTON MEETING.

Mr. Whitney, Opposition Leader, Appears on Mr. Gamey's Platform.

Cornwall, Aug. 4.—R. R. Gamey, M.P.P., and J. P. Whitney, leader of the Ontario Opposition, were the principal speakers at a Conservative meeting held yesterday at Newington. Mr. Gamey attacked the Ontario Government in a general way, and went over the old story in which he personally figured.

Mr. Whitney warmly supported the remarks of his personal friend and trusted supporter, Mr. Gamey.

Charged With Murder.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 3.—Mr. Robert Telford, arrested on Saturday in connection with Miss Hattie Bowell's death, appeared in the police court yesterday morning. The charge was amended to one of murder, to which the accused pleaded not guilty, and the case was formally remanded till to-day. Joseph Martin strongly contended for bail for the accused, but his application was refused. A warrant has been issued for David McHarg, who is said to have been responsible for Miss Bowell's condition. He is reported to be in Portland, Ore. McHarg was commercial traveler for a local firm.

PREMIER ROSS RETURNS.

Premier Ross has returned to Toronto and is again in harness after a lengthened sojourn at the Hot Springs, Arkansas, undergoing treatment for the rheumatic affection which has troubled him so much. His thousands of friends throughout the province, will rejoice to know that his journey has resulted in great improvement to his general health as well as his particular ailment. He is now able to resume and continue with renewed vigour the task he has so well performed in the past of directing the administration of the affairs of the Province. He will be able to continue the work of up-building and developing the resources of Ontario, a work for which every true friend of provincial progress will hope that he may long be spared. Hon. G. W. Ross has his enemies, for no strong public man is without his detractors, but he will rise superior to them and the sober second thought of the people will do justice to the splendid work he has done during his short term of office, and willingly entrust him with the power for continued usefulness. Apropos of the return of Mr. Ross and the present prominence given to the Scotch element of our population an interesting incident is told by a Peterborough gentleman. He was one of a group of travellers on a railway coach of which a Presbyterian minister was also one. One of the group was no particular friend of Hon. Mr. Ross. He was criticising him with rather a free tongue. After listening to the tirade of abuse for a while the minister contributed his share to the conversation—"Ay, mon ye may say a' that, but dinna forget that he's Scotch," said he in a tone as if that fact balanced the account. But Mr. Ross has other claims to public confidence than the accident of his birth, and the other qualities he possesses conjoin to give him a popularity which will rather grow than diminish.

CANADA'S CONDITION.

The following from "Black and White" London, Eng., serves to show how very much many British publications do not know about the state of public sentiment in Canada:—

"The decision of the Canadian Government (as expressed in the new militia bill) to do away with the post lately held by Lord Dundonald, and replace it with a military council, is much what might have been expected. The colonial is nothing if not independent, and would rather be free and in the wrong than safe and tied to the mother country's apron strings. Whatever the Canadian Government may do, it is to be hoped that the Canadian people will demand a thorough overhauling of the frontier defences. Lord Dundonald may have been indiscreet and headstrong, but, at the same time, he revealed appalling weakness in Canadian military organisation. One does not like to think of the Dominion as at the mercy of the United States, however friendly that power may be at present. But such is apparently the case."

How does Black and White know that Canada "would rather be free . . . than tied to the mother country's apron strings?" Canada is perfectly contented with her present relations to the mother country. Canada is free now as free as we desire, but as Kipling expresses it, "while Canada is daughter in her mother's house, she is mistress in her own." Great Britain recognizes this relation and is willing that Canada should have the largest degree of freedom in controlling the affairs of her own national household. Black and White need not suggest to the Canadian people to "demand a thorough overhauling of the frontier defences," it simply doesn't know what it is talking about and forgets or ignores that our frontier stretches a distance of between 3,000 and 4,000 miles, and that as Goldwin Smith says, it would be just as reasonable to arm Yorkshire against England as the Canadian frontier against the United States. Canada does not regard itself as "at the mercy" of the United States now any more than it did in 1812. Then the United States invaded Canada, at a time when the Empire had half a dozen wars more or less upon its hands, and it was not long before the invading forces were "at the mercy" of Canada, and glad to get back home soundly drubbed. We have too much jingoism in Canada now. The people of Canada are too busy nation-building to think of building fortifications, and the appeals of the fire-eaters whether trans-Atlantic or cis-Atlantic, fall upon ears filled with the rustle of sheaves and the whirr of the busy wheels of industrial progress.

THE BUSINESS SITUATION.

(Toronto Globe.)

It has become a widespread and inveterate conviction that "good times" and "bad times" alternate with one another, and that every period of business inflation will be followed by one of contraction. When the course of industry and commerce runs smoothly and prosperously for a time, when manufacturers and merchants alike are making money, and when people spend freely, because they are earning abundantly, they are still haunted by the belief that sooner or later this pleasant condition will come to an end, that money will become scarce, that work will be hard to secure, that wages and profits will shrink, and that the cost of living will have accordingly to be curtailed. It is not a bad thing for the community to always bear in mind the possibility and even admit the certainty of such an impending change, for it exercises a wholesome restraining influence and helps to mitigate the pinch when the reverse comes.

There is a curious world-wideness about these waves of depression. In modern times the nations are kept in such close touch with one another, and their mutual interests are so interwoven that when one community suffers all the rest are apt to suffer with it. Rapidity of intercourse has had much to do with bringing about this state of things. The moment commercial or industrial trouble shows its head anywhere all the world knows it. This had had the effect of making periods of depression less acute than they would otherwise have become, less severe than they used to be when nations were more insulated, and it took bad news longer to travel. There are still, however, general depressions, of which sensible people should, and sensible people will, take account, and, unless all the usual signs fail, one of them is already not far away. The falling off in the production of steel, and the cutting of transatlantic steamship rates are among the most important barometrical indications of a general change in the business atmosphere.

The last general depression affected Canada less than any other civilized country; how will it be with the next one? Not for many years have we had here one of those financial storms before which even strong firms have to bow, and which leave their tracks marked by business wreckage. It is not easy to account for the fact that we escaped so well while our neighbours were so rudely buffeted. There may have been elements in the situation making for our safety which would not soon occur again. In their possible absence, and our ignorance of some of the conditions which govern such periodical stringencies it is well to note what there is in sight one, on which reliance for protection may even to a limited extent be placed. It seems clear that so long as capital continues to come into Canada from abroad, to be expended in normal and legitimate ways, the situation can never become so bad as it might be without it. Such capital enables those who are in search of them to seize opportunities for profitable investment, it supplies the means of procuring raw material, of providing plant, and of paying the wages of labour. There can be little doubt that such a supply of imported capital has been furnished by the immigrants—and especially the American immigrants—who have been for the past few years streaming into the Canadian Northwest. That this source of supply is by no means exhausted may be taken for granted. There may be a falling off in the volume of immigration from the United States, but it will always be considerable, and it will eventually be greater than it has ever been, as the northwest and its institutions go in their normal evolution.

The natural resources of Canada, apart from agricultural land, have become much better known than they used to be, and they will become better known with each passing season. Timber, minerals, and fish are all receiving attention now, and they will receive it increasingly. But, in addition to these, we can count with perfect certainty for many years to come on a large annual importation of capital to be spent on the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway. The time allowed under the agreement to complete the Grand Trunk Pacific division is eleven years, and the Dominion Government may take quite as long to complete the eastern division, which it has to build. During the next dozen years anywhere from $120,000,000 to $150,000,000 of cash will be brought into Canada from abroad to be spent on surveys and construction in connection with this one great project, not to speak of other railway undertakings. As this cannot be profitably spent in a hurried manner, the outlay will be spread somewhat evenly over the interval. In other words, the annual expenditure will be, on the average, something like twelve millions.

It is needless to point out the effect. This main stream will diffuse itself through many channels of trade and industry, all of which will feel its helpful influence. Nor is there any drawback to regret as there is in the case of money spent on the production of mechanical devices created for the express purpose of destroying property and human life. This great railway will open up more territory for settlement and become an efficient means of transportation. The outcome of the expenditure will be the establishment of many new industrial centres, which in turn will furnish paying traffic for the railway and add to the general prosperity of the country.

ONEMEE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The weather is all that could be desired for saving the hay harvest, which is now about ended.

The fall wheat is being cut. The yield is fine.

The root crops of all kinds never looked better.

George Morrison, sr., is able to be around on crutches.

Reports of the bad order and behaviour in our village, now circulated in the newspapers, was brought on and originated by outside parties. The local authorities have been awakened and are determined to deal very strictly with such cases in the future.

The Rev. Dr. Dobbin most acceptably occupied the Presbyterian pulpit last Sunday and preached to a fair-sized congregation, considering the warm weather. The reverend gentleman is a native of Peterborough county, but recently of Moose Jaw and Winnipeg.

The Victoria Old Boys' re-union attracted quite a number from this place. Everyone returned orderly and soberly. The 48th Highlanders' Band was the great attraction. There is a probability of having the association, or a portion of it, here on their next visit in 1905.

The work has begun on the granolithic pavements by Messrs. Miller Bros., contractors for the school house as well.

THE STORY OF LIFE.

Making the best of life is getting the best health you can out of it—good digestion is the key. What you eat may or may not do you good. It depends upon how it is handled by the digestive apparatus of the stomach—If it is deranged, the blood, instead of taking new life and strength to the various organs of the body, takes poison which clogs the kidneys, irritates the nerves, distresses the heart, causing headache, sleeplessness, weary, dull feeling, backache, rheumatism, neuralgia—makes the complexion sallow—causes biliousness and constipation. The great, new discovery ANTI-PILL has a marvellous influence in correcting a crippled or rebellious stomach, and the results that follow—ANTI-PILL is the most perfect help to have when you feel wrong, out of sorts, sick or getting sick. It brightens you up—makes you feel better. 50 cents per bottle at druggists or Wilson-Fyle Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.

WINNIPEG FAIR A GREAT SUCCESS.

Dominion Exhibition Opened Under Auspicious Circumstances

Special Correspondence From Winnipeg—Great Influx of Visitors.

(Special Correspondence.)

Winnipeg, July 31st.—At exactly twenty minutes to five o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, July 26th, Hon. Clifford Sifton, minister of the Dominion Cabinet, stepped over to a little wooden box wrapped in cloth of national colours, inserted a golden key, an electric spark flashed and beyond, high up on the dome of the colonnade, the veil fell away and the white figure of a buffalo stood out against the sky.

The Dominion Fair was formally opened.

The sun hung golden in the western sky. The long colonnade, which adds such an imposing front to the exhibition buildings, stood completed in all its whiteness. A fringe of humanity, darkly dressed, pressed about in a square on the campus in front. Within was a blaze of red. On every flank sat cavalrymen erect on their nervous horses, with their carbines at the "present". At the foot of a white-washed flag-pole stood a little group of carefully groomed men—a galaxy of the highest men of the government in the land—in silk hat and frock coat. The 91st Highlanders of Hamilton were aligned on the right.

A tableau in colour contrasts of striking beauty when the courtain was raised revealing the Dominion exhibition of 1904.

For a second as the gay Union Jack was run up to the mast head of the highest flagpole on the grounds and the Highlanders burst out with "God Save the King" there was a perfect silence among the crowd. Then as with one voice the thirty thousand people present burst out with a wild cheer and as the last boom of the battery salute died away and the smoke rolled off across the prairie the witnessing crowd quickly scattered to the staple amusements of the exhibition, then finally under way.

Record crowds have visited the fair so far and only on one day did rain spoil the pleasures. The exhibition in every point is a triumphant success and worthy of the nation which it represents. The exhibits are all of a very high order and handsome prizes have, in proportion been awarded. The fair is most representative. Exhibits come from the Atlantic to the Pacific and are so numerous that at the very last minute new buildings had to be hurriedly constructed to make room for them.

The stock is exceptionally fine, and one old exhibitor said, "I have exhibited both sides of the line, but I never in all my experience came across such a collectively excellent show of stock as here this year." And that is not the opinion of one, but of all.

The machinery building is one of the most interesting places on the grounds and is the Mecca of thousands. The Canadian manufacturers and the Toronto building are also very fine.

The platform attractions have proved to be as wonderful as the advertisements represented and in fact there is nothing whatever disappointing in this years exhibition.

The racing card was a most exciting one and Canada's best horses daily fought for supremacy before many thousands.

The city is crowded with visitors and the action of the city council in organising an accomodation bureau has proved of great benefit. The hotels are over crowded and as it is now next to impossible to get rooms for love or money. However, the great majority of outside arrivals have now been lodged comfortably and but few have had to resort to the tents which have been erected on all sides.

The Winnipeg and Brandon squadrons of the Canadian Mounted Rifles and a detachment of fifty men of the North West Mounted Police are encamped on the exhibition grounds and every night give a fantastical reproduction of the battle of Inkerman.

Miss Margaret M. Campbell, who has for the past six years very efficiently filled the position of assistant teacher in the public school here, has resigned her position. The pupils and persons interested in the school will learn this with regret.

The fishing still continues good. Mr. Doughty, of Peterborough, captured four beautiful maskinonge on Monday.

Mr. Laing and party from Peterborough are occupying the Sea Breeze cottage and enjoying the delights of Rice Lake.

Mr. A. D. Anderson and party have taken up quarters in Mr. Scriber's cottage on Sugar Island. They will remain for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey, of Peterborough, are spending a few days the guests of Mrs. J. Miller.

Rev. Esboo a native of Persia, educated at Kingston, Ont. and preaching in his native land for the past ten years gave a lecture in the Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening and was attentively listened to by a large number.

The civic moonlight of last week was largely attended and a good time is reported.

Miss Wilhelmine Miller, of Toronto, spent Saturday and Sunday here.

Dr. Harrison is enjoying a few weeks' visit from his father.

Mrs. Will Main and little son Gordon, spent last week with her mother Mrs. A. Campbell.

Mrs. (Dr.) McWilliams returned from Toronto on Wednesday.

Miss Huldah Dobbin, of Peterborough, spent two weeks with Miss Jean Shaw.

Mr. Dan Roache, of West Virginia, accompanied by his wife is home on a visit with his mother.

Mr. T. Wedlock has purchased the property known as the "Old Brick" from Mrs. A. Campbell.

The excursion of the local improvement association over the lift lock required no advertising and was almost doubly subscribed. Two steamers would have been required to carry all who asked for tickets, but only one steamer was available. So it is plain to be seen that another must be run in the near future. The association is always alert to select a good thing to raise funds for their good cause. May it long continue in its good work.

The secret of the excellent baking and roasting qualities of the Imperial Oxford oven is found in the diffusive flue—an improvement which no other range possesses.

This flue draws fresh air from the floor, superheats it and delivers it into the top of the oven through perforations which diffuse it evenly to front, sides and back. This gives a uniform heat throughout the oven, resulting in uniformly cooked food.

When your oven is at baking heat block up the inlet and you will find the temperature of the oven will drop immediately, just like an ordinary range, unless the fire is stirred and more fuel added.

Several Bills Were Dropped to Make it Possible Saturday.

HON. MR. FIELDING'S FISCAL REVIEW

A Masterly Review of the Financial Administration By the Minister of Finance in Reply to Mr. Bell's Want of Confidence Resolution — Postoffice and Militia Bills Were Passed.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—When the House met yesterday morning the Prime Minister remarked that as there seemed to be a general desire for prorogation at the end of this week the Government would drop a number of bills from the order paper until next session. The items thus laid over till 1904 are Sir William Mulock's amendment to the Civil Service Act, Mr. Prefontaine's Naval Militia Act, Mr. Fisher's bill for the inspection of seeds and the incorporation of seed growers' associations, and the two bills to place the harbors of Fort Arthur and Fort William under harbor commissions.

E. F. Clarke asked whether provision had been made for the passage of the Union Label Bill this session.

The Premier regretted that it had not been possible. This measure must stand till next year along with some other important public bills.

The Postoffice Bill.

The Postoffice Bill was given a third reading, Sir William Mulock dropping, at the Opposition leader's request, the clause which prohibits the carriage through the mails of newspapers containing fake medicine advertisements about miraculous cures. This clause will be brought forward again next year.

The Militia Bill was next called for a third reading. The clauses providing for calling out the militia in times of riots, etc., were re-cast on motion of the Minister of Justice. A long discussion followed, but the matter had not been disposed of when the House rose at one o'clock.

The militia bill was taken up again in the afternoon and received its third reading. The clause governing the calling out of the militia to suppress riots was amended. The clause as amended provides that the militia may be called out by the mayor and two magistrates, by a county court judge, by a district court judge or by a judge of the Superior Court.

Mr. Fielding's Fiscal Review.

The fiscal record of the Government came under its annual formal review yesterday, and formed the occasion for a convincing and rousing speech by Hon. W. S. Fielding in defence of the Liberal policy and record. Mr. A. C. Bell of Pictou moved a general want of confidence resolution, condemning the alleged excessive expenditure of the Government. Mr. Fielding showed the inconsistency of the Opposition in moving such a resolution and leaving unchallenged 99 per cent. of the votes asked for. Only the day before Colonel Hughes had urged that Canada pay ten times as much as she does for military purposes, while Mr. Haggart was recently one of a deputation which asked the Government to expend $100,000,000 on a large canal enterprise. Although the taxation per head was larger than in 1896, the revenue had greatly increased, and that $7.50 per head was paid more easily now than $3.50 per head in 1895 showed that the people were prosperous. The Conservatives had little money, and what they spent was extravagance.

Liberals Live Within Their Means.

The sum that the Liberals had spent was economy, because they had the money to spend and they had lived within their means. The amendment was defeated by a Government majority of 42. In supply railway and canal estimates amounting to $8,564,182 were passed.

New Cartridge Factory.

On an item in the main estimates Sir Frederick Borden announced in reply to a question that an English concern would establish at or near Ottawa a cartridge and powder factory. The Government would purchase from five to ten million cartridges a year and take a certain number of tons of explosives required by the cartridge factory at Quebec or as otherwise required. The capacity of the concern would be considerably above, probably double, the minimum. This would mean a capacity of about twenty million cartridges a year.

Further Supplementaries.

Further supplementary estimates for the current financial year were brought down last night by the Finance Minister. They amount to $397,450. Canals account for $107,000 on capital account and $10,300 chargeable to income.

Under Sunday Law.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—After a long discussion, the Senate last night passed the clause making railways wholly within the province subject to provincial Sunday observance law. The bill to amend the railway act, which contains this clause, was read a third time and passed.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by all druggists.

Consents to Waive Right of Sending Ships Through the Dardanelles During the Present War Only.

London, Aug. 4.—In order to avoid complications which might have the effect of extending the area of war Russia has made a partial concession to Great Britain in connection with the Dardanelles question. Replying to British representations regarding the closure of the Dardanelles to vessels of the volunteer fleet intended for warlike uses as well as warships, Count Benckendorff, the Russian Ambassador to Great Britain, it is learned, has advised Foreign Secretary Lansdowne that his Government consents to waive the right to send ships through the straits during the present war, but at the same time Russia makes no concession in relation to the general principal involved and reserves to herself the right to take such action as she deems proper when the war with Japan terminates. The British Government would like a complete settlement of the principle, but Russia does not propose to negotiate on this subject if avoidable while the war is in progress.

Beyond the preliminary communication from Count Benckendorff to the effect that Russia will make a response to the British protest against the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander by the Vladivostock squadron when the report of Admiral Jessen reaches St. Petersburg, the Foreign Office here has received nothing on the subject.

ROSEBERY'S LETTER.

He Approves of the Proposed Colonial Conference.

London, Aug. 4.—(C.A.P.)—Lord Rosebery, in a letter to The Times re the proposed colonial conference, says there should be a clear basis for the conference drawn up in conjunction with the colonies, the basis to be agreed to by both parties. Lord Rosebery adds his firm conviction that, unless the conference be desired by the colonies and assembled on a plain basis arranged beforehand and freed from party taint, it may do more harm than good.

Greets Rosebery's Letter.

Mr. Chamberlain, writing to The Times, welcomes Lord Rosebery's letter as indicating another change of front, which may carry him back to his patriotic attitude of 1888, when he was ready to die for the cause of Imperial Federation. He (Mr. Chamberlain) had not made the suggestion for a conference before, as it seemed desirable to test the opinion of the country on an offer, which, he still maintained, was made by the colonies at the conference of Premiers. He entirely agreed with Lord Rosebery that the wishes of the colonies must be an essential condition, but was afraid Lord Rosebery was imperfectly informed concerning the real issue. To suggest a conference on preference while rigidly excluding any reference to taxes on food, would be to present in the circumstances, a childish and almost insulting proposition.

Business Men Against Policy.

London, Aug. 4.—(C.A.P.)—A protectionist manifesto is being extensively signed by business men throughout Britain. It declines to endorse the Chamberlain policy, so far as it embraces protection, on the ground that it increases the cost of production, but supports a policy having as its fundamental basis a moderate tax on food, provided that differential duties be imposed by the colonies in favor of British goods. It recommends that an Imperial conference be summoned in order that the nature of the trade and the advantages the colonies can offer to and receive from the motherland may be clearly understood.

JUDGE WINCHESTER'S ENQUIRY.

Hugh Lumsden Gives Evidence As to G.T.P. Engineering Position.

Toronto, Aug. 4.—Judge Winchester yesterday concluded the enquiry into the employment of alien engineers on the G.T.P. railway, with an examination of Hugh D. Lumsden.

Joseph Hobson, chief engineer of the G.T.R., testified at the last session of the enquiry here that he had brought Mr. Lumsden and Charles M. Hays together in regard to the former's application for a position on the new road. The salary offered was $4,000, but Mr. Lumsden declined the position before any mention of the salary had been made.

Mr. Lumsden stated yesterday that he had had no correspondence with Mr. Hays in reference to a position on the G.T.P., but he had been offered a position as assistant to Mr. Hobson on the G.T.R. at the salary mentioned. Mr. Hobson had evidently confused the two roads.

Asked if he would have accepted the position given John R. Stephens as chief engineer, at $7,500 per annum, Mr. Lumsden said he probably would have accepted it if it had been offered him.

Mr. Lumsden outlined a list of public works on which he had been engaged, including a number of sections on the C.P.R., the Crow's Nest Pass and other roads. In all, his experience he had never found it necessary to engage United States engineers, and had had very little experience with them. The salaries paid by the G.T.P., he considered high, and if Mr. Hays had offered him anything in connection with the location or construction of a transcontinental road, he could have secured a release from the C.P.R.

Mr. Lumsden was not cross-examined, W. H. Biggar, the company's counsel, not being present.

Judge Winchester will begin his report as soon as the evidence is printed at Ottawa.

AND THE ROOF COLLAPSED

Serious Accident at the Winnipeg Exhibition—Fourteen People Seriously Hurt—Boy Named Soper From Calgary Injured in the Back.—Other Cases Were Fractures of the Limbs.

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 4.—A serious accident occurred at the Dominion Exhibition here last evening about 7.30. A crowd of about 130 had gathered to enjoy a free sight of a side show in an enclosure next the stable. Although repeatedly warned of their danger, they took no heed, and at last, without a moment's warning, the roof broke through and precipitated half of the crowd to the floor, a distance of about 25 feet.

In its descent the roof turned over and fell on the people, causing more serious injuries than would have otherwise resulted. About fourteen were taken to the hospital in ambulances, while several with minor injuries were able to walk away.

A partial list of those injured is as follows: George Walker, Charles Forrester, E. Barrington, Willie Russell, Mumford Lobdell, Curtye, A. L. Codman, Waldie R. Miller and McWalters of Winnipeg; Jas. Goodyear, Joliette, N.D.; Braden, Cape Breton; Speelman of Seattle, and a boy named Soper from Calgary. The latter is very seriously injured about the back. Most of the other cases were fractures of the limbs.

The hospital tent on the grounds ministered to the immediate wants of the sufferers and it is not expected any fatalities will result.

Head Crushed Under Wheels.

Drumbo, Aug. 4.—A young lad, Harold Wismer, son of Henry Wismer, Dundas street, Woodstock, was killed yesterday forenoon on the farm of John Ort, near this place. Mr. Ort was drawing in clover, and the boy fell off the load. He struck the whiffletrees, starting the horses. The wheels passed over his head and crushed his brains out.

Buried Beneath Sand.

Ottawa, Aug. 4.—Hubert, the seven-year-old son of H. C. MacBride, architect, of London, Ont., was killed last evening in a sand-pit on Cartier street. The boy was playing with a number of companions underneath an overhanging bank of sand, when it gave way and he was caught and buried under about four feet of earth. He was at once dug out, but was beyond help when reached. The boy and his mother were on a visit to Mrs. Clarke of Centre street, Ottawa.

Talented Nurse Drowned.

New York, Aug. 4.—Miss Ada Oughtred, a trained nurse, of Onondaga, Ont., and Dr. J. D. Ashby, acting bathing master, were drowned while bathing in the surf at Babylon, N.Y. Neither could swim. It was Miss Oughtred's 27th birthday. She was employed as superintending nurse in Muncie's Sanitarium, three miles from Babylon.

Head Shot Off.

Red Deer, Alta., Aug. 4.—While hunting a lynx, John, the 18-year-old son of Mr. McKee of Snake Lake, had his right hand shot off at the wrist.

Ain't You Glad You Waited?

This is the month that price reductions at Stratton's Bookstore speak loudest, and make you feel glad you waited. Horse got Frightened.

Three young ladies were driving east on Sherbrooke street last night about 8o'clock. When approaching the G.T.R. tracks, the horse became unmanageable and for a time things looked serious. One of the ladies lost her balance and fell towards the side of the buggy and it looked as though she would fall between the wheels, but fortunately she was caught by another of the occupants just in time to prevent serious injury. The horse was soon quieted and no damage resulted.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT ON CHEMONG ROAD.

William Willard as a Result Sustains Many Injuries.

He and Companion Were Upset Last Night—The Circumstances of the Affair.

A very serious accident occurred last night shortly before eight o'clock, on the Chemong Road about two miles out of town, the result of which is that William Willard is now lying in the Nicholls Hospital very seriously injured, and his brother-in-law, John Fallon, is also injured, though fortunately not so seriously.

These two men, the former of whom was until yesterday employed at the Oriental Hotel as a porter and handy man, hired a rig yesterday afternoon from F. L. Robinson's livery and drove to Chemong. While there it is supposed that they drank rather freely, and left for home shortly after seven o'clock, and it is said both were under the influence of liquor.

Leary's 'bus left Chemong about the same time as the rig containing these two men, and during the journey in to town they went along pretty much together. The single rig frequently passed the 'bus, and they would also allow the latter to pass them. The men were, according to the statement of those in the 'bus, driving very recklessly.

Near Millburn's school house, the 'bus finally passed the buggy, and when the former had gone about a quarter of a mile, some of the passengers noticed that the buggy had upset into the ditch at the side of the road, and the horse, detaching itself from the buggy came dashing down the road towards town.

Dr. Boucher was a passenger on the 'bus, and he went back at once to the scene of the accident, with the other passengers to render the injured ones any assistance in their power. They found that Willard had fallen on a heap of stones lying on the side of the road and was bleeding profusely from numerous wounds which had been inflicted, while Fallon, although hurt, was not in nearly so serious a condition as his companion.

The buggy was almost totally destroyed, showing that the horse must have been going at a rapid rate when the upset took place, and the men must have fallen very heavily.

Dr. Boucher made a hasty examination of the condition of Willard, and found that the skull was fractured over the right temple, and there were other serious injuries. His pulse was beating very feebly, and it was almost thought that the injuries would prove fatal. Dr. Burnham, who was driving from Chemong also came up about this time, but nothing could be done there, and the Dan Spence ambulance was sent for and arrived on the scene in a short time and Willard was taken to the Nicholls Hospital. Fallon was able to go to his home.

Inquiry at the hospital this morning gives the information that Willard was resting quietly and that he was doing as well as could be expected.

He is a married man about 29 years of age, living on Dublin street, near Reid, and has a family of three children.

The horse went to the stable last night after detaching itself from the buggy, and was found to have sustained some injuries, which will incapacitate it for work for a month at least.

Dr. Eastwood, who attended Willard at the hospital, was communicated with by the Examiner this afternoon, and he gave the information that the extent of the injuries received were a broken leg, and a serious cut on the head, near the ear, which was torn some. He expressed the belief that the injured man will probably recover.

AN ACCIDENT.

Bicyclist Collided with a Boy and Both Have a Tumble.

What might have proved a serious accident occurred on George street this morning near the C.P.R. station. Mr. Alf Smith was wheeling southward to the fire on Westcott street and when about to pass a wagon a boy jumping from the waggon ran in front of the bicycle and was knocked over. Mr. Smith being thrown over the handlebars and fell heavily on the road. Neither was seriously hurt, sustaining but a few scratches and bruises and a shaking up.

WAR CAUSES A SALMON SHORTAGE.

Japan Has Purchased all the Available British Columbia Salmon.

Peterborough has been struck by the Jap-Russo war in the pocket-book. The price of canned salmon, will be dearer while the war lasts, as Japs bought heavily of it in British Columbia, getting 325,000 cases in ninety days. In wholesale circles this is well known, and there will be a shortage this season of nearly half a million cases. Even when the piping times of peace return the shortage is likely to continue, as the normal demand for canned salmon exceeds the supply. The problem the canners have now to face is not how to find new markets, but how to supply the existing ones at prices profitable all round without raising the figure above some other canned food, which might be taken as a substitute. The matter is becoming a Dominion issue and aid for the British Columbia fisheries to increase propagation is mooted.

—A couple of young men from Peterborough, called at our office this morning in search of work. According to their story they had been attending the Old Boys' Re-union in Cobourg, and during the night were relieved of $15. They wished to earn enough to take them to Peterborough.—Port Hope Guide.

In reporting a recent meeting of the council, the Lindsay Watchman-Warder has the following significant paragraph:

"At this point Mr. Culverwell made some pretty vigorous remarks about the way he had been treated by certain interests in this town ever since he first came here. Again diverting to the Trent Valley Canal, he said that the Peterborough 'grafters' had lowered the water till navigation had been impaired on the waters of this district. 'If I had been in your place said,' said he, 'I would have gone down to Bobcaygeon with a shot gun loaded with pepper and salt for those Peterborough fellows.'" Wonder what he means.

Sons of England's New Trip.

The Sons of England have gallantly joined hands with the Daughters of England in a joint excursion on Civic Holiday, August 15th to Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon. Special arrangements have been entered into with the G.T.R. for an early train to leave Peterborough at 8.25 a.m., so as to connect in Lindsay with the fine steamer Esturion for Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon. The tickets are only a dollar for adults and 50c. for children. This is not a new alliance, so far as parties of the first and second parts are concerned, but it is a new trip for them, and it's going to be a "Rule Britannia one."

LATE DAVID BREEZE WAS WELL KNOWN.

His Death Will be Regretted by Large Circle of Friends.

A Successful Business Man—His Early Life—Funeral To-morrow.

The death of the late David Breeze which sad event was referred to in these columns yesterday, occurred yesterday morning at Breeze's Island, Stony Lake. The late Mr. Breeze had been failing in health for over a year, suffering from lung trouble. Last winter he contracted a severe cold from the effects of which he never recovered. On the 15th of June he went to his island at Stony Lake in hope of recuperating his health, but his condition gradually became worse until death ensued yesterday morning.

The late Mr. Breeze was for many years past engaged in a tinsmith business on George street, being a partner in the firm of Breeze and Jones. A very successful business was conducted and Mr. Breeze gained the confidence and esteem of all with whom he was connected. He was a man of stirling qualities and enjoyed the respect and good will of a large circle of friends who will sincerely regret his demise.

The late Mr. Breeze was well and always popularly known at Stony Lake, where he owned an island at Boschink, and on which he had a well-patronised boarding house. Mr. Breeze and his yacht were very familiar to those up the lakes where he will be greatly missed during the holiday months.

To mourn the loss of a loving husband and father are left a wife and daughter, Maud, who have the sincere sympathy of the community in the hour of their great sorrow.

The history of Peterborough, published in 1884, contains the following reference to the late David Breeze:

"David Breeze, of Peterborough, was born in Newton, Montgomeryshire, Wales, in 1844. His father lived and died there. Mr. Breeze is the youngest of a family of three children. After the death of his father, his mother emigrated to Canada, with her children, and settled in Belleville the same year. The elder sons of the family had been engaged in a woollen mill in early life, and they soon found employment at their trade after their arrival in Belleville. In 1861 David left Belleville and came to Peterborough, and served an apprenticeship as a tinsmith with J. Stevenson, where he wrought for nearly fifteen years, when he began business for himself on George street near the post office, where he now keeps stoves, tinware and conducts a general trade. In 1866 he married a daughter of William Condon, one of the early settlers of Douro. Mr. Breeze has an elder brother at Forest Mills, extensively engaged in the manufacture of woollen goods. His other brother is dead. For a young man Mr. Breeze has succeeded admirably in business. He began life without assistance and has by industry and economy laid the foundation for prosperity and independence. He enjoys the fair fruit of honest toil and is a thoughtful and intelligent man, who keeps thoroughly posted on the current topics, and fully abreast of the times."

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from the family residence, 665 Bethune street, at 3 o'clock, and proceed to Little Lake Cemetery. It will be conducted by the Peterborough Lodge, I.O.O.F.

JUST WARNINGS.

Chief of Police Says Citizens Must Obey the Laws.

Complaints have reached the Chief of Police regarding young men bathing in the river at the north end of the town. A few days ago some parties were fined at the police court for bathing in the Little Lake, and if the guilty parties in the north end are caught they will be similarly dealt with.

Many of the citizens are allowing burdocks, thistles and other noxious weeds to grow on their premises. The law says that if these are allowed to go to seed the offending parties must answer at the police court. It would be most advisable to cut down these weeds at once and save trouble in future.

"Are there any other warnings for the public?" asked the reporter.

"No," replied the chief, "except to tell them not to do anything they shouldn't do, or they'll wish they hadn't done so. We're after offenders of every description these days."

FAITHFUL SISTER GONE TO REWARD.

A Sister of the Community of St. Joseph Dead.

Sister Mary Philomena Lehane had Relatives in Peterborough.

The Catholic Register has the following account of the death of Sister Mary Philomena Lehane, a member of the Community of St. Joseph. The deceased Sister had relatives giving in Peterborough, as well as a large number of friends, who will learn with regret of her death. The Register says:

"A gentle little Sister of the Community of St. Joseph attached to the House of Providence, has just gone to her reward. Sister Mary Philomena, for thirty-four years in the Community, twenty-three of which were spent in the House in Toronto, at which she died, departed this life on July 31st after a long and painful illness, and was buried from the chapel of the House of Providence on Tuesday, the 2nd inst. Sister Philomena was one of the Lehane family, a family which with its connections has given many of its members to the service of the Church and the altar. She was born in Dewneyville, Ont., fifty-seven years ago, and entered the Community of St. Joseph, at the age of twenty-three. The early period of her life in religion was spent in teaching, but the latter portion was devoted to fulfilling the duties attached to the office of Dispenser for the house. Owing to her long engagement in this work she was associated with the sick and infirm and with the physicians and surgeons of the staff. One of the inmates expressed the feelings of all when speaking of Sister Philomena, she said, "We have lost one of our best friends." She was also known by many through her work as porteress, an office which she often combined with that of dispenser, and her gentle manner and the smile from her kindly dark eyes, were always a courteous greeting to the visitor. Sister Philomena was remarkable for her reticence in speech, it being often commented that Sister Philomena never said an unnecessary word. As in speech, so she was in all things, quiet and unobtrusive, doing all things that duty and circumstances placed before her, and doing them well for the honour and glory of God.

"The doctors of the staff showed their appreciation of the assistance given them in their work by their many floral offerings and by coming themselves with their wives to take a last look. They were represented at the funeral by Dr. Shuttleworth.

"The funeral mass of requiem was said by Rev. Father McGuire, a nephew of the deceased Sister, who was assisted by Rev. Fathers O'Donnell and Williams, as Deacon and subdeacon; there were also in the sanctuary Rev. Fathers Fraehon, O.S.B., Whalen, Ryan and McIntee. The music of the mass was plaintively sung by the Sisters' choir, who also sang the De Profundis during the offertory. The mourning of the house was symbolized by the black and white drapings on the altar, and the large chapel was filled with a congregation typical of the place and its associations. The Bishop of London who, it was expected, would celebrate the mass, was unable to be present owing to an unavoidable engagement. Sister Dominic and Sister St. Fergus, members of St. Joseph's Community in Lindsay, and pieces of Sister Philomena, were also also unable to attend, being in "retreat" at the time. Sister Antoinette, of St. Joseph's, Toronto, another niece, was released from the retreat now going on in order to be present.

"After the Libera the coffin was borne down the aisle of the chapel, six members of the Community acting as pall bearers, and followed by a long line of black-veiled Sisters, all bearing lighted tapers, speaking eloquently of the bright faith of the one whose quiet remains they were now following. The interment took place at St. Michael's Cemetery, Fathers McGuire and Cantelon officiating. Besides those already mentioned other relatives of Sister Philomena are: Mrs. Corkery, of Lindsay, and Mrs. Ryan, of Toronto, sisters; Mr. J. McEvay, of Toronto, a nephew, and Mr. Lehane and family of Toronto, cousins. May she rest in peace."

An enjoyable time was experienced by the young ladies and gentlemen who drove down to Trent Bridge last Friday evening.

It does not seem as though we are going to have fire protection by the interest that is taken on the subject.

Mr. John Carey left for his home in Toronto on Monday.

A number of the town people went to Peterborough to help celebrate the civic holiday.

Owing to the absence of the Reeve the council meeting of Monday night night was postponed until some future date.

The Campbellford and Havelock baseball match which was to have been played in the former town was postponed on account of the team not being able to get its players together and also on account of the lacrosse match here Friday.

The sidewalks in town in front of the place where the fire was is in a deplorable condition.

Mr. Fred. Barlow had the misfortune to have one of his front teeth broken off in a practice game of lacrosse on Monday evening.

A number of young people of Campbellford spent Sunday in town even if it did rain.

The first home junior lacrosse match of the season was played on Thursday afternoon between Hastings and Havelock and proved to be an exciting game.

The Havelock boys played in Hastings on July 1st, and were defeated by a score of 2-1, but since that match they have strengthened their team considerably.

The ball was faced at 4.35 p. m. before an interested crowd of spectators and before one minute had elapsed Ford of the Havelock team scored on a pretty shot. The ball was again faced and in about the same length of time Hastings scored, an dit began to look as if the score would be about 30 goals each, but it failed to turn out that way, for the ball was not located in the nets again during the first two quarters. In the 3rd quarter Stibbs was moved from the defence up to the home and the change seemed to work well, for in the early part of the game he located the nets by a pretty backward shot. This ended the scoring for the 3rd quarter; 2-1 in favour of Havelock.

The fourth quarter opened with the teams playing good lacrosse, and the Havelock bunch got a nice combination going at centre and worked it well in on the flags when a neat pass from Stibbs, to "Shiner" on inside home, who shot the ball in the Hastings net just to show that there was no hard feelings, Havelock secured the next goal also, Stibbs doing the trick from a swift shot in front of goal. The Havelock boys also shot in another goal which was disputed by the visitors, but it was not allowed, thus the game ended 4-1 in favour of the local team.

NOTES.

Patterson, although a midget in size, gets in the way of the ball quit often and keeps an opposing team guessing to score on him.

Robinson at point played a cool steady game and allowed no man to pass him.

Nell at cover point also played an excellent game, making many good catches and checked well.

Barlow, Bullied and Easton played a great game on defence and kept the Hastings home guessing all the time as it was very seldom that they ever worked the ball up to their opponents' goal.

White, at centre, played a good game and did some useful work for his team.

Lancaster, Ford, Rose, W. Rose, and Stibbs played a fast game on the home and had the Hastings defence guessing the whole time.

The Hastings boys proved themselves to be a gentlemanly lot of sports and the Havelock boys hope to cross sticks with them in a friendly game again before the season ends.

Mr Morrison of Hastings refereed the game to the entire satisfaction of both teams.

The game was a comparatively clean one the referee only having to rule off two men for three minutes each, for trying to let each other know that they still loved in the same old way.

The Hastings and Havelock senior teams meet on the Park and pleasure grounds on Friday afternoon for the first time this year and should give an excellent exhibition of the national game. A large crowd is expected to attend.

PETERBOROUGH MAN CHAMPION SWIMMER.

Mr. Harry F. Strickland Swam Across Toronto Bay in Record Time.

Made the Trip in Fifty Minutes Monday—Reducing the Record by 9 Minutes.

Peterborough boys continue to win distinction! On Monday, at Toronto, Mr. Harry F. Strickland, a native of Peterborough, born here in 1870, swam across the bay from the Young street wharf to Hanlan's point in the record time of 59 minutes. The best time previously made on this swim was 59 minutes for a course 1-4 of a mile shorter. The Toronto Star reporting the race said:

There was a handicap long distance swimming race from Yonge street wharf to the Toronto Swimming Club headquarters in the lagoon at Hanlan's Point Monday.

The winner turned up in C. H. Land, who had the extraordinary handicap of 43 minutes, while the distance was actually traversed by Mr. Strickland, who won third prize in 50 minutes, a remarkably fast swim.

The water was free from roughness, but cold in spots. The two scratch men did not finish. The first four to finish:

	Hdcp.	Time.
C. H. Land	43 mins.	87 mins.
W. C. Kettlewell...	17 mins.	63 1-2 mins.
H. F. Strickland...	8 mins.	50 mins.
G. Corson	3 mins.	59 mins.

Referring to the event editorially the same paper under the heading "Vegetarians in the Swim" says:—

In a long distance swimming race, yesterday across Toronto bay from the

HARRY F. STRICKLAND,
Who swam across Toronto Bay in fifty minutes.

Yonge street wharf to the swimming club, on the Island lagoon, there was fought a battle between vegetarians and meat eaters. The course was about two miles in length, and Mr. H. F. Strickland, of Toronto, a vegetarian, made the journey in the record time of 50 minutes. Mr. George H. Corson, another vegetarian, made the course in 53 minutes. Two Englishmen had come over to swim in the race—sturdy beef eaters from the land of roast beef—but they found the pace too fast and dropped out midway on the course. It was a handicap contest, but in actual time vegetarianism scored a decisive victory.

The race was not announced as a contest between vegetarians and meat-eaters, but Messrs. Strickland and Corson resolved to give it that turn. They entered. Like others they trained. On the day of the race their sole diet was pea butter. All last week they reduced their ordinary vegetarian diet to simples, such a spea butter, peanuts, and raw fruit. Before setting out in the race they informed the astonished meat-fed Englishmen, who were supposed to be the best men in the contest, that they were vegetarians, had eaten no meat for years, and intended to prove the superiority of their diet.

They did it. As they glided through the waves they were borne up by the consciousness that they were vindicating vegetarianism. To others it was a race for glory; to Messrs. Strickland and Corson it was an opportunity of showing a meat-fed world the error of its ways. They were men with a mission. A great cause relied on them, and inspired, fired by this knowledge, they slipped through the water with ease and made their meat-laden competitors look like stationary objects. A long swim is one of the severest physical tests to which a man can be put, and in order to settle conclusively the respective merits of pea butter and beef steak another race, specially arranged for the purpose, should be brought about, two men a side, over a two-mile course. It would draw a large crowd of butchers and market-gardeners to cheer their respective champions.

Mr. Strickland says he finished quite fresh, and was able to have swam back, which feat he intends to undertake in a short time.

JURY'S VERDICT REVIEWED.

Mr. R. J. Kidd Contributes a Communication on the Subject.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was very much surprised to see the sweeping verdict of the jury empannelled to enquire into the circumstances governing the drowning of my daughter. I would like to draw your attention to the evidence of Inspector Davis who stated very positively that the bow of the boat was not intended for passengers, and that it was the duty of the Captain and his assistants to see that none were allowed there, either by locking the door leading to the bow or having a man stationed there for that purpose. Neither of these precautions was taken. I have made full inquiry and have yet to hear of a single person, (except the young man, Robt. Reid, who was in the wheelhouse with the captain) who heard one word of warning from the captain or any one else, regarding the danger of sitting out there. Again even had there been a warning given to a few who happened to be in the bow the early part of the evening, what about those who had not heard the warning and were not aware they were violating the rules of the boat by stepping through an unlocked door. Is it the duty of the captain to insist that the rules of his boat be recognised and compel passengers to stay inside? Yet in the face of all this the jury brings in their verdict fully exonerating the captain and crew from any blame in the matter and follows up with recommendations that more secure fastenings be provided for the railing and also notice be posted up forbidding passengers from being in those places. Does this not appear rather inconsistent? If there is no blame to the captain or crew, why recommend these changes? Again if passengers are not allowed in these places, why do they recommend that the railing be made more secure. This part where the child fell off is the regular entrance getting on and off the boat, and would it not appear reasonable that after the railing was closed a passenger would feel secure and not be afraid to lay their hand on the so-called protection? Or what is to prevent an accident when nearing the wharf, and, as is usual, passengers crowding to the place of exit, if they have no better protection than this miserable structure on the North Star?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space to explain what I consider an inconsistent verdict,

Yours very truly,
R. J. KIDD.

Not a Ten Dollar Suit, but A Suit for Ten Dollars

You can go into any Clothing Store and buy a TEN DOLLAR SUIT—all the stores keep them; but you'll get just what you ask for—a TEN DOLLAR SUIT.

Now, we brought into view this morning a large number of ALL-WOOL SUITS that have just been finished for us, to our order for fall trade, and which we propose to sell for TEN DOLLARS, as an illustration of what we can do in the way of a special offering.

The Suits are in Single Breasted and Double Breasted and the assortment is complete even to the specially stout sizes. If you have bought a Suit as well made and as nicely finished as one of these, for $3.00 or $4.00 more than our price of $10.00, you received your money's worth, which is the same as to say that in buying THIS Suit at THIS price you received more. Such is the plain unvarnished fact.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT

Against Lord Dundonald in England For Canadian Break.

SIR HENRI TASCHEREAU HOME

Interview With the Chief Justice, Who Returned on the Ionian—At First Sentiment Was Against Canada, But Changed on Hearing the Facts—Appreciates Courtesy of Law Lords.

Quebec, Aug. 3.—Aboard the steamer Ionian, which arrived here yesterday morning at 11.45, almost four days overdue, was Sir Henri Taschereau, Chief Justice. When interviewed, Sir Henri said he was delighted with his trip to England, for he had been cordially received everywhere. The people were much interested in Canada and the progress of the Canadian people. The Lords of the Judical Committee had been most obliging and cordial in their treatment of the members of the Canadian Bar, and had extended to them every possible courtesy.

Never Talked Publicly.

Sir Henri was asked what effect the Dundonald episode had in England, and if it was true that he had expressed himself publicly on the matter. He said that he had never attended any public or political dinners or given expression to any public utterances whatsoever respecting the Dundonald matter. "The first intimation," said Sir Henri, "I had that I was accused of expressing myself in public in regard to Lord Dundonald was when the newspapers reached the ship at Rimouski, and I read them on board this morning. When the Dundonald matter first became public in England the public were not given the details, and it caused a feeling against Canada, and led them to believe that our people were disloyal, but as soon as the particulars respecting the affair were made public, the people of England turned right around and blamed Lord Dundonald, and later, when he he made his speech in Toronto, the feeling was altogether against him, and even his own friends called him a fool, and blamed him for acting rashly.

Deplores Dundonald's Break.

"In every direction I turned I heard the same comments. No one more deeply deplores his break with the Dominion Government than I do. The authorities in England are very much put out over the affair, and it will be difficult for Lord Dundonald to get back on full pay when he reaches England. His place has been filled by others, who are not likely to relinquish their advantage, and no doubt he will have to remain on half pay, unless England becomes involved in war and requires his service. One General, who distinguished himself in South Africa, jocularly remarked in company where I was: 'Well, our next war, I suppose, will be with Canada!' This was only the expression of the thought of a great many others, who were not at the time in possession of the facts, but when all the circumstances in the case were made known in England the sentiment of the public underwent an extraordinary change."

PROROGATION NEXT MONDAY.

Government Business Put Through Tuesday at Good Rate.

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—The announcement that the leaders had agreed that prorogation should not take place later than Monday was received with evident satisfaction on both sides of the House. For the past week the great majority of the members have been chafing under the slow progress made, and anxiously looking forward to a release from their Parliamentary duties.

Election Act Passed.

Yesterday Government business was materially advanced. The election act was passed, and Algoma was eliminated from the list of constituencies in which the date of election is fixed by the returning officer.

The discussion of militia matters again occupied the greater part of the day. Lieut.-Col. Tisdale moved an amendment to the bill which had for its object the continuation of the present system.

Sir Frederick's Reply.

Sir Frederick Borden opposed the amendment in an effective speech, showing that it was distinctly to the advantage of the Canadian militia to adopt the system which had been adopted after much inquiry and careful consideration in the Mother Country, and that the adoption of the Government measure was a compliment to the Imperial authorities, and would tend to bring the Canadian militia into closer touch with, rather than having a tendency to separate it from, the Imperial forces.

To Stand For Opinion.

An amendment offered by Mr. Logan, requiring the consent of the head of a municipality to the requisition for troops in case of riot or disturbance, and providing for an appeal to the judiciary in the event of refusal, was allowed to stand over for the consideration of the Minister of Justice.

The resolution providing for the purchase of the Canada Eastern Railway was reported.

No Substitute Offered.

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety-nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when the best remedy for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know it is the one remedy that can always be depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. Sold by all druggists.

THEY JUST WANT ADVICE,

Presence of Colonials on Imperial Defence Committee Does Not Impose Obligation in Any Way.

London, Aug. 3.—(C. A. P.)—The House of Commons yesterday passed the supplementary vote of £2,960 for salaries for the new permanent staff of the Defence Committee.

Sir John C. R. Colomb declared that the establishment of the Defence Committee did more for the safety of the Empire and for economy and efficiency than any steps taken by any Government in the past.

Premier Balfour, speaking of the measure, said that one very great merit of the committee was that it had no executive authority. This was especially valuable from the point of view of its relations with the Defence Committee and with the self-governing colonies of the Empire, over which no office in Britain exercised control. When any problem of defence came up which touched the colonies nearly, or when the colonies took a closer interest in the problem of Imperial defence as a whole, he hoped "we might have the advantage of their assistance in our councils."

He was perfectly certain the self-governing colonies would never allow any representative of theirs to come to the Defence Committee if the committee with that addition had the smallest authority to impose obligations either financial, political, military or naval, on the colonies they represented. With a Defence Committee so constituted as this was, they could give advice and the advice would likely be taken by the home departments.

Canada Able to Supply.

London, Aug. 3.—(C.A.P.)—London firms have received a message from Canada, stating that sufficient beef stock is ready for shipment to fill any gap in American consignments.

Has Neuritis.

London, Aug. 3.—(C.A.P.)—General J. W. Laurie, Conservative member for Pembrokeshire, is suffering from neuritis, and will not attend Parliament further this session. He sails for Montreal by the Lake Champlain.

Considering It.

London, Aug. 3.—(C.A.P.)—Sir H. Vincent has been asked by the Premier to postpone his question with reference to a colonial conference on the fiscal policy.

The Standard says it is inferred from this that the Government is considering the suggestion made by Mr. Chamberlain on Monday.

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by all druggists.

TRAINING VOICES.

Quack Music Teachers and the Harm They Do Pupils.

"Ninety-five per cent of all vocal teachers are quacks," said an old musician. Few singers would doubt the assertion. Probably in no other kind of work can a man who knows practically nothing about a subject do so quickly a lucrative amount of teaching. There are many common types—the piano teacher who cannot get enough pupils to make a living, the broken down old time singer, the derelict of the concert halls, who never could sing himself, and many more. Their half hour lessons may be said to consist one-third of chat and gossip, one-third of scales and exercises and one-third of the singing of the pupil's favorite songs, all interspersed with just enough commendation and criticism to keep the pupil's good opinion of both himself and of her teacher. There are teachers whose training has not only ruined voices, but temporarily harmed general health as well. Over against these charlatans of the profession there are conscientious men and women who can detect faults in a voice and know how to correct them and who work carefully and enthusiastically for each individual pupil.

It is not easy to tell the good teacher from the quack, and you will find bitter early experiences in many a successful singer's career.

Canada's Woods.

The impression that British North America is covered with valuable timber is fallacious. Black walnut, red cedar and white oak are not found north of Toronto. A line drawn from the city of Quebec to Sault Ste. Marie will designate the northern limit of beech, elm and birch. The north shore of Lake Superior will mark the northern boundary of sugar hard maple.

SHOWING OFF CHILDREN.

It Is Very Apt to Breed Vanity and Self Consciousness.

The writer considers showing off a child's accomplishments a very hazardous thing to do.

"We should all of us soon become sorry prigs if we accustomed ourselves to exhibit our latest acquirements every time someone appeared who was not acquainted with them.

"The temptation is almost too great a one, it is true, to ask the happy papa and mamma to resist. That the baby who a few months ago could hardly speak at all should now be able to repeat rhyme after rhyme of the classic Mother Goose is certainly a very wonderful thing, and it is very hard for the happy parents to realize that it is a miracle which has taken place sooner or later with every sometime baby in the land.

"But if the little songs must be repeated for company it makes a great difference with what motive the child is led to go through with them. If you say to him, 'Wouldn't you like to tell this lady about the poor little pussy cat who fell into the well?' it may happen that we can get it out without having any other feeling aroused than one of friendly human sympathy, but if you say, 'Come and let this lady see how well you can say "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son,"' you give him a distinct and too easily learned lesson in vanity and self consciousness."—St. Louis Republic.

LINEN CUPBOARD.

A Handy Piece of Furniture That Takes Up Little Room.

Every housewife feels it her duty to have a linen cupboard, and where space is at a premium and the spacious cupboards that were the delight of the grandmothers of the present generations are out of the question, a specially constructed cabinet serves admirably for a substitute. Such a cupboard is the one here shown, fashioned of English walnut and cedar and distinguished for its simplicity. It is scarcely five feet in height, the soft coloring of the unpolished walnut being so unobtrusive as to harmonize excellently with ordinary modern furnishings. The trays of Lebanon cedar are so constructed that each draws out upon a ledge fixed to the inside of the cupboard doors. For the mistress of a cottage or for the city apartment such a cupboard is certain to prove a boon and a joy.—Brooklyn Eagle.

To Improve the Skin.

One means of improving the skin is to prepare a mixture of fine oatmeal and distilled water. Make this the consistency of thick cream and, having dabbed it all over the face, rub it till it rolls off in dry flakes. Whatever be the plan decided upon great care must be taken to remove all traces of the oatmeal from the eyebrows and the roots of the hair, where it is apt to cake and remain in that unpleasant condition. In the massage treatment the oatmeal course comes after that of massage with cold cream and before the final course, consisting of a spray with a good astringent lotion, which should be allowed to dry into the skin. The lotion tones up the cuticle after the steaming and massage process. Toilet vinegar is an excellent astringent, and another is composed of one pint of elder flower water, half an ounce of simple tincture of benzoin and ten drops of tincture of myrrh.

$500 REWARD! FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

The Vice-President Independent Order of Good Templars.

An experience which many women have was related by Miss Agnes Stebbings, of 231 East 30th Street, New York City, as follows: "I had very poor health for a year until life looked dark and dreary to me. Had headaches, backache, also pain, my sleep was broken and fitful. I longed for health. Tried several medicines but none were of any lasting benefit until I took Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I soon realized that I had found the right remedy. It helped nature to throw off the poisons that saturated the system, removed all pains and strengthened the digestive organs, and brought the roses of health back to my cheeks. This medicine if taken occasionally keeps the system in perfect condition, helping it to throw off the disease and consequences of exposure to dampness. I am pleased to give it my endorsement."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

NOT JUST AS GOOD

Did you ever inquire at a store for certain articles and get for a reply "We have something just as good"? Did it ever occur to you that "Something just as good" is something the dealer has been able to buy much cheaper than the articles you inquire for? This is true in drugs, fabrics, groceries, hardware, and in fact every line, including silver-plated ware. If you inquire for 1847 Rogers Bros.' Knives, Forks or Spoons, don't accept any bogus Rogers' stamp because your dealer tells you it's just as good.

1847 TRADE MARK ROGERS BROS

The above trade mark has been stamped on every article of the original and genuine Rogers Bros.' goods for over 50 years. Get this and you get the best that is made.

Stale Bread.

If properly treated stale bread may be kept for years, always ready for instant use, says a writer in What to Eat. As the scraps of bread, biscuit, cake and crackers accumulate save them in a dust proof bag or any other receptacle that will keep them without attracting mold. When enough is collected to fill a baking pan of large size put them in it, set in the oven and allow them to stay there till toasted crisp. While yet warm put them in a cloth bag or on the molding board and beat or roll until reduced to wheat grain size. Put through the flour sieve and keep the meal in a tin box or in whatever one uses for bolding bread timbers and the grains in another. The success of the process depends upon toasting the scraps sufficiently without burning.

Fruitful Suggestions.

A good salad accompaniment to a heavy dinner is one made of dates and oranges served on lettuce leaves. The dates should be stoned and sprinkled lightly with sugar and the oranges cut into small pieces. Pour over this the juice of an orange, with a tablespoon of chopped parsley and a dash of red pepper.

In the land of oranges they have a delightful way of serving the fruit. It is peeled down to the bottom as one would pare an apple, leaving a sort of disk at the end of the peel. Then a fork is plunged through the remaining skin to the depth of the times. The fruit is eaten from the fork. It is delicious this way, but of course one needs a finger bowl after the process.—Exchange.

"Cottar's Saturday Night."

The original manuscript of "The Cottar's Saturday Night"—which Burns himself thought his finest poem—was sold at Sotheby's for £500. Curiously enough, this is just the sum with which Burns returned to Ayrshire from Edinburgh as the net proceeds of the first edition of his poems, after he had been lionized by all the men of light and leading in modern Athens, and now the manuscript of only one of his effusions has fetched as much. Burns wrote a fine, bold hand—full of character and force—and as big as Cromwell's or Bismarck's—what is called in Scotland "half-text."

THE LIFE OF A MOTH.

The Beautiful Promethea in Its Pilgrimage on Earth From the Cradle to the Grave.

If one manifestation of nature's ways can be more marvellous than another the chief distinction must be given to the transformations of the insect world. The beautiful promethea moth emerging from a grey silken cocoon that has been lying inert on the desk for weeks cannot fail to appeal to the spirit of wonder. A ripping, cutting sound is the first indication of awakening life, as the knives with which the shoulders of the coming insect are armed are used to make a passage through the hard, tough covering. Soon the head, with its feathery antennae, comes forth, and the queer, misshapen, elongated insect vigorously extricates itself from its shell. It misses the lilac bush, where, in its previous incarnation, it went to sleep last fall. It runs eagerly about hunting for some point of suspension, for without the aid of gravitation those bulbs on its shoulders would never develop into perfect wings. A book leaning against a shelf affords the needed perch and there the process of transformation goes on with strange celerity. The attenuated body begins to enlarge and shorten and to take on its normal texture and rich colors. One joint after another from the thorax rounds out into shape. While this process is going on the bulbs on the shoulders are forming into wings. The change commences near the body, and the pulpy mass is gradually transformed into beautifully marked, velvety wings. The transformation continues till the pulp is but a marginal band on the wings, but this is still capable of considerable extension before the thin membranes are really completed. Then the beautiful promethea, a female, poses and surveys a new and strange world, while the newly-formed wings, four inches across, are moved gently and timidly as if to make sure of their existence.

This large and beautiful moth is the mature development of the great, thick worm that crawled about last summer and nibbled the leaves of the lilac, witch hazel, ash and a few other trees. Then it feasted leisurely, a crawling worm. Now it is beautifully equipped for flight, but it can no longer eat, and its life mission will be fulfilled perhaps within the coming night. This moth can scarcely be regarded as the worm transformed, for she excretes in fluid form all the vital, internal organs of her larval existence. Before lapsing in the inert pupa state she casts off her legs and all external organs, including even the head. There is a deepening of the mystery of identity in this casting off of all parts of a previous existence. When the promethea larva decided to retire for the winter she selected a convenient lilac leaf and began by winding silk industriously around the twig where it grew. From this foundation she proceeded down the stem of the leaf, winding it round about and thus spinning a tenacious silk cord. On reaching the leaf she began to fold it about herself, drawing it in gradually at various points until it became a closely enfolding overcoat. Within this covering the exuded thread of silk was wound and wound until it formed a complete strong cocoon cemented securely to the enfolding leaf. Thus protected the inert chrysalis slept through the winter, oblivious to frost, snow and rain. Some day we shall discover a means of dissolving the gum with which our moths cement the silk of their cocoons, and then we shall have the raw material for a silk industry.

With the approach of evening the promethea begins to manifest great activity, trembling and pulsating with abundant life. Her beauty is not destined to perish unappreciated, for the closing darkness brings several suitors to the open window. The males are darker and of different form, and live but to fulfill their reproductive mission. Away goes the beautiful lady with dizzy, irregular flight, perhaps to fall a victim to the night-hawk calling out of the darkness overhead, but more likely to sparingly distribute her eggs on the lilacs, witch hazels and choke cherry trees for many miles along her nocturnal course. That purpose achieved, her transient life goes out. But every egg that escapes the parasitic insects and the nimble warblers gleaming among the leaves hatches out a perfect larva, to complete the same strange metamorphosis.—Toronto Globe.

Aged Norwegian Settlers.

A rather humorous case has come before the Department of the Interior respecting a Norwegian who came to the immigration agent at St. Paul. The man, whose name is Gilbertson, gave his age as 73, and stated that he was on his way to Wetaskiwin to take up a homestead, so that he could make a home for his mother, whose age was 103. The lady is said to be hale and hearty and able to take care of a home, and Gilbertson himself is a man who would not be taken for more than 55 years of age.

Going for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Don't put yourself in this man's place, but keep a bottle of this remedy in your home. There is nothing so good for Colic, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and Diarrhoea. It is equally valuable for Summer Complaint and Cholera Infantum and has saved the lives of more children than any other medicine in use. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

You, or some one of your family, are sure to need this remedy sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly; you will need it quickly. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? Price, 35 cents.

AN ARBITRARY TYRANT.

This Autocrat Exists Solely by the Will of the People.

And it came to pass that in the very height of modern times an arbitrary tyrant ruled over a great country called America. The name of this tyrant was Everybodydoesit, and all the inhabitants of the land bowed themselves to his will.

Terror of the autocrat caused grown men and women to cast aside every dictate of common sense—sometimes of honesty as well. Children overstudied, wearing out precious eyesight, cramping growing organs, yet mothers whispered under their breath the name of Everybodydoesit and the evil went on. Men bought houses and European passages, automobiles and other expensive luxuries, the cost of which was out of all proportion to their income. "Everybodydoesit" was the explanation they gave.

Sorriest of all was the case of the young girls. They patronized unwholesome plays, read books produced by diseased minds, they overdressed, abandoned the gentle ideals of their mothers' day and grew old before their time. "Everybodydoesit," they said.

And thus it was in all classes of society throughout the bread land. All men and women, young and old, recognized the sway of Everybodydoesit and bowed their necks to his yoke.

An Accommodation Train.

In the lake district of England there is a tiny railway which has only one train run by two officials, one of whom is managing director, ticket collector, guard and porter and the other chief engineer, engine driver and stoker. The train stops anywhere. It frequently goes off the line, but crowbars are carried, with which the train is persuaded to return to its proper position. When a friend of either official is observed the train is brought to a standstill. At one time, when the managing director was courting the daughter of a farmer through whose lands the line ran, the young lady would take her stand at a certain gate every evening, the train would be stopped, and the young man would kiss her good night.

Long Widowhood.

In 1753, in the ninety-sixth year of her age, died Jean Countess of Roxburghe. She was not a very remarkable woman, but her memory is preserved on account of her long widowhood, which lasted seventy-one years. Her father, the first Lord Tweeddale, fought at Marston Moor in 1644.

This Countess of Roxburghe's long widowhood is insignificant compared with that of a certain Agnes Skinner. According to an inscription in Camberwell church, this worthy woman died in 1499 at the age of 119 years, having survived her husband only eight years less than a century.

Be Just a Man.

Don't be a gentleman. Lincoln was a man. Who ever spoke of the "gentlemanly Shakespeare?" Think of describing Grant as a gentleman! How would it look in history to read about our great gentleman, George Washington? Nobody ever dubbed Solomon with the name of "gentleman." "A gentleman" is the snob's title for a do nothing, a fellow about town, a tailor made loafer, a confidence shark or a society stalk. Be a man.

The man who makes hay while the sun shines is in a position to lend money to the fellow who writes poetry about it.—Philadelphia Record.

LAST DAY AT THE PETERBOROUGH RACES

Two Events on the Card Yesterday Afternoon.

Nettie Wright Won the 2.50 Class and Rathlan the Hurdle Race.

The Peterborough Turf Club race meet, was concluded at the Driving Park yesterday. The meet has provided some fine racing, and though the attendance was hardly as large as was expected, everything went off well, and some good sport was witnessed.

Two events were on the card yesterday and both proved interesting. Maud Keswick, a local horse, was beaten out on the 2.50 class by an outsider after winning the first heat.

The summary was as follows:

2.50 class, Pace or Trot, Purse $300.

Nettie Wright, Clark, Gananoque	2	1	1	1
Maud Keswick, Fitzgerald, Peterborough	1	3	2	3
Pearl Wilks, Acton, Niagara	3	2	3	2
Headlight, Acton, Niagara	4	5	4	4
Donna Belle, Johnson, Peterborough	5	5	4	5

Time, 2.24 1-2, 2.24 1-4, 2.24 1-2, 2.24 3-4.

In the first heat Maud Keswick took the lead at the start, closely followed by Nettie Wright, and the two had a great fight until the close the former winning by about two lengths. Pearl Wilks held third place, while Headlight and Donna Belle fell far behind, the latter breaking. In the second heat Maud Keswick again took the lead, followed by Nettie Wright, Pearl Wilks, Headlight and Donna Belle. It was a pretty race for half a mile when Maud Keswick broke badly and fell back to fourth place. She gained again, but once more broke. The sprint up the stretch was interesting, as Maud Keswick was gaining rapidly on the leader, but when near the wire she broke for a third time and finished in third place.

In the third Maud Keswick and Nettie Wright had a close race for first place, but the former could not pass the pole horse. Donna Belle came up strong at the finish, and took fourth position.

The order in the third heat was similar to that of the third until the second lap, when Pearl Wilks passed Maud Keswick. Nettie Wright won handily.

One and one-half mile Race, over six hurdles, Purse $150.

Rathlen, Northgrove, Toronto	1
Nicol, Alexander, Ottawa	2
Fellowship, Maher, Toronto	3
Mango, Ellwood, Toronto	4

Time, 2.49.

Rathlen jumped into the lead, and was closely followed by Mango, Narod. This position was unchanged until the second lap, when Mango fell back to last place, losing ground steadily afterwards. Narod gave Rathlen a great struggle for first money, the latter winning by about three lengths. The winning horse did not jump one hurdle clearly, each one being knocked down.

Before the race Mango was sold by auction for $111, to Mr. Jas. Allan.

The 57th Band was again in attendance, and as usual the programme was much appreciated.

It will be a pleasing announcement that in accordance with the powers under the Deed of Trust, the Trustees of The Trent Valley Navigation Company Cup have decided to put the Cup up for competition at the Regatta. This will necessitate the changing of the Dinghy course to nine miles and the other conditions will be those attached by the donors.

In addition the Chemong Association will offer a handsome silk flag for 2nd prize in this race.

This handsome cup, being for perpetual competition in the Kawartha Lakes, is destined to become one of the most important aquatic events in the district, and all lovers of this manly sport should show their appreciation of the Trent Valley Navigation Company's magnificent gift by making the competition for this splendid Trophy as keen as possible.

The following rules and regulations will govern the races:—

All events free to enter.

No entry allowed to win more than three events.

Entries for launch races giving horse power of engines and measurements of boats to be in hands of Secretary not later than August 6th.

Entries for sailing races with measurements and sail area to be in hands of Secretary, August 8th.

Open hunting canoes only to be used in all canoe races.

Refreshments will be served at the Park Pavilion by an experienced caterer. The Chemong Park Hotel will make special arrangements to entertain the visitors but parties intending to remain over Sunday should secure accommodation in advance. The ladies of Chemong Park will hold a reception in a large marquee on the grounds where all visiting ladies will be made welcome.

Galt, with Flaherty pitching, won a game from Acton in the Canadian League on Monday, by 10—2, and just about cinched the championship. Flaherty struck out 10 men and allowed 7 hits. The former Peterborough twirler is pitching great ball. The Reformer says:—"Up to the 8th innings only one of the visitors got so far as third. In the first three innings just nine men faced Flaherty. In the sixth there were only seven balls pitched and every one of them was over. This included a strike out, too."

BOWLING-ON-THE-GREEN.

The three rinks that went to Port Hope yesterday went down to defeat. The Port Hopers treated our men very hospitably and extended every courtesy, but showed no mercy on the bowling game, which, of course, was expected. Our boys are very grateful for their kindness and anticipate an early opportunity to return the compliment.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Belleville Intelligencer makes the following statements, with regard to the standing of sport in that city. The fact that sports in Belleville is at a low ebb is a fact well known to many outside of Belleville:

Speaking last night, a prominent gentleman of this city said:—"I think I have lived in more places in Ontario than most people, and I know of no town of any size where the young men took so little interest in sports as they do here. What the cause is I don't know."

* * * *

The above tale of woe, sad to relate, is true. Look at Port Hope, not half the size of Belleville, and they have a lacrosse club and baseball club. Both stand well and are liberally patronized. There seems to be the rub—patronage. Lacrosse and baseball clubs in this city, in the past, were not well enough supported to enable the players to "come out even," and they don't think enough of sport, for sport's sake, to put on games for people who refuse to help them "out of a hole."

* * * *

It is a pity that the leading men of this city could not be prevailed on to take the matter up and provide recreation grounds, somewhere near the centre of the city, for our young men and boys. Perhaps if they did, Belleville might once more regain the athletic supremacy she used to hold in the "good old days."

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Inc'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

August 4th, Wednesday evening.—To-day excellent market reports on cotton stimulated great activity in all the southern stocks. They are all going higher, and we would stay long of St. L. and S. W. pfd., Tex. In fact nothing more than temporary reactions such as we had yesterday need be expected and to-day's strength in the general list shows that the market is well supported on every decline. L.N. will go to 134 and St. L. and S. W. pfd will go to 45. Tex. will cross 38 and So Ry should also go to about 32 or 33. Atch. we are told is going still higher and we advise its purchase on any moderate reaction. We also continue bullish on A.C.F., S.F.I., M.R., St. P., S.P., R.I and all the low priced stocks. Would certainly buy them on the next good reaction. So. W. advanced another point, but did not open high enough to make the culmination of the deal. We expect that May wheat will sell at 150 before it expires.—Wall Street Information Bureau.

New York.—It looks this morning very much as though the stock market would continue narrow with specialties movements. A waiting attitude seems to be the programme for all classes. There is some betterment in general conditions although not material. We get bull tips on Kt. pfd. Sugar is also tipped for an advance. We are confident that Rdg. will do better as soon as certain arrangements are completed. Met. stocks have not finished their rise. Just at present we do not believe the grangers St. P., Atch. and U.P. will advance to higher levels. Five points are predicted for S.P., U.P. from present prices and Keene has charge of the movement.—Town Topics.

New York.—The directors of Erie unanimously declared the full div. on pfd. Keep long of the low-priced Gould shares for materially higher prices. Think what a banner cotton crop will mean to the southern roads. St. L. and Sanf. 2nd pfd is good for 65 and will probably sell higher. Tractions should be bought on every little price recession. R.R.C. pfd and C.F.I. are a purchase.—Josephy.

New York.—Reports of Russian reverses in far east confirmed. Regular semi annual 2 p.c. div. on Erie 1st pfd.

Stubborn Skin Diseases.

Nothing is more discouraging than a case of eczema or salt rheum which refuses to heal. By using Dr. Chase's Ointment, however, you will soon see that new skin is forming and the sore part is becoming smaller and smaller. The itching is entirely overcome after a few applications and you are given satisfactory evidence that a continuation of the treatment will bring a thorough cure.

JAPANESE EXPECT PORT ARTHUR'S FALL

KUROPATKIN IS CORNERED.

His Only Exit is to the West if Defeated in the Next Battle—Of Course, There Is Surrender Left Him, in any Event—At Last Line of Port Arthur's Defences, Too.

Tokio, Aug. 5.—The Japanese are hourly awaiting tidings of a victory at Port Arthur with more interest and eagerness than heretofore displayed during the war. From a political, strategical and a sentimental standpoint, the position of the Russian fortress and naval base is considered of paramount importance by the Japanese.

It is known that the Japanese noose about the besieged city is gradually tightening. The Japanese guns are pouring fire into the diminishing circle, and it is felt here that the critical hour is fast approaching. But the public here is ignorant of the hour when the final assault will be made, and also of the details of what has already been done around Port Arthur.

It is believed that the fire from the Japanese batteries will compel the Russian fleet to leave the harbor and accept battle from Admiral Togo.

Must Move West or Surrender.

Newchang, Aug. 5.—Field Marshal Oyama, commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces in Manchuria, and General Kodama, chief of staff, left Kaichouya, and have established headquarters in the field with the army.

Gen. Kureki with one hundred thousand men is now behind the Russian forces; Gen. Oku with an army of 50,000 men is on their front, while flanking them on the left is Gen. Modzu with his division of 50,000 men.

If Gen. Kuropatkin is defeated in this battle he must either move westward or surrender.

The foreign military attaches are with the second army en route for the front to witness the battle. The Japanese troopships are expected here to-day.

At Their Last Line.

The Russian troops at Port Arthur have been driven back to the last line of their defences. The Japanese attacking force has three hundred and fifty guns in action.

To Bring Up Supplies.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—The fact that there is no further news from the front beyond Lieut.-Gen. Zassalitch's account of the fighting at Simoucheng on July 31, bears out the Associated Press' explanation that the Japanese are halting to bring up supplies, especially ammunition, of which a modern engagement entails an extravagant expenditure, and without which it would be impossible even for a victorious army to follow up its success.

Battle Rages North of Haicheng.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—A rumor is current here that a battle is in progress north of Haicheng.

Tokio, Aug. 5.—The Japanese, victors at the battle of Simoucheng, have advanced and occupied Haicheng.

Tokio, Aug. 5.—The Russians began abandoning Haicheng, Aug. 2. The Japanese entered Haicheng without resistance at noon yesterday, and the Japanese occupied Newchwang the same day.

London, Aug. 5.—A despatch to a news agency from Anshanshan (halfway between Haicheng and Liaoyang), says: "The Japanese advance is being continued with great energy against the southern army. The Russian main forces continue their retirement northward, but the cavalry has checked the Japanese threatening flank movement."

Lost Over 1,000 Killed.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 5.—General Sakharoff reports that 29 officers and over 1,000 men were killed or wounded in the engagements of July 30 and July 31. Six guns were abandoned.

"According to the report of the commander of a Cossack regiment, which reconnoitered the Valley of Dapoutzza during the battle, as well as organized the delivery of ammunition and the removal of wounded, three divisions of Japanese were observed moving through the town of Haputzza.

"Our losses on July 30 and 31 have been up to the present estimated at 29 officers and slightly over 1,000 men killed or wounded."

No Acute Stage Looked For.

London, Aug. 5.—The controversy over the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander is not expected either in British Governmental or Russian diplomatic circles here to reach an acute stage, both Governments having adopted a conciliatory attitude.

Seized Part of Cargo.

Vladivostock, Aug. 5.—The prize court has decided to confiscate such portion of the cargo of the Portland and Asiatic Line steamer Arabia (captured by the armored cruiser Gromoboi of the Vladivostock squadron), as was consigned to Japanese ports, namely, 5,900 pounds of flour and the railroad equipment, this portion constituting less than half the bulk and weight of her cargo, the remainder consisting of 142,500 pounds of flour consigned to Hong Kong. The confiscated portion of the cargo is now being unloaded. So soon as this is completed the steamer will be released.

ALL BUT ONE WERE LOST.

Seven of Yacht Ouida's Party Drown in Annapolis Basin.

TERRIBLE BOATING ACCIDENT

Yacht Containing the Party of Americans Capsizes Grounded—Attempted to Continue Their Voyage in the Tender, Which Swamped—Man on a Wheel Killed By Lightning at the Soo.

Halifax, N.S., Aug. 5.—One of the most appalling disasters in the history of yachting on Annapolis Basin took place early yesterday evening, by which seven lives were lost in calm water during broad daylight, and only one of the party was saved.

The party, which started on a fishing excursion early in the morning in the yacht Ouida, were: Capt. Charles Hersey of Digby, a man named Vidito, his wife and child, Bear River; George Leach, manager of woollen mills at Nashville, R.I.; Mrs. O'Reilly, of New York and her two children.

At 4 in the afternoon they were making for Bear River Station, nine miles from Digby, at which point they were to be met by a buckboard and taken to Bear River Town. Near the southeastern point of Bear Island, near the mouth of the river, the yacht touched the bar at a point where it is possible to walk ashore at low water.

At the time of striking, the tide was full, and the captain, knowing it would be impossible to get her off for some hours, decided to take the party ashore in the small tender. This boat was not suitable for carrying more than four or five, but no doubt realizing that they were late for their engagement, and that more time would be lost in making two trips, all eight got into the little boat, which capsized before a great distance had been covered.

Two hours later, the driver of the waiting team looked over the Basin and saw the boat with one man clinging to it. Three of the seven ladies—Leach, Mrs. O'Reilly and her 12-year-old son—were floating in the vicinity and recovered.

Drowned at Pembroke.

Pembroke, Aug. 5.—While bathing with some other boys in the Indian River here yesterday afternoon, Lavey Dunlevy, the 12-year-old son of Martin Dunlevy, was drowned. The body was recovered almost immediately, but life was extinct.

Drowned at Alliston.

Alliston, Aug. 5.—William Cassidy, a young man, 25 years of age, was found drowned in the mill-race here yesterday morning. It is supposed to be a case of suicide.

LIGHTNING KILLS.

Man on Wheel Struck By Electric Bolt Dies Instantly.

Sault Ste. Marie, Aug. 5.—During a severe thunderstorm, which passed over this place yesterday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock, John Kennedy, a carpenter, was returning home on his wheel, and, while passing the home of Mr. McKenzie on Wilton street, received a stroke of lightning which killed him instantly. Standing inside the door of McKenzie's house were four children, who were all rendered unconscious from the same bolt. All but one has recovered. The house of Mr. McKenzie was badly shaken up. John Kennedy leaves a wife and family of small children, and also a brother, who lives in Marmora.

Baby Killed in Runaway.

Belleville, Aug. 5.—A fatal runaway accident occurred near the village of Sterling, 14 miles from this city, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Bidwell Windsor, had driven a young horse from her home to her father's, close by, and had gotten out of the buggy to tie the animal, leaving her baby in the rig with her 12-year-old daughter. The horse became frightened and ran away, knocking Mrs. Windsor down and stunning her. The infant, a little girl, was thrown out of the buggy, receiving injuries which caused its death shortly after. The girl had an arm broken and was severely bruised.

Lost One Leg.

Port Dover, Aug. 5.—C. Van Dracklin, of Simcoe, who visited Port Dover with a party of excursionists yesterday, had his leg amputated and was severely injured otherwise by falling between the cars of a moving train.

Indian Chief Hurt.

Hamilton, Aug. 5.—Chief Hill of the Six Nation Indians, Tuscaroras, while on his way to Aldershot yesterday to bring his wife home from a berrying expedition, was thrown out of his wagon, and was dragged along the street with the lines wound around his wrists. He was so badly hurt that he had to be taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. Another Indian brave, Jacob Bowlees, who was with him, was also hurt.

After One Year.

Rome, Aug. 5.—The first anniversary of the election of Pope Pius X. to the chair of St. Peter was observed at the Vatican yesterday. The Pope declared himself tired and almost sick of the political wrangling with which he has had to contend since his elevation to the head of the church.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S IDEA.

Wishes to Do For the Farmers What the the Government Has Proposed to Do For the Manufacturers.

London, Aug. 5.—(C. A. P.)—Mr. Chamberlain, speaking at Welbeck to an immense gathering, largely composed of agriculturists, said he wanted to extend to agriculture a similar advantage to that which the Government proposed to the manufacturer.

He proposed a two shilling duty on corn and on flour, such a duty as would ensure that the milling of wheat would be done in Britain. He would put 5 per cent. duty on meat, dairy products, preserved milk, poultry, eggs, vegetables and fruits. These duties might slightly raise the price of the articles affected, but that would enable the farmer to increase his production. The duties he proposed would be paid by the foreigner.

His policy was Imperial. The changes he proposed would enable them to reciprocate the offers from the colonists beyond the seas. It was impossible to produce all our requirements at home. Would you not rather buy from friends who stood by you in time of trial and stress than from foreigners? In war the colonists showed they were kind to us and one nation with us. In peace they want to draw closer to the Motherland they prefer to deal with.

They proved their sincerity by offering us a preference on everything that we produce, and that we send them. They ask the trade we now give the foreigner, and, in return, they will take more of our manufactures. They can supply us with all the corn and meat we require, and cannot produce ourselves.

CANADIAN PROSPERITY.

The Opposition in the Dominion Parliament cannot let well enough alone. Facts have impressed upon the people the fact that under the Liberal Government there has prevailed an unprecedented prosperity. Hon. Mr. Fielding's budget speech disclosed the circumstances of the masterly management of the Dominion finances and their healthy condition. The country knows this because it feels it in its pockets, and the naked truth needs hardly to be ornamented with statistics to make a good picture. Against this Mr. Bell, of Pictou, a Conservative member, brought up a resolution criticising the Government and its management of our affairs, which brought Hon. Mr. Fielding an opportunity for a reply which set forth in glowing lines the flourishing condition of the public finances, and of the general interests of the country. It gave him a chance to give Canada a good advertisement by publishing to the world the facts that her trade has grown from $289,000,000 in 1896, to $476,000,000 in 1903, and the deposits in the banks from $183,000,000 to $423,000,000. No other country in the world can show the same rate of growth in the same period. Mr. Bell should be sorry that he spoke.

LIVE STOCK SHOW.

At a meeting of the directors of the Eastern Ontario Live Stock and Poultry Show held in Ottawa a few days ago it was decided to hold the next show in Ottawa from March 6th to 10th, 1905. The show will be run on much the same lines as in previous years—the exhibits consisting of horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep, swine and poultry. Liberal prizes, such as will bring out large and excellent exhibits, will be offered in all classes.

The new building erected for this show by the city of Ottawa is nearing completion. For the purposes of a fat stock show the plans of this building are excellent; the needs of both exhibitors and visitors having been carefully considered. Its size is such that under the one roof is provided adequate accommodation for all exhibits as well as a large auditorium in which the judging will take place and lectures will be delivered on practical subjects of interest to farmers.

The prize list is now being prepared and will shortly be distributed to all who send their names to the Secretary.

TRACKLESS ELECTRIC RAILWAY

A trackless railway is being erected by the community of Monnheim, which, according to Jos. J. Langer, the United States consul at Solingen, Germany, will be the first of its kind in Prussia. It will run from Monnheim to Langenfeld, and will be two and one half miles long, with two short branches intended for freighting purposes. The main line will serve for the transportation of persons, baggage, mails and freight, and an extension is possible at both ends. The roadway from Monnheim to Langenfeld is about twenty-three feet wide, with a good basaltic cover about fifteen feet in width running almost in an air line, with the exception of a few curves. A special contrivance for coupling is provided in order to keep an exact rut of all the cars, which take the place of wheel flanges in ordinary rail trains. The buildings to be erected for use of the railway are a power house, car barns, repair shops and offices. For the running of the railway a current of about 550 volts will be furnished. The power will be conducted to and from the cars, which are provided with electric motors, by means of two rotary poles, placed on the top of the cars. Sliding blocks enable the trains to get away from ten to twelve feet. The wiring will consist of two hard copper wires, with hard rubber insulators, carried by iron poles, about eighteen feet above the middle of the road. For entering farm yards lying close to the road there will be used, instead of the regular wire, a connector and flexible cable fifty to seventy feet in length, by means of which the current will be transmitted to the motor car. Ordinary electric cars have but one pole, and the second pole of these railless cars serves for conducting back the current which is otherwise done through the rails. When these trains pass each other one will remain standing under the wires and disconnect its current until the other has passed. The trains will consist of an electric locomotive for drawing two or three cars, driven by two electric motors of from twenty-five to forty horse power, and will be furnished with the necessary illuminating apparatus and brakes. The conducting crew has its place on the locomotive. The cars for carrying freight have a capacity of five tons. These cars will be coupled in such a manner that the wheels of the car following alongside the rut of the forward one, thus making a wide rut and avoiding the damaging of the road on wet days. Some of the cars will be open and some closed, and all will be fitted with the necessary brakes. Farmers' wagons can be attached to the end of the train, provided the ordinary tongues are replaced by shorter coupling tongues. For the passenger service a motor omnibus, having a seating capacity of sixteen and standing room for eight, is provided. In case of an increased passenger traffic a similar car, but of lighter construction than the motor omnibus, will be added. Five or six double trips at the rate of eight to ten miles per hour will be made daily on schedule time. For the accommodation of the workingmen, in the morning and evening, two labour trains consisting of motor cars and one or two passenger cars will be added. Freight will be carried on week days only, as conditions may require, and during the intervals between passenger trains. The fare for the entire trip will be six cents. For carrying freight the charge will be $2.38 per carload of ten tons. Subscribers and parties doing a large freight business will be allowed a discount.

IS THE SHOW MISMANAGED?

The St. Louis Exposition is likely to prove a much greater failure financially than did the Pan-American. This is to be regretted, because the show is a good one, and has cost a vast sum of money. Those who have studied the matter are generally of the opinion that three causes contribute to the unsatisfactory result: The publicity department has been mismanaged.

The management set out to do its advertising by circulars, posters and head-head notices—the Pan-American blunder over again; and in a very laudatory article contributed to Leslie's Monthly the secretary receives great praise for his refusal to use the newspaper advertising columns to boom the show. The result is beginning to be seen, and now the despisers of the newspaper are begging the press of the United States and Canada to help it out of the hole by dead-heading the publicity that they scorned to pay for. It is to be doubted whether even the press could now undo the evil done and make the show the success that a liberal and judicious advertising campaign might have made it. Then, many people who contemplated visiting the fair were deterred by the high rates quoted by certain hotels. They did not take into consideration the fact that accommodation at a fraction of the rates demanded by the rubber hotels was to be had in a city of St. Louis' size. They heard of friends who had been imposed upon, and they stayed at home.

The attendance up to July 23, paid and free, was 3,971,092. The paid attendance was probably about 2,250,000. That is a mere fraction of the Chicago paid attendance for the same time. The highest weeks were:

Eighth week..... 548,470
Ninth week..... 540,340
Tenth week..... 500,359
Eleventh week 512,150

It is easy to see that at such a rate the St. Louis Exposition will not realise a surplus. But the men who mismanage these shows always get their fat salaries, however advertising appropriation may be wasted.

The Paris and Chicago World's Fairs were the successes of their kind. Here are the figures of paid attendance at a number of the greatest expositions since 1850:

London, 1851—6,039,195.
London, 1862—6,211,103.
Paris, 1855—5,162,330.
Paris, 1867—8,805,969.
Vienna, 1873—6,740,500.
Philadelphia, 1876—10,164,489.
Paris, 1878—16,032,725.
Sydney, 1879—1,117,536.
Melbourne, 1880—1,330,279.
London (Fisheries.) 1883—4,763,051.
London (Health,) 1884—4,158,390.
London (Inventions), 1885—5,760,581.
London (Colonial,) 1886—5,550,745.
Glasgow. 1888—5,748,379.
Paris, 1889—25,149,338.
Chicago, 1893—27,539,521.
Paris, 1900—50,000,000.
Buffalo, 1901—5,306,559.

The St. Louis Exposition may have a larger paid attendance than that of Buffalo; it has a vastly larger debt to liquidate. It will take all its receipts for admissions for many weeks to come to repay Uncle Sam's $4,000,000 loan. What the other creditors will receive is a matter for speculation.

LINDSAY COUNCIL'S ACTION CRITICISED.

Watchman-Warder Finds Points in Connection With Central Power Mortgage not Satisfactory.

The Lindsay Watchman-Warder referring editorially to the surrendering of the mortgage held by the town on the Central Ontario Power Company's property, for stock in the company, says:—

"Assuming, as upon the word of the "town solicitor we do, that the Burleigh mortgage held by the town is valid, there is no doubt that it is a far more valuable security than an equal amount of the stock of the company. The mortgage gives the town an absolute ownership in the Burleigh power, subject only to a prior claim of some $3,000, and no doubt could at some time, more or less remote, be realized upon at its face value, for no doubt that power is worth the full amount of both claims against it. Such a hold on a property of that sort is no mean asset.

"The stock of the company is altogether different sort of asset. Stock as it goes to-day, is worth something or nothing. That of some of the best going concerns in Canada has shown such a tendency to go into the ground of late, as to make that of a purely prospective proposition a doubtful security. The company may never develop the Burleigh power. In that case two things will result. It will of course not bring the power to Lindsay, and its stock will be of no value. But that stock is to be the town's only guarantee that the power will come to Lindsay. That is, as a guarantee that the power will come to Lindsay the town has taken a security that will be worthless if the power does not come. The council has gone into a game of heads I win, tails you lose.

"It should be remembered by the council, though, that while the face of the town's mortgage is for $1500 it bears interest at 6 per cent from January 1st, 1900, and is now worth $1900. It is to be hoped that it is not going to be surrendered for $1500 of stock."

WARSAW.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Quite a lot of our villagers have gone to the lake and elsewhere for what they call a "breathing spell," while those who remain at home seem to "live more, and have our being" all the same.

An excursion on Stony Lake to some point of attraction is talked of by the united Methodist Sunday Schools, to take place at an early day.

Miss Lizzie Lowery, of Peterborough, is home to spend her vacation with her parents in the village.

THE JAPANESE ARE BUSINESS-LIKE.

Parliament in That Country is an Admirable One.

They Disparage Speech-Making—Session Lasts Only 12 Weeks.

The Japanese House of Commons, or House of Representatives as it is really called, is like most other institutions in modern Japan in that it is quite new and has been carefully established on the best models throughout the civilized world.

An English politician who not long ago visited Tokio, and had the opportunity of seeing the Parliament at work, declared to the writer that it was by a long way the most businesslike Parliament in the world. In no other is there anything like so little talk in proportion to the amount of solid work done.

Speech-making on the part of the Japanese member of Parliament is discouraged to the utmost, and a Government bill of extreme importance, such as a Home Rule bill, there, were occasion to bring one forward, would be debated, and either passed or rejected in less than a week. Four or five new acts of all sorts are an average week's work. This is because it is a rule that, when the Government or a private member wishes to introduce a new bill, it is not allowed to be presented direct to the House at the outset. It must first be submitted to a committee, who in private make a thorough examination of it, and digest all the arguments for and against which are likely to be advanced concerning it. Then the committee sends the bill along to the House, with a lengthy report upon it, and in nine cases out of ten the Parliament is guided by the report, and decides upon the measure with very little discussion.

There are 376 members in the Japanese House of Commons, and each one of them is paid at the rate of over £16 a week for his services, although they are elected by constituencies in just the same manner as in this country. The actual fee paid to them is £200 a session; but a session only lasts twelve weeks. All these M.P.'s, are not known by name nor even as the honourable member for this or that constituency, but by a distinguishing number.

When one is elected he is given such a number, and for the purpose of identification afterwards he is usually referred to as "Sixty-seven," or whatever he may be. This number is painted in big figures on a hinged flap which is attached to his desk in the Parliament chamber, and as soon as he takes his seat he lifts up the flap on the hinge as a token that he is then at work for the day. When he leaves the sitting he lays his number flat again.

During a debate, whenever he desires to express approval or disapproval of what is being said or to attract attention to his own claims to be allowed to speak, he does so by rattling this flap, and by long practice he has brought himself to such a degree of skill in the process that he can make more noise in this way than any other.

When he wants to make a speech he further emphasizes his desire by shouting out his number as loudly as he can, and if the president of the chamber chooses him for the next oration, he does so simply by repeating the number.

The chamber is semi-circular in shape, and the members sit together at little groups of desks, three or four together all around. In the centre is a high, elevated tribune, and when a member speaks he ascends it for the purpose, and thus is in full view of the whole house. Just behind him sits the president, with a big bell at his right hand, which he rings loudly whenever there is any indication of a breach of order.

The Japanese Parliament is the only one in the world which has a complete set of verbatim reports of its proceedings from the very commencement. Shortly before its establishment a body of students joined together and invented a system of shorthand which was capable of grappling with the difficulties of the Japanese language, and after a little practice they found that they were able to keep pace with the fastest speakers. Then, when the new Parliament was formed some of these stenographers were engaged for it, and thus it happens that every word spoken in the House of Representatives in Tokio from the very first has been taken down and carefully preserved.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

RELATIVE VALUES OF MILL FEED

Analyses of the Different Varieties With Their Peculiar Advantage.

A leading Nova Scotia farmer points out that the average man buys the different kinds of mill feeds without knowing the grade he is buying, the value of each, or the kind of stock to which it should be fed. In this connection it may be said that numerous experiments have been made in Europe and America in order to ascertain the money value of various feeds according to the nutrients they contain, but the results have been so conflicting that Prof. Henry concludes, in his standard work "Feeds and Feeding", that at present it is impossible to state the value of one feeding stuff in terms of another from calculations based upon the nutrients contained in each. The value to the farmer of these purchased feeding stuffs depends largely upon the sort of roughage and grain with which they are to be fed. Mill feeds are so subject to adulteration that several American experiment stations devote a great deal of attention to making and publishing analyses of the various brands. Some brief notes on the more common feeds are all that a newspaper article will allow.

WHEAT.

Wheat is a suitable feed for all kinds of live stock, if fed with judgement. Shrunken and damaged wheat can be fed to advantage, as it may be nearly or quite equal to the best grain for this purpose. For fattening stock wheat is considered worth about ten per cent less than corn. The by-products of wheat in common use are bran, shorts, middlings and low grade flour. Bran is recognized as one of the very best feeds for dairy cows and sheep, and for horses not at hard work. On account of its coarse and fibrous nature, it is admirably adapted for mixing with corn, peas, and other highly concentrated feeds, but for the same reason it is not suited for feeding in large quantities to hard-worked horses or young pigs. The distinction between shorts and middlings is not always clearly marked, although the former is supposed to be re-ground bran, and the latter the finer particles of bran with some flour included. The poorer grades of shorts often contain the sweepings and dirt of the mill and are not satisfactory for feeding. Middlings are especially useful for feeding pigs, along with skim milk or corn. The lowest grade of flour, frequently known as "red dog", usually contains the germs of the wheat, and on account of its high protein and fat content is a valuable feed for cows, hard-worked horses and growing pigs. The better sorts of low grade flour are similar in composition to the best grades and cannot often be fed at a profit.

CORN.

Corn is the best of all the cereals for fattening stock. It is used very largely in the manufacture of starch, glucose, beer, spirits, etc., and consequently has a long list of by-products. In the processes of manufacture the starch is removed, and the remainder of the grain is sold under the name of gluten feed, which is well suited for dairy cows and fattening stock. Gluten meal is gluten feed without the hulls and germs of the corn and is very rich in protein and fat. It is a capital feed for dairy cows, but on account of its concentrated nature, should be mixed with bran or oats. Corn germ is very rich in protein and oil; after the oil is pressed out the residue is known as corn oil meal or corn oil cake, also a valuable feed. Corn bran is relatively low in feeding value. There are numerous other "corn feeds" on the market, but they vary greatly in composition and value and should be bought only under a guaranteed analysis.

OATS.

The feeding value of oats is well known. Oat hulls, oat dust, and oat feed or shorts are the chief by-products of this grain. Oat hulls are of little value for feed, but are often mixed with corn meal, etc., and the mixture sold as ground oats. Oat dust consists chiefly of the minute hairs removed from the kernel in the preparation of oatmeal.

It has a fair feeding value, especially if broken kernels are present, and there is not too much mill sweepings. Oat shorts or oat feed varies greatly in composition, although the better grades show a feeding value similar to that of oatmeal.

BARLEY.

Barley is a first-class feed for pigs and dairy cows. The by-products, brewers' grains are simply barley from which the dextrin and sugar have been extracted. The wet grains are not desirable for general use, but the dried grains are easily kept and are rich in protein and fat, ranking with bran and oil meal as a feed for dairy cows. Malt sprouts are a cheap and excellent feed for cows, but they are not greatly relished and only two or three pounds a day can be fed.

PEAS.

Peas are very rich in protein, and are among the best feeds for growing animals, dairy cows and pigs. Pea meal is too concentrated to be fed alone. There are no by products in general use.

OIL CAKE.

Oil cake or oil meal is a by-product of the manufacture of linseed oil. It is a very rich and healthful feed, particularly for fattening cattle and sheep. Its high protein content makes it valuable for feeding in moderate quantities to dairy cows, along with corn silage.

COTTON-SEED MEAL.

Cotton-seed meal is a by-product in making cotton-seed oil. It is richest of all the concentrates, but varies greatly in quality. It is not suitable for pigs or calves. Good cotton-seed meal, which is a bright lemon-yellow in colour and has a fresh, pleasant taste, may be profitably fed in reasonable quantity, if combined with other feeds. Not more than three or four pounds daily should be fed to dairy cows.

TOBACCO MONOPOLY

Bill to Curb Power of the Combine in the Dominion.

HONOR LORD AND LADY MINTO

Premier and Leader of the Opposition Deliver Warm Tributes to the Governor-General and Countess—An Address Passed—Hon. Mr. Brodeur's Resolution To Excise Licenses—Other Matters Discussed.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—When the House opened yesterday morning Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick moved the third reading of his bill to amend the Dominion Elections Act of 1900.

Mr. G. A. Alcorn moved an amendment that the elections be held in all constituencies on the same day, but that two weeks elapse between nomination and polling in the six constituencies in which the bill provided the elections might be held at a date fixed by the returning officer, viz.: Gaspe, Chicoutimi, Saguenay, in Quebec, and Comox-Atlin, Yale-Cariboo and Kootenay, in British Columbia.

Mr. R. L. Borden saw no reason for deferring the elections in Kootenay and Yale-Cariboo, but was disposed to accept the Minister of Justice's explanations for the other ridings.

The amendment was declared lost on division, and the bill read a third time and passed.

A resolution by Sir Richard Cartwright, making a technical change in connection with the payment of steel bounties, was reported, and a bill founded on the same passed through all of its stages.

The Tobacco Monopoly.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur moved the following resolution: "Resolved, that it is expedient to amend the Inland Revenue Act, in providing that any license authorized by this act may be cancelled in any case where a person who, being a manufacturer of any class of goods subject to a duty of excise, either directly or indirectly (a) makes a sale of such goods to a person who sells or intends to sell goods of that class in connection with his own business, subject to the condition that the purchaser shall not sell or deal in goods of a like kind produced by, or obtained or to be obtained from, any other manufacturer or dealer, or (b) makes such sale upon terms that would in their application deprive the purchaser of any profit upon the sale of such goods, if he should sell or deal in goods of a like kind produced by, or obtained or to be obtained from, any other manufacturer or dealer, or (c) consigns any such goods to another person for sale upon commission, upon such terms that the consignee can profit by such sale only if he does not sell or deal in goods of a like kind, manufactured by, or obtained or to be obtained from, any other manufacturer or dealer."

Asked For By Growers.

In support of the resolution, Mr. Brodeur said the legislation was asked for by all the tobacco-growers and the independent manufacturers in Canada. It was the outcome of the report of Judge McTavish. Complaints had been made to the Government that the Empire Tobacco Company and the American Tobacco Company, which were virtually controlled by the same men, were making exclusive contracts in Canada in the endeavor to create a monopoly.

The two companies had recently supplied the members of the House with a memo. complaining of the proposed legislation, saying it was opposed to any principle of fair competition. In 1890 the American Tobacco Company was formed, with $25,000,000 capital, which had been increased by water and other means to $301,000,000. They had endeavored to get hold of the tobacco business in Canada, and had bought a large number of factories. They now controlled 84 per cent. of the cigarette business in Canada, and were killing the business of the independent cigarette manufacturers in Canada. They were trying to get control of the cigar business in Canada, too.

Mr. Brodeur reviewed some features of their methods, and showed from their contract that they offered a rebate of 5 cents a pound to dealers in Canada who would not handle the tobacco of any other Canadian manufacturers. The trust fixed the selling price and designated the purchasers. "We want to know," said Mr. Brodeur, "if the American trust can come here and destroy our business, and bring their methods here." When they enter a country they proceed to destroy the national industry. They bought five tobacco factories in Quebec. Three of them had now been closed, and, after closing them, they were trying to kill the other manufacturers under these exclusive contracts. They began by advertising with great enterprises their own brands of cigars and cigarettes. "No restraint of trade should be allowed in this country," declared Mr. Brodeur.

"Let us have a free country in every respect. Let us be free of any foreign corporation. Let us act for the Canadian interests. No monopoly should exist in this country. No American trust should control our manufacturers." The object of the legislation was to open the channels of trade and do away with these exclusive contracts. The danger was great, for in two or three years our 204 cigar factories might be destroyed. The American trust would then be the only buyer, and could give what they pleased to the farmers for raw tobacco, and have the dealers all at their mercy.

He believed it was the best legislation that could be introduced, and he hoped it would receive the support of the House.

Mr. Borden's View.

Mr. R. L. Borden said it made no difference to the small dealers whether the capital which crushed them out was American or Canadian, and the same methods could be used by a Canadian trust. A trust had been formed in the Mother Country to fight the American trust, and used somewhat similar methods. The growth of trusts was a feature of recent years. The beef and the oil trusts in the United States had crushed out hundreds of small dealers in that country. It would have to deal comprehensively with this subject some day. Other trusts had been felt in this country, such as the iron and steel trust of the United States. It was a difficult question to handle. It was a late stage of the session to introduce such legislation. A more comprehensive measure might have been introduced, curbing all trusts, instead of leaving the others free to carry on their operations. Speaking entirely impersonally, he questioned the wisdom of bringing on such legislation just before an election, affecting a company with $50,000,000 capital.

Mr. F. D. Monk (Jacques Cartier) believed the operations of the tobacco trust to be detrimental to the interests of Canada, and welcomed the legislation as at least worthy of a trial, but at the same time, he regretted the Government had not introduced a general law dealing with trusts.

Mr. Taylor's Amendment.

In the afternoon Mr. Geo. Taylor argued that nine-tenths of the business of the country was done on the same principle. He moved to amend the resolution by making the cancellation of a license imperative in case of a breach of the law, and limiting its operation to the tobacco industry.

After some further debate the motion to go into Committee was carried without debate.

In Committee the amendment was lost, and the resolution reported.

Honor Lord and Lady Minto.

By a standing vote, members of the House of Commons placed formally on record their appreciation of the services which Lord Minto has rendered Canada in the office of Governor-General. The Countess of Minto was not forgotten in the expression of regret that before Parliament again assembles Lord Minto will have departed from Canada's shores.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in moving the farewell address, referred to Lord Minto as "a model constitutional governor, a man who had brought the Crown as near to the hearts of the people, perhaps nearer, than it had ever been brought before."

Of Lady Minto, the Prime Minister said, "she exhibited that virtue which obtained in the court of Queen Victoria, and which now adorned that of Queen Alexandra." He praised her also for her charitable work and for her interest in the cottage hospital.

Mr. R. L. Borden seconded the address in a well-worded tribute to Lord and Lady Minto. Lord Minto, he said, had brought great ability and tact to the performance of his duties, and as a thorough citizen and sportsman, had entered into Canada's life and aspirations. Lady Minto, also, had entered into everyday work in Canada. Their Excellencies would leave Canada, carrying not only the esteem, but the affection, of the people.

Contagious Diseases of Animals.

Mr. Fisher's resolution containing amendments to the animal contagious diseases act of 1903 was adopted and a bill founded thereon passed through the House. The provisions add maladie du coit to the list of contagious diseases, and provide that the compensation, if any, for slaughtered animals will be two-thirds of the value of the animal before it was infected.

During the discussion, which was brief, Mr. Geo. Stephens warmly endorsed the proposal to increase the compensation, and added that the farmers were called on to pay bounties on the steel, lead and other industries.

Crude Oil Bounty.

The House went into Committee on Mr. Fielding's resolution providing for a bounty of one and one-half cents per gallon on all crude petroleum produced from wells in Canada on and after June 8, 1904.

Mr. Clancy said the Government had not acceded to the request of the Imperial Company of Sarnia, asking that the duty remain at five cents a gallon on refined and be reduced to two cents on crude oil. That view had been endorsed by the Board of Trade, the press and working people in the vicinity of Sarnia.

Mr. Fielding, in reply to a question said there was no complaint now against the decision of the Government in the oil matter.

Cornwall Canal Lighting Contract.

In supply the Davis contract for lighting and operating the Cornwall Canal was the subject of debate. Mr. Lennox reviewed in detail all the various phases of the contract.

The debate was continued by Hon. Mr. Fitzpatrick, Hon. John Haggart, Dr. Sproule and Mr. Fowler, and at 1.50 a.m. Mr. Lennox again took the floor.

At 2.15 a.m. the item of $7,100 for the Cornwall Canal passed, and the other items for the Department of Railways and Canals went through rapidly.

Guilty of Embezzlement.

Montreal, Aug. 5.—Leopold Henri Durand, Westmount, appeared before Judge Desnoyers yesterday morning to answer to a charge of misappropriating the funds of the Patterson Manufacturing Company. In his absence an inspection was made of his books, revealing a shortage of $2,-565.98, between Jan. 11 and June 16. Durand pleaded guilty.

THE SAILSBURY CO.

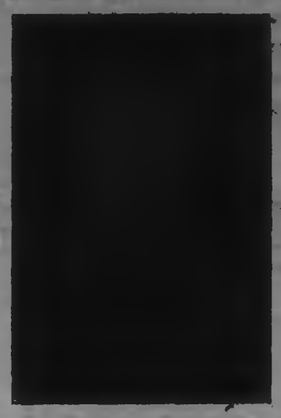
CITY CHURCH AFTER REV. MR. LANGFELDT.

Report From Toronto Gives This Intelligence This Morning.

Rumour That He May Succeed Rev. Carey Ward at St. Peter's.

A report reached the Examiner this morning from Toronto, to the effect that Rev. E. A. Langfeldt had been, or would be, invited to accept the rectorship of St. Peter's church, Toronto, in succession to Rev. Canon Ward.

The reverend gentleman referred to was communicated with by 'phone upon the receipt of this report by the Examiner, but he refused to either confirm or deny it.



REV. E. A. LANGFELDT, M. A.,
Rector of St. Luke's, who, report says, may go to Toronto.

St. Peter's church is one of three or four Toronto Anglican churches which are looking for clergymen, and is one of the most desirable churches in the city.

THE ROB ROY MAKES A LONG JOURNEY.

From Peterborough to Chemong Park by Water.

Mr. R. M. Roy yesterday made a trip, which in its entirety has never before been accomplished. He, with a large party of friends, left Peterborough in the Rob Roy during the morning, and went up through the Lift Lock and up the canal to Lakefield, when he sailed up through Katchewanooka, Clear and Stony Lakes, passed Burleigh Falls and Buckhorn, and down into Lake Chemong, arriving at the Park about ten o'clock last night. This is the first ttime that a Peterborough boat has ever made the trip, and Mr. Roy has the distinction of having been the first to pilot a boat through that course.

HOODLUMISM IN JACKSON PARK.

Visitors Annoyed by the Rowdy Element of Our Population.

A resident in the vicinity of Jackson Park, reports that hoodlumism prevails there to a lamentable extent, especially in the evenings. He reports that young men belonging to the town resort to the park and fire revolvers in the park limits, use profane and foul language and generally misconduct themselves to the great annoyance of those who seek to derive pleasure from a visit to this beautiful pleasure ground. The Examiner's informant states that the park is frequented by, to use his exact words "an element which 'puts the park on the rough.'". It seems a great pity that our citizens who resort to this park for rest after the labours of the day, or the numerous private pic-nic parties, should be subjected to such discomforting annoyance, as makes a visit to the park a punishment instead of a pleasure. A policeman in plain clothes or somebody employed by them might be detailed to make a little quiet investigation.

THRESHING OUT A GOOD HARVEST.

Excellent Yield of Winter Wheat Reported.

Some of the farmers have already threshed their wheat and good yields are reported. A North Monaghan farmer the other day put his wheat through the machine, which knocked it out to the tune of 35 bushels, and the yield would have been greater—forty bushels to the acre, had not the berry been somewhat shrunken by rust. He reports that his spring wheat promises well, the straw being a bright, clean golden yellow. An Otonabee farmer reports a yield of forty bushels to the acre of winter wheat, but this is offset by another farmer in the same township, whose winter wheat is so poor a crop that it will hardly repay reaping.

ASSESSMENT AND TAXATION.

Letter From Mayor Roger Upon the Subject.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir, — In Tuesday evening's Examiner you made an attack upon the Town Council, with respect to the assessment, that is based upon entirely false premises, and there are statements in it that should be corrected in the interests of the town, as well as in fairness to the members of the council. The article has in the main three charges:—

1st. That the council gave instructions to the assessors as to the values to place upon property.

2nd. That the assessment is not made according to the legitimate mode.

3rd. That the assessment of property is too high.

As to the first charge, you say not only that the council doubtless gave the assessors instructions, but that it was done as a scheme to delude the tax-payers, which is a serious charge to bring against a responsible body of men. And it is entirely and absolutely untrue. The council did not give any instructions to the assessors, and I do not believe any member of the council did. Further, you should have known that in the matter of the assessment of property the council has no control, for the assessors are governed by the statute law, and once they are appointed, and assume the duties of the office, they must act in accordance with the law to the best of their judgment and ability, and they are precluded from taking instructions from anyone. And, as I have said, the council did not attempt to give them any instructions whatever in that respect.

As to the second charge, I am surprised that you should state that "the proper and legitimate mode of valuing property for assessment purposes is at two-thirds of its market value." The legitimate mode of valuing property for assessment purposes is fixed by the statute law, which says, "Except in the case of mineral lands hereinafter provided for, real and personal property shall be estimated at their actual cash value, as they would be appraised in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor." There is not a word about two-thirds of its value, and your statement is in direct conflict with the law. The Assessors are sworn to assess property in accordance with the law to the best of their judgment and ability.

Your third charge that the assessment is too high and higher than in other towns, although a question between you and the Assessors, is one that tends to injure the town. If any ratepayer believes he is assessed too high the Council cannot interfere. It has no authority in the matter whatever. But there is a Court of Revision constituted under the law, and any ratepayer may appeal to it, and if not satisfied with its decision, may appeal to the County Judge. The Court of Revision is composed of five members of the Council especially sworn to deal justly with any appeal brought before the Court, and cannot interfere in any way except upon appeal. The Council performed that even this duty should not be performed by members of the Council, and applied to the Ontario Legislature for authority to appoint as the members of the Court persons who were not members of the Council, so that the members of the Council would not even in this respect have to deal with the assessment, but the Legislature refused to give the authority.

The assessment in Peterborough is not, I believe, higher than in other towns in comparison with the value of the properties. Not only is the rate lower here than in other places of a similar size, but the taxes collected per head of the population are also lower.

Such grave and sweeping charges as you have seen fit to make, coming with the editorial sanction of one of our principal newspapers, are serious in the extreme, and liable to have a prejudicial and very far-reaching effect, involving as they do not only the integrity and character of individuals, but the credit and good name of our town; and I venture to submit that the Examiner owes it to itself and to the community either to proceed and substantiate them or to withdraw them.

Yours truly,
G. M. ROGER.
Mayor.

The Examiner very cheerfully gives space to the letter of Mayor Roger and, insofar as any statement made in the article referred to conflicts with the facts, as placed before the public by his letter, accepts them as correct. Aside from any unwitting injustice that may have been done to the council, it is perhaps a good thing that the letter of the Mayor was evoked. The Examiner, in the article referred to, only voiced in its own language, the public feeling, as expressed to it. There was, and is, it is well known, considerable dissatisfaction in regard to the assessment, and, according to the above letter, considerable misconception; and if an official assurance allays this dissatisfaction, and removes misconception, a public service will be the result of the affair as a whole. The Examiner was moved only by considerations of public interest in writing the article in question; and if our judgment was at fault it is our blame.

It seems at the same time that there has been a little freedom exercised in tabulating our "charges." It was not explicitly charged that the council gave instructions to the assessors; it was, incidentally, suggested as a probability, and the Mayor's statement to the contrary, is accepted as evidence that the suggestion was unwarranted.

The second "charge" dealt with charges the Examiner with saying in effect that the assessment was not legally done. No reference was meant to the legality of the mode of assessment. The word "legitimate," if read in connection, will be seen to have the force of "equitable," and no intention in the world was entertained of charging that the assessment was illegally made. It is possible that in certain relations, an act may be "legal," and at the same time not be fair and equitable.

The third "charge" is that the Examiner declared that the assessment is too high. That is a matter of opinion, rather than assertion. The Mayor and the Council hold that the assessment of the town is not too high. Many of the ratepayers think otherwise. Both are entitled to their opinion upon a debatable question.

The above letter refers to the Examiner article as an "attack." It was not intended as an "attack," in the offensive sense of that word. As remarked the article sought only to voice public opinion upon the subject dealt with, and disclaims any intention of attack. What was said was said in the discharge of a duty which every newspaper owes to the public, and if in the doing of this duty, injustice was done to the council, regret, as explicit and direct as offence was unintentional, is expressed. A Town Council, as representatives of the people is a legitimate (not legal) subject of fair criticism, and the press and the public through the press, represent the Opposition in a legislature which usage has sanctioned as a part and parcel of our representative institutions. There is no Opposition party in a Town Council to stand between the people and its representatives, to criticise its actions and the function of an Opposition naturally falls upon the press, which, however, it may err at times, in judgment is, on the whole, only anxious for the promotion of the interests of the town in which it is placed and has as real and true an interest in the welfare of the town as any representative body or any individual citizen.

FISHERMEN MUST OBSERVE REGULATIONS.

Fishery Overseer Moore Will Insist on the Law Being Complied With.

This morning the Examiner had a conversation with Mr. S. J. Moore, Lakefield, Fishery Overseer. He says he has just returned from the lakes and learned with regret that the new regulations regarding the size of fish to be taken, are not complied with. He says that he will insist upon a proper observance of the regulations, and fishermen should govern themselves accordingly. In order that none may be in ignorance of what is required it may be stated that minimum length of bass that may lawfully be taken is ten inches, and the minimum length of maskinonge thirty inches.

TO-MORROW'S BIG REGATTA AT CHEMONG

Will be one of the Best in This Vicinity for Years.

All arrangements are complete for the big regatta at Chemong Park on Saturday. This is the first event of its nature which has taken place in years at this popular summer resort, and the committee in charge is sparing no pains to make the affair a huge success. As will be seen by the programme the list of events is a long one, and as there are some fine entries the finishes should be close. Boats from Sturgeon Point, Toronto, Stony Lake and other points, are expected to compete, while the paddlers will be speeders of reputation. With fine weather no doubt the regatta will be one of the most successful ever held in this vicinity. The 57th Regimental band will play during the afternoon. Busses will leave Peterborough hourly during the day, and there will undoubtedly be a large number from town go out to enjoy the event. A special excursion is being run from Stony Lake, bringing about two hundred. The races commence at one o'clock.

ANOTHER SAPPHIRE CORUNDUM CASE.

The Famous Corundum Case has Been Revived.

The Sapphire Corrundum Company, with which Mr. Hooley's name has frequently been connected in litigation, came before Mr. Justice Bingham and a special jury in London recently.

It was the suit of Mr. Frank O'Reilly, a Canadian, to recover on three bills of exchange for 1,000 pounds each from the acceptor, Mr. James A. Bradshaw, a Liverpool stockbroker. The defence, opened by Mr. Shearman, K.C., alleged that the bills had been obtained through fraud of Mr. Kelly, one of the promoters of the Sapphire Corrundum Company, and that the plaintiff was a mere dummy to cover Mr. Kelly. But while the depositions taken on commission in Canada were being read in support of defence it was intimated that the parties had come to a settlement.

Excursion to Chemong.

The steamer Alert will run an excursion on Saturday, August 6th, from Lakefield to Chemong to enable cottagers to attend the Chemong Regatta. Steamer will leave Lakefield at 8 a.m., returning will leave Chemong Park at 6 p.m. Peterborough people purposing spending Sunday at Stony Lake will thus have an opportunity of taking in the Regatta and then proceeding to Stony Lake. 4eod

WAS WEDDED IN NORTH DAKOTA.

Miss Grace Holmes, Formerly of Peterborough Married to Dr. Steward, of Omemee.

The Grand Forks, North Dakota, Herald, contains a despatch from Larimore, containing an account of the wedding of Miss Grace Holmes, formerly of Peterborough, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Holmes, formerly of Cartwright, and a niece of Mrs. Geo. Laing, of Aylmer street, Peterborough. The Herald says:

Again were two lives made one in the presence of immediate relatives and amid the rejoicings of friends. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Huston, of Larimore, was the trysting place and the hour was 6 o'clock in the eventide Tuesday.

The groom is M. A. Stewart, M.D., of Omemee, a graduate of Minnesota State Medical school. Dr. Stewart is decidedly popular on account of his generous nature and sterling manhood and has already won for himself a large and growing practice in his chosen profession.

The bride is Miss Grace Holmes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Holmes, of Bay Centre. She graduated from the general hospital, St. Paul, as a trained nurse in the class of 1900. Her headquarters has been Grand Forks, and is known in many parts of the state, where her winsome manner, bright disposition, and special adaptability for her work, and above all her sweet sunny face won for her a host of friends and made her a general favourite wherever she went.

The bride was dressed in steel grey voile over white, and as she entered with a bouquet of white carnations and roses, accomplished by two flower girls, Florence Wooley, of Larimore, and Martha May Acheson, of Marshall, Minnesota, on the arm of her intended, looked her best and presented a picture not soon to be forgotten by all present.

The presents were in keeping with the occasion. After a bountiful dinner they took their departure to the scene of their future labours, where Dr. Stewart has a beautiful new home awaiting his bride.

Rev. T. Davis Acheson, of Marshall, Minnesota, an old friend of the family, tied the knot, assisted by Rev. A. M. McIntosh and Rev. B. A. Burns, both of Larimore. All wish the young couple a happy voyage.

MR. REID EXPLAINS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me through the columns of your valuable paper to answer a paragraph which appeared in last evening's issue regarding the inquest. Mr. Kidd has evidently doubted my evidence, which I gave at the inquest. I may say that every statement which I made I am prepared to prove. I might also state that the printers made an error when they said that I gave evidence that a hammer was required for to put up the railing. I merely said in my evidence that it pounded in with our hands. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space I remain,

SUMMER DOINGS AT CHEMONG PARK

PLEASANT HOP LAST NIGHT

List of Guests at the Chemong Park Hotel—How the Visitors Enjoy Themselves.

There is apparently a great revival of interest in Chemong Park as a summer resort this year. That beautiful place has never been so popular as it is at the present time, and at the present rate it bids fair to surpass in popular favour, the older and until this year, more popular summer watering places on the northern lakes. At present every cottage at the park is fully occupied, and many are living in tents pitched picturesquely in secluded spots on the beautiful wooded bluff. The hotel, too, has its full quota of guests. Mr. Brown states that he has at present 75 regular guests, which about fills his house. In addition to the regular guests, the majority of them from a distance, there is a large number of transient guests, principally from town, who go out to the park for a brief breathing spell, and to get rid of the business worry for a few hours, or days. Glancing over the hotel register a large number of Peterborough names were noticed.

This year is differing in one respect from last year. The feature of this summer's visitors is that they came early in the season and are still remaining, an evidence of the fact that they are enjoying themselves, which they could not very well otherwise do, with the jolly crowd of tourists and summer guests, at the hotel and cottagers, who are making their home at the park this summer.

Last summer the average stay of the guests was considerably shorter than is the case this year, a tribute to the fact that things are made very pleasant for the guests this season. Mr. Brown, the genial proprietor of the Chemong Park Hotel, is making extra efforts this year to provide enjoyment not only for his guests, but also for those who are living in the cottages. He has engaged the 57th Band on different occasion to provide open air concerts, and proposes to continue this feature throughout the season, and has also purchased a large graphaphone, with which he entertains a large crowd every evening.

The weather at the lake this year is almost all that can be desired. It has not been too warm, but still warm enough to prevent the transient residents from returning to their city homes.

A list is published below of some of the guests at the hotel. The majority of these are at present registered there, while a few have been there and left recently:—

Felix Wolfe and wife, Buffalo; Miss Maud Wolfe, Buffalo; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Desbecker, Master Jack and Dick Desbecker, Buffalo; Miss Howell, Rochester, N. Y.; J. A. McDonald, Chicago; Mrs. J. Vaudervill, Rochester; Morris M. Levy, Toronto; Walter Gougenhanner, Buffalo; Edwin Bloomenburg, New York; J. A. Atkinson and wife, Toronto; Mrs. Nattenwolf, Buffalo; Mrs. Julius Levy, Buffalo; Miss Rose Hoppler, Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. Hoppler with Elizabeth and Ruth Hoppler, Buffalo; W. W. Emory, and wife, Rochester; A. Martin, New York; Mrs. M. M. Boyd, and Miss M. V. Boyd, Toronto; Mrs. A. Streets, Toronto; Miss Root, Rochester; Eugene Straus, Rochester; H. O. Hurst, wife and child, Toronto; Martin Symonds, Montreal; J. Butustool, and wife, Rochester; Miss M. E. Boyd, Philadelphia; Dr. Lowing, Detroit; E. M. Gillen and wife, Toronto; Miss L. Black, Rochester; H. H. Martin, Brown's Falls, Pa.; Miss A. Black, Rochester; J. M. Cashman and wife, Rochester; Miss Bessie Sullivan, Rochester; Miss Opperheimer, Buffalo; E. T. Reynolds, Montreal; F. J. Lewis and wife, New York; F. E. Strawers, New York; F. F. Greenybury, New York; Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Arron, Buffalo; Miss Leroy Travers, Waterloo, New York; Miss Bessie Levie, Buffalo; Mrs. Jas. Malloy, Rochester, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Miller Kelly, Rochester; W. L. Zimmerman, Rochester; Mrs. McIntosh, and Misses Bertha and Katie McIntosh, M. Quinn and Mrs. Goodeue, Woodstock.

The residents of Chemong Park are looking forward with no small degree of expectancy to the regatta to be held to-morrow, which, they say, will be the greatest event that has ever taken place not only at Chemong, but they also include Stony Lake in this statement. No better place can be imagined than Chemong at which to hold a regatta, and with the large number of contestants who have intimated their intention of entering in the different events, the success of the affair seems fully assured, and it seems certain that the prophecy concerning its importance will be fulfilled. It is assured that there will be an immense crowd in attendance, not only of contestants, but also of spectators, who will make this an occasion to spend a day at the lake in the invigorating breezes which so many have found beneficial.

There is no lack of social enjoyment at Chemong. The great majority of the "cottagers," as those who spend the season there are designated, have spent successive seasons at the park for some time, and are thus very well acquainted with each other, and in any case even a stranger is made to feel at home almost from the first minute that he enters that hospitable region, consequently there is considerable interchange of visits on the part of the cottagers, and when, as was the case last night, a dance gotten up by the cottagers is given, the usual quiet of the park is enlivened by the presence of many young people from town, who always make it a point, whenever possible, to attend these dances.

That held last night was the most successful of any ever held at Chemong, both as regards the number in attendance and the enjoyment experienced by those who participated in it.

The ladies at Chemong who took an active part in arranging for the dance were Mrs. Main, Mrs. A. E. Dixon, Mrs. Wilner, Mrs. Gordon and Mrs. Hay, while to Mr. and Mrs. Roland Denne, and Mr. Arthur Weeks of town, is also due great credit for the success of the event.

There was a very large attendance of young people from town, including two large loads in charge of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Cox, and Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams respectively, while a large number went in single rigs and by other means.

The pavilion was prettily decorated for the occasion with flags, bunting, and mottoes, and presented a very handsome appearance. The music supplied by the 57th Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Gliddon, was all that could be desired, and elicited warm applause from the many dancers. Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies during the evening, and the dance broke up about midnight, everyone feeling that a thoroughly pleasant time had been experienced.

Ain't You Glad You Waited?

This is the month that price reductions at Stratton's Bookstore speak loudest, and make you feel glad you waited. The drop in hammocks is one-fifth former prices; in croquet sets, it's a tenth off, and in sporting goods it's twenty off. This is about the way it goes in hundreds of other articles. As the ranks of summer goods get thinner the prices get slighter. A. H. Stratton & Co.

THE MAN AND THE WORD.

How Famous Men Have Enriched the English Vocabulary in Various Ways—How the Two Are Connected.

The Westminster Gazette calls attention to an undoubted fact when it says that W. S. Gilbert "is one of the small and select band of individuals whose names have enriched the national vocabulary." There is no other word in the language which expresses quite the same meaning as "Gilbertian." Some of these people, however, was "select" in rather an invidious sense.

Burke, for example, was an exceptionally odious criminal, who was executed at Edinburgh in 1829 for smothering many people so as to sell their corpses for dissection. The word was taken up very quickly. On the day of the execution it appears in The Times: "As soon as the executioner proceeded to his duty, the cries of 'Burke him, Burke him, give him no rope,' were vociferated." In the "Last Essays" Charles Lamb writes: "Positively burking you under pretence of cleansing," which seems to me the most pointed use of the word after its first fierce utterance.

Guillotine was the name of a French doctor at whose suggestion this "national razor" was first used in 1889. "Cavenne," said a writer in The Graphic twenty years ago, "is so malarious that transportation thither used to be styled 'the dry guillotine.'"

Dr. Guillotine is rather a shadowy figure to us, but Dr. Thomas Bowdler seems to be constantly in our midst. Bowdler, oddly enough, was the medical enemy of France, the most anti-Bowdler country in the world, and warned his patients against it. His nephew summed up the life-work of Bowdler as having so "purified" Shakespeare and Gibbon that neither of these authors could "raise a blush on the cheek of modest innocence nor plant a pang in the heart of the devout Christian." "We may fairly inquire," wrote Huxley in the Nineteenth Century in 1886, "whether editorial bowdlerising has not prevailed over historic truth."

Sometimes, however, the name is that of the victim rather than of the offender. Capt. Boycott enriched the English language by being the first Irish landlord to be boycotted. In 1881 The Spectator had this comment on the English climate: "Dame Nature arose. . . . She boycotted London from Kew to Mile End."

Like Thomas Bowdler in this one respect, James Granger gave a word to the language by publishing a book. This volume, which appeared in 1769, was a "Biographical History of England," and it contained blank leaves for engravings or other illustrations for the text. It became a regular hobby to fill up Grangers, and other books were dealt with in the same fashion. A writer in The Pall Mall Gazette gave a critical force to the word in the sentence: "He . . . proceeded to 'grangerize' or illustrate it by the insertion of his mass of materials." Granger was in holy orders, and it was of him that Dr. Johnson said with more than his usual bluntness: "The dog is a Whig. I do not like much to see a Whig in any dress, but I hate to see a Whig in a parson's gown." Granger seems to have been a good Whig and a good churchman for all that, and died from the effects of an apoplectic fit which seized him while in the act of administering the sacrament.

The word "hansom" hardly suggests a human being, but there was once a Mr. Hansom, an architect by profession, who patented in 1834 a vehicle from which the present hansom has been evolved. Hansom got rid of his rights to a company for £10,000, but not one farthing of this money was ever paid to him. The company got into difficulties, and Hansom took up the management in 1839, for which service he received £300, the only money he ever made out of his famous patent. Disraeli pays a graceful tribute to this species of a cab in "Lothair": "He hailed a cruising hansom. 'Tis the gondola of London," said Lothair.

The northern pronunciation of Lord Brougham's name became in London Brum, and eventually lent its prestige to a particular type of carriage. In 1856 Patmore wrote:

Briggs, Factotum, Footman, Butler, Groom,
Preserved the rabbits, drove the brougham.

McAdam.—This great inventor of the style of road named after him, was born at Ayr in 1756, and was descended from the clan of the McGregors who were outlawed under James II. of Scotland. The grandson of the chief, Gregor McGregor, settled in the lowlands and changed his name to McAdam. His father died in 1770. After that he lived with an uncle, who was a merchant in New York. He stopped in the United States until the end of the Revolutionary War, and made a fortune as "agent for the sale of prizes." Then he returned to Scotland and purchased an estate. He began at his own expense a long series of experiments in the face of much prejudice. At last, in 1823, a committee of the House of Commons met to consider his petition and adopted his views. Between 1798-1814 he had traveled over 30,000 miles of roads in Great Britain in pursuit of his investigations. Thomas Hood, the poet, paid him a memorable tribute in his well-known "Ode to McAdam."

Luigi Galvani, born in Bologna in 1737, was a distinguished physiologist, though he did not discover galvanism. This valuable find was made by his wife, the daughter of a medical professor. Having observed that the inanimate body of a skinned frog with a scalpel lying on the table produced in the frog a series of remarkable muscular convulsions, the knife being in contact with an electric machine, she informed her husband of the fact, and he instituted a series of experiments known now to every schoolboy.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

With ordinary soap a woman has to work so hard and so long on wash day she has no time for preparing any of the family meals. Wash day is a trial, and the good wife faces each with a sigh of despair.

Sunlight Soap makes all the difference in the world. No toiling—no rubbing—no boiling—less than half the labor with much better results. Most women are all through their wash by twelve o'clock when they wash with Sunlight Soap the Sunlight way. It makes child's play of work.

HANG THE PRISONERS!

An Exclamation That Was Interpreted as an Order.

The young laird of Lochnow was a character in the Scotch camp life of the early eighteenth century. He was cool in action and full of fun in daily life. One day he was detailed to command a burial party, and as he strolled over the battlefield his orderly came to him in great perplexity.

"Sir," said he, "there is a heap of fellows lying out yonder who say they're only wounded, and they won't let us bury them like the rest. What shall we do?"

"Bury them at once," replied young Agnew, without moving a muscle of his countenance, "for if you take their word for it they won't be dead for a hundred years to come."

The man saluted and started off in all simplicity to carry out the order, and Agnew had to dispatch a counter order in haste to prevent his joke from becoming a tragedy.

This recalls an "o'er true" tale of border life. Some Galloway moss troopers were brought before Sir William Howard, who was an enthusiastic mathematician. He was deep in his studies when the prisoners were marched into the castle courtyard, and a lieutenant came running up to get orders as to their disposal. Enraged at being interrupted, he cried, "Hang the prisoners!" and went on with his work.

He finished his problem and went down with a cheerful mind, only to learn that his exclamation had been taken for an order, and the prisoners were all hanged.

ATHLETICS IN GERMANY.

Wrestling is one of the most popular forms of athletic exercises in Germany, and it seems as if the heavy and muscular build of the Germans peculiarly adapts them for this kind of sport.

The general public interprets the word "athlete" as meaning a wrestler, weight lifter or "strong man." When the English style of athletics was introduced into Germany, it was termed "light athletics." Wrestling is termed "heavy athletics." In every town there are many clubs indulging in "heavy athletics," and numerous public contests are arranged, in connection with which challenges to "all comers" are issued. Here one can often witness a pitched battle between science and brute power—see an "all comer" of stupendous build, probably a butcher, brewer or furniture remover, laid flat on both shoulder blades in the most approved style by a little, wiry fellow as slippery as an eel. On the occasion of the world's championships held in Berlin an open arena, roofed only in the center, where the wrestling took place, was erected, with tiers of seats for the public all around. As luck would have it, the weather proved boisterous and the public shy of the fair. The championships ended dismally, and the impresario, unable to pay the men's retainers, very discreetly decided to "leave town."

Flying Fish.

Flying fish swim in shoals varying in number from a dozen to a hundred or more. They often leave the water at once, darting through the air in the same direction for 200 yards or more, and then descend to the water quickly, rising again and then renewing their flight. Sometimes the dolphin may be seen in rapid pursuit, taking great leaps out of the water and gaining upon his prey, which take shorter and shorter flights, vainly trying to escape, until they sink exhausted. Sometimes the larger sea birds catch flying fish in the air. The question whether the flying fish use their fins at all as wings is not fully decided. The power of flight is limited to the time the fins remain moist.

The Meaning of Orange Blossoms.

The orange tree is regarded as a prince among trees and the emblem of genius. A peculiarity of this tree is that it bears fruit and flowers at the same time. Its leaves are evergreen and as it grows older it grows in beauty and fruitfulness, its blossom filling the air with its fragrance. It is indeed a fit emblem of marriage promise and hopes. The orange tree is considered typical of love because, though its fruit is golden and its flavor and scent delicious, its rind is bitter, and as every one knows who has experienced it Cupid's dart causes pain. The orange is emblematic of gratitude as well as of genius and love.

The First Ice Cream.

A French chef who prepared a snow-like dish for the Duc de Chartres in 1774 is said to have been the first to make that cool luxury known as ice cream. Lord Bacon was possessed of the knowledge that there was a process of congelation by means of snow and salt. But to him this was a scientific fact, and he little dreamed of the idea that in after years this congelation would prove such a delightful refreshment.

Letter of John Wesley.

A hitherto unpublished letter of John Wesley has been sent to Notes and Queries by a correspondent in Calcutta. It was originally the property of a relative, the daughter of a Methodist preacher. It is dated Aberdeen, May 5, 1784, and is addressed to "Dear Jemmy." It gives directions as to the forwarding of letters, comments on a certain sermon, and concludes thus: "You have done well in restoring the meetings at 5 in the morning. These are the glory of the Methodists. I am your affectionate friend and brother, J. Wesley."

The Late Sir H. M. Stanley.

Sir H. M. Stanley left behind him, according to The British Weekly, not only an immense amount of material concerning himself, in the form of diaries and letters, but also documents of immense historical importance, which could not properly be published during the lives of the persons most concerned in them. His publishers are said to be in communication with a well-known English man of letters with a view to a biography, but probably much of the material cannot yet be given to the public.

The Way Jokai Worked.

One who knew Jokai, the Hungarian writer, says that the novelist never troubled to work out his plot in detail beforehand. "He trusted to his imagination for guidance as to what his characters were to do at a given moment, and often when he had completed a chapter of feuilleton which half Hungary was waiting to read he would remark to his friends as the printer's devil rushed away with the copy, 'I should like to know what those people will find to do and say tomorrow.' Jokai started his characters on their careers, eulogizing them if he liked them or caricaturing them if he meant them to excite amusement or derision, and then let them work out their own destinies across the pages of his manuscript."

End of the Game.

It was his move.

He made it, captured a pawn and announced:

"Mate!"

"I see," she pouted. "But you had the advantage of a bishop."

"Some day, Bella," he whispered, pursuing the advantage, "may I mate you with the assistance of just a common preacher?"

After which there was no more chess playing.

Inherited, as It Were.

Professor—Yes, sir, your daughter is pretty well grounded in French, but it will, of course, take some time and trouble for her to acquire fluency. Father—Well, you know, that's rather strange to me. I had an idea that the fluency would have come sort of natural to her.

How the Engagement Was Broken.

"I can't make you out at all," he said angrily. "You're so fickle and changeable. You're just a riddle to me."

"Yes?" replied his fiancee. "Since you're so stupid perhaps you'd better give me up."

Monkey Brand Soap cleans kitchen utensils, steel, iron and tinware, knives and forks, and all kinds of cutlery.

SOCIETY MEN.

What Is What Society Needs, According to a Society Woman.

"What we need is society men," declared a weary matron. "Our men are so fagged by their attention to business that they are next to worthless. They regard the average social function as an awful bore and leave everything pertaining to entertaining and to going about to their wives. In case the poor wife succumbs to the strain they hunt around for a spinster or widowed sister or sister-in-law or other relative who will consent to take upon her shoulders this social side of the matter.

"As for looking after a daughter, their duty is done when they've given carte blanche with a check book. An Englishman of high title often chaperons his motherless daughter during an entire season and from his knowledge of ineligibles is able to keep her well informed. How about the American papa? His only ammunition consists in an occasional rabid, blustery remark about the nincompoop fortune hunters who hover about the daughter of the house. As for sane, thoughtful counsel, he gives not a bit of it. Society is a game he got into without intention or effort, and he utterly refuses to take any trouble about his fellow players. Even his own daughters have to go it blind. As I said before, what society needs is society men."

Blood of Athletes.

According to Dr. P. B. Hawk, who has been testing the blood of athletes before and after exercise, the increase in the number of red corpuscles is greatest after swimming. The actual figures showing the percentages of gain after different forms of exercise are: One hundred yard dash, 24.8; 120 yard hurdle, 21.5; half mile run, 17.9; mile run 13.9; two mile run, 8.8; broad jump, six jumps, 15.0; three minute game of water polo, 104.4.

SHOOTING PAINS THROUGH THE BACK

Not a Day Without Suffering Until Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. C. Noyes, for many years section foreman, and now flagman for the G.T.R. at Peterborough, states: "For twenty-one years I was section foreman on the C.P.R. and was exposed to all sorts of weather. As a result my kidneys became affected and there was scarcely a day that I was not troubled more or less. At times I would have sharp shooting pains through my back and would get so used up that I felt like giving up work. During this time I was also a great sufferer from constipation. As I had heard so much about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for kidney disease and constipation I began using them, and can say that I was entirely cured of my old troubles in a short time. I cannot say anything too good about Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and never lose an opportunity of recommending them."

THE HEMLOCK.

A Plea for the Preservation of One of the Most Useful Trees—It Is Being Rapidly Cut Down.

In a practical and a commercial sense the hemlock is second in value to the white pine, but in points of looks is a much more beautiful evergreen, writes J. Macpherson Ross in The Globe. With the growing scarcity of good pine for building purposes, and the very high price it commands, builders have for years past drawn heavily on the hemlock as a substitute. Besides the uses it is put to as fuel and timber, the tree has had to yield up its bark to the tanners. The collecting of hemlock bark has been quite a lucrative business to the settlers in the northern regions; practically whole forests for this purpose are consumed annually, and it is time that something was done to conserve and replace what is left by using it economically and by protecting young plants, and also to plant seed beds in suitable places to serve as nurseries for future planting. As the tree does not produce seed till it has arrived at quite a mature age, one can easily see the immediate necessity of preserving the individual as well as clumps of this valuable tree to serve as seed-bearers. As it is a shade-loving tree, the seedlings germinate in cool, moist situations and grow but slowly for the first few years. Afterwards the hemlock grows quite rapidly in suitable soils, in which also will thrive our native cedar. It is rather a difficult tree to transplant when it becomes of any size, but grows easily and freely if transplanted when about a foot to fifteen inches high.

It makes a very handsome tree in mixed plantations, and from the fineness of its foliage, its dense habit of growth and the readiness with which it yields itself to the shears it makes the handsomest of all evergreen hedges in Canada. Its cultivation has been very seriously neglected, but very small stocks of it are grown by nurserymen, partly because it is extremely difficult to get young plants and the inconvenience of procuring seeds unless by special effort, and also because the majority of our nurserymen are anything but skillful propagators and rely on getting their stocks of evergreen from the old country or France, where the nurserymen make a specialty of growing young evergreen for export. They do not cultivate the hemlock, but grow mainly the Norway spruce, Scotch and other pines. These trees are readily grown by the nurserymen here and are distributed through the country around instead of our own and in most cases more beautiful, trees.

In many of the States, notably Michigan, the hemlock is all but extinct, and in view of the enormous demands made upon it here without any effort to keep up the supply, it is surely time to draw attention to the growing scarcity and the urgent necessity of its more frequent cultivation. Let everyone who intends planting evergreens insist upon having this tree amongst their collection. In city parks there should be specimens planted, as it is in its habit fully as desirable as any other evergreen, and being perfectly hardy, it is certainly more sensible to plant with a certainty of its living for the next fifty years than so many useless junipers, cypresses and other firs of uncertain hardiness and questionable beauty. A well-trimmed hedge of hemlock in full vigor is worth going miles to see, and the balmy fragrance of its dark green foliage is delightful to inhale, while the value of its timber makes its planting a necessity. I would urge upon the Government whatever may be their plans for forestry, to make a special effort in cultivating this rapidly-disappearing and valuable evergreen.

F. B. Ball in England.

F. B. Ball, Canadian Government Agent at Birmingham, writes on "Living in England" in Toronto Sunday World, as follows: Different cities have different styles of living houses, but almost invariably care is taken to have a nice garden, considerably larger than we have in comparison to the rent paid, but you will never see streets open from the door straight across as we have it. Invariably a high brick wall, with holly or hawthorn hedges, hide everything except a few of the trees and shrubs in front. It is very rarely that you see a flower in the front of a house. If you put them there, some evening or some holiday a descent would be made by about a dozen kids and your place would be stripped of everything before you had time to get to the front door. The house opens into a large hall, invariably tiled. The drawing-rooms are always richly furnished, but generally in very bad taste, nothing light or dainty, as with us in Canada. The reason given is that the climate ruins anything light or pretty. In summer the gardens always look beautiful, lovely velvet lawns, with turf such as we do not seem to be able to raise. Beautiful shrubs and flowers, particularly roses. I never saw more beautiful ones out of doors in my life, the whole air seems to be just perfumed with them. I suppose our climate is too hot to raise roses to perfection.

Pictorial Post Cards.

The devotees of the latest fad of pictorial postcards will be gratified to learn of the extension of the postal privileges accorded to them by the Dominion Government. A short time ago notice was given that arrangements had been made for the admission to the mails exchanged between Canada and the United States and Canada and Switzerland of pictorial postcards, having the entire back covered by a picture and half of the address side to the left of the address reserved for a written communication. Since that time arrangements have been made for admitting cards of the same kind to the mails exchanged between Canada and Italy. The following is a complete list of countries to which those pictorial postcards having written communications on the address side may now be sent from Canada: The United Kingdom, the United States, France, Tunis, Switzerland and Italy.

WEALTHY ROMANS.

Immense Fortunes Were Not Uncommon in the Old Days.

When L. Calpurnius Piso was appointed governor of Macedonia for one year, he drew for his outfit from the public treasury 18,000,000 sesterces, or £150,000. He did not want the money for that purpose. Everything required by a proconsul was supplied to him by the province. Piso simply took the money for himself and lent it out in Rome at high interest. C. Verres was charged by Cicero with having robbed Sicily of £350,000 in three years, besides many valuable works of art. He practically admitted his guilt by retiring from Rome without attempting any defense. Cicero when governor of the poor province of Cilicia found himself the richer in one year by £20,000, and he was perhaps the only proconsul who ever handed over his surplus to the state.

There can be no doubt that Cicero and the younger Pliny received large sums from their clients while those clients were still living. Balbus is not likely to have secured the argument "Pro Balbo" for a mere trifle. And the gratitude of Sicily for the prosecution of Verres undoubtedly took a very substantial form. Apart from all such honoraria, it is recorded that Cicero and the younger Pliny received legacies from clients to the amount of £170,000. Gibbon tells us, on the authority of Olymplodorus, that several of the richest senators had an income of £160,000 a year without computing the stated provision of corn and wine. —London Globe.

ROYAL ASCOT.

This Famous English Race Course Was Queen Anne's Idea.

Ascot well deserves its proud prefix "royal," for it may claim to be the child of a queen, and certainly it has been a prime favorite with nearly all her successors on the throne.

It was Queen Anne who, when she was riding one day over Ascot common, saw what a splendid site it would make for a race course, and she forthwith determined that a course there should be and that she herself would offer a plate to be raced for. Thus it came about that the London Gazette of July 12, 1711, contained this announcement: "Her majesty's plate of 100 guineas will be run for round the new heat on Ascot common, near Windsor, on Tuesday, Aug. 7 next, by any horse or mare, being no more than six years old the grass before, carrying twelve stone, three heats, to be entered the last day of July at Mr. Hancock's at Fern Hill, near the starting post."

Three times that year Queen Anne traveled in state to see the racing on Ascot common, and on one occasion, we are told, she was accompanied by Miss Forester, a maid of honor, who was "dressed like a man, with a long white riding coat, a full flapped waistcoat and a small cocked hat, three cornered, bound with broad gold lace, the point placed full in front over a white powdered, long flowing periwig."

Children

Have "eyes bigger than their stomachs," according to an old saying. They overeat themselves, and are tempted by all sorts of injurious and indigestible edibles. As a consequence the foundation of serious stomach trouble is often laid in childhood.

For children with "weak" digestion or whose stomachs are diseased, Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery may be confidently recommended. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, so that the nourishment contained in food is perfectly assimilated and the puny child is built up by food into a condition of robust health.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

Mrs. Ella Gardner, of Waterview, Middlesex Co., Va., writes: "My little daughter is enjoying splendid health. I am glad I found a doctor who could cure my child. Whenever she feels badly I give her Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she is soon all right. She took twelve bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' eight bottles of 'Pellets,' and one bottle of of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and she is well. We thank God for your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

What Did She Mean?

"If you feel chilly," said he as they strolled, "remember I have your shawl here on my arm."

"You might put it around me," she said demurely.

Reason of His Alacrity.

"How on earth did you ever get a messenger boy to deliver your note and bring back the answer so quick?"

"I took his novel away from him and held it as security."—Exchange.

THE THREE MINSTRELS.

By T. D'Arcy McGee.

Thomas D'Arcy McGee was born at Carlingford, Ireland, April 15th, 1825. He emigrated in 1842 to Boston, where he edited The Pilot. In 1845 he returned to the Old Country, where he worked at journalism until 1848, when he again went to America. He settled in Montreal in 1857, and started The New Era. Provincial politics attracted him, and he soon entered and became very active in them, being an early advocate of Confederation. He was assassinated at Ottawa April 7th, 1868, in consequence of his denunciation of the Fenian movement.

Three minstrels play within the Tower of Time,
A weird and wondrous edifice it is,
One sings of War, the martial strain sublime,
And strikes his lyre as 'twere a foe of his;
The sword upon his thigh is dripping red
From a foe's heart in the mid battle slain;
His plumed casque is doffed from his proud head
His flashing eye preludes the thundrous strain.

Apart sequestered in an alcove deep,
Through which the pale moon looks propitious in,
Accompanied by sighs that seem to weep,
The second minstrel sadly doth begin
To indite his mistress, fair but cruel, who
Has trampled on the heart that was her own;
Or prays his harp to help him now to woo,
And thrills with joy at each responsive tone.

Right on the porch, before which fair and far
Plain, lake and hamlet fills the musing eye,
Gazing towards the thoughtful evening star
That seems transfixed upon the mountain high,
The third of Country and of Duty sings;
Slow and triumphal is the solemn strain;
Like Death, he takes no heed of Chiefs or Kings,
But over all he maketh country reign.

Sad Dante! he love-led from life, who found
His way to Eden, and unhappy stood
Among the angels—he, the cypress crowned,
Knew not the utmost gift of public good.
Thoughts deeper and more solemn it inspires
Than even his lofty spirit dare essay;
How then shall we, poor Embrerers of old fires,
Kindle the beacons of our country's way?

We all are audience in the Tower of Time,
For us alone at this hour play the three,
Choose which ye will—the martial song sublime,
Or lover fond; but thou My Master be,
O, Bard of Duty and of Country's Cause;
Thee will I choose and follow for my lord!
Thy theme my study, and thy words my laws—
Muse of the patriot lyre and guardian sword.

Miss Eva Booth.

Mr. Isaac N. Ford, the London correspondent of The New York Tribune, in a recent cable letter to that paper said:

The most remarkable figure at the Salvation Army congress is the slender, graceful girl in red who commands the recruits from Canada. Miss Eva Booth has her father's fervor when she speaks, and with it the sensibility and art of an actress. Her voice is clear, penetrating and sweet; and she uses the purest, simplest Saxon. She tells parables of her own and acts them out in the most dramatic way. If she had been trained at the school of acting in Paris she would not have greater command of the art of expression by hand and face; and everything she does is as individual as Mme. Bernhardt's stately poses and tigress springs, or as Mme. Calve's serpentine twists and dancing measures. Miss Booth's gestures are not theatrical, because no actress in opera or drama would use arms or hands in so unstudied a way and with such unconsciousness of means and ends. Her hands and fingers are in such subtle sympathy with her heart and voice that they come into play automatically, and always help to interpret her words. Her dark eyes flash and her pale face is aglow with enthusiasm when she is appealing eloquently for converts and stretching out her arms persuasively. She may be bending downward with sweeping gesture or she may be striding across the platform with hands upraised, but she is never without picturesque grace. Those whom she addresses listen to her with breathless interest, and they watch her as intently as though she were an actress in a tragic part. Yet while she is terribly in earnest in her pleading and in her prayers, she has a sense of humor which cannot be repressed, and she has a winning smile.

Good Household Remedy.

Compound tincture of benzoin is recommended for a number of domestic remedies by a correspondent in the Woman's Home Companion. Paint a burn with it, she says, and it will stop the smart and heal the burn. If any of the family cuts himself paint the cut with benzoin. Dropped on cotton batting and applied to an aching tooth it will stop the ache. The secret of its efficacy seems to be that it forms an airtight coating wherever applied.

Going for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Don't put yourself in this man's place but keep a bottle of this remedy in your home. There is nothing so good for Colic, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and Diarrhoea. It is equally valuable for Summer Complaint and Cholera Infantum and has saved the lives of more children than any other medicine in use. When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

You, or some one of your family, are sure to need this remedy sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly; you will need it quickly. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? Price, 35 cents.

SUSPENSION BRIDGES.

They Were Common In Peru in the Days of the Incas.

Suspension bridges, some of them of considerable length, were common in Peru in the days of the Incas. They were formed of cables of twisted osiers passed over wooden supports and stretched from bank to bank, these bound together with smaller ropes and covered with bamboos. The road from Cusco to Quito is still noted for frail bridges of this sort, which are in constant use and span deep chasms.

The Chinese also, according to Kircher, have for centuries been familiar with the "suspension" theory and have constructed chain bridges in which the weight of the roadway is supported by the tension of the chains.

The first iron suspension bridge in Europe was built over the Tees, near Middleton, in 1741, for the use of miners. Two chains were stretched in a straight line, steadied by ties from the banks below, and the roadway for foot passengers was supported by the chains.

The modern suspension system practically dates from 1810, when bridges, both over 100 feet in length, were successfully completed at Galashiels and Peebles.—London Standard.

THE FIRST HENCHMEN.

They Were Young Nobles Who Acted as Pages to the King.

Skeat derives the word henchman from hengstman (Anglo-Saxon), horseman, groom. It is probable that henchmen were in the first instance young nobles who at state ceremonies attended on the king as mounted pages.

History speaks of these henchmen in this capacity, for we read that Henry VI. had three and Edward IV. six of them. We find, too, that they were mentioned in the royal ceremonies as belonging "to the riding household" and took part in tournaments.

The last time "henchman" is mentioned in connection with the court is in the reign of Henry VIII., and gradually it came to mean an ordinary page. The word is used by Ben Jonson and Shakespeare in this sense.

In an English journal of April 6, 1861, a Mr. W. Henchman claims that his family took their name from words spoken by Henry VII. to an ancestor in the hunting field, who had ridden as his page throughout an arduous day. "Crossborough," cried the king, "thou art a veritable henchman!"

Homeopathy.

Homeopathy is a theory of medicine promulgated by Dr. Samuel Hahnemann (1755-1843) of Leipsic in 1810. It asserts that any disease should be treated by medicines in minute doses that would produce in a healthy patient symptoms similar to those manifested by the disease requiring treatment. This is the principle of "like diseases are cured by like remedies" (Latin, similia similibus curantur) and is based on the theory that two similarly diseased conditions cannot subsist in the same organ at the same time.

Irresistible.

First Contractor—How did you fellows happen to get a job of repairing the pipes in Smug street? They were laid only a few years ago, and there was nothing the matter with them. Second Contractor—I know it, but the sight of that elegant new pavement on that street was altogether too tempting.

The Country's Simple Joys.

"Gracious! It's an awful muddy walk this evening, isn't it?" said Mr. Backlots on the way home from the Lonesomehurst station.

"Yes," replied Subbubs, "but I rather like it. We bought a new door mat the other day, and I wanted to see how it works."

It Fell.

"What's that racket down there?" shouted the old gentleman from the head of the stairs.

"I think," promptly replied his up to date daughter, "that it was Bob dropping his voice when he proposed to me."

PLAYED LINDSAY A CLOSE GAME.

T. A. S. Played Senior Lindsay Ball Team Yesterday.

Quinlan's Great Work in the Box—Struck out Lindsay's Best Batters—The Score 8-4.

Yesterday was decoration Day in Lindsay, and the T.A.S. Ball Team journeyed to that place and played the aspirants for the Midland League championship a very close game, the score being 8 to 4. It was anybody's game till the last man was out. There was no one happier when the game was over than the Lindsay players themselves. The T.A.S. team went into the game like veterans, and kept plugging away right to the finish. McLaughlan, Lindsay's star south paw, did not prove such a puzzle to the Abstainers, as he has done to some of the teams in the Midland League. He was hit safely nine times and was kept busy dispensing his shoots to keep the hits from reaching double figures. His support in the field was all that could be desired.

Quinlan pitched a good steady game, and, as it is said in the big league, had "everything." He held the heavy batting Lindsay team down to seven well scattered hits, and some of them were made after the side should have been retired, the fielders falling down on some very easy chances. McGill, Cinnamon and Workman each fanned the air twice and the rest of the team, with the exception of Miller, struck out one each. Chris. Graham caught very well. The high wind which was blowing across the field bothered his throwing to bases somewhat. Trainor put up a good article of ball on first base, as did Grady on second. Latremouille on third, and Callahan at short did not electrify the crowd with their work. The outfield did not have anything much to do. Fitzpatrick threw a runner out going to third from deep centre field, which was a feature.

The teams were:—

T. A. S. — Callahan ss, Graham c, Grady 2b, A. Latremouille 3b, H. Latremouille lf, Trainor 1b, Fitzpatrick cf, Dercher rf, Quinlan p. Umpire, H. M. Lamont.

NOTES.

Quinlan is improving in his work with every game.

"Bill" Cinnamon did not have much to say. He started out once but was quickly suppressed.

"Teddy" Miller hit well for Lindsay. "Teddy" is called the "pinch" hitter of the team.

Quinlan is a fixture on the senior Peterboroughs now. He has demonstrated he has the goods.

The Lindsay ground is very fast, and infielders have their work cut out for them.

McLaughlin threw to first base twice yesterday to catch runners, and threw so wildly that both scored.

Yesterday's game was a benefit for the Lindsay brass band. The band turned out the night that Lindsay beat Cobourg and the management appreciated their good turn very much.

BIG BASEBALL GAME AT T. A. S. GROUNDS TO-NIGHT

Examiner—Paxman, 1b; Hutchinson, c; Moore, lf; Rechea, 3b; Follitte, p; Wilson, 2b; Gilman, ss; Graham, rf; Snearrard, cf.

LACROSSE.

The T.A.S. are still hard at work in preparation for the game with Fort Hope. The locals are anxious to arrange the contest for as early a date as possible.

GOLF.

A great deal of interest in golfing circles is being taken in the golf match to be played to-morrow afternoon between the Lambton team of Toronto, and the local team and the public generally is invited to attend. Mr. Geo. Lyon, the Dominion champion will play against Mr. J. Lawrence, the local champion who can be relied upon to give the famous Toronto team a strong argument.

• • • •

Geo. Lyon one of the finest golf players in Canada will be here to-morrow to play with the Lambton team, of Toronto, in their match with the Peterboroughs. A very interesting match is promised.

LAWN TENNIS.

The games in the Athletic Tennis Club to-night are:—

BASEBALL.

On Wednesday evening the Young Quaker baseball team added another victory to their long string by defeating All Saints Guild League team, runners-up for the Guild championship by a score of 13-1. The game was called when the winners were at bat in the last half of the third innings. The Quakers batted in good style and gave Quinlan errorless support. So far this season they have played 15 games, winning 12, tying two and losing one, a very creditable record. The batteries were:—For the winners, Quinlan and Wilson; for All Saints, Pilling and Campbell.

• • • •

Only one game is scheduled for the Midland League to-morrow when Bowmanville plays in Oshawa.

THE TRIGGER.

The regular fortnightly practice shoot of the Peterborough Gun Club, was held last evening. Several members were out and some good scores made as follows:—

At 25 birds.—Messrs. R. Neill, 17; L. Hall, 16; C. W. Gutterson, 13; H. Tivey, 10; C. Wood, 9; A. Mitchell, 8.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The following letter appears in the Toronto Star:—

Editor of The Star: Referring to swimming race across Toronto Bay, can you give us "greenhorns" some light on the significance of a handicap race? Reports credit C. H. Land as the winner with handicap of 43 minutes, while Strickland gets third place in 30 minutes with a 3-minute handicap. What we want to know is "Who did it?" that is, who did the greatest feat? Did Strickland cross the entire distance in 50 minutes straight, or does it mean that to it must be added Land's 43 minutes handicap? And what does Strickland's 3 minutes handicap signify? If Strickland crossed in 50 minutes, what does it mean that he gets third place? It seems very confusing. Strickland's time says 50 minutes only, 7 minutes more than Land's handicap, and is Strickland supposed to cross in 7 minutes in order to win? Your reference to this in to-night's paper will greatly oblige a lot of interested Star subscribers.

Interested Crowd.

The handicap of 43 minutes given one of the contestants was remarkably large. But if one man gets 43 minutes start on another it is supposed to mean that he is that much slower than the other. The handicap method of racing is designed to put all contestants on an equal footing with an equal chance to win, although, as a rule, scratch men gets the worst of it. In bicycle road racing the first man actually in was nearly always one with a large handicap in his favour, while the time prize nearly always went to somebody starting from or near scratch. In contests of this kind there ought to be a prize for the best gross as well as the best net performance.

ANOTHER LARGE EXCURSION HERE.

St. George's Church, Grafton Run out Here To-day.

Peterborough is again to-day the objective point of an excursion party. St. George's church, Grafton, of which Mr. R. Z. Rogers, brother of Col. J. Z. Rogers, is a member, and who is personally conducting it, ran an excursion here to-day by Grand Trunk Railway, arriving here by the regular train from the south at 8.20. About 300 persons took this trip. After their arrival here, the excursionists went at once to the Wolfe street wharf, where the steamer Stony Lake was waiting to convey them over the lift lock. The boat left about 9 o'clock, and made the ascent successfully, passing up the canal to Lakefield, from which place the boat continued up the lake to Burleigh, where dinner was served and returned to Lakefield, from where they will return to-night by train, and leave for home on the regular train to-night.

Mr. Harry Long's fame as a caterer has evidently extended to Grafton, for a letter was received from there by him this morning, asking him to prepare for a large number of guests.

The excursionists want to hear the band concert in the park to-night, or as much of it as possible, before they leave for home.

LAID AT REST.

Funeral of the Late David Breese Largely Attended.

The funeral of the late David Breese, took place at three o'clock this afternoon from his late residence, 665 Bethune street, to the Little Lake cemetery, and was largely attended. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Crothers, of the George street Methodist church, of which the deceased was a member. The members of Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, and Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, I.O.O.F., attended the funeral to pay their last respects to their late brother. The pall-bearers were Messrs. T. McFadden, W. Cowie, W. J. Green, R. McWhinnie, J. J. Hartley and A. Johnston.

Tenting on Their Old Camp Ground.

For the eighteenth time, Court Littlejohn, C. O. F. will run their annual excursion on civic holiday, to Toronto, Niagara Falls, and Buffalo. There must be some real hypnotic charm in this trip, to be kept up year after year without a single failure, either as a financial success or any indications of its stailing on the public. It is being talked about and looked forward to just as much this year as it was in 1836; and as last year was perhaps the biggest and most successful excursion of the season, it is safe to predict a bigger success this year. Up to Toronto via. C.P.R., across Lake Ontario to Lewiston, up the wonderful electric railway and along the "Whirlpool" route to Niagara Falls, and on to Buffalo, if you like. See posters for reduced rates and time limit, etc.

Grand Trunk New Service.

Is daily becoming popular. Trains right on time. Leave Peterborough 7.20 a.m., arrive Toronto 10.10 a.m. Returning, leave Toronto 7.20 p.m., arrive Peterborough 10.25 p. m. (Parlour car.) For Alexandria Bay (1,000 Islands,) leave Peterborough 8.30 a.m. via Belleville and Gananoque. All the tourists' resorts are reached via Grand Trunk, and City Agent W. Burnton will give all information, illustrated literature, etc. He can also tell you, as he has been there, about the great $50,000,000 World's Fair, St. Louis, and the best way to go. 12d25

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Inc'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

August 5th, Thursday evening. — There was not much doing in to-day's market and the fact that in spite of the sharp advance in wheat stocks, did not go any lower shows the inherent strength of the market. The reactions to-day amounted to less than a point and nearly the entire loss was recovered before the close. There was special strength in St. L. and S.W. pfd., which got up to 51 1-2. We expect to see it go above 52. Met. was strong and we expect to see it go in the neighborhood of 130. If no serious damage occurs to the cotton and corn crops considerably higher prices will occur in the stock market. We continue bullish on the stocks mentioned yesterday, including Ill. C., as well as Atch., R.I. and in fact all the low priced stocks and would buy them on any quick reaction of 1 point or over. We expect the upward movement to be resumed shortly. Sep. wheat advanced 4 points to-day. On any further sharp bulge to-morrow would get out of it.—Wall Street Information Bureau.

New York.—Stocks held well yesterday considering the sensational adv. in wheat however, yesterday's bulge is probably due more a stampede of the shorts than to actual crop conditions. We will not get a big wheat crop, but neither will it be so poor as rumors allege. There is no pressure to sell stocks and it looks as though the big men were absorbing what the bears offer. We will probably get a narrow market until around Sep. 10th, about the time the government report comes out. Whether the report is good or bad stocks should advance after that date, that is if they do not advance before. The U.S.S. will not do as well this quarter as they did last, the pfd. div. will be earned and paid however. Good judges think that business will be much better for the final quarter of the year. Men in the know, bought U. S.Q. yesterday. Don't think any serious mistake will be made by standing pat on stocks bought at lower prices. They should all be higher before the month is out.—Ridgeley.

If the railroads of the south have furnished five increased dividends and no decreases this year on a cotton crop of under 10 million bales and an indifferent iron trade what may be expected with an improving iron trade and a minimum cotton crop of 12 million bales.

We are told S. P. will cross 60 within a very short time.

Packers strike has glutted Chicago. Banks with idle money.

Liverpool opening, wheat 12-8 to 11-3 higher. Corn quiet, not quoted.

1.30 p.m.—Wheat 11-4 to 11-2 higher. Corn 7-8 higher.

Liverpool cotton opened 20 to 30 higher.

Expected 4 million Japan and Australian gold to arrive at Sanf. to be paid out in New York next week.

JAPANESE HAVE FULL EXPECTATIONS

Port Arthur's Fall and Kuropatkin's Capitulation Same Day.

VICTORIES TO OCCUR SOON

Jap Repulse at Anshanshan According to Mukden (Russian) Report—Further Details of Recent Russian Defeats—Russians Now Admit Losses at Simoucheng and Yushulintzu—4000 Killed and Wounded.

Berlin, Aug. 6.—The National Zeitung prints a telegram from Tokio stating that there are five Japanese divisions before Port Arthur, part of them within three and a half miles of the fortress and that there are altogether 20 Japanese divisions in Manchuria. The telegram says Tokio is expecting the fall of Port Arthur and the capitulation of Gen. Kuropatkin on the same day.

Reported Jap Repulse.

Mukden, Aug. 6.—It is reported here that the Japanese attacked the Russian position at Anshanshan (midway between Haicheng and Liaoyang), on Aug. 2, and were repulsed with heavy loss. The Russian casualties are not known.

4,000 Russians Killed.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—Detailed reports reaching the war office from Gen. Kuropatkin's generals shows that the Russian losses July 30, July 31 and Aug. 1 did not exceed 4,000. The Japanese are believed to have at least an equal number.

Russians Lost 2,000.

Tokio, Aug. 6.—It is now estimated that the Russians lost 2,000 men in the fighting at Simoucheng. The Japanese sanitary corps buried 700 bodies in the valley though which the Russians fought and retreated. The Japanese captured six guns, 570 shells, a quantity of stores and 33 prisoners. A detachment of the Russian medical corps captured by the Japanese was returned to the Russian lines. The Japanese casualties at Simoucheng amounted to 860 men, including eighty officers killed and 24 officers wounded.

Russians Retire From Haicheng.

Haicheng, Aug. 6.—The Russians have been obliged to retire from here, as the Japanese were working around them from the east, threatening to cut them off from Liaoyang. The fresh Japanese troops disembarked at the port of Newchwang are also advancing on the other flank. The main concentration of Russians is now about Liaoyang. The Japanese for a semicircle of about 50 miles around the Russian positions. As this despatch (yesterday) is filed the order for the troops to retire has been given.

Communications Cut.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—The fact that Gen. Kuropatkin's recent despatches have not mentioned General Stakelberg or General Zaroubaieff leads to the supposition here that their forces to the southward may have had their communications cut by Gen. Nodzu's army.

Chinese Drilled By Jap Officers.

Paris, Aug. 6.—The Matin's correspondent at Newchwang draws attention to the activity of the Chinese troops in that vicinity. He says they are being constantly drilled by Japanese officers.

Prepare For Final Stand.

Che Foo, Aug. 6.—Thirty more refugees arrived yesterday on junks from Port Arthur, which place they left August 1. The departure of all civilians from Port Artuur is said to be owing to the exhaustive preparations for a final stand against the Japanese.

No Repetition.

The Canadian Henley.

Port Dalhousie, Aug. 6.—The opening event of the Canadian Henley regatta was pulled off here half an hour late yesterday afternoon. The weather conditions were perfect. SEVEN DEATHS BY DROWNING

By Daughter and Her Six Companions Clinging to Him.

THE 7 GIRLS ALSO DROWNED

Went With Michael Riley to Beach at Alton, Ill, and, Joining Hands, Waded Into River Along Sandbar—In Darkness They Slipped Into the Deep Water to Death.

Alton, Ill., Aug. 6.—While bathing in the Mississippi River last night, Michael Riley, his daughter and six of the latter's little girls were drowned. One child was rescued.

Riley lived near the river in the southern part of the city and was accustomed to bathe on the beach in front of his home after his return from work.

Last night his little daughter begged to go with him, and Riley took her and several of her girl friends to the beach with him.

When they entered the water, Riley bade the children join hands, and they all waded into the river and walked along a sandbar which stretches out into the stream at that point.

They had gone some distance from the shore when suddenly the whole party disappeared beneath the water, having in the darkness stepped from the sandbar into the deep channel.

The children struggled and screamed, fighting desperately to reach the sandbar, where the water was only a foot or so in depth. Riley, who is said to have been a good swimmer, is thought to have been made helpless by the girls clinging to him and hampering his efforts to save them.

The only one in the party to regain the sandbar was Mary Timiny, 8 years old. The child is unable to tell how she saved herself.

Riley was 32 years old, and the ages of the children drowned ranged from 8 to 14 years. Four of the bodies have been recovered.

Bognor Man Drowned.

Meaford, Aug. 6.—A young man, nightwatchman on the steamer City of Collingwood, was drowned here yesterday morning about 2 o'clock. He is supposed to be the son of Robert Miller of Bognor. It was his first trip on this boat, and, not knowing the wharf, it is supposed that he misjudged the distance to the dock and accidentally jumped in and was drawn down by the wheel. The crew of the Collingwood spent two hours trying to find the body, but were unsuccessful. Chief Constable Owens brought the body to the surface later in the morning.

Drowned in Waterbutt.

Manitoba, Man., Aug. 6.—Mrs. Beamish of Kemptville, Ont., was accidentally drowned in a waterbutt here yesterday.

Was Stealing a Ride.

London, Aug. 6.—Robert Scott of St. Henri, Que., who is making a trip on a wager from his home to Calgary, N.W.T., met with a serious accident on Wednesday evening at Newbury. He was on a Grand Trunk freight train stealing a ride when he lost his balance and fell under the train. His arm was badly crushed and nearly severed from the shoulder. Scott was brought to Victoria Hospital, this city, where he is progressing favorably.

Farmer's Awful Fall.

Galt, Aug. 6.—Hugh Williamson, of the James Moffatt farm, East River road, was the victim of an accident yesterday morning, which may prove fatal. He was assisting in unloading a load of loose wheat, when the rope which holds the pole running across the top of the load broke, and he was thrown back on the load to the barn floor. He alighted on his head, and received a serious injury to his spine. His whole body below the shoulders is paralyzed.

Shot By Own Weapon.

Listowel, Aug. 6.—A sad accident happened to George Karges, aged 49, who lives in the Township of Wallace. He had taken a gun and, with horse and buggy, was on his way to do some shooting. Coming up with a friend at a gravel pit, he was asked to help remove a stump, and in pitching the gun into the back of the buggy it was discharged, the contents tearing away the whole muscle of the left arm.

He May Die.

Belleville, Aug. 6.—A probable fatal accident occurred in the village of Frankford yesterday when a 12-year-old boy named Robert Smith, who was temporarily in charge of his father's team, was thrown over the side of the wagon by the sudden starting of the horses, falling under the wheels. The lad's shoulder was smashed, and he received other terrible injuries. Medical care was given him, but it is not believed that he can recover.

James Wedick Dead.

Salem, Aug. 6.—James Wedick and his brother, who were assisting in taking down an old building Thursday night, got hurt by a falling partition. James was hurt inwardly and died yesterday morning. Harry had the small bone in his ankle broken.

The club was organized last January, and each week the members put by a certain amount of their wages to form a fund to enable them to take the outing.

On Tuesday last, July 26th, Mrs. Mary E. Sloan, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Miss Nettie F. Somes, of Northboro, Mass., went out for a trawl from "Bosobel," the American camp in Boschink Narrows. When nearly half a mile from camp Miss Somes, who was holding the line, hooked on to what she thought was a rock or a log, but in a moment she found it was very much alive, and then commenced a desperate struggle. As Miss Somes weighs about 90 lbs. there was some doubt for a time as to whether she would go overboard or the fish come her way. They, however concluded after a time that they had a whopper, and as they could neither take it in the boat or kill it, they decided to tow it home. As they came within hailing distance of camp, Capt. Chas. Grylls went to their assistance, and took in what proved to be the largest maskinonge that has been caught in Stony Lake for over twenty years, in the presence of Mr. Addison, of Toronto, Dr. Race, of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. Harry Hopkins, of Massachusetts, and others, the muster was measured and weighed. Its length was fifty inches, and twenty-one inches around the body, and it weighed thirty-one lbs. Of course the ladies feel quite elated, and have every reason to be so, and we are of the opinion that it will be a long time, if ever, that a larger fish will be caught in Stony Lake.

A SAMPLE MAIL MISLEADER.

Mr. Bell of Pictou, showed in his speech on the finances that we paid in taxes $5.57 per head, under tthe Conservatives, and that last year under the Liberals, the per capita tax rate was $9.44. The increase is just $20 per family. Every family pays $20 additional in taxes per annum for the privilege of having Sir William Mulock, "the "garmer's friend," in a fat office.

This is quite misleading. The revenues collected under the Liberal Government were collected upon a tariff rate less than that which prevailed under the Conservative regime. The people were not so heavily taxed under the Liberal Government; there was more prosperity, the people had more money to buy more goods, hence the importations were larger and the customs and other revenues greater. If the people under the Liberal Government contributed more to the public revue they had more money to do it with. They are as much to be pitied as the poor farmer, whose expenditures are so much greater this year than last, because he made so much money that he could buy and pay for another farm. The Mail's contention is misleading, as he who thinks a moment can see.

WE'RE A NATION OF DYSPEPTICS

Our Stomachs Need Rest and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Give Them the Rest They Need.

Medical men declare that nine of every ten have stomach trouble of some kind or other, that quick lunches and uncooked food, excitement, etc., are all doing their share towards making us a nation of dyspeptics. They claim that our stomachs need rest.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets give tired stomachs rest by the doing the work for them. That's why they cure indigestion, dyspepsia, and all other stomach ills. Edward Rousseau, of Bruce Mines, Ont., says:

"For upwards of ten years I was a severe sufferer from Dyspepsia. I doctored almost continually, and used almost everything I could hear of but never got any permanent relief until I had used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I have taken two boxes of them and words cannot express the great good they have done me. I am now feeling like a new man."

TEN THOUSAND BASS.

Provincial Fisheries Department has Completed Restocking of Inland Lakes for the Season.

The Fisheries Department of Ontario have completed their work for the season in connection with the re-stocking of the inland lakes with bass. Altogether over 10,000 parent bass have been transplanted, and the angling in the inland lakes is reported to have been improved in consequence. In the lakes in the vicinity of Huntsville, where up until four years ago no bass were to be found, the work of the Department is reported to have been very noticeable, and the tourists now report good bass fishing.

Hon. W. S. Fielding's Speech in the House of Commons.

The following is a press report of the speech of Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, upon the want of confidence resolution, in respect of the financial administration of the finance of the country.

The reply of Hon. W. S. Fielding on behalf of the Government, in its calm, logical argument and forcible statement of facts was a most effective and complete answer to the speech of Mr. Bell. He disposed of every charge that had been made by the Opposition critic, and offered a convincing and conclusive justification of the Government's fiscal tpolicy, showing that the prosperity which now prevailed had brought about a marked change in the conditions which existed prior to 1896, which made an expenditure which was extravagant then merely an evidence of national and individual wealth now. These annual motions condemning the "extravagance" of the government, were, he suggested, without any desire to be offensive, farcial in their nature. Mr. Bell rolled up all possible votes in the estimates, including railway subsidies and everything of that kind, in one tremendous whole, for the purpose of alarming the people of the Dominion and proving that the finances were in a dreadful condition, and that owing to the reckless and extravagant expenditure of the Government the finances were going to the dogs. Mr. Fielding recalled the dolorous predictions of Sir Charles Tupper in 1896, showing that, notwithstanding these unpleasant assurances, as each year rolled around and stock was taken the people were brought face to face with the very agreeable fact that the finances of the country have been flourishing to a greater degree than at any previous period in their history. (Cheers.) He warned the Opposition that with this continual shouting without reason, should the time ever come that the government departed from their settled policy of economical and judicious expenditure and became reckless and extravagant, and they wished to alarm the country, they would find themselves in the predicament of the boy in the fable who shouted "wolf" too often and the people would not pay any attention to him.

THE OPPOSITION RECORD.

Mr. Fielding analyzed the claim of the Opposition to the confidence of the people and asked what proposals they had made for the reduction of taxation or expenditure. A search of the records of the House with the aid of a microscope might disclose that they had moved to strike out an item of $150, but there was no proposal to strike out any considerable amount.

Mr. Geo. Taylor interrupted with the remark that he had moved to strike out an item of $40,000.

Hon. Mr. Fielding retorted that Mr. Taylor had not divided the House upon it. However, he was willing to let it be known throughout the length and breadth of the land that, although Mr. Bell estimated the expenditure at from 46 million dollars to 250 million dollars, the Opposition had on one occasion moved to strike ou tone item of $40,000, and the people would realize that 99 per cent. of the expenditure was allowed to go unchallenged by the Opposition. (Cheers.) But for every case where the Opposition could show they had proposed to reduce the expenditure by a single dollar, he could show that they had proposed to increase it by ten. As an illustration of this fact he mentioned that yesterday Mr. Bell had by courtesy handed him a copy of his amendment, denouncing the Government for extravagant expenditure, as he walked into the House. Immediately afterwards he found Col. Hughes denouncing the Government for not expending much larger sums on the militia of the country and pointing with some scorn and indignation to the fact that Canada only spent $7 cents per head upon the militia. His genial friend from South Lanark (Hon. John Haggart) would vote for the amendment, but it was only a few days ago he accompanied a deputation which waited on the Government and asked that a great work which would involve an expenditure of $100,000,000 be undertaken at once. Although Mr. Haggart would for party reasons vote for the amendment, Mr. Fielding thought he knew what that gentleman's private opinion would be if he chose to express it. So it was with many other members of the Opposition. They would at one moment vote for a general amendment condemning the expenditure, and had again and again raised their voices in the loudest in demanding from the Government an increase in the expenditures in particular instances in which they were interested. The Government, among other things, had been vigorously condemned by members of the Opposition for not sending an expedition to the north pole. After denouncing the Government's Grand Trunk Pacific expenditure they proposed, and advocated for a few days, another scheme which would have enormously added to the public debt, although after a very short time they became ashamed of it and substituted for it a proposition that if placed in power the Government would build the road. Mr. Bell condemned the Government for increasing the expenditure, when, as a matter of fact, it had fallen $63,970,790 in 1903 to $61,746,591 in 1904, a decrease of $2,224,000. Last year, although in his annual denunciation Mr. Bell had figured on the estimates an expenditure of $200,000,000, the public accounts showed an actual expenditure of $68,000,000. The revenue was not collected in the form of customs and excise duties alone; the revenue from departments like the Post Office, Railway and Public Works was daily increasing; therefore a comparison of expenditure only did not give a clear knowledge of the actual state of the finances. In 1890 the taxxes collected by customs and excise was 79.21 per cent. of the revenue; in 1896 it was 75.81 per cent.; in 1903, the last year for which the figures are available, it was 74.22 per cent. It should not, however, be assumed that an increase in taxation was an increased burden on the country, or that the country was suffering any disadvantage even if there was an increase.

PROSPERITY OF THE PEOPLE.

The vital error in Mr. Bell's figures was that he dealt only with taxation, and did not take into count the increased wealth of the people. If the people were as poor as they were in 1893-96, and unable to buy the goods they desired, the amount of taxation would be a burden. Under existing circumstances the enlarged taxation was an evidence of the growth of prosperity and progress of the country. This taxation was optional with the people. When they were poor they did not spend as much in luxuries and comforts as when they were well off and prosperous. Out of the greater prosperity people bought many things they would not otherwise have purchased. In reply to the argument that low taxation meant prosperity, Mr. Fielding pointed out that in 1868 the rate of customs taxation was $5 per head; in 1895 it had fallen to $3.30 per head, and in 1904 it was $7.59 per head. According to Mr. Bell's theory, 1895 should have been the happy year for the people. Would any reasonable man desire to go back to the conditions of adversity and distress which prevailed in 1895? The whole argument was fallacious. Another argument was that the Conservative Government collected much less money from the people. They collected less per head, but they plunged the country into heavy debt. On the other hand, this Government had carried on extensive public works, had largely increased the expenditure and undertaken new obligations which their predecessors had not been required to meet, and at the end of the year there had not been one dollar added to the public debt. (Cheers.) The Opposition charged that the Government had spent money lavishly. The Government admitted having spent money liberally in railway subsidies, public works, civil government, and that in every department there had been, and necessarily must be, some increase in a growing country. They sent the "boys" to South Africa, and paid bounties of various kinds, but there was the difference as compared with their predecessors that this Government had the money to spend without going into debt.

DEBT AND TAXATION.

Notwithstanding all this expenditure the net debt of the country, which in 1896 stood at $50.61 per head, if our anticipations of last year's operations prove correct, the debt on June 30th last will be shown to have fallen to $46.31 per head. (Cheers.) There had been a material reduction also in the rate of customs duty collected. On dutiable goods the rate in 1896 was 29.942 per cent.; in 1903, the last year for which the figures are available, it was 27.064, so that there had been a reduction of nearly 3 per cent. The average rate of duty paid on all the imports was 19.109 in 1896 and 16.468 in 1903. Yet Mr. Bell had sought to convey the impression that the rate of taxation had in tion had increased. He had also mentioned sugar as an article upon which this Government had increased the duty, which the old Government had reduced. As a matter of fact, the old Government threw off the duty on raw sugar for the benefit of the refiners, but they left it on the refined article. The ordinary consumer used sometimes to consume the raw material, but now the Canadian people all use the refined article, and, therefore, they did not benefit from the removal of the duty from the raw sugar. But it was a mistake to say the duty on refined sugar was higher to-day than under the Conservative Government. The duties had been rearranged, and the polariscope system, a fairer test, had been adopted, with the result that whereas the duty in 1896 was $1.14 on the refined article, it was now only $1.11 1-2 per 100 pounds. Therefore, there was actually a reduction.

THE TOBACCO DUTIES.

Mr. Fielding also dealt with the tobacco duties, and showed that the policy of the Government had given a very material encouragement to the Canadian tobacco-raiser and had greatly increased the use of Canadian tobacco, thereby developing home industry and enriching the Dominion. Was not the whole policy of the Opposition to increase taxation when they advocated increased protection for the manufacturers? Everyone knew that increased protection meant increased taxation, which would not go into the revenues of the country but would benefit the manufacturer. Reverting to the question of expenditure, Mr. Fielding pointed out that seldom, indeed, could any member of the Opposition be found who would move that any item of public expenditure be eliminated from the estimate. The increase of expenditure for which they condemned the Government in this amendment was enumerated in detail by Mr. Fielding, who challenged them to show where they had questioned the items, and showed that in the case of the Yukon every dollar expended had come back to the treasury, that the larger earnings of the Government railway had balanced the increased expenditure. The expenditure on fisheries had increased by $100,000, and from both sides on the House there had been a demand this year for greater expenditure. An increase of $322,000 had been incurred in the customs in order to collect the increase of $17,148,000 in the duties collected. The cost of the excise department had increased by $8.114, while the revenue collected was $4,000,000 greater; the postoffice expenditure had increased $445,167 between 1896 and 1903, and the receipts during that period grew by $1,430,000; the militia expenditure had increased during the same period by $876,000, and yet only yesterday members of the Opposition declared that we should spend eight or ten times that amount. There had been an increase from $120,000 on immigration in 1896 to $443,000, with this difference, that for the first named amount no returns were obtained, where now the Northwest was filling up at the rate of over 100,000 people a year. The expenditure in the Northwest Territories had been increased from $322,000 in 1896 to $802,000 last year. It was useless for the Opposition to talk about the increase in expenditure in bulk; it was only by going over the individual items that a true impression of the financial condition of the country could be obtained.

A NEW CANADA.

The Canada of 1896 was, Mr. Fielding said, an altogether different proposition to the new Canada of 1903. In every part of the Dominion in 1896 there was depression and discouragement. Some progress had been made—a new country was bound to make progress—but the conditions were not satisfactory. In proof of the change he only needed to mention that the trade of the country had grown from $236,000,000 in 1896 to $470,000,000 in 1903, and the deposits in the banks from $183,000,000 to $428,000,000. The new Canada, under the Liberal Administration was making enormous progress and if the Government had expended large sums of money they had been expended for reasons which were apparent to everyone. If the Conservative Government had spent little money they had still spent more than they possessed and ran the country into debt. The little they spent was extravagant. The expenditure of the Liberal Government was economy, but they had the money to spend and had lived within their means. (Loud cheers.)

READY TO PAY ALL THE OLD CLAIMS.

Sault Ste. Marie Steel Plant may Start on September 15.

(Toronto News.)

Mr. N. W. Rowell, K. C., returned from New York this morning after attending in that city yesterday a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Lake Superior Company. At noon he visited the Parliament Buildings, and called on Premier Ross. Though Mr. Rowell had not time to be interviewed, it is understood that the preliminary steps were taken at the meeting to begin next week, the payment of the claims made by creditors of the defunct Consolidated Lake Superior Company. It is also stated that the steel plant at Sault Ste. Marie will begin operations on Sept. 15th.

According to an undisputed authority, the Sault Ste Marie industries are as "safe as a church," and will all be in operation shortly. The adjusting of the claims of creditors of the defunct company has been a very tedious and difficult matter, and more than one will probably have to be settled in the courts. Some claims for considerable amounts have been disputed, while other have been in excess. Enough money was provided, however, for the payment of legitimate claims, and he understood the payment of these would begin next week.

"Is there any money on hand for curent expenses?"

"Yes, a million dollars," he replied; "half of this is a deposit in Canadian banks and half in American banks. This will not be used for any other purpose than to meet the current expenses of the industries."

THE STEEL PLANT.

Referring to the steel plant, the informant of The News stated that 12,000 tons of pig iron had been purchased at Cleveland, Midland and other places, the supply of the Helen Mine being necessary to fulfil a contract with a Cleveland firm that takes from 800 to 1,000 tons a week.

Mr. D. Lewis, the former superintendent of the steel plant, had been re-engaged, and had some difficulty in getting skilled labour for the plant.

"Do you think the steel plant will get the contract for rails for the Temiskaming Railway?"

"Undoubtedly," he replied. The Sault works will make all that are required."

In this connection it was pointed out that the Ontario Government was the first Government in Canada to stipulate that any subsidized railway must purchase in Canada all supplies possible. This example had been followed by the Dominion Government regarding the Grand Trunk Pacific.

"Oh, no," he concluded, "the public need have no concern, the Sault industries will be all right."

"When do you expect the steel plant to start?"

"I understand the date now fixed is Sept. 15."

ANGLERS PROTEST.

They do not Like New Regulations in Ontario.

Thousand Island Park, N. Y., Aug. 3. — The Anglers' Association of the St. Lawrence River, at the 21st annual meeting held here to-day, protested against a new regulation of the Department of Fisheries of the Province of Ontario, which requires that every American fishing in the waters of the province shall be required to pay a fee of $5 for each rod fished, unless he is a guest at a Canadian hotel or boarding house, or has purchased his supplies in Canada. A committee of three Americans and two Canadians was appointed to make an effort to have the regulation rescinded.

CONGRESSMAN WILBER SAYS

[To The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., of Columbus, O.]

"Pe-ru-na is All You Claim For It."

Congressman D. F. Wilber, of Onondta, N. Y. writes:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—"Persuaded by a friend I have tried your remedy and I have almost fully recovered after the use of a few bottles. I am fully convinced that Peruna is all you claim for it, and I cheerfully recommend your medicine to all who are afflicted with catarrhal trouble."—David F. Wilber.

Peruna a Preventive and Cure for Colds.

Mr. C. F. Given, Sussex, N. B., Vice President of "The Past-time Boating Club," writes:

"Whenever the cold weather sets in I have for years past been very sure to catch a severe cold which was hard to throw off, and which would leave after-effects on my constitution the most of the winter.

"Last winter I was advised to try Peruna, and within five days the cold was broken up and in five days more I was a well man. I recommended it to several of my friends and all speak the highest praise for it. There is nothing like Peruna for catarrhal afflictions. It is well nigh infallible as a cure, and I gladly endorse it."—C. F. Given.

A Prominent Singer Saved From Loss of Voice.

Mr. Julian Weisslitz, 175 Seneca street, Buffalo, N. Y., is corresponding secretary of The Sangerlust, of New York; is the leading second bass of the Sangerlust, the largest German singing society of New York and also the oldest.

In 1890 The Sangerlust celebrated its fiftieth anniversary with a large celebration in New York City. The following is his testimony:

"About two years ago I caught a severe cold while traveling and which settled into catarrh of the bronchial tubes, and so affected my voice that I was obliged to cancel my engagements. In distress I was advised to try Peruna, and although I had never used a patent medicine before, I sent for a bottle.

"Words but ill describe my surprise to find that within a few days I was greatly relieved, and within three weeks I was entirely recovered. I am never without it now, and take an occasional dose when I feel run down."—Julian Weisslitz.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

CUPID GOES ABROAD TO CAPTURE PRIZES.

A Pretty Romance Which Occurred to an Ontario Girl.

Ottawa, August 3.—A pretty little romance of love with which a talented Ottawa girl is connected and in which Cupid appears to have once more scored, is furnishing the theme for talk in some of the social circles of Ottawa. The young lady in question is Miss Lea Larue, the charming daughter of Madame Larue, of this city, who comes from an aristocratic family in Quebec. Pretty, accomplished and possessed of more than ordinary talents, the young lady, who is a graduate of the Gloucester street convent, has been given the advantage of finishing her education abroad and in Paris, where for some time she has been pursuing advanced vocal studies, has won considerable celebrity as a singer, being the recipient of numerous invitations from the upper strata of Parisian society.

Some months ago the young lady went on a trip to Scotland, where by the destiny of fate she happened to meet the Anglican clergyman, Rev. A. Chisholm, of MacGregor, Manitoba, who was also touring there. Attracted by her beauty and accomplishments, the little minister, like Mr. Carmichael in "The Bonnie Brier Bush," lost his heart completely, and a proposition of marriage was made and not viewed with disfavour, although the affair was kept rather quiet. The clergyman returned home several months ago, and went to his charge in the west, but memories of his romance abroad were enwreved and kept fresh by the interchange of correspondence.

The climax was reached a few days ago, when the pretty little singer arrived from Paris and went through to Winnipeg, where the marriage to Mr. Chisholm took place. On returning to MacGregor a hearty welcome was extended to Mrs. Chisholm on behalf of the congregation. Mr. and Mrs. Chisholm are expected to visit Ottawa in October.

CHILDHOOD DANGERS.

How the Heavy Death Rate Among Children may be Reduced.

The death rate among infants and young children during the hot weather is simply appalling. For example, in the city of Montreal alone in one week the death of one hundred and six children was recorded. Most of these deaths were due to stomach and bowel troubles, which are always alarmingly prevalent during the hot weather, and most, if not all, of these precious little lives might have been saved if the mother had at hand a safe and simple remedy to check the trouble at the outset. As a life saver among infants and young children, Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in every home. These Tablets prevent and cure diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum and all forms of stomach trouble. If little ones are given the Tablets occasionally they will prevent these troubles and keep the children healthy. The Tablets cost only 25 cents a box, and a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the home may save a little life. They are guaranteed to contain no opiate or harmful drug, and may be given with safety and advantage to a new born baby or full grown child. If your dealer does not keep the Tablets, send the price to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and a box will be sent you by mail post paid.

SOME HAPPENINGS IN THE NORTHERN TOWN.

Personal Mention and Other Items of Interest at Lakefield.

Mr. Walker of Montreal, who has been the guest of Mrs. F. J. Tate, Harborne, has returned to Montreal.

Rev. John McEwan of Toronto, is spending his vacation in the village, and is the guest of Mrs. Watson.

The tailors' excursion, which was to have been run up the river did not materialize owing to the number of logs in the Otonabee river.

Mr. J. Strickland, of the Traders' Bank, Ridgetown, is home for a couple of weeks visiting his parents.

The Misses Sherin of Winnipeg, who have been in the village for a couple of weeks left for their home on Saturday.

Mr. Furlong, the proprietor of the Craig House, has been confined to his room through illness, but is now able to be around.

The McMaster Evangelistic Band are holding well attended meetings in the Baptist church every night.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam. Henderson of Toronto, passed through the village the other day on their way to Stony Lake for a couple of weeks.

The Union Sabbath School excursion held on Tuesday, August 2nd, under the auspices of the Presbyterian and St. John's Sunday schools, was largely attended. The excursion was billed to sail from Lakefield down over the Lift Lock to Crawford's Grove, but owing to a report that the Lift Lock was out of repair, the committee at the last moment had to secure the Stony Lake and go up the lakes. The day was an ideal one for a picnic, and everyone enjoyed himself to the full.

The tenders for the construction of the cement pavements for our streets were all in on Monday, but the committee in charge have not yet taken any definite action in regard to the work. The council will probably employ a good foreman and do the work themselves.

Mr. David Breese, who has been ill for some time, died at his cottage at Stony Lake on Wednesday. The body was brought down by yacht to Lakefield, and thence to Peterborough by rail. Mr. Breese was well and favourably known in this locality, and his many friends will regret to learn of his demise.

Mr. A. S. Bartlett left on Wednesday for Toronto on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sherin are at Stony Lake for a couple of weeks outing.

News has reached the village from "Viamede," Stony Lake, that there are no less than thirty-three young ladies between the ages of 19 and 24, pretty and wealthy, staying at present at that popular resort, and not a man in sight. A later item informs us that all the rooms are taken for Sunday, and several of the boys are putting up tents. If the call from Macedonia to "come over and help us," was responded to as readily as this call to arms, how quickly the world would have been evangelized.

LUCKY PTE. PERRY.

Will Be Offered a Place in the Vancouver Customs—Brilliant Reception at Montreal.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—When Private Perry, the winner of the [illegible] Prize, arrived at Montreal yesterday he received an interesting, and doubtless welcome, message. Mr. R. G. Macpherson, M.P. for Burrard, and a resident of Vancouver, sent yesterday morning a congratulatory telegram, in which he informed Private Perry: "I have a position for you in His Majesty's Customs at Vancouver, if agreeable to you." Mr. Macpherson has taken a deep interest in the triumph of the young Canadian, as is shown by the efforts he has made in his behalf.

Reception at Montreal.

Montreal, Aug. 6.—A more hearty and sincere welcome than that accorded Pte. Perry by the militiamen and citizens generally, when he arrived here yesterday, can scarcely be imagined. Those unacquainted with the situation might easily have been deceived into supposing that the King's Prizeman had landed among his own people.

"There he is," some one shouted as Perry was recognized when the Allan Liner was about fifty yards from the dock and immediately a rousing cheer went up from the hundreds of soldiers and civilians assembled on the wharf.

All of the commanding officers were present, and it was indeed a brilliant scene as Col. Gordon, D.O.C., accompanied by Lieut.-Col. Ibbotson, Lieut.-Col. Starke, and Lieut.-Col. Crooke, all ex-commandants of Bisley teams, with the other commanding officers of the city regiments, boarded the ship to welcome Perry to the tune of "See the conquering hero comes" from the band of the Second Regiment of Artillery.

In interviews, the hero of the hour was extremely modest in his remarks and manifested a disinclination to talk.

Only seven members of the Bisley team were on board the Bavarian, and all expressed their delight over Perry's victory.

As soon as Pte. Perry reached the wharf he was shouldered by four stalwart soldiers and carried through the shed to his carriage, which was rapidly driven to the Windsor. After dinner an informal reception was held, concluding yesterday's program.

John J. Burns Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

He had Chronic Inflammation of the Kidneys—Says His Brother Foresters can Tell all About it.

Dunsley, P.E.I., Aug. 5.—(Special.)—John J. Burns, a prominent member of the I.O.F., here, whose cure of Chronic Inflammation of the Loins and Kidneys caused a sensation some time ago, reports that he is still in splendid health. "Yes," says Mr. Burns, "my cure is entirely satisfactory. I have had no trouble since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills. They drove away the disease from which I suffered for eight years.

"No, I'll never forget Dodd's Kidney Pills. The doctor could not help me. I got so bad I could scarcely walk, sit or sleep. I was about to give up entirely, when an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Now I am in good health. Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life."

If any one doubts Mr. Burns' story, he simply refers them to his brother Foresters. They all know how he suffered and that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

APPLIED THE CLOSURE.

All But Six Members of the Opposition Retired As a Protest.

London, Aug. 6.—There was an extraordinary scene in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon during the discussion in committee stage of a bill designed to frustrate the device of the Welsh County Council, who are endeavoring to refuse to carry out the Education Act.

Premier Balfour moved the closure, but on division the Opposition members raising a storm of uproarious protest, refused to record their votes, and the chairman of the committee named a number of members to the Speaker. After a heated discussion amid renewed uproar and cries of "Shame," almost the entire Opposition, led by Messrs. Asquith and Herbert Gladstone and Sir Charles Dilke, left the House as a protest against the closure.

The bill was then passed in the presence of full Ministerial benches, six members of the Opposition and a few Irish members.

Total, 197,958. The actual paid attendance in each case will be three thousand less per day covering passes. Last year the attendance at the exhibition for the week was 78,-500, compared with 118,367 (paid) this year.

BRITISH MUST ENTER LHASSA.

But Troops Will Not Enter Monasteries Unless Fired Upon.

Chaksam Ferry, Thibet, via Gyantse, Thursday, Aug. 4.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The greater portion of the British expedition has successfully crossed the Brahmapootra. The villagers are inclined to be friendly, and there are no signs of an armed force to oppose the advance on Lhassa. Col. Younghusband, the British political agent, has had two interviews with the peace delegates, among whom is the Grand Chamberlain. The latter pleaded with Younghusband not to proceed, as the Dalai Lama might die of the shock to his religious feelings if the British entered the Holy City. Younghusband replied that the treaty must be signed at Lhassa, but he promised that the troops would not enter the monasteries unless fired on therefrom.

LONG BROS., Two

An Encouraging Message

I have a message of hope and good cheer, of encouragement and inspiration to every suffering woman. I have endured the torture due to female troubles and the consequent despondency and mental agony almost to the point of despair, and I have been restored from this condition to a state of vigorous health, and to the happy, exhilarating frame of mind which accompanies physical well-being. This change has been brought about wholly by the use of ORANGE LILY.

In addition, I have had the privilege and pleasure of inducing multitudes of other suffering women to give ORANGE LILY a trial, and have received thousands of enthusiastic acknowledgements of the blessings it has brought to them. The following is a sample:

Truro, N. S., April 5, 1904.

Dear Mrs. Currah,—Your very kind letter was received yesterday. In reply to your question about my health, I am thankful to say that I am very well. As I have never given you a statement of my case you may be interested in it.

For several years I have suffered untold agony. This suffering was continuous, but I would have violent attacks every few weeks, each attack lasting several days. The first Sunday in November, I felt the pain increasing and so did not go to prayers. The rest of the family did go and soon after the forcing down pains seized me and I had to remain on the floor until their return. I was in great pain all night, and was very sick for a whole week.

Then Mrs. L. came to see me and told me of your wonderful medicine. I got my husband to send for it right away, as I was too sick to write myself. (My doctor could do nothing for me.) I have used 6 boxes of ORANGE LILY, have had three months of good rest, and am now well, never better in my life. I have not had the old pains since. I often ask my husband if it is myself that is going around and doing my own work. I can scarcely believe it. It brings tears of joy to my eyes. I could shout it to all the world. I cannot speak enough in its praise.

Your friend, MRS. H. H. F.

Receiving as I do, dozens of such reports each day, I feel impelled to make known to my suffering sisters the merits of ORANGE LILY. It differs from the other so-called remedies in that it is not taken internally. It is a strictly local treatment, and is applied directly to the affected organs. Its curative elements are absorbed into the congested tissues, expelling the stagnant foreign matter which has been irritating the membranes and oppressing the nerves, and a growing feeling of physical and mental relief is noticeable almost from the start. It is a positive, scientific remedy, and even if you use no more than the Free trial Treatment you will be very materially benefitted.

FREE TRIAL OFFER.

I want every reader of this who suffers in any way from painful monthly periods, irregularities, leucorrhoea, inflammation or congestion of the womb, pains in the back, etc., to send me their addresses, and I will forward at once, without charge, 10 days' treatment. If your case is not far advanced it may entirely cure you, and in any event it will do you much good. I am so earnest in making this statement, and so positive that it is true, that I trust every sufferer who reads this notice will take advantage of my offer and get cured at home, without a doctor's bill.

MRS. F. C. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT.

Sons of England's New Trip.

The Sons of England have gallantly joined hands with the Daughters of England in a joint excursion on Civic Holiday, August 15th to Lindsay, Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon. Special arrangements have been entered into with the G.T.R. for an early train to leave Peterborough at 8.25 a.m., so as to connect in Lindsay with the fine steamer Esturion for Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon. The tickets are only a dollar for adults and 50c. for children. This is not a new alliance, so far as parties of the first and second parts are concerned, but it is a new trip for them, and it's going to be a "Rule Britannia one."

Valuable Oil Paintings.

Three original masterpieces in oil, aggregating in value $300,000, will be a feature of the Art Building at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, August 29th to Sept. 10th. Through the kindness of Sir George A. Drummond, these paintings have been loaned to the management, who have reserved a separate room for their proper hanging.

Another extremely interesting exhibit is a picture by Bertram Hynes, the celebrated armless painter, whose work has created such a sensation in the English Academy this year. The number of specimens of Canadian paintings in oil and water, of statuary, china painting, drawing and photography, will far exceed that of any previous art display held in Canada.

The late Mr. Walters has been a resident of Lindsay for about 35 years, going to that town from Kingston, when he accepted the position which he filled acceptably until his death.

The deceased had been ailing for about a year, and had been in a serious condition for about six months, suffering from kidney trouble, and death, consequently was not entirely unexpected. The late Mr. Walters was one of the most highly respected men in Lindsay, where his long residence made for him many friends, who will with his large circle of friends throughout the province, regret his death. He was a consistent member of the English church. He leaves to mourn his loss two sons and two daughters with a widow. The sons are, Dr. George Walters, of Forest, and Dr. Fred Walters, of Lindsay, and the daughters, Mrs. Pilkie and one daughter at home. One brother survives him, William, who lives in Lindsay. Another brother, Henry, a contractor on the Canadian Northern Railway, died at Winnipeg, about a year ago. About 10 days ago the deceased was taken to the Ross Hospital for treatment, and it was in that institution that his death occurred.

She leaves a husband and two children. The funeral will take place from the family residence, 15th concession of Cavan, to-morrow afternoon, at 1 o'clock and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery.

Ain't You Glad You Waited?

This is the month that price reductions at Stratton's Bookstore speak loudest, and make you feel glad you waited. The drop in hammocks is one-fifth former prices; in croquet sets, it's a tenth off, and in sporting goods it's twenty off. This is about the way it goes in hundreds of other articles. As the ranks of summer goods get thinner the prices get slighter. A. H. Stratton & Co.

IMPORTANT EVENT AT BOBCAYGEON.

Opening of the New Line of Railway to the Bustling Village.

"J. I." Writes Interestingly in Toronto Saturday Night.

"J. I." writing in Toronto "Saturday Night," on the new railway to Bobcaygeon, says:

Bobcaygeon is with us. Pontypool is running a close second. The reason that Bobcaygeon is with us is owing to the completion of the Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, and Pontypool Railway as far as that point. Heretofore "Bob" has been fain to rest content with such communication with the outside world as was afforded by steamboat as far as Lindsay in the summer months, and stage coach to the nearest point on the railroad during the winter. These facts were gathered by the representatives of this paper during the course of the opening trip, which took place on the 28th of July, and for which the management had sent a courteous invitation.

Now, opening a railroad is a function which all people in search of experience in the larger matters of the commercial world, should attend if they get a chance. I have had experience in building the confounded things, but this was my first real effort at opening one. The net result of the knowledge gained has fostered a desire to refrain from being actively engaged in the constructive portion of the enterprise, and to reserve all my energies for the opening. "Opening" is a very good term for it. Everything is open. The piles of railroad spikes become bunches of choice cigars; the sledge is transformed into an ice hammer; the fish plates are six-course dinners; the ceaseless clanking dwindles to the grateful tingling of ice in tumblers; steam and oil fumes greet the nostrils in the guise of fragrant tobacco smoke; blasting only soothes the nerves in the form of popping corks; and level and transit repose amid the cracked ice in the similitude of bottles; while wagons, scrapers and mules, in one grand transformation scene, (like a Christmas pantomime) change to parlour cars, private cars and express engines.

The opening programme had been somewhat hurriedly decided upon, so that it was impossible for the officials in charge to reach as many with invitations as they would have wished. However, what the small knot of C. P. R. officers and others, gathered at the union station lacked in numbers, they made up in quality, for a jollier party never distorted the landscape through the bottom of a tumbler. There were on the platform Mr. H. P. Timmerman, general superintendent of the C. P. R., Mr. A. H. Notman, assistant passenger agent, without whom, by the way, no trip is complete; Mr. R. Preston, master mechanic; Mr. W. J. Grant, of Hamilton, commercial agent; Mr. A. McAulay, roadmaster; Mr. A. L. Smith, chief train despatcher; Mr. W. Marshall, inspector of telegraphs; Mr. G. B. Clarke, K.C., solicitor for the C. P. R.; Mr. G. Prior Deacon, barrister, Toronto; Mr. G. B. Walker, a director of the Hull and Barnsley, Railway, England; and the representatives of the newspapers.

I have not got space to tell all the yarns that were told between Toronto and Burketon. The time-worn formula which has to be gone through always when strangers meet together, was not excepted on this occasion. Everybody was glad and proud to meet everybody else, and made little dabs at the weather, the new road, were we on time, and all that; then somebody said something amusing, whereat we all laughed. Another ventured a story, then another, and before long all hands were off on a mental jollification. It is remarkable how in many cases, where a man's daily vocation is of a staid, and judicial, or onerous nature, his capacity for unbending is highly developed. On this trip the way those men of affairs broke forth into laughter and story was immense and the party found themselves at Burketon in short order. I think I should like to make a canter out some day with a flock of bishops and supreme court judges just to see what would happen.

At Burketon, the point at which the Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and Pontypool Railway leaves the C. P. R. Montreal line, a special train was made up. Here also many prominent residents of the surrounding country joined the party for the trip.

From the very point at which this thirty-eight mile branch line leaves the main tracks, it runs through a beautiful agricultural country. On all sides are evidences of prosperous homesteads, and ripening crops stand thickly. The country is rolling and the soil rich; there is also plenty of timber.

At Lindsay another large addition to the party was met, and everybody adjourned to the Benson House for lunch. Mayors, councillors and reeves were so thickly dotted about that it would have been quite impossible to throw a brick in any direction without incommoding a couple. And after leaving Lindsay we picked up a lot more along the route to Bobcaygeon.

It was well into the afternoon when the train reached the end of the line, and the Bobcaygeonites were out in force. A large crowd surrounded the station and stretched far up and down both sides of the track. The Fenelon Falls band, playing lustily "See the Conquering Hero Comes," vied with the cheering crowd in enthusiasm. The Reeve, Mr. Byng, and his council, seized the occasion of the arrival of the first train to present Mr. Wickham, chief promotor of the railway, with a gold-headed cane. This function over, members of the party strolled up to the village, or watched the aquatic sports which were in progress, in honour of the occasion. Some were taken for a drive by the council.

Bobcaygeon is a beautiful little place. At this time it was especially so, for the citizens had decorated the streets and houses; and the fluttering of flags amid the green added largely to the effect. The steamers tooted in frantic glee, the factories followed suit; the people cheered the contestants in the aquatic sports, then cheered the railway, then cheered for themselves, and finally cheered and laughed anyhow. The novel beauty of the place and the general holiday feeling which permeated everything was simply immense. Bobcaygeon differs from one's idea of what northern lakes should be like. There is nothing of the bare, rocky, thin-soiled aspect it. The trees are different; there is none of the everlasting spruce and pine feeling. Of course there are lots of them about, but mingled thickly with these are maple, elm, beech and birch, and all sorts of shrubs; all of which require good deep soil to grow in.

We wandered till dangerously near train time up and about the village. We also called at the office of the Bobcaygeon Independent in the hope of meeting the editor, but found the place empty, although the door was open. We had thoughts of printing our cards and leaving them, but there wasn't time. Somebody suggested tying a galley of type just to let the proprietor know we'd called; but we kicked the immoral suggestion out.

Train time came and we sauntered down to the station. Gentlemen in bathing-suits were endeavouring to walk out on a greasy pole and corral a two dollar bill deftly nailed to the end. All the newspaper men needed that two dollars, heaven knows, but none of us yearned for it badly enough to go through that performance. Once more the cheering and the playing of the band, and we were off on the home journey, reaching Toronto after a remarkably quick run, about 7.30 p.m.

So much for the trip. Now for the line itself. As stated above it is thirty-eight miles long. The roadbed is A 1, and the iron heavy enough for a long time to come. Mr. Fauquier, the contractor, has done his work most thoroughly. The line runs closely to Lake and River Scugog and Sturgeon Lake; thus, not only tapping a magnificent agricultural district, but bringing within two hours of Toronto one of the finest sporting and fishing grounds in Canada. It is safe to say that those citizens of this place who love an outing with not be slow to observe the advantage and make use of this excellent road. There will be eight stations in the thirty-eight miles, and the buildings are now under construction. One train per day is running at present, two will be placed on the run very shortly, and "Ho, for Bobcaygeon!" will become a familiar cry.

In closing, it is in order to mention that seldom has such thorough courtesy and good fellowship been shown to the representatives of the press as was extended by Mr. Timmerman, Mr. Notman, Dr. Clarke, and all connected with the trip. Please hurry up and open another line, gentlemen.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

IF IT MIGHT be permitted, it should be pointed out that the town authorities are somewhat remiss in, at least, one matter. A few days ago there was a little provincial flurry of excursions of Old Boys from Toronto to their provincial homes. In almost every case the returning prodigals were welcomed with open arms, the civic fathers slew the fatted calf, and, figuratively, embraced the visitors. Per contra, the Peterborough Old Boys returned home, and not a note of civic welcome was sounded. Their personal friends of course made them welcome, or they bought a welcome at the hotels, whose business it is to entertain strangers, and who would courteously treat and feed a "heathen Chinee," or a Russian, who came as a guest. The Old Boys felt the civic cold shoulder, or, rather, lack of civic welcome they received. They learned, they said, that some of the aldermen in discussing the matter of a civic welcome to the Old Boys, said that they were "under no obligation" to specially welcome them. This is a wrong view to take. Not one of these aldermen would for a moment think of permitting a guest to find his way into his house alone, and a place to hang his hat. He would courteously meet, and greet, him, and make a special effort to have his welcome felt. While there is no special necessity to conciliate Peterborough Old Boys returning home, there is very good reason why they should not be repelled. Peterborough courts all the good advertising it can get, and who better able to do this than the "boys" who have an inborn interest in speaking a good word for Peterborough, and they should not have their ardour dampened by cold water, such as the Old Boys say was thrown upon them by the civic representatives. Politeness costs little. It would cost a mere trifle for the Mayor and two or three aldermen to meet the incoming excursionists at the train. A warm hand grasp, and a few courteous words of official welcome would make the "boys" feel that they were welcome, and that the old town welcomed them. Through the representatives of the people they would feel that the whole town welcomed them. Like the flavouring in a pudding, the little courtesies of life add to enjoyment.

MOREOVER greater attention should be paid to inducing general excursions to come to Peterborough. It is to the direct, as well as indirect, benefit of the town to have excursionists visit us. On a recent "big day" in Peterborough, one or more of the hotels were "eaten" out completely, and the proprietor had, in spite of the big supply he had laid in, to send out for cooked ham in order to give an excuse of a meal. The money spent in the hotels and eating houses, liveries, etc., has to go into general circulation and trade is increased at the expense of our visitors. Barrie firemen proposed an excursion to Peterborough and the Examiner was informed that a citizen who took an interest in promoting it, was unable to secure the practical co-operation of the Town Council. This is unfortunate. The Barrie excursion is semi-civic in character, and should, therefore, in preference to others, have a civic welcome. By all means encourage excursions. They advertise the town, and the advertisement will be additionally effective in proportion to the enjoyment the visitors receive. These excursionists pay the town the practical compliment by their presence, that the town has attractions, warranting their coming. This feeling should be encouraged and intensified. A civic welcome is a graceful act, and, as remarked above, costs little and counts much.

THE Mayor and Council may insist that the assessment in Peterborough is not too high, but they will not deny, for it cannot be denied, that there is great inequality in the assessment. This is inevitable from the employment of four assessors. Put half-a-dozen eye-witnesses of an occurrence in the witness box and each will tell the story in a different way. And four assessors will not take the same views of the value of property, though each may be perfectly sincere. Judgments differ. The only way to secure approximate equality of assessment is to employ one good level-headed man to do all the assessing, and hold him to a strict accountability. So long as one man is assessed higher than an apparently similar properties there will be dissatisfaction and friction.

IN SPITE of the letter of the Mayor the last word on assessment matters has not been spoken. It is learned that the dissatisfaction over what is claimed undue increase of assessment in the the south ward is so intense that an indignation meeting to protest against it is spoken of. It is claimed that the assessor pleaded in justification of his increases that he had the instructions of the council to that effect. That the assessor made this statement is positively asserted. If this was done the council can easily discover. The Mayor declares that the council gave the assessors no such instructions. There exists a contradictory condition which should be cleared up.

* * *

THE PRESENT controversy on the subject of assessment brings into prominence again the proposal to print and publish the assessment rolls. In this event comparison would be easy and assessments would be more carefully made or there would be considerable trouble.

ALIEN LABOR BILL

Passed With Contract Labor Provisions Withdrawn.

IT ONLY APPLIES TO U. S.

False Representations to Secure Immigration to Be Punished—The Anti-Tobacco Trust Bill and the Bill Authorizing the Purchase of the Canada Eastern Railway Also Passed.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—Yesterday morning Sir Wilfrid Laurier, replying to a question by Col. Sam Hughes, said that the request of the veterans of the Fenian Raid for a grant of land in the Northwest had received some consideration, but he was sorry to say he could not give an answer.

Mr. R. A. Pringle continued the debate upon the tobacco resolution, and protested against the measure. He argued that there was no monopoly in Canada, because the number of manufacturers had increased since the Empire Tobacco Company came on the scene. After speeches by Mr. Gus Porter and Dr. Leonard, the resolution was adopted, and the bill giving effect thereto was introduced and given its several readings and sent up to the Senate.

The Canada Eastern.

Upon the second reading of the bill authorising the purchase of the Canada Eastern Railway and to take possession of the Fredericton and St. Mary's Railway bridge, Hon. John Haggart contended that the bargain was a poor one. The road had practically been abandoned as useless, the gradients were heavy, the natural features of the country being such that in 186 miles the road had to overcome a rise and fall of 1,900 feet. He calculated that an immediate expenditure of $800,000 to purchase and $600,000 to put in good condition would be required, and an annual loss of $100,000 would be incurred in its operation. This expenditure was being incurred for a railway that had gross earnings of $116,000, and last year net earnings of $2,500.

In the afternoon the bill was reported and read a third time.

The Alien Labor Bill.

The main features of the alien labor bill, introduced by Sir William Mulock, were adopted by the House yesterday. They include a provision against false representations to secure immigration, a requirement for British contractors, capital and labor on subsidized railways, and a general clause excluding undesirable immigration. A clause containing new provisions against the importation of alien labor under contract met with opposition from both sides of the House and was withdrawn, as also the clause which made this feature of the law apply to all countries. The law will, therefore, apply only to countries having similar legislation against Canada, namely, the United States. The attitude of the Opposition throughout the discussion was keenly critical in the nature of a request for delay. The bill was reported and stands for third reading.

ATTACK PATENT MEDICINES.

Senator Sullivan's Boldly Charges in the Senate That They Dupe Men and Make Women Drunkards.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—That men are being duped and women made drunkards by the indiscriminate sale of proprietary medicines was the bold charge made in the Senate yesterday by Michael Sullivan, M.D., of Kingston. Many of these medicines, he declared, contained 40 per cent. and more of alcohol; while good Holland contained 25 per cent. and lager beer only from 2 to 5 per cent. These pernicious compounds were sold freely as vegetable compounds.

"It is a fearful thing," said Senator Sullivan, "to think of a Government granting the power to poison their own people."

He admitted that testimonials could be readily furnished, but he said he could go out into the street and for 25 cents get a poor fellow to give him a testimonial about any disease he liked to inflict on him and have a fresh disease every day.

Celery compound he said was made up largely of alcohol. These things were dangerous to the home. Peruna had no special signification. It was almost all whiskey. An excellent thing to go fishing with. If the advertisements were cut away the sale of these things would cease. He commended Sir William Mulock for his intention to keep advertisements of these things out of the mails. Many a woman had been made a drunkard and the home ruined by these things.

When he was a student he was warned against giving tinctures, which were merely alcoholic solutions of substances water would not dissolve. Brown's chloral contained morphia and would corrupt anybody.

Senator Sullivan made this terrific indictment on a motion for a statement showing the names of all liquid mixtures known as patent or proprietary medicines purporting to remove the most varied forms of disease occurring in the human body, showing the amount of money, if any, the importer, maker, mixer or vendor paid to the Government as special tax or license, showing likewise if the Government has any knowledge of the ingredients which are employed to make these compounds, and what proportion of water and alcohol is contained in them.

Hon. W. R. Scott said the Senate was grateful for Senator Sullivan's speech.

Senator Wilson expressed the hope that the Government would take the matter up.

The motion passed.

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Kirman, a member of the bridge gang working near Littlepart was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

A WOMAN'S SYMPATHY.

Are you discouraged? Is your doctor's bill a heavy financial load? Is your pain a heavy physical burden? I know what these mean to delicate women—I have been discouraged, too, but learned how to cure myself. I want to relieve your burdens. Why not end the pain and stop the doctor's bill? I can do this for you and will if you will assist me.

All you need to do is to write for a free box of the remedy which has been placed in my hands to be given away. Perhaps this one box will cure you—it has done so for others. KING'S SOCIAL CIRCLE

DELIGHTS IN FRIENDLY INTERCOURSE AND IS FRIENDLY TO CHUMS.

His Majesty Never Allows Political Affairs to Intervene—Loves Genuine Workers and the Individual Qualities a Man May Possess Weigh Heavily With the King in Choosing His Intimates—Influence on Himself.

It is often remarked that the King has outlived almost all the intimate friends of his youth and early middle age.

It is true that the joyous coterie identified with Marlborough House a quarter of a century ago, Lord Carrington, Lord Charles Beresford and Mr. Henry Chaplin are the only names which occur in public journals.

Lord Blandford (afterwards Duke of Marlborough), Lord Aylesford ("Joe"), Lord Dupplin ("Duppy"). Lord Clonmell ("Earlie"), the Comte de Saint Priest, Count Jaraceweski ("Sherry Whiskey"), Colonel Oliver Montagu, Mr. Harry Tyrrwhitt Wilson, Mr. Augustus Saville, Mr. Christopher Sykes, Mr. Andrew Cockerell and others have all paid the great debt of nature.

Yet none of the men whose names are quoted reached the Psalmist's limit of life. Many of them were the juniors of their august companion.

Not one of this entourage was endowed with the wonderful constitution which has enabled the King to resist not only the demands which his exalted rank and station have continuously made upon him, but also the dangers of two serious illnesses.

To His Majesty's credit must also be placed his great activity of brain and body, an abstemiousness in the way of "strong waters" which can almost be classed as "semiteetotalism," and an ability to undergo great fatigue without any depression of spirits.

These pre-eminently healthy habits are in a great degree the reason why the King can be adduced to-day as an admirable example of the "survival of the fittest."

But while the then heir-apparent took keen pleasure in the vivacious society which naturally formed around him, he did not neglect the culture of statesmen and men of learning. Such were, of course, mostly his seniors in age, and many of them are now but landmarks of a past era, though Lord Spencer, Lord Cadogan, Lord Redesdale and Lord Rosebery are still in the full vigor of years.

The entire absence of any sort of political bias was not the least admirable quality shown by Albert Edward Prince of Wales, during his forty years of public life before his accession to the throne. He was a frequent visitor at Hatfield and Hawarden, and while Queen Victoria showed, not unreasonably perhaps, marked signs of favor towards the Tory Minister, the versatility of character which marked the "Grand Old Man" appealed very strongly to the sympathies of the heir-apparent.

His relations with Lord Granville and Lord Spencer were as cordial and constant as those with Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Iddesleigh, while his unswerving regard for the Duke of Devonshire has been wholly unaffected by party vicissitudes.

But although the Prince never allowed himself to criticize publicly the action of the Government of the day, he would never suffer his personal friendships to be overshadowed by any political eclipse.

When that great South African Pro-Consul, Sir Bartle Frere, was recalled by the Radical party in 1880 the first greeting which he received on landing in England was a gracious summons to Abergeldie Castle, the Highland home of the Prince and Princess of Wales.

During the years of physical suffering and political neglect which ensued for Sir Bartle the attentions of his royal master never varied, and when the tardy honors of a public funeral at St. Paul's Cathedral were accorded him, the Prince insisted that all the noblemen and gentlemen who had been associated with his tour in India should pay the last tribute of respect.

Yet all this time relations between Marlborough House and Downing street were of the most cordial character, and no member of the Government then or at any other time could complain of any indifference or hostility from this exalted quarter.

This spirit of loyalty and staunchness which King Edward has always shown to others is not perhaps the least of the claims which he is entitled to-day to exercise on the loyalty of his subjects.

There are even those who from misfortune or other and graver causes are no longer in personal contact with the Sovereign to whom kindly messages are sent testifying that former ties if necessarily loosened are by no means broken.

The many visits which the King has paid to almost every country in Europe and the cordial welcome he has always extended to distinguished foreigners have necessitated acquaintances of various racial characteristics, and our Sovereign's consummate knowledge of European politics is due in a great measure to the international friendships he has formed and kept up by interchange of hospitalities or regular correspondence.

Nor has the King confined himself to any special social stratum or profession in the foreign conversations he has enjoyed.

In France, for instance, the Duc d'Aumale, M. Gambetta, General Galliffet, the Duc de Mouchy, the Marquis de Breteuil and M. Delcasse represent such varying political and social types that it is possible to suggest King Edward stands alone in being able to claim each of them as personal friends.

The same desire to learn and to use to the highest advantage the best individual qualities a man may possess has influenced the King in the intimate friendships he has sought and found among the genuine workers in every profession.

Sir Harry Keppel, Sir George Higginson, Sir William Gull, Sir Charles Hall, Sir George Lewis, Sir Henry Irving, Sir Arthur Sullivan, Sir Charles Haile, Sir John Millais, never had a truer friend or a warmer advocate for their advancement than the exalted personage who interested himself in every detail of their work, and who never turned a deaf ear to any suggestion they might make for the advancement of their art or profession.

Of the divines of the church who have exercised any considerable influence on the present "Defender of the Faith" it is probable that Dean Stanley would stand foremost; but here again it is safe to assert that no sincerely religious movement or unaffectedly pious person has ever failed to find the heartiest encouragement and incentive at the hands of a ruler whose deep and sincere reverence for sacred things is a marked feature, and one that cannot be too widely known.

It is impossible to place the Sovereign in the large category of those persons who can be judged by the friends who surround them, but it is certainly true that the wise deeds which have marked the present reign and the intense popularity of the monarch are due in great measure to his having gained his knowledge and experience of men at first hand.

Going for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Don't put yourself in this man's place, but keep a bottle of this remedy in your home. There is nothing so good for Colic, Cholera Morbus, Dysentery and Diarrhoea. It is equally valuable for Summer Complaint and Cholera Infantum and has saved the lives of more children than any other medicine in use.

When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

You, or some one of your family, are sure to need this remedy sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly; you will need it quickly. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? Price, 35 cents.

7 Sutherland Sisters Hair Grower

GREW THIS HAIR

Testimonial No. 422.

MISS NORA GASTAGER
2108 Centre Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

When the scalp throws off either dandruff or a gummy substance, it is an evidence of scalp disease, and no time should be lost in correcting it. You certainly would not hesitate to take treatment were you to look at this matter through a magnifying glass. When highly magnified it resembles a working mass of insects. These creatures absorb the nutriment or life-sap of the scalp causing the scalp to become dry and feverish, resulting in the loss of hair and finally baldness. Seven Sutherland Sisters' Hair Grower and Scalp Cleaner works wonders in all such cases. It thoroughly eradicates all trace of scalp bacteria and makes the hair grow unusually long, strong and beautiful. One 50 cent bottle is enough to show you that it will do all this and even more. NOW at all druggists, two sizes, 50c. and $1.00 per bottle.

Whistler at the Barber's.

In the midst of enthusiasm and nonsense, Whistler moved the prince of folly: dapper, fantastic, irresponsible, a farceur of genius, Ariel and Puck made flesh, Mr. Menpes gives us a ruthless picture of this exterior Whistler. We go with him to the tailor and see him prancing for a quarter of an hour before the mirror—hand on hip, his cane balanced between his fingers and his hat cocked well over one eye—a perfect figure out of Moliere. Or to the barber's:

Even in so small a detail as the dressing of his hair, Whistler was most particular. Many people thought him vain; but that idea is quite false. He treated his hair, as he would not but treat everything about him, purely from the artistic standpoint, as a picture, a bit of decoration. Many a time have I been with him to the hair-dresser in Regent street. . . . Customers ceased to be interested in their own hair; operators stopped their manipulating everyone turned to watch Whistler having his hair dressed. . . . . The hair was trimmed, but left rather long. Whistler directing the cutting of every lock as he watched the barber in the glass. . . . The clipping completed, Whistler waved the operators imperiously on one side, and we noticed for a while the back view of this dapper little figure surveying himself in the glass, stepping now backward, now forward. Suddenly, to the intense surprise of the bystanders, he put his head into a basin of water, and then, half drying his hair, shook it into matted wet curls. With the comb he carefully picked out the while lock, a tuft of hair just above his forehead, wrapped it in a towel and walked about the room for from five to ten minutes pinching it dry, with the rest of his hair hanging over his face. . . . . Still pinching the towel, Whistler would then beat the rest of his hair into ringlets (to comb them would not have given them the right quality) until they fell in decorative waves all over his head. A loud scream would then rend the air! Whistler wanted a comb! This procured, he would comb the white lock into a feathery plume, and with a few broad movement of his hand form the whole into a picture. Then he would look beamingly at himself in the glass, and say but two words, "Menpes, amazing!" and sail triumphantly out of the shop.

To Prove Earth Round.

Although it was demonstrated more than 2,000 years ago that the earth is globular in form, there are certain persons who maintain that it is flat. About thirty years ago a controversy on the subject waxed so hot that it was determined to put the matter to direct experiment in order to settle the question once for all.

The place chosen was near Bedford, England, where there is a straight six-mile stretch of water. At both ends and in the middle of this water posts were erected, each of the same definite height above the water level. Upon looking with a telescope along the tops of these three posts it was clearly seen that the centre one overtopped the others by about six feet, owing to the curvature of the surface of the earth.

These experiments were recently repeated in a more scientific manner by H. Yule Oldham, who read a paper on the subject before the Glasgow meeting of the British Association. The same results were obtained, with the important difference that by the employment of a tele-photographic lens and camera the six-foot prominence of the middle post was recorded in an unmistakable manner.

Longest English Word.

A teacher in an uptown school told her class one afternoon that she expected each of them to bring in the longest word in the English language on the following morning:

The next day thirty-eight out of forty pupils turned in words which ran from fourteen to twenty-one letters in length. Fifteen submitted the word "disapproportionableness," containing twenty-one letters.

Some gave in the names of Russian officers. After the teacher had congratulated the fifteen who gave in the word "disapproportionableness," she told them that there was still a longer one which was supposed to have been coined by Wm. Gladstone, and contained twenty-four letters. It was "disestablishmentarianism."

Doctor—Now, my little boy, describe your symptoms.

Tommy—I ain't got no symptoms. I've got a headache in my stomach.

The Outlook for Canada.

Canada to-day is the only country in the world which offers an unlimited area of free land, capable of great production, in a temperate climate, in a white man's country, and where desirable political institutions exist. Because this is so the prediction may be safely ventured that the Dominion will, within ten years, be receiving half a million immigrants annually. There is no other avenue offering anything like equal attractions open to the overflow from Northern Europe which must seek an outlet somewhere.—Weekly Sun.

Physical Culture.

Every woman can be greatly benefited by physical culture. This does not mean that you are to become so graceful that you make everybody have the fidgety wiggles, but it does mean that you will grow muscles and cover up your bones with good, solid, healthy tissue. It would pay you to go to a good instructor in the work. In a few lessons you could get a lot of splendid ideas.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Knitting.

Knitting, as a helpful exercise for hands that are stiffened by rheumatism, is the prescription of one physician, who thinks it limbers up the hands of sufferers wonderfully. Not only does this old time art give the hands a healthy little gymnastic, but it furnishes a sedative form of activity to nerves that are shaky from insomnia or debility.

Generous.

Baron (to his valet)—Johann, I have received quite a large number of offers in reply to a matrimonial advertisement. I have selected one out of the lot, and here are the rest if you like to make any use of them.—From the German.

Jane—When I reach my twenty-seventh birthday I'm going to settle down.

Mary—I'm afraid you'll find it out of reach, my dear. It passed so long ago.

Children

Have "eyes bigger than their stomachs," according to an old saying. They overeat themselves, and are tempted by all sorts of injurious and indigestible edibles. As a consequence the foundation of serious stomach trouble is often laid in childhood.

For children with "weak" digestion or whose stomachs are diseased, Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery may be confidently recommended. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, so that the nourishment contained in food is perfectly assimilated and the puny child is built up by food into a condition of robust health.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

Mrs. Ella Gardner, of Waterview, Middlesex Co., Va., writes: "My little daughter is enjoying splendid health. I am glad I found a doctor who could cure my child. Whenever she feels badly I give her Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she is soon all right. She took twelve bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' eight bottles of 'Pellets,' and one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and she is well. We thank God for your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

EXAMINER TEAM WON FROM THE BANKERS.

Another Victory for the Press Team Last Evening.

Score was 13-7—Interesting Contest at Murray Street Grounds.

Great is the Examiner Baseball Team! Yea, great is the word fully applicable to them. They still stand unconquered! They have yet to taste the bitterness of defeat, yet to explain "how it happened," yet to gather together in mournful numbers and apply the soothing balm of comfort and consolation to each others' hearts, yet to make solemn vows and weighty resolutions to do better in the future, yet to whisper gently, "We'll have our revenge—just wait!" yet to realize the sensations of the Review and the Ontario Bank——beg pardon, did you say the Ontario Bank?

Yes, listen. Last night the Examiner baseball team defeated a team from the Ontario Bank, a team which all the other banks in town combined in town, would not dare to tackle, a team of good players, a team of young men in the prime of the baseball age, a team which the Review would shudder to meet — as aforesaid, the Examiner defeated this team on the Murray street grounds before a crowd which kept increasing as the game progressed, until the field was fairly lined with spectators, a crowd which cheered with a refreshing lustiness when star plays were pulled off, a crowd which could appreciate good ball when they saw it, a crowd whose general opinion was that the winners were just about "it." As aforesaid, the Examiner beat this great team before this enormous crowd by the score — now, ladies and gentlemen, here comes the important part of the story. For what's a game without a score, or a circus without peanuts? The score last evening was like this: Examiner, 13; Bankers, 7—with an innings to spare for the former! But goodness only knows, and he refuses to tell, what the score, that all important feature, might have been, had the Examiner swatters of the spheroid gone to bat for the last innings. Who knows?

The Bankers went first to bat and were shut out, a fast double play by Richea and Paxman being the feature of the innings. The Examiner got two in their half by good hitting. The money handlers were retired in one, two three order in the second, but this was the innings that the Exam. hitters got in their work. With two out and two on bases, Hutchinson started the ball rolling with a hit and everybody swatted the sphere afterwards, ten runs crossing the pan. In the third the Bankers got two while the Examiner, content with their high score, added but one in their half. The press champions eased up a bit in the last innings to make things more interesting and the Bankers got a quintette of runs, bringing the score up to 13 to 7.

As several of the Examiner star players were absent on their holidays, two of the Review team figured on the winner's line-up and rendered material assistance during the game. Moore made a sensational one handed pick-up in centre field which was pretty to look at.

The Bankers were strengthened by the addition of George Lynch, who performed at the initial cushion in the absence of one of their regulars.

The teams were:—

Ontario Bank.	Examiner.
Sawers, c.	Paxman, 1b.
Malhern, ss.	Hutchinson, c.
Ferguson, cf. & 2b	Moore, lf.
Yokome, 2b. & cf.	Jolliffe, p.

Score by innings:

"Reddy" Lamonte gave perfect satisfaction as umpire.

The teams wish to thank Rev. Dr. O'Brien and the T. A. S. for their courtesy in allowing them to play on the Murray street grounds.

PORT HOPE DEFAULTS T. A. S. WINS DISTRICT

Total Abstainers Will Have look in T. V. L. Final.

Port Hope has defaulted to the T. A. S., and the Total Abstainers win their district without a defeat. They will meet Havelock in the finals, which will be arranged shortly.

The record of the T.A.S. this season, is one of which any team might well be proud. The team has defeated Port Hope in Port Hope; Hastings twice, once in Hastings, and once here, and Millbrook in both games. The team played tie games in Hastings, and with Port Hope here. They have yet to meet a defeat. The team is strong in all departments of the game, and has been playing throughout the season the style of lacrosse which is most effective in winning games. The defence is strong while the home is fast and takes all the chances going for scores. The club has lots of material from which to choose their dozen and the men have to hustle to catch places on the line up. The red and black should have no very great trouble in winning out with the team. They play well together, and if the boys play the game they are capable of in the finals, the R. R. Hall Trophy will find its first resting place in the T. A. S. rooms, along with the numerous other trophies which have been won by the athletic young men of this flourishing society.

FOOTBALL.

An excellent picture of the Old Country Wanderer Football Club is on exhibition in McDonald's drug store window. It is the work of Mr. R. M. Roy, and is up to the usual high standard of his work. The officers of the Club and the players taken individually make a splendid group. The officers are Messrs. E. E. G. Patterson, president; A. Gray, 1st vice-president; R. A. W. Hay, secretary; R. H. Jackson, treasurer; J. Trinker, trainer. The following are the players:—Goal, N. Butler; backs, A. H. Whitlow, Captain; S. Smaile; half backs, H. Strange, R. Evans, T. Hawkins; forwards, J. Hawkins, J. Syer, G. Wright, G. Greatrix, S. Dixon, F. Head.

LACROSSE.

The first of the series of home and home games between the T.A.S. and Havelock in the final games for the League Championship will be played here on Saturday, August 13th. Port Hope's default to the T.A.S. puts the latter in the lead in this district.

THE TRIGGER.

A few of Peterborough's crack rifle shots who won the Dominion Rifle League's highest trophy, were out for a practice at the butts on Thursday afternoon, when some record shooting was done. Messrs. G. Fitzgerald, D. Cameron and J. B. Pentland arranged a match for a prize, and the contest was most interesting. The latter two each made 97 out of a possible 105; Fitzgald, who shot last, had to make a possible 35 at 600 yards to win, which he did, his total score being 98. The shooting was at 200, 500 and 600 yards.

LAWN TENNIS.

The Barrie Tennis Club will play the Peterborough Tennis Club on the Peterborough Club's Courts on Monday afternoon, play commencing at two o'clock.

The Club members are requested to be present in force as the Barrie Club will bring with them, Bovee and Stewart, two of the best, if not the best, tennis players in Canada, both of these players having won the Ontario Championship on several occasions.

GOLF.

The following members of the Lambton Golf Club and Country Club are playing here to-day: Geo. S. Lyon, F. C. Hood, R. S. Strath, Alf. Wright, C. C. James, W. K. Ross, D. W. Jamieson, J. G. Smith, W. C. Young, J. A. M. Macdonald, Charles Meek, and W. H. Cooper.

BASEBALL.

THE NERVE OF SOME PEOPLE.

The following appeared in the Toronto World on Thursday:—

Sporting Editor World, -- I notice Oshawa B.B.C. wishes to play any amateur team in Canada for $100. Why do they prefer Lindsay or Cobourg, which teams they have lost both of their League games to at home, Lindsay winning by 5 to 1, Cobourg winning by 13 to 4. They were beaten at Lindsay and at Cobourg. They won at Peterborough 2—1, and at Bowmanville 8—7, and beat Port Hope at Oshawa, and won two games from Courtice, which team does not play the class of ball played in the Midland League. Oshawa is not the weakest team in the League, but they are far from the strongest. Cobourg, Lindsay, and Bowmanville are far superior teams. They seem to be trying to throw some hot air into the sporting world. If they mean business and wish to play for the $100, kindly correspond with W. J. Martyn.

A BIG FAMILY.

New names have to be designed every year to accommodate the Disease Family, but they all revolve around one cause—The Stomach.

The receptacle of all you eat or drink cannot help but get crippled—very few escape. How can they? Just think of what lands in the stomach during a few hours—All sorts of things—sour, sweet, acid, starchy, light, heavy, vegetable and animal; all this raw material is tumbled into the stomach without much thought as to the order of its going, every particle of which has to be worked over, digested, and converted into food for nerves, blood, brain, kidneys, liver and bowels—for every tissue, cell and fibre of the body. Sometimes the stomach is overloaded, shocked and deranged and cannot do its work properly, and right here begins the starting point of disease, as no organ now receives proper nutriment, and usually the weakest cry out their warnings. That's why a well stomach means a well body, and that's why ANTI-PILL has such a marked effect. It soothes the irritated linings of the stomach, and so acts on the mucous membrane that the necessary supply of gastric juice to secure digestion is assured—ANTI-PILL, the Great System Treatment makes a well stomach.

REGRETTED THE WAR

Ex-Transvaal President Greater at Death Than in Life.

Cape Town, Aug. 4.—A letter from Dr. Muller, who was at the deathbed of ex-President Kruger of the Transvaal, says that shortly before his death Mr. Kruger said: "I no longer hate the English. It is a pity there was a war, but I believe that everything will come out right in the end."

Killed at East Toronto.

East Toronto, Aug. 6.—A fatal accident occurred in the east end G.T.R. yards yesterday morning at 9.45 by which an elderly man, William Williamson, an employe of the railway, lost his life. Williamson was crossing from one portion of the yard to another when he was run over by engine No. 650 and cut to pieces.

Tempting Fate.

Kingston, Aug. 4.—Canon Starr of Kingston and Rev. C. A. Seager of Toronto had a lively experience while running the Long Sault Rapids on a raft, near Cornwall Island. The dam or crib on which they were sailing was completely wrecked, and for a time their lives were endangered, as they were in the midst of bobbing and bouncing pieces of timber.

Waldeck-Rousseau Very Ill.

Paris, Aug. 4.—The condition of ex-Premier Waldeck-Rousseau causes serious anxiety.

AN EDITOR'S EXPERIENCE

In the Treatment of Humours with More Than Magical Effect with CUTICURA REMEDIES.

A Remarkable Testimonial from a Most Intelligent and Trustworthy Lady.

"A tumor came on my neck and in a day or two it was as large as half an orange. I was very much alarmed for fear it was malignant. My friends tried to persuade me to consult my physician; but dreading that he would insist on using the knife, I would not consent to go. Instead, I got Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Ointment. I took the former according to directions, and spread a thick layer of the Ointment on the swelling. On renewing it I would bathe my neck in very warm water and Cuticura Soap. In a few days the Cuticura Ointment had drawn the swelling to a head, when it broke. Every morning it was opened with a large sterilized needle, squeezed and bathed, and fresh Ointment put on. Pus and blood, and a yellow, cheesy, tumorous matter came out. In about three or four weeks' time this treatment completely eliminated the tumor. The soreness that had extended down into my chest was all gone, and my neck now seems to be perfectly well.

"About five or six years ago my sister had a similar experience, used the Cuticura Remedies with magical effect. I am willing you should use my testimonial, with the further privilege of revealing my name and address to such persons as may wish to substantiate the above statements by personal letter to me." Chicago, Nov. 12, 1903.

Cuticura Resolvent, Liquid and in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Australia, R. Towns & Co., Sydney; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Sole Proprietors.

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Inc'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

Aug. 5th—(Friday evening)—It was again the low priced and generally inactive stocks that showed the greatest activity to-day, although there was fair strength throughout the list. P. O. will go to 108. Would not be surprised to see Sugar go to about 135 on this movement. There was fair strength in St. Paul, which sold up above 148 and in Atch., which advanced nearly a point. Amn. Cotton Oil would not be surprised if it went 10 points higher. As we said repeatedly of late, this market is in for a considerable advance, unless some unforseen disaster should occur in the near future. People who do not expect to make their profits in 24 hours, and who are willing to wait for a reasonable time, will make considerable money by buying P. M., Rubber, Com., Tex., So. Ry., on any moderate reaction. The market will be considerably higher throughout the month from to-day. Would leave Sept. wheat alone for the present. — Wall Street Bureau of Information.

Aug. 6th—A bull movement in southern stocks, and its difficult to see why it should not progress indefinitely.

Liverpool close.—Wheat, 1-8 to 1-4 lower; corn, 1-3 lower.

A Good Plan.

Mae—Are you going to the matinee this afternoon. Blanche—No, I must stay home. The hairdresser is coming. Mae—Why don't you have two sets? Then you could leave one.

If you can't tell all you know about any one, don't hint that you can tell something and make it worse.—Atchison Globe.

DISTRICT NEWS.

TWEED.

As the result of an important meeting of the United States and Canadian capitalists, held in Toronto recently, the exceedingly valuable corundum fields in Renfrew county will be worked next summer and an important industry added to that section of the country. The meeting was that of the directors of the Corundum Refinery, Limited, a corporation recently chartered under the Ontario Act.

Plans were submitted by a well-known architect for a modern mill of 100 tons daily capacity, and work will be commenced at Palmer Rapids this fall. It is expected that the product will be turned out in the spring, and so great is the demand for corundum that the entire output of this mill has been sold a year in advance. The mineral is used in large quantities for abrasives, and deposits in the United States have become exhausted. The company has purchased outright from private parties or acquired from the Government 1,360 acres of rich corundum lands in Renfrew, and on this tract will employ a large number of men.

Several tenders for the underwriting of the bonds of the company were received, and the tender of a syndicate headed by J. H. Jewell & Co., was accepted. The amount of the bonds is $250,000. Engineers are now at work on the property.

LINDSAY

This morning, as Mr. Hart, of East Ops, was delivering a steer to a west end butcher, the animal went crazy and ran amuck. At the town wharf it tossed a young lad down the grassy bank without injury, and on Peel street R. Hungerford, jr., had a narrow escape. The animal turned into the yard at Horn Bros. woollen mill, where it was lassoed by one of the employees, hitched to a carter's rig and yanked back to the purchaser.—Post.

BOBCAYGEON

Mr. W. C. Moore is more than doubling the capacity of his shop, and it will fairly class as a factory. The building will be 40 x 60, two stories and a flat roof. The blacksmith shop will be 40 x 30, and the carpenter shop the same, the former having a cement floor. For the present the machinery will be in the carpenter's shop, but later on it is likely that the carpenter shop will go to the upper floor, while the lower one will be occupied by the machinery. On the upper floor will be the paint shop and the store room. Mr. Moore's trade in wagons, sleighs and barrows for export has been growing beyond the capacity of the shop, and the increase of space will enable him to meet the requirements, and take contracts for the Northwest trade, which is making increasingly heavy demands, as that country fills up with settlers. Mr. Moore's enlargement is probably only the beginning of a general enlargement throughout the village.

Pitiful Helplessness.

Victims of nervous diseases are most to be pitied because their ailment usually terminates in mental or physical helplessness. Paralysis, locomotor ataxia and insanity can only be avoided by building up the nervous system at the first signs of trouble and there is no preparation so well suited for this purpose as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great nerve restorative.

2,750 YARDS FROM PORT ARTHUR.

Japs That Close to Main Russian Defences in the Port.

REPORT FROM GEN. STOESSEL

In a Despatch to the Czar He Says Japanese Were Repulsed After Three Days' Fighting at Port Arthur With a Loss 10,000—Kuropatkin Sacrifices Prestige but Saves His Men.

London, Aug. 8.—The Times' correspondent at Tokio, under date of Aug. 7, says that there are unofficial reports there that the Japanese have captured commanding positions north and northeast of Port Arthur at a distance of 2,750 yards from the main line of Russian defences.

Says Japs Lost 10,000.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, commanding the Russian military forces at Port Arthur, in an undated despatch to the Emperor, says: "I am happy to report that the troops repulsed all the Japanese attacks of July 26, 27 and 28 with enormous losses.

"The garrison's enthusiasm was extraordinary.

"The fleet assisted in the defence by bombarding the Japanese flank.

"Our losses during the three days was about 1,500 men and 40 officers killed or wounded.

"According to statements of Chinese and prisoners the Japanese lost as many as 10,000.

"Their losses were so great that the enemy has not had time to remove the dead and wounded."

Kuropatkin Sacrifices Prestige.

Tokio, Aug. 8.—Gen. Kuropatkin's success in extricating his army from the Liaoyang peninsula without disaster has elicited much praise from the Japanese. The concentrating of his army at Kaichou at one time seemed certain to involve it in disaster. It was popularly believed that a generally decisive battle would either be fought at Tatchekiao or at Haicheng.

It is considered here that Kuropatkin sacrificed his prestige by abandoning an immense territory without a battle. He was forced to abandon or destroy valuable stores and munitions of war when the transportation was almost the most serious problem to the Russians. He also impaired the morale of his army, but he preserved his men and guns.

It is evident he had hoped and planned to check the Japanese at Tatchekiao. Then after holding the enemy in check, it is believed to have been his purpose to concentrate his remaining force at Liaoyang and to strike Kuroki.

The unexpected loss of the Russians at Tatchekiao and the appearance of the Japanese Tukushan army on the flank forced the abandonment and surrender without a fight of Yinkow, Haicheng and Newchwang. It is generally believed that the crisis will come shortly at Liaoyang, and that Kurpoatkin will be forced to give battle whatever his present purpose may be.

Gen. Oku's and the Takushan armies are pressing northward, and Gen. Kuroki is closed at hand.

Russian Casualities.

Tokio, Aug. 8.—Gen. Kuroki reports that he buried the bodies of 512 Russians on the battlefield of Yushimlikzu and Yangtzuling. He reports the capture of 269 Russians, including eight officers. One hundred and fifteen of the prisoners were wounded.

Kuropatkin Reports.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—Gen. Kuropatkin, in a telegram to the Emperor dated Aug. 6, reports a reconnaissance Aug. 5 on the south front in the direction of the Japanese position. The Russians set fire to the village of Henchuantsa, 13 miles northeast of Newchwang, from which place a small force of Japanese fled precipitately leaving their transport animals. The report gives details of other skirmishes, and concludes with the statement that there is no change on the east front of the army.

No Confirmation Yet.

London, Aug. 8.—No further news from Port Arthur has reached London and there is no confirmation of the rumored fall of the fortress.

Japs Entrenched.

Che Foo, Aug. 8.—The Japanese force which captured Wolf's Hill is now entrenched in the valley about two-thirds of a mile from the fortress at Port Arthur.

Jap General Dead.

Tokio, Aug. 8.—Lieut.-Gen. Yamaguchi of the fifth division, who commanded the Japanese troops during the Boxer uprising, and was made a Viscount Saturday, died yesterday after a lingering illness.

MEMBERS DISCUSS THE TRENT CANAL.

The Merits of the Port Hope and Trenton Routes were Compared.

The Trent Valley Canal was up for discussion in the House of Commons on Saturday, and the Toronto Globe reports the discussion as follows:—

On motion to go into committee of Supply Lieut.-Col. Ward brought up the question of the construction of the Trent Valley Canal. He urged that there should be a survey of the whole route by an entirely independent engineer. The report of Mr. Macleod had not included all the expense which the Trent route would involve, having omitted 29 miles of reaches, mostly through limestone rock, and the damage which would have to be paid on drowned lands at Chrisholm's dam was not included. Besides, Trenton harbour was shallow, and had a rock bottom. In answer to the arguments against the Port Hope route, that the lake between Kingston and Port Hope was not favourable to navigation, Col. Ward read a statement by 30 captains and vessel-owners operating betwen those points, declaring that any vessel that could operate on Lake Simcoe could operate there. Col. Ward went into the water-power question in some detail, and concluded by declaring that there were no water powers of any considerable extent on the Port Hope route, that would have to be acquired by the Government, and that the cost of the Port Hope route had been exaggerated and the cost of the Trenton route had been minimized. The question could only be solved by the report of a thoroughly independent engineer.

Mr. Porter said the canal question called for prompt action by the Government of the day. The enterprise should serve the country as a whole, and not any section of the country or people. Figures were quoted to show the growth of water traffic was larger than of rail traffic in Germany, France, Belgium and other countries. Mr. Porter enlarged on the value of the Trent Canal as a connecting link between the manufacturing east and agricultural west. Unless the canal was completed which would cost four or five million dollars, the whole $4,000,000 already expended, with an interest charge of $130,000, would be entirely lost.

THE FIRST CARGO OF LOCAL FREIGHT

To Pass Through the Trent Canal Lift Lock

To-day the first cargo of freight to pass through the Trent Valley Canal Lift Lock was carried by Mr. A. McDonald's new steam tug "St. Charles." The cargo consisted of tan bark, loaded at Stony Lake, and consigned to D. Welsh & Co., tanners, Hastings. This is the beginning of a local traffic which would assume very large proportions, with the completion of the canal throughout.

We will sell all our summer clothing, summer furnishings, hats, caps, etc., during the next two weeks. We want to wind up the season in that time, as our new fall stock has commenced to arrive. FLIGHT OF THE DALAI LAMA

Will Preserve Strict Seclusion in a Monastery For Three Years—Col. Younghusband Receives a Ceremonial Visit From the Ambas—Explorers' Descriptions of City's Appearance Found to Be Accurate.

Simla, British India, Aug. 8.—The British expedition into Thibet reached Lhassa at noon Aug. 3, with no further fighting than was reported in the last despatches.

Dalai Lama Has Fled.

Lhassa, Thibet, Aug. 3.—(Delayed in Transmission.)—The British expedition is encamped a mile from the Sacred Mountain of Potala, on which is situated the Dalai Lama's Palace, and in the immediate vicinity of the Dalai Lama's private gardens.

The Dalai Lama fled to a monastery eighteen miles distant. It is reported that he has shut himself up in strict seclusion, refusing to see even the highest state officers, and declaring that he will remain secluded for three years.

Col. Younghusband has received a ceremonial visit from the Amban, who promised to assist in arriving at a settlement, and presented gifts of food to the British troops.

The appearance of the city shows the descriptions of explorers to be extremely accurate. The surroundings are very fertile, and whole place gives evidence of great prosperity.

A brilliantly costumed group watched the approach of the expedition from the roof of one of the structures on Potala Mountain.

TOULON IN FLAMES.

Began in Extensive Stores of Arsenal and Now Threatens Complete Blocks of Buildings.

Toulon, Aug. 8.—Fire broke out in the arsenal here at midnight, originating in the extensive stores. The fire spread rapidly, and now threatens to embrace entire blocks of buildings. The troops were at once mustered in the street.

The prefect of the maritime port is organizing assistance, and admirals and generals are helping in the works at the pumps. A division of the reserve squadron has been called upon to aid.

Guns are being fired as signals for help, which is coming in from the whole countryside.

The flames are spreading with great rapidity.

Strassburg Also Burning.

Strassburg, Alsace-Lorraine, Aug. 8. A great fire is raging in the old quarter of this city.

A large orphan asylum and the Magdalen Church have already been destroyed.

Scores Homeless By Fire.

Wallace, Idaho, Aug. 8.—Scores of people were rendered homeless, and nearly $100,000 worth of property was destroyed by fire that swept Black Bear, a small town between Wallace and Burke, Idaho. Only a dozen small cottages were left standing. The fire was stopped only after dynamite had been used to destroy several houses. The loss is practically total.

Big Fire Near Brampton.

Brampton, Aug. 8.—One of the most disastrous fires that has occurred on farm property in this neighborhood in years took place on Saturday afternoon on Robt. Dale's premises, lot 2, con. 1, Chinguacousy, half a mile south of Brampton. His year's cut of hay and 1,200 bushels of wheat were lost. Threshing was going on at the time and it is supposed sparks from the engine caused the blaze. The threshing outfit belonged to Jos. Sheard. His loss amounts to one thousand dollars, with no insurance. Dale's insurance amounted to $1,100 on buildings and $1,500 on contents.

—The annual Harvest Festival of St. Luke's church, will be held on Tuesday, September 20th, at which the Rev. Professor Clarke, D. C. L., of Trinity College, will be the special preacher.

POLITICS IN THE MILITIA.

Montreal Witness.

The discussion that has been going on over the Dundonald incident would lead people not conversant with Canadian party affairs to suppose that this is the first time that politics have had a sinister influence in militia management. As a matter of fact, there never was a time, no matter which party was in power, when politics were not the bane of the force. The cry of disloyalty raised against the old Reform party of Canada, previous to Confederation, had the effect of making the embodied militia almost exclusively Tory and when the late John Sandfield Macdonald attempted to reorganise the system by a new militia bill, he was defeated. After Confederation Sir George Cartier chose the portfolio of Militia and Defence, as the next most important to that of Justice, which Sir John Macdonald had selected for himself. Colonel Macdougall, after General Sir Patrick Macdougall, then commanding the militia, prepared a bill which he believed would meet all the requirements of the country, and submitted it to the Government. It was a purely military measure, predicated on lines similar to those indicated by Lord Dundonald in His reports. But it did not suit Sir George Cartier, who drew up a bill of his own, which he carried through Parliament. This is the Militia Act in force down ot the present session, though amended in some of its clauses at various times. In one of its prominent features, that having reference to the reserve militia, this act had a distinct political party purpose. This was clearly shown when the officers of the reserve, which included the whole male population between the ages of 16 and 60 years, came to be gazetted. Each county in all the provinces was created a regimental district, also the cities and towns into one or more, according to population.

Each township, parish and city ward was made a company district. This gave the Minister of Militia the power to appoint all the officers of this reserve army. It was only an army on paper of course, but it conferred rank and titles, along with certain emoluments in case enrollment should be ordered. How did Sir George Cartier proceed in the selection of these officers? Just the same as any other matter of government patronage. Every member of Parliament supporting the ministry nominated the regimental and company officers, and they were gazetted. For months the "Canada Gazette" contained pages of these names, almost every one of which designated a supporter of the Conservative party. There never were so many colonels in parliament before or since, for many members appointed themselves colonels of the Reserve Militia. The selection of officers in counties and in city ridings, represented by Liberals, was of course left to the defeated government candidate, the same as in other matters of patronage. All this cost a lot of money, so much in fact, that, after the first gazetting, no more was ever heard of the Reserve Militia. It sank into innocuous desuetude. Vacancies, when they occurred, were never filled up. But the plan served its purpose, a party purpose, for nothing ever came of it, except that it strengthened the party in power for a time, since the heelers, if they got nothing else, had military titles, and were able to hold the rank and wear the uniform of officers. It may be added without, however, completing the story of politics in the militia, that every officer who commanded the force since Confederation to the present time, with the exception of Sir Edwin Selby Smyth, got into hot water by resisting the intereference of politicians in the performance of his duties and all of them left the country in disgust on that account. This is not a pleasing chapter in Canadian military history to recall, but its appositeness needs no emphasing when read in relation to the case of Lord Dundonald. It is easy to say that politics should be kept out of the militia, but till the whole headquarters system is radically reconstructed, or the country learns a severe lesson, there is little hope of improvement.

CANADA'S GREATNESS.

How little the average Canadian really knows of the greatness of his own country is shown by the Dominion experimental farm's blue book, just issued from the Department of Agriculture. Much is said of the rolling prairies and vast wheat fields of the west, producing nearly 70,000,000 bushels of wheat in a season. But, as the Montreal Herald says, few realize that these figures represent but a fraction of the possibilities of the Canadian west, and those who idly dream that the west is rapidly filling up, little conceive the vastness of their own country. In 1903 there was under wheat cultivation in Manitoba and the North west Territories 3,280,107 acres, while the estimated cultivable proportion of Manitoba and the Territories of Assiniboia, Alberta and Saskatchewan reaches the stupendous total of 171,060,000, divided as follows: Manitoba, 27,000,000; Assiniboia, 50,000,000; Saskatchewan, 52,000,000; Alberta, 42,000,000. Some few years ago these figures might have been received with incredulity, but the country has now been so thoroughly explored that estimates may be accepted for as nearly correct as it is possible to make them. There yet remain, however, 155 million acres in Athabasca and 340 million acres in Mackenzie territories little thought of to-day. What proportion of these districts may prove capable of the profitable growing of crops, is yet a matter ot conjecture. Little or no effort has as yet been made to develop these countries, but samples of wheat grown at Dunvagan, on the Peace River in Athabasca, 414 miles north of Winnipeg, weighing sixty-four pounds to the bushel have been produced. In the vicinity of Vermillion, further down the Peace River, there is said to be a considerable area suited to wheat raising. This year it is estimated the district produced 7,500 bushels. From Fort Simpson, in Mackenzie, 818 miles north of Winnipeg, Ladoga wheat testing 62 1-2 pounds to the bushel has been produced. This is the furthest point north from which samples have been received. Instances such as these illustrate the vast undeveloped possibilities of Canada. With the extension of the Grand Trunk Pacific on through the northern wheat belt, and the extension of branch lines in the course of time, is it too much to expect that a large section now generally looked upon as an ice bound country may yet become a great wheat producing territory? Near Vermilion the Hudson's Bay Company have already constructed a flour mill of twenty barrels daily capacity and paid $1.50 per bushel for wheat this year. They hope to encourage wheat growing so as to be able to supply their northern posts with flour from this district.

Taking the better known districts of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, it is found that less than 4 per cent. of the 171 million cultivable acres has been brought under crop, and while it is not claimed that all this immense area is suited to wheat growing it is evident that the greater part of the country is well suited for the growing of wheat of high quality. These considerations lead to the interesting speculation, how long it will be before Canada takes rank as the largest wheat producing country in the world? In 1903 the United States produced 637,821,835 bushels of wheat on less than fifty million acres of land. The average for the past ten years was 13.53. Comparing the states of the Union bordering on Manitoba it is found that the ten year average for Manitoba was 14.33 bushels per acre, of North Dakota 12.87 bushels, and of South Dakota 10.67 bushels. Were one-fourth of the 171 million acres said to be suitable for cultivation in Manitoba and the three provisional territories under crop with wheat annually and the average production equal to that of Manitoba for the past ten years, the total crop would be 855 millions, an amount largely in excess of the wheat production of any other nation in the world.

The average mind, unaccustomed to figures, will have difficulty in grasping the full significance of these statistics. Canada's greatness is naturally bound up in her agricultural resources and these figures present food for serious reflection and study. The peopling of these millions of acres with settlers, who will develop their resources to the full, is the greatest problem the Government has to face to-day. The character of the settlers arriving this season and the interest aroused among British emigrants shows that the matter is being dealt with effectively and intelligently. The construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific, now happily assured, will greatly assist in this development, and, Canadians will be justified in looking forward to another period of prosperity under the benign influence of honest, progressive Liberal rule.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DEATH OF SENATOR AIKINS.

Entered Politics in 1854, Was Secretary of State in 1869, and Later Was Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba.

Toronto, Aug. 8.—The Hon. James Cox Aikins died at his residence in Wellesley street, Toronto, on Saturday at 6.30 p.m., after a lingering illness. Mr. Aikins was a son of James Aikins, who left the County of Monaghan, Ireland, in 1816, and after residing in Philadelphia for four years, came to Canada and settled in the Township of Toronto (now in the County of Peel), where Mr. Aikins was born on March 30, 1823.— Mr. Aikins received his education at the local schools and at Victoria College, Cobourg, from which University he held the degree LL.D. After leaving college he became a successful farmer. He early entered politics, and sat for the County of Peel in the Canadian Assembly from 1854 until the general election in 1861, when he was defeated by the late Hon. John Hilliard Cameron, but was afterwards a member for the "home" division of the Legislative Council from 1862 until the union, and was called to the Senate by proclamation in May, 1867, and retired to assume the gubernatorial chair of the Province of Manitoba.

Mr. Aikins entered Sir John A. Macdonald's administration as Secretary of State and Registrar General of Canada, on Dec. 9, 1869, and continued in these offices until the resignation of the Government on Nov. 5, 1873. On the return of the Conservative party to power, October, 1878, Mr. Aikins was again appointed Secretary of State. As a minister he framed and carried through Parliament the public lands act, 1872, and after the acquisition of the Northwest Territories by Canada, he organized the Dominion Land Bureau, now the Department of the Interior. Prior to 1869 Senator Aikins had been identified with the Liberal party. As Secretary of State he held office until he was appointed lieutenant-governor of Manitoba.

Mr. Aikins resigned from the Cabinet on May 28, 1882, and in December of the same year was sworn in as lieutenant-governor for the Province of Manitoba, and on the expiration of his term of service as such, returned to Toronto, and in January, 1896, was a second time called to the Senate.

Mr. Aikins had at various times during his business career, much to do with many important, financial, commercial and industrial undertakings. He was prominently identified with the prohibition movement, and held office as vice-president of the Ontario Prohibition Alliance.

He married in 1845 Miss Mary Elizabeth Somerset, who died some years ago. His family consists of three sons and four daughters.

The late Senator put in an appearance this year at the Senate for a few days, but returned to Toronto much enfeebled, only to pass slowly away.

Parliamentary Committee on Transvaal Railway Expenditure.

London, Aug. 8.—(C. A. P.)—A Parliamentary report just issued shows, with regard to the Transvaal and Orange River Colony railways, taken over and worked by the military authorities during the war and the first six months of 1902, that a million and a quarter pounds was spent upon them.

The committee on public accounts express their emphatic disapproval of the expenditure of this sum without Parliamentary sanction.

The agreements with Sir Percy Girouard and the director of railways were signed by General Buller, but were never submitted to the treasury.

Invited to Come.

London, Aug. 8.—(C.A.P.)—Rev. J. H. Ritson, one of the secretaries of the Bible Society, at the invitation of the Canadian auxiliaries, tours the Dominion during September and October.

Horses Sold at Loss.

London, Aug. 8.—(C.A.P.)—A Parliamentary report issued by the War Office in connection with South Africa shows that a forfeit of £10 per animal had to be paid on 1,685 horses bought in Hungary at £8, and in New Zeland, while in Canada, the proceeds of a sale of 1,152 remounts, bought at an average of $140 a head, amounted to no more than an average of $42.

ALIEN LABOR BILL PASSED

New York Mutual Reserve Association's Bill Passed After Criticism—Col. Ward Urges Independent Survey of Trent Valley Canal—Commission Appointed to Investigate the Georgian Bay Fisheries.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—The House of Commons rose Saturday night just as the tower clock was striking the midnight hour. For some minutes previously that strict Sabbatarian and veteran Parliamentarian, Mr. Ross of Victoria, N.S., had been fidgeting nervously about for fear that members in their anxiety to push business might encroach on the Lord's Day, and finally he uttered a warning in a stentorian voice. He had a sympathetic listener in the Finance Minister, who took care that the House adjourned before Sunday had been reached.

There was a lot of business crowded into the day's sitting. Sir William Mulock's alien labor bill passed its final stages and went to the Senate.

Mutual Reserve Association.

The bill from the Upper House for the relief of the policyholders in the New York Mutual Reserve Association was put through, although not without some criticism, which lasted for two and a half hours. The bill was introduced and explained by Mr. Hoyd. Mr. Frank Oliver and Mr. Honore Gervais led the Opposition to the bill. Mr. Oliver took the ground that the bill wiped out two-thirds of the value of the company's policies in Canada. Mr. Gervais quoted a judgment of the Privy Council given Saturday in Foster v. Mutual Reserve, in which the policies were characterized as tricky and intentionally ambigous. In the face of the decision he thought the House should not interfere. He moved an amendment to clause 5, providing that no reduction be made in the deposit with the Governament for five years, except to pay death claims.

Hon. Mr. Fielding pointed out that the deposit could not be interfered with even for death claims.

The bill was eventually reported and passed.

The Trent Valley Canal.

On the motion to go into Committee of Supply Lieut.-Col. Ward brought up the question of the construction of the Trent Valley Canal. He urged that there should be a survey of the whole route by an entirely independent engineer.

Mr. Gervais urged the necessity of appointing Canadians to the British Consular service in the interests of Canadian trade. Prorogation may not take place until Tuesday or Wednesday next, perhaps later.

Georgian Bay Commission.

The commission to investigate the Georgian Bay fisheries has been appointed. It consists of Prof. Prince of the Fisheries Department—chairman; Mr. John Birnie, K.C., Collingwood, and Mr. John Noble of Little Current.

Hon. Mr. Sifton was in his place in the House, having returned from the West. The first order of business was the adoption of the regulations made by Order-in-Council under the Dominion land's act affecting the Yukon Territory, standing in Mr. Sifton's name.

Mr. Fielding announced that the business taken up on Monday would be the resolutions affecting railway subsidies and the tariff and supply. The House adjourned at midnight.

Senate Passes Bills.

On Saturday the Senate passed the Anti-Tobacco Trust Bill, that providing for payment of bounties on crude petroleum, the bill to amend Animals' Contagious Diseases Act and the bill to amend the Militia Act was read a second time.

WM. HALEY STABS ED. DILL.

Crime Committed Because Latter's Brother Angered the Accused.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 8.—The town of Windsor was the scene of a cold-blooded murder on Saturday night, when Eddie Dill, a young man of 18 years, was stabbed to death by William Haley.

Both were residents of Martoch, a few miles distant from Windsor. Dill and a numerous party, including his younger brother, had been spending the evening in the town and on starting for home about 11 o'clock they were joined by Haley, who was also on his way home. They stopped to do a little shopping and during the short time they were together Haley was the butt of a good deal of joking on the part of Dill's younger brother, which he resented.

Dill championed his brother's cause and a row ensued, during which Haley drew a knife from his pocket, deliberately opened it and stabbed Dill over the heart, the blow penetrating that organ. The stricken youth staggered a few paces and fell, dying in two or three minutes.

Haley did not stop to see the result, but kept on, and when arrested was three miles from the scene. He is a married man with a sick wife and five small children. There are now two men in Windsor jail held for murder, and in each case the victim was a boy and the crime caused through teasing.

LORD DUNDONALD HOME.

Says Canadian People Are the Best in the World.

London, Aug. 8.—Lord Dundonald arrived here quietly. He was met by a few friends at Euston Station, and drove immediately home.

Canadian Associated Press cable says: Lord Dundonald, interviewed at Liverpool, said it was inadvisable to make any statement respecting the cause of his departure from Canada. He had decided not to say anything until he reported himself at the War Office. It was not a fact that he had expedited his return home owing to a message from the Secretary of State for War.

He added: "The Canadian people are the best in the world."

The Army and Navy Gazette says: "There are club rumors to the effect that Lord Dundonald will be provided with a home command. We are assured that the question of the employment of Lord Dundonald has not arisen in any form as yet, and that it is very doubtful whether Lord Dundonald will return to active duties at present, as, notwithstanding the great value of the services he has rendered, there are others to be provided for whose claims may be ruled to be stronger than his."

Torpedoed a President.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Aug. 8.—An attempt was made upon the life of President Battle y Ordonez Saturday as he was driving his family. As the party was passing along one of the principal streets of the city a buried torpedo was exploded at the side of the carriage. The explosion tore up the track of the railway running through the street and the pavement. No one was injured.

Baby Was Murdered.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—There is no doubt that the infant found Thursday afternoon near Coatsworth's Cut was murdered. The autopsy shows that death was not caused by drowning. Detectives are investigating.

Quite Probable.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Wingham, Aug. 6.—While superintending the placing of some heavy machinery in Walker & Clegg's new furniture factory here yesterday, Michael Robertson was so severely crushed by a large shaft falling on him that he died in fifteen minutes. He leaves a wife and three children.

Slept With Gas Low.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—Accustomed to sleeping with the gas turned low, Bella Ferguson, a domestic in the service of Mrs. Bain, 91 Wellesley street, met death by asphyxiation. A dip in the pressure extinguished the light and when the full pressure was restored the fumes caused asphyxiation. Coroner Powell was notified, but deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Bodies All Recovered.

Digby, N.S., Aug. 6.—All the bodies in Thursday's terrible drowning accident here have been recovered, and the seven corpses lie side by side in the morgue. NEWS FROM HUDSON BAY.

Neptune Hoists British Flag at Lancaster Sound—American Whaler, the Era, Admits Canadian Authority.

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 8.—The Government chartered sealing steamer, the Erik, which conveyed an auxiliary expedition to the steamer Neptune, the official steamer sent to complete the annexation of Hudson Bay and territory, returned here yesterday, bringing Major Moodie, Governor of Hudson Bay.

The Erik met the Neptune at Port Burwell, July 25, and transferred coal and supplies. The Erik started on the return journey last Tuesday, while the Neptune cruised north to Lancaster Sound, hoisting the British flag and proclaiming British sovereignty over that territory.

An American whaler, the Era, found in Hudson Bay, paid duties on all goods intended for trading, thereby admitting Canadian authority.

Major Moodie will go to Ottawa to consult with the Canadian Government and he hopes to join the steamer Arctic, which will leave Quebec in about two weeks, to relieve the Neptune. Major Moodie believes the Hudson Bay route to be perfectly feasible, as a commercial proposition. He also believes that the Canadian Government should build several forts, station a number of police therein and commission two steamers for Hudson Bay so as to adequately cover the needed service there.

50 DROWNED IN WRECK.

Passenger Train Went Through a Bridge at Pinon, Colorado.

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 8.—A Rio Grande passenger train, due here at 8.15 p.m., went through a bridge at Pinon at 7.50 o'clock last night. The engine and five coaches were wrecked and a number of passengers injured. Later it was reported that between 30 and 50 persons have been drowned in the wreck near Pinon, many of them Pueblo residents.

Two Men Electrocuted.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 8.—A fatal accident occurred at the new power station of the British Columbia Electric Railway Co. Saturday morning, resulting in the death of two men, B. L. Green and J. Bays. They were engaged in laying a cement floor and Bay's hat fell off. In reaching to regain it, he came in contact with a high potential wire, and the current of a hundred horse-power passed through him. Green came to his assistance and also touched the live wire. Bays was instantly killed, while Green lingered until 4 o'clock.

Killed By a Car.

Montreal, Aug. 8.—The city was shocked yesterday to learn that Mr. A. J. DeCorriveau, a well known railway promoter, had died at midnight as the result of an accident at Victoria Square. Mr. DeCorriveau, when crossing Victoria Square with his automobile, came into contact with a street car, throwing him to the sidewalk and crushing in his skull. He never regained consciousness, and died at midnight.

Hastings Star Editor Injured.

Hastings, Ont., Aug. 8.—A Hastings lacrosse player was badly injured at Havelock in Friday's match. While Havelock were trying to score, Easterbrook of Havelock struck T. E. Scriver, the editor of The Hastings Star, over the eye, completely bursting it. As there was no doctor in the town he was taken to Norwood, where he had medical attendance. He left Saturday morning for the hospital in Toronto, where he is undergoing an operation to have his eye removed.

Foley Used An Axe.

Hamilton, Aug 8.—Dan Foley, 66 Market street, wanted to get rid of two of his roomers, Charles and Mrs. Brown. They had a wordy row, and Foley knocked Brown down with a stick. Dropping the stick, Foley seized an axe and started to finish the job with it. As the axe was descending on Brown, Mrs. Brown clutched Foley's arm and the weapon grazed Brown's leg, cutting a great hole in his trousers. Foley was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of aggravated assault.

Back to the Cape.

London, Aug. 8.—Lord Roberts, accompanied by Lady Roberts, will return next month to the scene of his victories in South Africa. One of the objects of the journey recalls the saddest loss sustained by the gallant general and his wife, for they will re-visit the grave in Natal of their brave boy, Lieutenant Roberts, who fell fighting for his country on the Tugela.

Trouble in Tonquin.

With banners flying, they marched to lively music from a dozen bands, and wound up with a picnic at Oswald's Grove, 52nd street and Ashland avenue. The procession started at 10.30 o'clock, and it was 2.30 o'clock before the last of the line reached the picnic grounds. It was a parade of the nations, for men subjects of nearly every ruler in the world being in line. Hundreds of children, dressed in white and waving flags, marched at the head of the women workers.

Mrs. Murphy a few months ago said: "I was born in Dublin, Ireland, on Christmas Day, 1770, and came to America in May, 1870, when I was in my one hundredth year. I was 28 years old when the Irish rebellion took place in 1798, and my first husband was a soldier. I was 33 years old when Robert Emmett was executed for treason, Sept. 20, 1803." Mrs. Murphy is survived by her second husband.

ROOM DEFECTS.

They Can Be Modified by Treatment of Walls and Floors.

All defects in size and shape of rooms and halls can to a large extent be modified or overcome to such a degree by the treatment given to walls and floor that the faulty construction will no longer appear conspicuous.

For instance, a room that is too long for the width may materially be changed by running across the middle of the room a deep Japanese lattice of fretwork, and from this suspend a double portiere. This breaks up an unpleasant distance and if the lattice is open admits sufficient light for that part of the room. Moreover, the portieres can be left partly open and need never be closed entirely unless a very cosy effect is desirable. If a carpet is used on the floor it should extend to the baseboard without a border, as this apparently increases the floor space. If rugs are preferred select several to spread across the width of the floor rather than one or two long ones down the middle of the room, as the more horisontal lines are introduced the wider will seem the room.

The ceiling of a low studded room will appear farther off if the treatment of the walls has a pronounced perpendicular design, and it will appear still higher if the picture rail is omitted entirely, or, if too great a necessity to exclude, place it close up to the cove. The height of the room will appear greater, too, if by skillful treatment the size of the ceiling space be apparently reduced so as to give the effect of receding. This may be accomplished by a border, either paper, stencil or the introduction of some form of decoration that will leave a smaller space or surface plain.—Exchange.

THE UPRIGHT PIANO.

A Seat Scheme That Solves the Exposed Back Problem.

When the arrangement of an apartment makes it necessary to place the upright piano with its back to the larger part of the room, a difficult problem for artistic results presents itself.

A unique arrangement that affords a solution is a high upholstered seat at the back of the piano which looks like an old fashioned church pew. The back of the seat is the exact height and width of the piano and is upholstered, as is the seat, in green velours to match the side walls. The height of the arms carries out the proportions of the keyboard in front. It was the original intention of the owner to upholster the back of the piano itself, but to obviate the moving difficulty and the still greater one of retarding the sound she had the seat built separately. It stands about an inch from the piano, so it does not interfere with its acoustic properties. While the seat is not a particularly desirable place while the piano is being played, it is practical at other times, especially in the small apartment where space is limited.—Good Housekeeping.

Lifebuoy Soap—disinfectant—is strongly recommended by the medical profession as a safeguard against infectious diseases.

THE WATWA OF AFRICA.

A Curious Tribe, Low Down in the Scale of Humanity.

A hunter of big game in Africa gives a description of a tribe of natives whom he found there, the Watwa. "These natives," he says, "live in the swamps, their staple article of diet being fish and flour made from the seed of the water lily, although during the rains they grow patches of cassava root and sweet potatoes at the edge of the swamp. They smear their bodies with mud to protect them from mosquitoes and are extremely dirty and evil smelling in consequence. They are very low down in the scale of humanity and have a bad reputation among tribes living on the high ground, which reputation they upheld during our visit. We engaged several Watwa natives as carriers, but they only came to see what they could steal. One day I shot a reed buck in sight of the camp and left two Watwa to carry it in while I went after a hartbeest, but I never saw either men or buck again. It was no use following them into the swamps, as they knew every inch of the ground and water. They had small canoes hidden everywhere, and immediately they crossed a stream they sunk the canoe again where they alone knew where to find it. Our boys were afraid to follow them, as they used poisoned arrows and sometimes set poisoned stakes in the tracks leading to their haunts."

DAME JULIANA BERNER.

She Was a Fifteenth Century Authority on Fly Fishing.

The first printed English book on angling was Dame Juliana Berner's "Book of St. Albans," which appeared about 1450, and contained a chapter entitled "A Treatyse on Fyshynge With an Angle."

Fly fishing must have been practiced much earlier than this, as nothing but a gradual evolution could account for the complete list of flies for the fishing months of the year which it gives.

To Dame Berner belongs the honor of first telling that the salmon could be caught with the fly. She says: "Also ye may take hym, but it is seldom seen with a dubbe at such times as when he lepith in lyke fourme and manere as ye do a trought or a grayling." Her knowledge seems more complete than could have been that of the original inventor, so that the time when fly fishing originated in British waters must remain uncertain.

Dame Berner's flies will kill trout today, and her twelve were the foundation of those of which Isaak Walton said quaintly in 1653: "Thus have you a jury of flies, likely to betray and condemn all the trouts in the river."

LOGGERHEADS.

This Name Is Given to Some Turtles and Other Animals.

The giant turtles which are found along the Atlantic coast and frequently in southern waters in great numbers are known as loggerheads. They commonly attain a weight of 1,600 pounds, are rapid swimmers and are often seen far from land, floating asleep upon the waves.

Carnivorous by nature these huge tortoises feed on crabs and fish, especially on a large species of conch, which they break open with their massive jaws. The flesh of this terrapin is leathery and oily, with a strong smell of musk. Young specimens are more palatable and are often on sale in the markets.

A duck, as large as our goose, which is native of the shores of Tierra del Fuego and the Falkland isles is also called loggerhead, from its seeming stupidity and helplessness.

In the West Indies this name is also given to two or three sorts of fly catchers.

Protected the Judge.

After the jury in a Texas case had listened to the charge of the court and had gone to their room to deliberate upon the verdict, one of the twelve went right to the point by saying: "That thar Pike Muldrow orter be convicted an gen'ral principles. He's bad as they make 'em."

As the hum of approval went around a weazened little juror said, "I heerd that Pike guv it out that he'd go gunnin' fur us, if we sent him up, jes' soon's he got out, an' fur the jedge too."

"We must pertect the jedge," they agreed, and the verdict was "Not guilty."

A Peculiar Ornament.

Berlin has probably one of the most peculiar ornaments for a reading room that has ever been seen in a similar position in a civilised country. This is a gravestone which stands, large and massive, in one corner of a small room. It is not only a gravestone, but is in its legitimate position at the head of a grave. The history of its location in the house is interesting. It was not put up in the house, but the house was built around the stone. Its original position was in the burial grounds in the churchyard at St. Hedwig's.

How Could He Help It?

He—Do you think marriages are made in heaven? She—I don't know. Perhaps they are, but I'd be satisfied with one made in—or, that is, of course, I wasn't thinking what—oh, Charlie, do you really mean it?

Nothing Definite.

Her Mother—Mr. Sloman has been coming to see you for quite a long while, Maude. What are his intentions? Do you know? She—Well, I think he intends to keep on coming.

THE BUTTERFLY.

A Jolly Home Game For the Girls For Rainy Days.

Here's a home game for the girls for rainy days: Move the furniture back against the walls, leaving bare as large a space as you can in the center of the floor. Get a tin platter or a large plate of some sort and place it in the center of this bare space.

Now get a piece of tissue paper, and from it tear a strip about three inches long and an inch wide. Tie a knot in the center of this paper, spreading out the ends on both sides of the knot. If you drop this whisp of paper with the knot in its center it will not fall directly to the floor, but will signag from side to side before it comes to rest on the carpet.

We will call this wisp of paper a "butterfly." Each girl provides herself with a broad palm leaf fan. One girl stands as far as possible from the center of the room, tosses the "butterfly" in the air and tries to blow it with waves of her fan to the plate in the center of the room. Her object is to have it float down and land in the plate, but it will probably blow clear across the room, where it will fall to the floor.

When the "butterfly" has come to rest, its landing place is marked by a card bearing the name of the player who blew it there, and the second player tries, and so on till all have had a turn.

If five girls are playing, the girl who fans the "butterfly" nearest to the plate scores five points, the second four, the third three points and the fourth two, and the fifth does not score anything. If three are playing, the first scores three points, etc. If a player should land the butterfly in the plate that player scores ten points, and besides has another turn.

When all of the players have had a try at getting the butterfly in the plate their scores are written down, and then the first one takes another turn, followed by the rest, as before.

The game is fifty points, and it is surprising what a short time it takes to score that number.

The outstanding feature of Civic Holiday, August 15th, will be Rev. Father Phelan's picnic to South Beach, near Young's Point. He will be the great drawing or, rather, pulling card. He will be accompanied by former manager Mulqueen — former manager, for the champion has recently come under a new manager, having lately been married, and a Toronto newspaper says that Lou Scholes and his bride will spend part of their honeymoon at the Young's Point picnic. Scholes will also bring his shell with him and will give an exhibition of the stroke that carried him to victory against the best amateur oarsmen of the world. In addition there will be other attractions. Addresses will be given by Hon. J. R. Stratton, M. P., Mr J. Kendrey, M.P., Hugh C[illegible]k, M.P.P., Guelph, R. R. Hall, D. O'Connell and others. There will also be dancing and games, and all the other enjoyments that go to make Father Phelan's picnic a model of their kind. 3d1w

CHEMONG REGATTA VERY SUCCESSFUL.

Large Crowd Witnessed Interesting Races on Saturday Afternoon.

Many Peterborough Contestants Among the Winners—Excursions From Different Points—List of the Prize Winners.

Chemong Park was Saturday afternoon a scene of great gaiety and activity on the occasion of the first regatta held under auspices of the cottagers at this summer resort, which is fast gaining in its popularity. The regatta was pronounced a most successful affair and should have the effect of causing it to be made an annual attraction hereafter. Saturday's sport was of much interest the majority of the events being closely contested and some of the finishes were very exciting.

Excursions from several points brought many people to witness the races and over 500 spectators viewed the sport from the high bank of the park and from the various yachts which manoeuvred about the water. The "Alert" brought about 125 of the Stony Lake campers, Boyd's yacht conveyed a large party from Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon as did the steamer Ogemah. Among the other yachts at the regatta was the Rob Roy, of Peterough; the Government yacht, Empire; Kelly's yacht, of Bridgenorth, besides several gasoline launches.

Throughout the afternoon a stiff north-west wind was blowing and the lake was consequently quite choppy and rough. The breeze was favourable of course to the sailing races, though somewhat stiff for the canoe sailing, but the rough water interfered to some degree with the canoe paddling events it being difficult to steer and the time was consequently slower than would have been the case had the water been calmer. But nevertheless, the events were exciting and were witnessed with eager interest by the large crowd.

The races started shortly after two o'clock. The first event was the sailing dinghy race, six miles twice over a triangular course, one mile to a leg. This race was for the Trent Valley Navigation Company's Cup, a very handsome trophy for perpetual competition in the Kawartha Lakes. A handsome silk prize for second place was offered by the Chemong Association. The entries for this race were, "Loretta" owned by Ryerson, of Sturgeon Point; "Arrow" by J. Hopwood, of Chemong; "May D." by C. B. Nasmith, of Bobcaygeon; "Bacillus" by Geo. Nasmith, of Bobcaygeon. The boats got away in the order named, the "Loretta" being about 12 lengths to the lead of the "Arrow," the other two boats getting a poor start. On the second leg the "Arrow" gained considerably on the leader and it looked to be a close race for first place, but in attempting to jibe on the third leg of the first round, the "Arrow's" mast snapped and the boat was out of the running. The accident was an unfortunate one as the "Arrow" was giving the leader a hard run and her chances of winning appeared good. The "Loretta" kept gaining and won handily by over quarter of a mile, the time being 1.09. The "May D." finished three minutes later, followed by the "Bacillus," two minutes afterwards.

The one-half mile men's skiff race was a pretty contest. There were two entries, E. A. Green, of Orillia and J. Coones, of Bridgenorth. The latter took a slight lead at the start and held the advantage until within 50 yeards of the finish when Green by a great spurt forged ahead and won by a length.

The half-mile canoe paddling, for boys under 16 years, resulted in a dead heat between H. Routley of Peterborough, and V. Fife, of Bridgenorth. The former got first prize on a toss up.

The one-half mile men's canoe paddling brought out six entries and the race was a good one. P. Nicholls, of Bobcaygeon got a lead at the start and kept a slight advantage to the end, beating H. G. Simpson, of Lakefield, by about two lengths. E. A. Green, of Orillia, was third and F. Roy, of town, fourth.

The one half-mile canoe paddling, tandem, for ladies and gentlemen, was a well contested race. The winners were always in front, though the Sturgeon Point couple gave them a great race, finishing about two lengths in the rear. The struggle for second place was also a fine one, the second Peterborough entry being only a length behind. The finish was, 1, Norman Bell and Miss Gwen Hall, of town; 2, Gordon O'Leary and Miss Florentine O'Leary, of Sturgeon Point; 3, Fred Roy and Miss Helen Hay.

The quarter of a mile ladies' skiff race was won by Miss Gwen Hall, who finished several lengths ahead of Miss Isabella Hay, the other entry.

There were two entries in the men's tandem canoe race, the winning pair being Nicholls, of Bobcaygeon, and Simpson, of Lakefield.

The canoe sailing race, three miles triangular, was won by Milne Hamilton and Oscar Dumble. The other contesting boat was handled by Fred Roy and Arthur Weeks, but on the second leg the latter had dropped out, being unable to make the tack owing to trouble with the centre board.

The ladies' quarter of a mile tandem canoe race brought further laurels to Peterborough. Misses Helen and Gwen Hall defeated Miss Florence Neelands and Miss Florentine O'Leary, of Sturgeon Point, by about three lengths in remarkably fast time considering the unfavourable water conditions.

There were three entries in the gasoline launch race, "Hustler," Dr. Allen, Sturgeon Point; "Put Put," Gratham, Sturgeon Point, and "Spray," Young, Springbank. The course was two miles with a turn and according to the system of handicapping the "Hustler" had six minutes and the "Put Put" seven minutes of a handicap. The boats were started together, the "Spray" taking a slight lead, followed by the "Puppet" and "Hustler" a short distance behind. Something went wrong with the "Spray" which fell rapidly behind, after the turn, and the "Puppett" won by about 50 yards from the "Hustler. The handicap system was evidently not according to the relative merits of the launches.

The tilting tournament provided all kinds of fun, and was one of the most interesting events on the programme. There were four entries. In the first round, Lowney and Oliver knocked Seymour and Byers out of the contest, and incidentally upset the canoe. This required two heats, as in the first both crafts went under water at the same time. Hopkins and O'Leary put Green and Cameron out of the running, and also defeated Lowney and Byers in the final. The latter pair then met Seymour and Bryan again for second prize, and won out.

The hurry-scurry race, consisting of a paddle of 50 yards, and a swim of 50 yards was won by J. Main of Peterborough, with D. Bull, of New York, second; and Bert Cameron of town, third.

In the upset race, Bert Cameron was the first across the line, with O'Leary of Lindsay, second.

The 57th Regt. Band was in attendance during the afternoon, and rendered a choice programme.

In the evening a dance was held in the pavilion, the music being supplied by the 57th Band.

The Judges were F. Addison, Stony Lake; A. E. Bottum, W. L. Read, W. T. C. Boyd, Bobcaygeon; T. W. Greer, of Sturgeon Point; J. D. Edwards, Lindsay; C. B. McAllister, Peterborough.

The Regatta Committee was as follows: Hon. President, Commodore Macomb, U.S.N., New York; Sec.-Treasurer, A. A. Hollingshead, Peterborough.

Executive Committee — W. R. Hartshorne, Fairfield, Conn.; L. M. Hayes, W. H. Hall, Peterborough; W. J. Hopwood, Toronto.

Reception Committee — T. H. G. Denne, D. H. Burritt, R. Gliddon, Alf. Belcher, Peterborough; Geo. H. Brown, Chemong Park; Rev. J. C. Speers, Toronto; and the ladies of Chemong Park.

Sporting Committee — G. H. Bull, New York; L. Kondolf, Rochester; R. M. Hood, T. A. S. Hay, Peterborough; J. Main, R. M. Dennistoun, A. Elliott, T. F. Matthews, W. W. W. Dean, W. Pringle, Peterborough.

Transportation and Advertising — J. L. Hopwood, H. W. Hopwood, Toronto.

The prizes were presented to the successful contestants at the close of the races.

FOOTBALL MATCH.

At seven o'clock a football match was played at the park between the Bridgenorth team and an eleven composed of the Old Country Wanderers of Peterborough, and the Quakers. The game was a fairly good exhibition, the teams being evenly matched. There was a noticeable absence of combination play, especially on the part of the Peterboroughs. The game was witnessed by several hundred spectators. In the first half neither team scored, but in the second the Wanderers notched a point, winning the game by a score of 1—0.

The teams were:

Bridgenorth — Goal, Conway; backs Cullen, T. Forsythe; half backs, Scott Coones, Brumwell; forwards, N. Kelly, B. Kelly, G. Main, J. Cullen, Jopling.

Referee, P. Fitzgerald.

The regatta was in every way a most enjoyable one and the committee in charge have every reason to feel gratified with its success. The The park is without doubt becoming more popular every summer, and an annual regatta, attended by people from different parts of the district, should still more popularize the resort.

WHAT WAS NOTICED.

The camera fiend was there as big as life.

The Sturgeon Point Regatta is next week.

Peterborough contestants were entered in eight of the fourteen events. They won seven first prizes.

Chemong is becoming more popular every summer.

One of the sloops upset during the afternoon near the floating bridge. No evil effects were reported.

The "Arrow" was putting up a splendid race when the mast snapped.

Peterborough's two champion young lady paddlers, Miss Gwen and Helen Hall, added another victory to their long string. The former was first in three events.

The Chemong Regatta should be an annual attraction in future.

The Rob Roy and Kelly's yacht interfered with the finish of the dinghy race by blocking the course.

THE SAILSBURY CO.

PEOPLE WANT THE NEW G. T. PACIFIC.

Necessary for the Development of the Northwest.

Mr. R. R. Hall'S Trip—An Interview on the Conditions in the West—The Lumber Industry Prosperous—Prospects for Crops.

Mr. R. R. Hall, the senior member of the law firm of Hall, Medd and Davidson, returned Saturday from a trip to British Columbia, in connection with the business of the Big Bend Lumber Company. During Mr. Hall's trip, which lasted nearly a month, he spent some time in Winnipeg, and other large places in the West, and attended the Dominion Exhibition in the former city. During his trip Mr. Hall met a great many prominent business men of the Prairie Province, who were unanimous in their belief in the future of the Great West.

Mr. Hall very kindly granted the Examiner an interview on his trip, and in answer to a question as to the object of it, said:

"I went to British Columbia in the interests of the Big Bend Lumber Company, Limited, of which Messrs. Theodore Ludgate, and Jas. Ludgate, of Arrowhead, B.C.; Mr. Wm. Flavelle, and Mr. Geo. A. Jordon, of Lindsay; Mr. George S. McCarter, of Revelstoke, B.C.; and Mr. Adam Hall, and myself are directors.

"The company has erected a sawmill having a capacity of 25,000,000 feet of lumber, 15,000,000 lath, and 50,000,000 shingles per year. They have a large dry kiln of sufficient capacity to kiln dry the entire capacity of the mill. A dry kiln is impensable where high freight rates must of necessity prevail.

"The company have also erected and fully equipped a large planing mill of sufficient capacity to plane and dress all their lumber to suit the demands of the growing trade in the North-West Territories and Manitoba. The mill has a railway siding to its door and is situated at the mouth of the Columbia River, where it flows into the Arrow Lakes.

"The company owns several million feet of standing timber on the shores of the Arrow Lakes and the Columbia River, and have also large timber limits on the navigable rivers and streams flowing into the Arrow Lakes. The timber limits consist chiefly of cedar, hemlock, white pine, fir and spruce, and can be inexpensively operated on account of the fact that they are very convenient to the water and to the mill. I saw one large boom of logs which took only four hours to come down the Columbia River from the shore line of the limits to the mill.

Mr. Hall was asked what the prospects for a demand for lumber in the west were, and said:

"I stopped off at different points in the Territories and Manitoba to inquire into the demand for lumber. The North-West Territories are practically dependent on British Columbia for their lumber and timber supplies. People are now going into the Territories and taking up land on a very extensive scale. They must have houses to live in, also stables for their horses, granaries, barns, etc. Each settlement of farmers has a post office established, At different points, small towns, villages and hamlets are springing up in which are being built elevators, store houses, implement ware houses, dwelling houses, etc. There are in the neighbourhood of 1200 post offices in the Nort-West Territories and Manitoba, which are each a nucleus of a growing, town, village or hamlet. It is perfectly apparent therefore that lumber is one of the prime and growing necessities of the North-West.

CROPS LOOKING WELL.

What are the prospects of the wheat crop this year?

"The farmers are very hopeful. The crops look extremely well, though the harvest will be about ten days later this year on account of the lateness of the seeding season. This is the month of fear and anxiety to the North-west farmers mingled with hope and confidence based on past success and good fortune. There is much at stake—nearly seventy million bushe's of grain—the fruits of the toil of thousands to be gathered from over three millions acres of cultivated land."

PEOPLE WANT THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

What did you find was the attitude of the people in the North-west in respect to the necessity of a new transcontinental railway?

"I could best answer that question by asking you another — what would the Province of Ontario amount to without the Grand Trunk and the C.P.R. Railway systems? There are at the present time a little over three million acres of arable land under cultivation. From surveys which have been made it is estimated that there is at least one hundred million acres in the North-west of the finest arable land, suitable for grain growing purposes that can anywhere be found, which is situated too far from the railway line to pay the farmers to haul it many miles to the nearest station. At the present rate at which the country is filling up there is a growing and a pressing demand for better railway communication and more competition in the handling of incoming and out going freight. Undoubtedly a new railway would be of immense advantage to every manufacturer in Ontario. It will stimulate and increase a demand for farming implements of all kinds, mining machinery, electrical machinery, saw mill machinery, binder twine, locks and house fittings, textile goods of all kinds; in fact it will stimulate a demand for every kind of merchandise that is manufactured in Ontario."

Mr. Hall found the people in the west exceedingly hopeful, and the propospects for the future developments are excellent.

LARGEST EXCURSION IN PETERBOROUGH'S HISTORY.

Barrie Firemen Here To-day with 1200 Excursionists.

The largest excursion of which this town has been made the objective point, and one of the largest ever carried over the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway, came in from Barrie this morning, and was run under the auspices of the Firemen of that progressive little town on the shores of Lake Simcoe.

Two trains, both double headers, were required to transport the large number of excursionists. The first train arriving about 11 o'clock, carried 600 passengers, and another, which reached here within an hour afterwards carried an equally large number, the total strength of the visitors being 1,200.

Upon the arrival of the trains, the visitors were welcomed by Ald. Edgcumbe, the Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, on behalf of the Town Council, and a deputation from the local fire brigade, who extended the freedom of the town to the visitors. A good band accompanied the excursion, and a lacrosse team, a tennis team and a number of Golfers were also among the hundreds who come to town, and games in which these different teams are participating, were played during the afternoon.

The excursion was conducted in systematic manner, and the visitors knew exactly what to do and where to go as soon as they arrived.

An excursion over the Lift Lock was part of the programme arranged, and the afternoon, the City of Peterborough, which had been charted for the occasion, took a number of trips over this famous lock, for the benefit of the visitors. Each trip was well patronized, and those who had the pleasure which they afforded were highly delighted with the Lock and its workings.

Mr. R. A. Dutton, who is an old Barrie boy, assisted very materially in advising those in charge of the programme as to the local programme to be carried out, as did also Mr. F. A. Clarke, another popular old Barrie boy.

The members of the local fire brigade entertained their brother firemen royally. The local hall was made into a headquarters for the visitors, and this afternoon the Barrie Band headed a parade of visiting and local firemen to the wharf, where, as guests of the town brigade, the visitors were taken over the Lock.

Many of the visitors were in town for the first time to-day, and on every hand were heard expressions of pleasure at the progressive appearance of Peterborough.

ADMIRALTY CIVIL LORD

INTERESTING PEN SKETCH OF MR ARTHUR HAMILTON LEE, M.P.

Known to Many Canadians, As He Was Lecturer on History and Tactics at the Royal Military College, Kingston, From 1896 to 1898—Military Attache at Washington For a Year and Served in the Cuban War.

Mr. Arthur Hamilton Lee, Conservative member for the Fareham division of Hampshire, and Civil Lord of the Admiralty, must be known to many Canadians as the Capt. Lee who from 1896 to 1898 was lecturer on history and tactics at the Royal Military College at Kingston, Ontario, writes Lally Bernard in The Toronto Globe. Mr. Lee, after leaving the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich, joined the Royal Garrison Artillery in 1888, and after his career at Kingston he spent a year at Washington as military attache, during which time he served in the Cuban war. Being gazetted as Brevet-Major in 1900, he retired from the service and came to England in response to a summons from his friends, who were anxious that he should enter political life, for which they one and all thought him eminently qualified.

I was told what is quite an interesting incident in connection with Mr. Lee's election for Fareham in 1900. It appears that he knew nothing of the locality in which his constituency lay, but upon going to Fareham he, being interested in everything that had to do with bygone days, strolled through the graveyard, to find that both his father and grandfather were buried there, and the electors on hearing this remarkable fact either looked upon it as a good omen, or were convinced that in this way they had found a local candidate, and Mr. Lee's victory at the polls was assured. It so happened that Mr. Lee's father, who was a clergyman, had died when his youngest son was an infant in arms, and, sent to school at an early age, to Cheltenham later on, and then to the R.M.A., at Woolwich, Mr. Lee had known but little of the family history, or the whereabouts of his father's grave.

Mr. Lee is still a young man, being born in 1868, and I am told by those whose information can be relied upon that during the time spent between Canada and the United States he gathered most important and varied information concerning British interests on the North American Continent. An ardent Imperialist, Mr. Lee keeps himself well posted both in European and colonial politics, and I am told that his general information concerning affairs abroad may some day lead to his becoming an important official in the Foreign Office. It is rather interesting to note that the Lees have nearly all been in the navy, and that, while the present Civil Lord of the Admiralty began life as an army officer, he has to-day found a position which is in accord with the traditions of his family.

In 1899 Mr. Lee married Miss Ruth Moore of Portland, Maine, a very charming and exceedingly pretty American, who is deeply interested in her husband's political career and who is his companion in his many motoring expeditions, when they explore out-of-the-way districts of rural England and delight in picking up quaint old bits of china, prints and autographs of celebrities. The Lee's London house is in Chesterfield street, and, while the exterior is quite unpretentious, the interior is undeniably beautiful. The dining and drawing rooms are both oval in

We advise everybody to use Sunlight Soap—
It makes child's play of work.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

We have used "Sunlight Soap," and we want to tell you that it is the best soap made, that's why we are writing. We found out that the Sunlight way is the best way to wash with "Sunlight Soap." At first we used to wash with Sunlight Soap in the old way as we did with common soap, but after we washed according to directions printed on the package, we would never wash the old way again. We first soap the articles, leave them to soak and then rub out lightly on the wash board. Not much to do and it makes the clothes white as snow.

shape, and the dining-room was undoubtedly one of the famous "Adams" rooms, which are preserved with so much care in this age. Creamy tints, mingled with a soft effect of tender greens and rose, characterize the general scheme of color throughout the living rooms. The dining-room is really very charming and lends itself excellently to entertaining on a large scale. The white walls have here and there shallows recesses, within which Chippendale buffets show to perfection. The ante-room which leads to the drawing-room has a remarkable ceiling, a painting of a flight of birds chasing an imperial eagle. The drawing-room is of irregular shape, and over the fireplace hangs a remarkable picture by an unknown artist. It is called "The Seats of the Mighty" and is a marvellous bit of coloring.

The last day on which I saw the room enormous green glass vases held great masses of pale lilac blossoms, which harmonized admirably with the room and tender greens of the draperies. An old harpsichord stood on one side of the doorway, and furniture modelled after that of the First Empire was scattered about the room. Off the drawing-room was yet another room with the same scheme of coloring, and here were the treasures which Mr. Lee regards with such pride and delight, a pair of pistols which once belonged to the "First Consul" of France and a bust of Napoleon by Canova, and many autographs and engravings of celebrated men, Robert Louis Stevenson among the number. The walls are lined with books, many of which came from the homestead of the Moore family, as Mr. Lee's mother was an enthusiastic collector of "first editions." Everything in this room evidences the hobbies of the master and mistress of the house, and Mr. Lee's workroom, which opened off the dining-room by double doors, was a veritable snuggery and workroom combined.

Sacak Thieves In Churches.

An old sexton was discussing the amount of stealing that is done in churches. "Scarcely a day passes," he said, "when the church is open without some distracted woman coming to me bowed down with grief because somebody has stolen her purse. There are certain contemptible thieves who prey on unsuspecting women who pray so hard that they forget to look after their pocketbooks. The thief watches until the woman is deep in prayer and then leans over, grasps the purse and sneaks out."

Game of Bouquet.

This is a jolly game for a number of children to play. Sit down in a circle around your leader. Let the leader give each one a flower for his name—violet, daisy, Sweet William, Black Eyed Susan, etc. Then let her tell you a story "made up out of her own head," in which she brings in every one of the flower names.

Whenever a child hears his flower name mentioned he must get up, turn around and sit down.

The Candle Trick.

Cut out of a large apple two or three round pieces the size and shape of the end of a candle. In the center of one end of each one stick a small round piece of peeled almond; this is the wick. Light it and blow it out when the flame has blackened it. Tell your friends that you once had a friend who was colonel of a Russian regiment, from whom you learned to eat tallow candles (at the same time lighting your apple candles), then blow them out, pop them into your mouth one after the other and eat them.

The Clock.

A clock can run, but cannot walk;
My shoe has a tongue, but cannot talk;
A comb has teeth, but has no mouth;
A north wind blows the smoke straight south.

Bottles have necks, but have no heads;
And pins have heads, but have no necks,
And needles have to hold their threads
Right in their eyes. How it must vex!

If I were a needle, comb or shoe,
I never should know what to do.
My head is really in a whirl;
I'm glad I am a little girl.

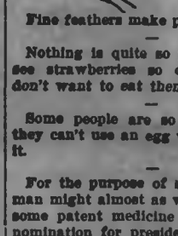
PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A woman feels ten years younger every time she gets a new hat.

When a man marries he thinks he knows a lot more than he thinks he knows when he unmarries.

It doesn't take a woman on a shopping expedition long to see the finish of herself and her pocketbook.



Don't try to boss the hired girl; she knows you can't cook.

A baby in the cradle is more to be desired than two in the poorhouse.

Fine feathers make plucked birds.

Nothing is quite so provoking as to see strawberries so cheap that you don't want to eat them.

Some people are so unskillful that they can't use an egg without beaking it.

For the purpose of securing fame a man might almost as well be cured by some patent medicine as to accept a nomination for president from one of the minor parties.

Sometimes there's quite a difference between being foolishly simple and simply foolish.

It is quite noticeable that hard luck gets monotonous very quickly.

Chastened.

Far from city glare and bustle
Quietly I steal away
To the place where song birds rustle
Through the branches all the day.

In my boyhood long I lingered
Where the river's eddies spin,
While the angleworms I fingered
And the suckers gathered in.

Now I linger by the river,
Musing by its rippling tide,
But no baited fishhooks quiver
Near the water lily's side.

I'm not lusting now for any Thing the waters dark conceal;
I've been taken in by many—
I know how the suckers feel.

Bereaved.

"I am taking up a collection, boss, for a poor orphan what ain't got no father and no mother."

"Here is a dime. I am always glad to help the unfortunate. How old is the poor orphan."

"Only seventy-nine, boss."

Couldn't Notice It.

"The lawn mower must be a great improvement over the old fashioned scythe," said the city man who was trying to talk wise to the suburbanite.

"You wouldn't consider it such a good thing if you had to push it along," said the other dryly.

A Sure Sign.

You know that summer without doubt
At last has struck the land
When on the city streets breaks out
The little German band.

SHE WHO SMILES.

It Is a Wise Woman Who Knows the Value of a Bright Face.

It is a wise woman who can smile upon friends and upon enemies. It will keep the first and disarm the latter.

It is a wise woman who can smile even when little things bother her. If she can manage to see a little fun even when something goes wrong she is not only wise, but popular.

It is a wise woman who can smile at a compliment, be really pleased with it and then—forget it.

It is a wise woman who can smile at a disparaging remark and pretend not to know it is intended for her.

It is a wise woman who can smile when she rises in the morning, as it brightens the whole day for herself and her neighbors, and she is still wiser to smile when she retires, as it blots out the disagreeable features of the day past and gives her a refreshing sleep to prepare her for the day to come.

It is a wise woman who can smile no matter how she feels. In this she shows that she has not only learned to govern herself, but to understand other people and the depressing effect upon them of a peevish, dissatisfied woman. —Philadelphia Ledger.

A Story of a Scholar.

Theodor Mommsen, the famous historian, had not only the appearance but the manner of a scholar. Once during the half hour's drive from Berlin to Charlottenburg the car in which the professor rode went badly off the track. The rest of the passengers alighted, the horses were removed and the stranded car was left until help could be found. Mommsen remained, reading his book. An hour passed, and the sound of levers and jacks and the plunging of horses' hoofs aroused him from his reverie. With no sign of discomposure he arose from his seat and went to the door. "Ah," said he, "we seem to have come to a standstill."

Maine Counties.

The three original counties of Maine had good old English county names, York, Cumberland and Lincoln. Only two, Oxford and Somerset, have been similarly named since, all the rest having good American appellations. For the names of Androscoggin, Aroostook, Kennebec, Penobscot, Piscataquis and Sagadahoc find their origin among the aborigines, while Franklin, Hancock, Knox and Washington bear the names of distinguished Americans of the white race.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MRS. IDA HUSTED HARPER.

A Bright Woman Who Believes in the Ballot For Her Sex.

Mrs. Ida Husted Harper of Washington is one of the bright, brainy and progressive women of this country, a woman who takes a vital interest in national affairs and is a firm believer in the equality of rights for her sex. Mrs. Harper is of New England parentage, but was born and spent most of her early life in Indiana, where she entered the Indiana university at the age of seventeen. At the close of her freshman year she accepted a position as principal of a high school, but resigned the next year to be married. Her husband died, leaving her with one daughter. Mrs. Harper is the author of "The Life and Work of Susan B. Anthony" and, jointly with Miss Anthony, of the "History of Woman Suffrage," including the general progress of women along all lines to the close of the nineteenth century. She was formerly one of the editors of the Indianapolis News and for several years past has edited a department in a prominent New York daily and contributed to the best magazines. Mrs. Harper prepared one of the Indiana state monographs for the Columbian exposition and made addresses before several of its congresses. In 1899 she was selected to speak on "Women in Journalism" at the international council of women in London and was elected chairman of the international press committee. At the Berlin meeting of the international council of women her address was on the question, "Why Can Women Not Vote In the United States?" Mrs. Harper is a brilliant and convincing speaker and a forceful, fluent writer.

MRS. IDA HUSTED HARPER.

Beauty Culture.

"As part of her stock in trade it is necessary that the woman of affairs should bestow great care on her personal appearance," says a business woman. "This fact I learned years ago, and what I have discovered also is this, that persistence pays in beauty culture and that those girls who try to make improvements one week and drop them the next are not the ones who succeed in the hunt for beauty.

"Lack of time is pleaded truthfully enough as an excuse for letting oneself go, and the fact that toilet lotions and unguents are often too costly for a shallow purse furnishes another motive for disregarding the inroads that time and the burdens of life may make upon her personal appearance.

"But simple remedies are just as beneficial as more elaborate and expensive ones, and five minutes night and morning spent in a little care over her looks will not be grudged by any sensible woman."

Her Preparation.

What greater incentive for development can a woman have than to be under the necessity of catering to six or seven dispositions, characters and mental appetites? None. From the time a child begins to lisp until he reaches the age of thought he goes to the mother for the solution of the thousand and one questions which arise to perplex him in his development. Can she afford to say "No" to that child and be always associated with the minor things of his life? She cannot. She must know; she must keep herself abreast of the current of events in the life of each child; her every talent must be employed here. And then, after her children have reached the age when they think for themselves, she may go out not only to benefit the world by her experience and knowledge, but fitted to fill any position within its gift.—A Woman in Chicago Record-Herald.

Skin Tonic.

Sarah Bernhardt, who is well known for her perennial youthfulness, attributes the seeming miracle entirely to a special skin tonic which she favors. This eau sedative is said to have the effect of making the flesh firm and elastic, while strengthening and whitening the skin and soothing the terrible "nerves" to which our twentieth century womanhood seems a ready prey. The recipe for the lotion is as follows: Half a pint of alcohol, two ounces of spirits of camphor, two ounces of spirits of ammonia and five ounces of sea salt, to be added to sufficient boiling water to make a quart in all, when the mixture should be placed in a bottle and thoroughly well shaken before use. This lotion, which should be well rubbed into the skin daily, is said to be especially efficacious in taking the fatigue out of tired muscles.

Women as House Managers.

It takes a wise woman to manage a household successfully. Some mothers seem to think that when a daughter shows no aptitude for music, art or literature there is but one hope, and that is to make her a housekeeper. Never was there a greater mistake. It takes the brightest, the most capable of women to keep house properly. It is a business venture, one with many problems and one in which there are many failures, says Cynthia Grey in the Pittsburg Press. It takes health and perseverance and constant effort to be a successful homemaker. The homemaker has to deal with questions of morality, sociality, discipline, education and finance. It takes a wise head to solve these problems intelligently. Make a homekeeper of the wisest daughter. Let the less capable learn the piano and guitar.

A Cup of Tea.

The president of the American Tea association, writing in a well known trade journal, says: "There are four exact rules to be followed in making tea, and the neglect of any one of them will render the article valueless. Nearly every housewife neglects at least one." The four rules are these: The water must be freshly drawn from the faucet; it should boil hard for five minutes before pouring on the tea leaves; it should remain on the leaves not less then seven and not more than ten minutes and should then be poured off into another heated teapot; use one teaspoonful of tea for each cup of water unless a weak infusion is desired.

For Tired Feet.

A woman who has to stand on her feet through long hours every day advises a warm ammoniated bath nightly to take the fatigue out of tired feet. A teaspoonful of ammonia is added to the footbath or basin of warm water, and in this the feet are immersed for a good quarter of an hour. Then the feet are dried and while still warm and moist are rubbed with a little vaseline. In the morning the feet are rubbed all over with French chalk. This treatment, she says, removes the sting and somehow eases the feet of the strain of walking and standing.

Homemade Soap.

Add a pound box of concentrated lye to a gallon of rain water. When dissolved let it come to a boil, then add five or six pounds of grease—scraps, pork rinds, etc. Boil for a quarter to half an hour. It should eat up the scraps and be clear like honey. Cool a little, and if it gets hard and grainy it is done; if there is too much lye put in a little more melted grease. When cold it should be hard enough to cut from the kettle.—Vick's Monthly.

A Dry Salt Shampoo.

One woman suggests that in place of a soap and water shampoo a dry salt rub is a good thing for the hair once in awhile. Loosen the hair, then rub table salt thoroughly into the roots and brush it out again carefully. The dust and dirt come with it, just as they do when salt is sprinkled over a carpet prior to sweeping it. The effect of the salt on the scalp is described as not only highly cleansing, but also tonic.

Aluminium Utensils.

It is good news that the price of aluminium kitchen utensils is gradually lowering. Of course, the cost will always be greater than tin or enameled ware, since each piece has to be cast entire, there being no way of soldering aluminium. This ware lasts almost indefinitely, with proper care, does not burn or scorch, and, being seamless, is easily kept clean. These are merits even greater than its lightness.

Hard Beds, No Pillows.

It is true if you lie on a hard bed without a pillow you will find a great improvement in your figure. If one thinks of the place and position in which one spends a third of every twenty-four hours she will realise it must have some effect upon the figure. So, women with round shoulders and double chins, here is a way to mend these ills if you are willing to give up your downy couch.

A Fire Extinguisher.

The nervous housewife who lives in constant dread of fire may, with very little trouble, make an extinguisher that will put out a blaze if used at once. All she needs to do is to put three pounds of salt in a gallon of water and to this add one and a half pounds of sal ammoniac. This liquid should be bottled, and when the fire is discovered it should be poured on it.

For Rosy Cheeks.

Four ounces of rosewater and a third of an ounce of tincture benzoin applied with a soft cloth upon the face at intervals throughout the day is said to impart to the skin that envied rosy glow. This is innocent and simple enough for one to try without fearing any harmful consequences.

Only Five Fathers Left.

That excellent publication, The Year Book of Canada for 1903, gives the following list of survivors of the fathers of Confederation:

Hon. William McDougall, C.B., born January 25, 1822.

Hon. Hector Langevin, K.C.M.G., C.B., born August 25, 1826.

Hon. Sir Charles Tupper, Bart., G.C.M.G., C.B., born July 2, 1821.

Hon. Ambrose, Shea, K.C.M.G., Newfoundland, born 1818.

Hon. A. A. McDonald, Senator, born February 14, 1829.

The most recent deaths were those of Sir Oliver Mowat, April 19, 1903, and Hon. R. B. Dickey, K.C., on July 14, 1903. Of Canadian representatives, the oldest, but by no means the least vigorous, is Sir Charles Tupper. Sir William McDougall is a veritable link with the past in this part of Canada. He was publishing The North American some 54 years ago, with a platform so boldly radical that it was denounced by The Globe as revolutionary. Brown and McDougall afterwards joined forces; The North American was merged in The Globe, and Mr. McDougall joined The Globe staff. But both men had too much individuality and force of will to dwell together in amity, and even old-time Reformers remember them as antagonists. McDougall was an admirable writer and speaker, with a kind of French neatness of style that contrasted strongly with the rush and volumes of the stream poured out by Brown.

Came In Handy.

"The weather man said it would rain today, and I'm glad I carried my umbrella."

"Why, it didn't rain at all today."

"Of course it didn't, but I met the weather man on the street, and I used the umbrella to bang him good and hard."

A Feat In Growth.

"I lost my foot in the war," said the tramp, "and I'm trying to raise enough money to get out to California."

"What do you want to go to California for?" asked the woman at the door.

"Oh, I've heard that there are things which grow a foot in a day out there."

The Deceivers.

Miss Verjuce—What a shame it is how the men deceive us poor women! Miss Bluehose—They would never get a woman to marry them unless they did, my dear.

In Luck.

First Citizen—Aren't you drinking a little more than usual? Second Citizen—Yes. My wife has a cold in her head and can't smell a blamed thing.—Albany Journal.

HE WAS A REAL FARMER.

Hence He Couldn't See the Poetic Side of Farm Life.

"Oh, yes," a man in the hotel lobby was overheard to say. "I'm a real farmer now. My farm only costs me about $75 per month now, so you can see I'm getting along." Then the man was heard to comment upon farm labor.

"It's all right to talk about the poetry of farm life," he said, "but if farm life is poetry I want the prosiest sort of prose in mine. Is there any poetry in greasing harness? Do you find any rhyme and rhythm in milking a double jointed, back action cow twice a day? Well, I guess not."

"But there's the scenery," his companion interjected, "and the smell of grain"—

"Yes," said the amateur farmer, "and the chiggers, and the red bugs, and holes in the fence, and rats in the seed corn, and the potatoes sprouting. And if you are through plowing for awhile and haven't anything better to do you fix the wheelbarrow for recreation, or you can see that the pen is made hog proof, or that the water trough doesn't leak too much. Then if everything else fails and it's too rainy to do anything else you can get out a second-hand kit and fix the crupper on the harness or nail strips of boiler plate on the feed box so that crib eater of a plug won't have too many splinters in him when he dies. Oh, you can bet I'm too much of a farmer to look at the poetic side of it. I'm a realist farmer; that's what I am."

TOBACCO SALARIES.

A Custom of the American Colonies Before the Revolution.

Before the Revolution, ministers of the Anglican church in those American colonies where that church was established by law were remunerated "in kind" instead of in money. Maryland gave an incumbent forty pounds of tobacco a year for every tithe payer in the parish, whether churchman or dissenter, white or colored. These terms were handsome enough to secure the pick of the clerical market. In Virginia the stipends represented a fixed and unvarying quantity, by weight, of the manufactured leaf. These stipends were rather beggarly in quantity. In a bad year even the "sweet scented parishes," where the minister's salary was calculated on a high priced and exceptionally fragrant tobacco, yielded only about $500 a year. The parishioners sometimes refused to induct a clergyman unless he would consent to take one salary for serving two parishes. In 1758, when the price of tobacco had greatly risen, the house of burgesses passed a law fixing the cash equivalent of debts payable in tobacco at one-third their true value, thus wiping out two-thirds of the incomes of ministers. Patrick Henry made his first fame in defending this law when a test case was brought in behalf of the injured clergymen.

A Dead Moose.

When a bull moose lies dead in the forest he looks like some strange antediluvian animal, with his square prehensile muffle and horns spreading laterally, a peculiarity which he shares with the prehistoric Irish elk and the nearly extinct European elk of later times. The huge form tells of strength and swiftness, and withal the still dangerous gleam of the eye, glazed in its last stare, bids the hunter pause and feel almost guilty of a crime in the destruction of so much that is grand and weird, a feeling very different from the sentiment supposed to attend the slaughter of a deer. But the triumph of mastering the wariest and bravest animal in the woods by fair still hunting and by grimly sticking to the track for many a weary mile amply atones for any regrets.—Century.

Gift.

Love is sometimes a hard taskmaster. He drives women to tasks beyond their strength and lays heavy burdens on their shoulders. Love of husband, love of family, forces many a woman day by day to labor for the home when aching back and throbbing head make her utterly unfit for household duties.

Weak, nervous women who suffer from headache, backache, bearing-down pains and other consequences of womanly disease, can be completely cured by the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"About two years ago I was taken sick and it seemed as if I had no nerves at all," writes Mrs. F. Woodbeck, of Delray, Mich. "Could not work an hour in the day without being tired out. I doctored first with one physician, then with another, but did not receive any benefit. One would say one thing and the next something else. I had almost given up when I thought your medicine might help me, so I wrote to you asking what to do. You advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I did so and could see a difference right away. I only took four bottles in all and felt better than I had in a long time. Can work all day now and not feel tired as I would in an hour before taking your treatment. I think it is the only medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure dizziness and sick headache.

When reduced with water and sweetened it is pleasant to take.

You, or some one of your family, are sure to need this remedy sooner or later, and when that time comes you will need it badly; you will need it quickly. Why not buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency? Price, 35 cents.

Local Golfers Behind in Match with Lambton Club.

The Lambton Golf Club, of Toronto, visited Peterborough on Saturday and defeated the local golfers in a friendly contest by 37 holes. The play though for the most part in favour of the visitors, was interesting throughout, and was witnessed by a large number of spectators. The playing of George Lyon, probably the finest amateur player in Canada, was watched with great interest; he was drawn with Lawrence the local champion, who put up a good game against this famous player. The score was as follows:—

Lambton.		Peterborough.
7	Lyon	Lawrence 0
0	Hood	Hamilton 6
0	Strath	Burnham 2
4	Wright	Neill 0
9	James	Mulholland 0

ACCIDENT TO A LACROSSE PLAYER.

Mr T. C. Scriver of Hastings, may Lose an Eye.

Hastings, August 6th. — The Hastings lacrosse team visited Havelock yesterday, and defeated the home team by a score of 3 to 1, in a fast game of lacrosse. Two minutes before full time, while Havelock was striving to score, T. E. Scriver, the editor of the Hastings Star, was struck over the eye. As there was no doctor in the town he was taken to Norwood, where he had medical attendance. He left this morning for the hospital in Toronto where it is feared he will have to undergo an operation for the removal of the eye.

LACROSSE.

The first game in the T. V. L. L. semi-finals will be played here next Saturday between the T.A.S. and Havelock, the winners in their respective districts. The Havelock team this season has proved a pretty knotty problem to the teams that they have been up against, and the T.A.S. will have their work cut out to win. This will mean that there must be consistent practice on the part of the players on the team during this week.

• • • •

A full practice of the T.A.S. lacrosse team is requested on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings of this week. All players are asked to turn out in preparation for the final game with Havelock.

• • • •

Mr. E. M. Best, who is spending a month at his home in Winnipeg, has been playing lacrosse, and incidentally showing the Westerners a thing or two about the game. He played first home on the Minto4 in a game against Regina, and the Free Press in reporting the game says:—

"The Mintos played in much better form than on Saturday. Best, a new player from Peterborough, Ont., donned a uniform and played a splendid game. He scored three of the four Minto goals by his pretty stick handling. He was well backed up by Linklater and Finlay."

• • • •

The Port Hope Guide of Friday had the following explanation of the default to the T. A. S. team:—

To-morrow is the day that the Ontarios are scheduled to play off their tie game with the T.A.S., of Peterborough, but being unable to secure a twelve the locals will have to let it go by default.

Arrangements had been made to secure one of the strongest twelves of the season for this game, but the refusal of a couple of the home brews to take part spoiled all the chances and the game had to be called off.

BASEBALL.

The Port Hope Guide has recently acquired quite a reputation as a knocker on sport. On Saturday a paragraph appeared in its sporting column, the warrant for the publication of which is hard to find. It is as follows:

"Peterborough were ordered to play in Cobourg to-day, but refused to do so unless Cobourg guaranteed them their expenses. Surely Peterborough is aware that each team in the Midland League pays their own expenses and to act in this way is anything but sportsmanlike. Cobourg will now claim Peterborough's forfeit money and the northern boys can hang up their uniforms for another season."

Surely the Guide has not forgotten the action of Cobourg, when that team was ordered to play here some few weeks ago. After the default of Cobourg on that occasion, it would seem to be quite reasonable that a guarantee of expenses should be exacted before the Peterborough team would incur greater expense on account of the Cobourg team.

FOOTBALL.

The Quakers will have a full practice to-night at the Oval at 6.30.

This is the month that price reductions at Stratton's Bookstore speak loudest, and make you feel glad you waited. A MERCHANT'S VOICE.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I have often thought during the past 10 or 15 years when reading your paragraphs comparing Peterborough's rate of taxation with that of other neighboring towns that you were not giving out the whole truth. I knew from experience that the assessment here was from 50 to 100 per cent. higher than it was in those places you mentioned, and that was the explanation of the lower rate here. But of late years, on account of the incessant frittering away of moneys, in amounts small in themselves but large in the aggregate, and through the constant addition to the number of town officials, our rate crept up mill by mill, and the amount of taxes was increasing every year. To keep the rate from getting higher and more on a par with that of the surroundin towns, our town authorities have gradually raised the assessment. I know of one house on the western outskirts of the town the assessment of which has been raised three times during the last five years, $200 each time!

It would be a more honest deal if our City Fathers would raise the rate of taxation—we would then know "where we were at."

I am

Yours truly,
MERCHANT.

MR. KIDDS LETTER ON JURYS VERDICT.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Mr. Kidd is not the only one surprised at the verdict given by thirteen men, whom any one would suppose were possessed of sufficient intelligence to render a fair and unbiased verdict according to the facts given and which were as follows:—

We find two portions of the boat, one at the stern, the other at the bow, surrounded by railings put there for the protection of some one (it matters not whom) that would scarcely carry their own weight; in fact portions of it gone and a portion of it falling out and carrying to her death one who would be living to-day, had it not been for the faulty and careless condition of this railing, and for all the effect that this verdict may have, this condition of affairs may continue to exist until this death trap of a railing has all fallen into the river and possibly carrying others to a watery grave.

It has been stated that warnings were given that this was not a place for passengers yet not one of the dozen that were said to have been on the bow of the boat at the time heard any such warning, and is it at all probable that Olive Kidd heard such warning when the others did not? The only evidence that such a warning was given was that given by a man who was standing close to the captain. Neither should such warning be considered sufficient, particularly as regards children. They should have been spoken to with no uncertain sound, and if this did not have the desired effect, they should have been forcibly removed from any position of the boat they had no right to be on, particularly any portion of the boat that was not considered safe, or set with death traps as this proved to have been.

While the plea is given that this is no place for passengers it is certainly a pleasant place to occupy and one that children and young people would most likely go to unless positively prevented, which they were not on this occasion at least. This is also the way on and off the boat, and we all know how people congregate at the exit of boats and this railing was the supposed protection and support to prevent people from being crowded into the water, and what kind of a railing do we find? Why the most flimpsy shaky kind of an affair, constructed of pipes having standards and rails connected with tee connections, with the rail in at least one place disconnected from the standard and the woodwork so rotted about some of the standards as to leave them loose. What do we find in regard to that portion of the rail which is lifted to let passengers on and off the boat and which was the portion which gave way in this instance? The cabin end of the rail had to be lifted, but two or three inches to allow it to fall outward and carry any one with it, which was very likely to occur to any one having their hands on it on account of the lowness of it. This I am informed occurred to one other passenger that same evening, but fortunately did not carry them outward. I would think that anyone seeing this railing and particularly that part which is removable to allow passengers to go on and off would consider it very insufficient and very faulty in construction. The bar which fell out should have had such a fastening on it that it required some special act or operation to open and not one that was liable to be open unknowingly or accidentally by anyone placing their hands upon it.

I am informed that Mr. Kidd in objecting to this verdict does so, not with any object of injuring the captain or his boat, but with the object of placing the responsibility of the drowning of this child where it properly belongs, and in the hope that such action will be taken in the matter that similar accidents may not happen to others; that some action may be taken to place not only this boat but all others in a reasonably safe condition.

JUSTICE.

Peterborough, August 8th, 1904.

EXCESSIVE TAXATION.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—I am pleased to think that your paper is open to this interesting subject. I am satisfied that seventy-five per cent. of our citizens are clamouring against this heavy taxation. Now, sir, as citizen ratepayers, we cry halt! We are drifting recklessly along into the whirlpool of higher taxation. It is only a few years ago when we paid our taxes at the end of the year. We are asked to pay our taxes now in the month of August. Why is this shortage or why is this system of business existing? Does it mean we are six months behind in finances to what we were in former years? It is only a few years ago when we only paid 16 mills to the dollar. Again there are some who claim we are only paying 18 1-3 mills to the dollar—that may be true from a certain standpoint. Now, sir, is this misleading? Does not our properties possess a certain normal or regular value? What I mean is this. For instance, there is a scarcity of ten or more houses. Then there are ten families running to and fro in search of a house. At last they decide to pay any price in order to find shelter for themselves. My own experience during this last year I walked the streets four days to rent a house but failed. Then I decided to buy a house at an exorbitant price, which is not the true value. Another example to illustrate, viz: The coal men possess 10,000 tons of coal and its price to-day is $7.50 per ton allowing this to be sufficient for one month. At the end of one week there is an increase in the consumptives and a blockade in traffic for the next three weeks, allowing these dealers to put up the price to $12.00 per ton. While we as citizens would pay that price nevertheless it would not be the real par value of the coal. By the way, I use this example but I hope it will not be our experience. I think it is the par value at which our property should be assessed and not the fluctuating price that might be assumed for a short period of time, by the scarcity of a dozen or more houses. Now I firmly declare from experience in an adjoining town that property valued here at $2,000 would be valued in other towns at about $1,200. This is where the wool pulling over our eyes is being done. And the only resort as citizens to protest against it, not only in the court of revision, but on election of candidates. I think a true way to get at the value of property is to offer it for sale on the market square, when the revision court does not satisfy us. But now is the time for our union men to form committees to wait upon our council and to take action on this excessiveness.

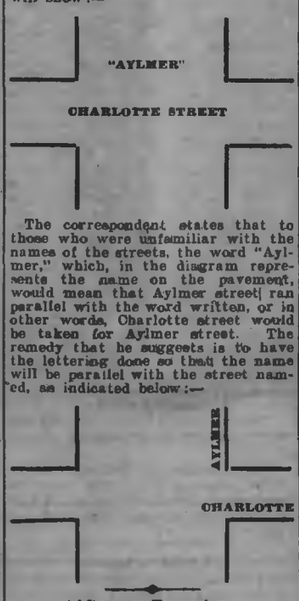
Now, Mr. Editor, you might be willing to allow your reporter to wait upon our assessors daily or weekly and give us a report from them as to the value of the different properties that are now being assessed. Of course no one would object to let his neighbor know how his property was assessed. I know where we can go to find out; but necessitates a great deal of trouble. My estimate is that we are paying about 25 mills to the dollar.

A RATEPAYER.

IS STREET LETTERING METHOD CONSISTENT?

A Correspondent Points out What He Claims is an Error.

A correspondent to the Examiner complains of the system used in inserting the names of the streets in the granolithic pavements. The principle, he contends, is an admirable one, but, at the present time, the method is, according to his statement, a confusing one. At the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, which will serve as an example, the word "Aylmer" is inserted in the pavement on a parallel with Charlotte street, which he contends, is confusing to strangers, and it would seem that there is some reasonableness in this claim, as the diagram will show:—



The correspondent states that to those who were unfamiliar with the names of the streets, the word "Aylmer," which, in the diagram represents the name on the pavement, would mean that Aylmer street ran parallel with the word written, or in other words, Charlotte street would be taken for Aylmer street. The remedy that he suggests is to have the lettering done so that the name will be parallel with the street named, as indicated below:—

TO-DAY'S NEWS ON STOCK MARKET

By private wire from Richmond & Co., Inc'd., Pittsburg and Buffalo to W. F. Nelson & Co., correspondents:—

August 8th, Saturday evening.—There was further strength to-day, especially in the low-priced issues and those other stocks whose purchase we recommend lately. The next factor of importance will the government report which will be issued next Wednesday afternoon, will undoubtedly be unfavourable on wheat but we expect that the report on the corn crop will make a very flattering showing. If the report on corn is favourable and shows improvement over last month stocks ought to go higher. They would go much higher if the wheat crop was in an equally favourable condition, however, we had bull markets before with wheat a deficient crop, as for instance in 1900. A reaction of from 2 to 4 points is of course always possible in fact it may follow the government report next week on such a reaction we certainly the purchase of the general list as we do not think that the market is ready for a big decline until the public has bought more freely. People who buy for investment and who do not care for fluctuations of 1 or 2 points can afford to take on some rubber com. P.M., Tex., Ill., C., P.C., V.S., C.F.I., etc. Would leave wheat alone until it has a 10 point break when it should again be bought. It may not break from the present level, but it ought to be pretty close to top on this move now. Later it will go higher. —Wall Street Information Bureau.

New York.—If you act promptly good profits are to be secured on the bull side through August, but don't get enthusiastic. The advance will be forced, not because conditions justify it, but simply to enable the big men to liquidate at high prices, for a few days. A narrow trading market is probable but you will get stocks cheaper by waiting. My advice is to buy at opening Monday morning U.S.Q., T.C.I., L.N., S.R., S.F. C.P.R. Smelters, B.R.T., etc. One point margins should be ample. Around the 10. I expect activity to begin. If the advance comes as predicted you can some time in September sell the market short with every confidence.—Ridgeley.

PANIC PREVAILS AT BELEAGUERED CITY.

Commandant Stoessel, of Port Arthur, Commits Suicide.

THE DEAD GENERAL'S LETTER

Surrender of City Foreshadowed—Japs to Attack Liaoyang August 20—Japs Lose Cruisers.

London, Aug. 9.—According to the correspondent of The Morning Post at Shanghai, it is reported there that there are 10,000 sick and wounded persons at Port Arthur, and that the Russians are negotiating with the Japanese to send the hospital ship Mongolia away full of sick.

Gen. Stoessel Suicides.

It is reported, the correspondent says, that Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel (in command of the military force at Port Arthur), has committed suicide, and that panic prevails at Port Arthur.

Writing to a friend in St. Petersburg recently, Gen. Stoessel, the commander of Port Arthur, said: "I do not know if we shall ever see each other again. My own decision, orders or no orders, is, however, made. My life is given to Russia—whatever happens, I do not surrender. Port Arthur shall be my tomb."

Japs to Attack Liaoyang

Marquis Oyama, commander-in-chief of the Japanese forces in Manchuria, has proceeded north and expects to attack Liaoyang, Aug. 20.

7 Miles From Fortress.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 9.—A despatch from Mukden, dated Aug. 8, says the fighting at Port Arthur from July 26 to 28 occurred at least seven miles from the fortress, and that not all the guns of the batteries facing inland were engaged.

Firing at Fortress.

Che Foo, Aug. 9.—The firing of heavy guns at intervals of one minute has been distinctly heard in the direction of Port Arthur since 10.30 p.m. yesterday, the accoustic conditions of the atmosphere being unusually favorable.

Two Mines Repaired.

Che Foo, Aug. 9.—A reliable authority says that eight Russian warships participated in the recent three days' battle at Port Arthur. Since then the Sevastopol and the Amur have been repaired.

Two Jap Cruisers Lost.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 9.—A private telegram from Chee Foo, believed to be from the Russian consul there, reports the loss of the Japanese protected cruisers Chiyoda and Itsukushima by the explosion of mines off Port Arthur.

Russians Going North.

Gen. Kuroki's headquarters in the field, via Fusan, Aug. 9.—The Russian forces in front of Gen. Kuroki's army are reported retreating northward. A part of it has encamped at Auping, twelve miles from Liaoyang. Guns were heard yesterday morning on the Japanese right, meaning that possibly the Japanese are following the Russian retirement. The Chinese living at Yangtse Pass, where Count Keller was killed, say that the Russians removed two coffins from that place with great ceremony.

North of Haicheng.

Berlin, Aug. 9.—The Tageblatt yesterday morning prints the following despatch:

Liaoyang, Aug. 9.—The western Russian forces north of Kaichang suffered a heavy attack to-day. Many wounded Russians are here. There is a rumor current that Gen. Kuroki is threatening Mukden from the northeast. Viceroy Alexieff and Gen. Kuropatkin were yesterday in Liaoyang.

RAILWAY COMMISSION.

Began Its Meeting at Winnipeg on Monday Morning.

Winnipeg, Aug. 9.—The opening session of the Railway Commission took place yesterday morning in the board room of the Grain Exchange building, with Mr. Blair as chairman. Dr. Jas. Mills commenced the sitting. Both railroad companies were well represented. Wm. Whyte, W. B. Lanigan and F. W. Peters, with J. E. McMullen of the solicitor's office at Montreal, and Theodore Hunt of the local solicitor's office represented the Canadian Pacific, while for the Canadian Northern A. E. James, G. H. Shaw, with the company's solicitor, J. H. D. Munson, K.C., were present. The Board of Trade was represented by W. Hutchison, president; W. Georgeson and several other members. In opening the proceedings Mr. Blair stated that the Commission was ready to hear any person who wished to bring up any matter which came under the jurisdiction of the board. All the statements would be under oath. The morning session was taken up with excessive transfer charges on the cars of the two railways running into Winnipeg. In the afternoon T. R. Deacon, Manitoba Iron Works, showed the rate for boiler plates from the east was ten cents a hundred higher than on the finished product. This was under consideration at adjournment.

FELL OFF R. & O. STEAMER.

J. A. MacPherson Leading Cheese and Butter Dealer, Browns.

Montreal, Aug. 9.—J. A. MacPherson, one of the leading cheese and butter dealers of the Dominion, fell from the steamer Bohemian yesterday at Coteau Landing, and was drowned. He had been ailing for some months past and was coming from his country home at Stanley Island, accompanied by his physician, Dr. George T. Ross. The body has not yet been recovered.

Over the Falls.

Niagara Falls, Aug. 9.—Yesterday morning about 11.15 o'clock a woman about 55 years old, dressed in black, committed suicide by climbing over the railing of the lower steel arch bridge and plunging to death in the rapids below. The act was witnessed by a tourist and his son. Nothing was left behind which would lead to the identity of the suicide.

Boy's Body Was Found.

St. Catharines, Aug. 9.—On Tuesday last Freddie, the seven-year-old son of L. Lombarde, here, went to Port Dalhousie to fish, disregarding his father's orders to the contrary. He was last seen fishing off the end of the pier. His father and several other men after a search which never lagged, yesterday found the little fellow's body in the lake. He had evidently slipped off the pier.

Found Drowned.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—The body of Patrick Fox, who was missing since last Tuesday, was found in the bay near the Yonge street wharf yesterday. He was 65 years of age and was in the habit of strolling along the water front. John Fox, chief engineer at the O'Keefe Brewery, is a son.

Family in Ontario.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 9.—Wesley Hawley, a motorman employed by the B.C. Electric Company, has been missing since the night of the men's outing on Thursday last. He was then seen last in the dancing pavilion, North Vancouver, and it is feared that he either fell off the wharf or off the ferry-boat. Search parties are out, but so far have not recovered the body. Hawley was a widower and has a family in Ontario.

Explosion in Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—By the bursting of a five-inch steam pipe in the engine room of the Toronto Street Railway power house at 1 o'clock this morning, three men received bad scalp scalds. The break was caused by over-pressure on the pipe, which led from the boiler to the engine. Joseph Casey, —— Perry and Joseph Hughes were the victims, but Casey is the worst his arm and hand being fearfully scalded.

Shaft Pierced Horse.

Guelph, Aug. 9.—John Vogt, hotelkeeper of Morriston, met with an accident Sunday while driving within a hundred yards of his house. A vehicle, driven by two young men from Freelton, ran into him. The shaft struck Vogt's horse, running through its side. Mr. Vogt was thrown out and injured rather seriously. The horse was killed.

RUSSIA MUST YIELD.

Important Statement on the Knight Commander Case By Premier Balfour—Secretary Hay on Contraband.

London, Aug. 9.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Premier Balfour, replying to a question on the subject, said the British Government adhered to its contention that there was no adequate justification for the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander by the Vladivostock squadron.

The Premier made a general statement of the Government's views on the Malacca and the Knight Commander incidents. He pointed out that the Government's objection to the seizure of the Malacca was based entirely on the British contention that ships issuing from the Black Sea under the commercial flag of Russia were incompetent to transport themselves into cruisers.

"We remonstrated, therefore, very strongly with the Russian Government, and they showed a desire to meet us," continued Mr. Balfour; "but an important thing to remember is that it is an entirely new issue. It is the first time any such incident has occurred since the Treaty of Paris, or the Treaty of London, on which our objection is based, have come into existence. If the Russian Government was right in its contention, the captors of the Malacca would have had the right to take her to a Russian port, and before a prize court. If we were right there was no justification for her seizure.

"Our object was to prevent this new incident developing into one which would cause a great strain between the two countries—a condition of strain which might very easily, in my opinion, have developed further. The actual arrangement reached was, therefore, in the nature of a compromise."

Secretary Hay's Declaration.

Washington, Aug. 9.—The recognition in principle of the treatment of coal and other fuel and raw cotton as absolutely contraband of war might ultimately lead to a total inhibition of the sale by neutrals to the people of belligerent States, of all articles which could be finally converted to military uses. Such an extension of the principle by treating coal and other fuel and raw cotton as absolutely contraband of war, simply because they are equipped by a neutral to a non-blockaded port of a belligerent would not appear to be in accord with the reasonable and lawful rights of a neutral commerce." This is a summary of a declaration by Secretary Hay on the right of neutral nations during war.

Mortgage For $5,000,000.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Aug. 9.—A big mortgage has been recorded in Welland County on the Canadian side of the river, being for $5,000,000, being given by the Canadian Niagara Power Company to the Toronto Trust Company. It covers all the power company's property, real and personal, together with plants, rights, privileges, etc.

Toulon Fire Spreading.

Toulon, France, Aug. 9.—The fire which broke out at the arsenal here at midnight yesterday is still spreading, in spite of the desperate efforts of the firemen, troops and sailors, who are encouraged by the presence of generals, admirals and other officers. Two ships, on one of which is a torpedo gunboat, are in flames, and are momentarily expected to collapse. Several soldiers have been injured, one of them fatally.

Canadian Boat Wins.

Montreal, Aug. 9.—The third race for the Sewanahaka Cup, which was sailed on Lake St. Louis yesterday afternoon over a straight away course, two miles to windward and return, sailed over three times, resulted in a victory for the Canadian boat Neorna, which finished three minutes 45 seconds ahead of the American boat, the White Bear. The Canadian boat was nearly a mile ahead at the finish.

LIGHTNING BURNED CRUCIFIX ON BACK

Mysterious Picture Appears on Victim of Bolt.

EMBLEM HUNG ABOVE BED.

Presentment did not Appear for Some Time After the Accident—No Explanation of Mystery.

Morristown, N.J., Aug. 7.—Abbett Parker was struck by lightning here, and the fire burned a perfect crucifix on his back. Here and there a bit of skin where the picture appears has begun to peel off, but the picture itself is as distinct and clear cut, its details are as perfect and exact as when the Gray Nuns in Ah Soull's Hospital, who were bathing the injured man's back, were startled to see an image of Christ upon the cross appear before their eyes.

That in some mysterious manner a large crucifix (which hangs directly above the head of the bed upon which Parker was laid is connected with the picture upon the man's back will probably be generally accepted as a partial explanation of the phenomenon, but, in fact, it rather serves to deepen the mystery.

That the picture of the Crucifixion on Parker's back is similar to the sculptured presentment of the crucifixion which hung a few feet above his head leaves it as much as ever a mystery how the picture came to be painted with a breath of fire. For that is what appears actually to have occurred.

Parker was struck by lightning as he stood beneath a large maple tree, under whose branches he had sought shelter. His clothes were partly torn from his body, and when he was picked up it appeared that his back had been burned severely.

PICTURE APPEARED LATER.

But at that time there was no picture of the Crucifixion to be seen, nor anything resembling it. Within a short time the man was removed to All Souls' Hospital, where his burns were dressed, and it was only during the operation of bathing his back with alcohol and water that the picture of the Crucifixion began to appear, faint at first, but soon clear and distinct in detail.

At least 60 minutes passed from the moment when Parker was struck by lightning before the picture began to be visible, and it did not appear at all until after he had been lying on a bed in the hospital with the crucifix hanging directly above his head.

At first it was thought that it might be the work of a tattooer, but Parker denies this, and an expert who examined the impression promptly disposed of this theory.

Dr. Dumble, who has had charge of Parker, said:—

"There are so many mysterious factors in the case that one can only accept the facts as having occurred and admit that the explanation of them is beyond him. Of course, the lightning is responsible, but how it wrought this miracle is another matter entirely, and one which I shall not attempt to explain."

$50,000,000 of Timber Burned.

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 8.—Renewed outbreaks of forest fires have caused widespread destruction throughout the colony. A number of settlements have been destroyed in different localities, and the outskirts of St. John's are now being threatened. It is estimated that $20,000,000 worth of marketable timber has been destroyed in the interior this season.

Louis Tellston Arrested.

Hamilton, Aug. 8.—Two or three days ago Louis Tellston, a Vinemount man, was arrested, and his arrest was kept dark. Saturday morning he was brought to the police court on the charge of giving Miss Jessie Lee pills for criminal purposes, and the prisoner was remanded for a week, while the Crown is preparing the evidence.

Over 50,000 on Strike.

New York, Aug. 9.—The general lockout against unions in the building trades, whose members have recently ordered strikes, went into effect yesterday. The number of men affected by the lockout is variously estimated at from 50,000 to 100,000. The plan yesterday repudiated the general arbitration plan signed a year ago.

Young women may avoid much sickness and pain, says Miss Alma Pratt, if they will only have faith in the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls, Mrs. Pinkham believes that our girls are often pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries.

Nothing is allowed to interfere with studies, the girl must be pushed to the front and graduated with honor; often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality,—often it is never recovered. Miss Pratt says,—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely run-down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months.

"I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weakness."—MISS ALMA PRATT, Holly, Mich.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

UNION LABEL

Daily Examiner.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 9, 1904.

NEW ONTARIO CITIZENS.

A report issued by the Commissioner of Crown Lands, Toronto, includes a statement of the arrivals at the Ontario Government immigration office, at the Union Station, Toronto, for the first six months of each year from 1890 to 1904, inclusive, as follows:—

1890	780
1900.....	912
1901...	1289
1902.....	2729
1903.....	6678
1904...	8403

It will be noticed that when the Ross Government took the reins of power, the annual additions to our population as represented by the above table amounts to only 912, while for the corresponding six months of this year the incoming immigrants numbered 8,403, an increase of nearly nine fold or over 900 per cent. At this rate of increase, the annual increase to the population will in another five years amount to 75,000 per year. This is pleasing evidence of the growth and development of this province, from which growth of population to a large extent, there is a corresponding possession and development of our unoccupied lands. The character of this increased influx of settlers is also satisfactory. The new comers are, for the most part, natives of one or the other of the British Isles—who change their sky, but not their flag. They encounter the same civil institutions and the same habits of thought with the modifications which the newer conditions of Canada impose. Those who have had agricultural training in the old land will speedily adapt themselves to Ontario soil methods and conditions, and will with thrift, be able to occupy farms of their own. There are millions of acres in New Ontario, which, thanks to the liberal policy and progressive action of the Liberal Government of Ontario, are open for settlement and provided with railway accommodation. What this country wants is population of the right stamp. We have farm lands waiting for millions, and with their occupation, by the demands which will be created, the manufacturing and commercial interests of the country will be given proportionate employment.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The immorality amongst high-up British officials is shocking. We have the example of a trusted British envoy flagrantly disregarding his marriage vows — a Younghusband attempting an intimacy with a Lhassa.

The Britisher won't listen to taxation on his food. Two bye-election contests in England were yesterday held, and two Liberals were elected over Conservative candidates. They were the representative of untaxed food stuffs.

Lord Dundonald has arrived safely at Liverpool. He refused to be interviewed respecting the cause of his departure from Canada. He decided not to say anything until he reported himself at the War Office. If he had exercised a similar reticence and respect for authority in Canada he would have shown more wisdom than he did in consenting to become a party to political kite-flying in this country.

One alien Grand Trunk engineer is trying to save his bacon. Mr. J. H. Bacon, who has acted as Grand Trunk Harbour Engineer at Port Arthur, has been notified to quit the country, because he is an alien. He is fighting the order, and has engaged a lawyer. But the probability is that he will have to go. The Government has decided that Canadian engineers are good enough for Canadian service. It will be remembered that the Canadian Society of Amalgamated Engineers on July 2nd made a definite charge against Bacon to Sir William Mulock, saying that he was making reports to the United States Government. If this be true, he should have short shrift. It is unjust enough that American engineers should occupy positions in Canada, which Canadian engineers are competent and ready to fill, without allowing them to act in the capacity of spies for a foreign government.

THE "INDEPENDENT" NEWSPAPER.

Chicago British-American.

Some of the Canadian newspapers of strictly Conservative proclivities have been of late congratulating the public, with what sincerity we may well imagine, on the existence of a so-called "independent" press. That is because they have occasional opportunity to quote criticism of the Liberal Government from a pretended independent source. The Tory organ gives up its editorial space to proclaim — "We quote from the Periodical Prevaricator, (or whatever its name may be), an independent paper with Liberal bearings," etc. It sounds so fetching and effective to be able to present an opponent as one who is "wounded in the house of his friends." As a matter of fact, however, the independent political newspaper is like the core in a stingy boy's apple—"There ain't none." The journal that is really independent, as all newspapers are that have a legitimate place in journalism, is that one which, having satisfied itself, as to the policies and the leadership that, according to its wisdom, are best calculated to promote the public interest and welfare, gives itself with sincere earnestness to the support of the men and the principles of its choice, declining to be led away from such loyal support by any petty differences of opinion, or to allow unimportant trivialities to obscure the greater objects for which parties are brought into being. In all countries where constitutional government obtains, two parties, growing out of divergent tendencies of the public thought, are existent and inevitable, and indispensable to a healthy public life — the party of progress, and the party of caution and conservatism, called by what name they may be, always having the same raison d'etre, the same objects, and the same essential usefulness in the public life in which they are factors. But the so-called "independent" in the forses of politics, is a creature without fixed principles of any kind — in newspaper life just the wild ass's colt upon the highway of journalism. So far indeed from being really and healthily independent, it is the slave generally of such morbid vanity that to see itself quoted as an authority by one party or another, it readily resorts to the grossest injustice, and while posing in affected friendship, uses the stiletto of the assassin with a cold-blooded brutality, that the honest and hard-hitting partizan journal would scorn to resort to. Vain of this kind of notoriety is this perverted "critter" that it mistakes the sound of its own "hee haw!" on the hill side of publicity as a veritable trumpet of fame. The only time such an "independent" is found actually and really in earnest is when the venality always at the bottom of its professions has found a profitable patron, when it will be observed swallowing any former conflicting ideas with cheerful alacrity, and out-Herioding Herod in zeal for its temporarily espoused opinions. Rause mit the "independent" newspaper.

NEWSPAPER MEN INTERVIEW LIONS.

An Experience Which a Former Peterborough Man Passed Through.

As a feature of the Winnipeg Exposition on Wednesday, August 5th, representatives of the daily press, W. J. Jeffers, R. J. Burde, Harold Littledale, late of the Examiner, Joseph Keeler and Jimmy Hewitt, were invited to enter a cage of lions, and the Telegram says:

"Burde at once turned his back to the lions and puffed at a cigar with the complacency of one of Aesop's fleas. The others stood facing the animals, with one eye on the door. The knights of the quill were then introduced to the denizens of the forest. Orpheus, the man eater, who is credited with five victims already, seemed to be interested at first, but put on a look of disdain when he saw the party, while another old fellow simply closed his eyes with a sleepy expression as if he were bored. The lioness however descended from her stool and looked vicious. Col. Mundy at once stopped the men leaving the cage until she was back in position. A cheer for the courage of the men was given by the audience before they left."

SULLIVAN'S ONSLAUGHT ON PATENT MEDICINES.

The Kingston Senior Denounces Popular Nostrums.

Ottawa, Aug. 5.—(Special.)— That men are being duped and women made drunkards by the indiscriminate sale of proprietary medicines was the bold charge made in the senate to-day by Michael Sullivan, M. D., of Kingston. Many of these medicines, he declared, contained 40 per cent. and more of whiskey; while good Holland contained 25 per cent. and lager beer only from 2 to 5 per cent. The pernicious compounds were sold freely as vegetable compounds.

"It is a fearful thing," said Senator Sullivan, "to think of a government granting the power to poison their own people."

He admitted that testimonials could be readily furnished, but he said he could go out into the street and for 25 cents get a poor fellow to give him a testimonial about any disease he liked to inflict on him and have a fresh disease every day.

Celery compound he said was made up largely of alcohol. These things were dangerous to the home. Peruna had no special signification. It was almost all whiskey. An excellent thing to go fishing with. If the advertisements were cut away the sale of these things would cease. He commended Sir William Mulock for his intention to keep advertisements of these things out of the mails. Many a woman had been made a drunkard and the home ruined by these things.

When he was a student he was warned against giving tinctures, which were merely alcoholic solutions of substances water would not dissolve. Brown's chlorat contained morphia and would corrupt anybody.

Senator Sullivan hung up this harsh indictment on a motion for a statement showing the names of all the liquid mixtures known as patent or proprietary medicines purporting to remove the most varied forms of disease occurring in the human body, showing the amount of money, if any, the importer, maker, mixer, or vendor paid to the government as special tax of license, and to whom paid, likewise if the government has any knowledge of the ingredients which are employed to make these compounds, and what proportion of waste rand alcohol is contained in them.

Hon. R. W. Scott said the senate was grateful for Sullivan's speech.

Senator Wilson expressed the hope that the government would take the matter up.

The motion passed.

PERRY WAS THE IDOL OF THE BISLEY RANGES.

Winner of the King's Prize Personally Congratulated by the Prince of Wales.

The London Daily Post, just to hand, gives a full description of how Perry won the King's Prize at Bisley.

It was half past twelve when the competitors in the final "Hundred" got together. The fine sunlight was tempered by an ideal "seven o'clock" wind from the left rear of the firing point. This was favourable to high scoring.

During the last rounds for the 1,000 yards, the Prince of Wales, in general's uniform, came on the range accompanied by Earl Roberts, Major General Lord Cheylesmore, Earl Waldegrave and Brigadier-General Sir Henry Aubrey-Fletcher. There was then a light rain. Pte. J. Powell, 2nd King's Liverpool Regiment, had just made a range total of 49 points and began to look like a winner. Irvine, the New Zealander, considered another likely one, scored a miss through a bad cartridge.

Perry had never left the "inner" ring, and all his "inners" were closer to the "bull". With a range total of 47 his aggregate was 221 points.

PRESENTED TO THE PRINCE.

As soon as Perry's victory became known Captain Simpson, staff officer, presented the winner to the Prince.

"I congratulate you," said his royal Highness, "on having won the King's Prize with so fine a score. I am very pleased to have seen you and I am gratified that for the second time Canada has carried off the gold medal."

The Prince chatted with the victor, asking questions about his age, occupation, shoot record, etc., and added, "We are all very proud of the loyalty and devotion of the colonies to the Empire."

Perry, amid the excitement, "kept cool and smiling. Earl Roberts recognizing him as a comrade in South Africa, slapped him on the shoulder and said: "I never shall forget how nobly and gallantly the Canadians behaved at a critical moment at Paardeberg."

Perry was then hoisted into the chair of "the conquering hero" and carried by his Canadian comrades. At the Princess' carriage they halted while the Princess shook hands with the winner. After that he was borne to the Canadian pavilion and various other camps where his health was drunk. Perry drank merely a bumper of ginger ale.

Col. Anderson, the Canadian commandant, received numerous telegrams of congratulation, among them being a message from Princess Louise and the Duke of Argyll, one from Lord Minto and another from Mayor Wiggins of Vancouver.

MEAT-EATERS VS. VEGETARIANS.

Discussion in the Toronto Star on Peterborough Man's Achievement.

The Beef-eater Replies—A Further Race may yet be Arranged.

An interesting discussion has been commenced in the Toronto Star, on the swimming race on Monday, in which Mr. H. P. Strickland, a Peterborough boy made the best time. The "Beef-eater" writes to the Star as follows:—

Editor of The Star: My attention has been drawn to the article in your paper of the 2nd instant headed "Vegetarians in the swim," and as I am the "Beef-eating Englishman" concerned I would like you to print the true facts of the case. In the first place there was not two Englishmen in the race—only one. In the second place, you ought to have said that I was on scratch and had to give the winner 43 minutes start. In the second man I had to give 17 minutes start. When I was half way across the bay the people in the boat accompanying me told me that Land had finished, so I got into the boat and rowed the remainder of the course. We just came up to the second man at the winning post, so this will show what chance the "Beef-eating Englishman" had of winning. I would like to ask Messrs. Strickland and Corson why they have not entered for the Canadian champions ships on Saturday, when they would meet me on equal terms. Surely if they are swimming so well on peanuts and pea butter they would carry all before them. Your suggestion of a race of two miles between beef-eaters and vegetarians is a splendid idea, and I am willing to give up important engagements in England so that I may have a fair chance of competing with them. I may say that not until I read your article was I aware that either Mr. Strickland or Mr. Corson were vegetarians, and I am proud to think that a Canadian swimmer in England would be treated with at least fairness. Please give this letter equal prominence with your article.

Respectfully yours,
WILL H. JONES,
Mark Addy, S.C., England.

To the above letter the Star, editorially replies:—

In another column is published a letter from Mr. Will H. Jones, the English swimmer, in which he says he is willing to represent beef-eaters against vegetarians in a two mile race. Is Mr. H. F Strickland prepared to enter such a race for the glory of vegetarianism?

Mr. Jones tells how it was that he dropped out of the race. It was not because he was a meat-eater. He was scratch man, and when half way across he was told that Land had landed. Land was allowed the remarkable handicap of 43 minutes. Jones quit—why should he go on? Strickland, the vegetarian, however, who started three minutes ahead of Jones and forty behind Land, did not quit, but pushed on, making the distance in fifty minutes. It was the finest swim of the day.

Mr. Jones from England must not suppose The Star has a prejudice against eaters of meat. Far from it. We do not want to learn that pea butter is a better food than beefsteak. We know nothing about pea butter and much about beef. But the fact remains that a vegetarian made the best swim in that two mile race. Even pea butter ought to get fair play. It is with regret that we hear that the vegetarian swimmers are not entered in to-morrow's race, where they could meet Mr. Jones on equal terms. But perhaps another race can be arranged.

Taken With Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus.

HELD BACK A REPORT

Hon. R. W. Scott Severely Criticizes Lord Dundonald.

THE ANTI-DUMPING CLAUSE

Amended So As Not to Apply Where Duty Amounts to Fifty Per Cent., Nor in Small Changes—A Number of Railway Subsidies Revoted—Several Questions Answered.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Eleven questions occupied the attention of the House yesterday morning, most of them of a rather technical character. Mr. Leanox's question about the rumor of a company being formed to take over the Davis contract on the Cornwall Canal was dropped at his request.

Mr. Boyd. (Macdonald, Man.) was informed that the drawbacks of customs duty paid to manufacturers of agricultural implements during the year ended June 30, 1904, was $113,474; divided as follows: J. W. Mann Mfg. Co., $704; Verity Plough Co., $10,748; Massey-Harris, $89,-380; D. Maxwell & Sons, $2,454; Moxon & Co., $4,126; Cockshutt Plough Co., $5,696; Tolton Bros., $69; B. Bell & Son, $302.

The Valleyfield Cotton Company.

Mr. Leonard had a long question on the order paper relating to the reduction of their employes by the Valleyfield Cotton Company. It embodied a statement by the company that they had been much affected by the British preference, and but for it the Valleyfield mills would be fully employed. Mr. Leonard wanted to know whether the Government had received any copies of the correspondence that had taken place between residents of the town, who had petitioned the Town Council for relief, and the Town Council and the company. Mr. Fielding replied: "The information referred to was communicated to the Government. The cause of the difficulties which have occurred in the cotton trade throughout the world is probably a matter of debate, and we are not prepared to express any opinion in regard to the hon. gentleman's question at present."

The Tobacco Duties.

In answer to Mr. Henderson, the Minister of Customs stated that the total amount of customs duty paid on tobacco during the last fiscal year was $604,555. Of this sum, $138,294 was attributable to the change of the tariff in 1897. The total amount of duty collected by the Inland Revenue Department during the same year was $5,179,736, of which $1,587,-224 was derived from the increased duties in 1897.

Sir Richard Cartwright informed Mr. Henderson that for the twelve months ended June 30th the sum of $880,549 was paid in bounties on iron and steel.

The Railway Resolves.

The railway resolutions were disposed of yesterday in committee. They are all revotes, but yet were discussed almost as freely as though submitted to Parliament for the first time.

Customs Resolutions.

Last night was given up to a debate upon the customs resolutions in Committee of the Whole. Chief among them is the anti-dumping provision, which was amended in two particulars. In the first place, the anti-dumping penalty is not to apply where the duty on the importation is 50 per cent. or more. In the second place, the Minister of Customs will have discretionary powers as to its application where the difference between the entry value and fair market value is but slight. Mr. Brock catechized the Government as to the application of the anti-dumping clause, and affirmed that the easiest way to prevent slaughtering would be to raise the duties.

Prerogative Problematical.

It is not yet clear when Parliament will prorogue, but on Thursday the Governor may be able to relieve the legislators from their duties. Mr. Borden has gone home, and so also has the chief Whip of the Conservative party, but there are half a dozen Conservatives left who apparently do not consider themselves bound by any agreement which their leader has made.

HELD BACK REPORT.

Lord Dundonald's Conduct Severely Commented on By Hon. R. W. Scott—Unworthy of a Gentleman.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—The death of the late Senator Aikens was the subject of sympathetic comment when the Upper House convened yesterday. Hon. R. W. Scott, who brought the matter up, referred to the dead man's long political career. He was a man who stood very high in the opinion of all public men. Beginning life as an ardent Liberal, he in 1864, realizing the necessity of confederation, and being much thrown into the society of Sir John Macdonald, became a Conservative. Mr. Aikins never was a bitter politician, but was greatly esteemed by all. Now he had gone to his rest, full of honor and regretted by all who were associated with him.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell endorsed all that Mr. Scott had said in the late Senator's praise. He did not think Mr. Aikins had a personal enemy.

Hon. Mr. Kerr, Toronto, spoke of the late Senator's wide knowledge and great capacity. He lived respected and died regretted by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Hon. Mr. Young said that Mr. Aikins was highly respected and greatly regretted in Manitoba, where he filled a higher position than in the Senate.

Following the example of the House of Commons, an address expressing regret at the approaching retirement of Lord Minto and appreciation of his services was adopted.

The Senate settled down to business and took up the militia bill in committee.

Lord Dundonald Suppressed Report.

When the provision dealing with the retirement of officers and men of the militia was reached Sir Mackenzie Bowell urged that it ought to provide that cause must be shown for dispensing with the services of officers. The debate drifted into talk upon the action of Lieut.-Colonel Ponton of Belleville in criticizing the disbandment of the third special service battalion, R. C. R., at Halifax, at the close of the South African war. It appears that inquiry was ordered into Colonel Ponton's utterances, and the report was transmitted in due course to Lord Dundonald. His Lordship, however, did not transmit it to the Minister of Militia, his superior, until after the Massey Hall meeting in Toronto, at which the former used the expression that he stood between the tyrant and his prey. To-night the Secretary of State declared that Lord Dundonald's action was unworthy of an officer or a gentleman. The Senate reached the 79th clause in the militia bill, and adjourned at 12.15 a.m.

To Build Dogfish Factories.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—The proposed payment of bounties for the destruction of dogfish has been abandoned by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. In its place he will construct three factories in the Marftime Provinces for the reduction of dogfish offal into oil, glue, etc. Each of these factories will cost about $9,000.

COMMAND OF THE SEAS.

Will Pass to the U.S. in Ten Years Says Mr. T. A. Brassey.

London, Aug. 9.—(C.A.P.)—At Hatfield Hon. T. A. Brassey, reviewing the comparative strength of our navy and those of foreign countries, said that in ten years the command of the seas will have passed from the United Kingdom to the United States. He arrived at this conclusion because at the present moment the States had considerably more battleships building than were being constructed for the British navy, and because the resources of the States were greater than those of the United Kingdom. The resources of the States, however, were not equal to those of the United Kingdom combined with those of the colonies, and one reason he was a tariff reformer was because he held that through some form of commercial federation we should obtain such a result as would enable us to maintain our navy at a strength securing us the command of the seas.

VERDICT RE MINERS.

Webbwood Mine Shafts Had Not Been Cleared of Deadly Gases.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—The death of the six miners at Webbwood, as shown at the inquest, was due to carelessness. The ventilation on the lower workings of the mine was poor, and it was customary after a blast to blow air into the workings. The fatal blast was fired at 6 p.m. and at 7 next morning four miners descended, though the engineer neglected to blow air into the shaft. When the men shouted the engineer hurried to their aid, instead of rectifying his mistake in the proper way. Manager MacMillan, when informed, turned on the air pressure, waited on the surface a quarter of an hour and then descended to his death. W. H. H. Carter of the Bureau of Mines, says the evidence went to show that curiosity to see the value of the stringer uncovered impelled the miners to unusual haste, and led to their asphyxiation. The Department will not take any action.

EARTHQUAKE IN NEW ZEALAND.

Several Public Buildings Damaged in Wellington Monday.

Wellington, N. Z., Aug. 9.—The heaviest earthquake which New Zealand has experienced in many years occurred at 10.12 o'clock yesterday morning. Several public buildings were seriously damaged, and private firms also suffered heavy loss. The shock was general on both islands. No loss of life has been reported.

Lightning Causes Big Loss.

Fergus, Aug. 9.—Another disastrous storm passed over here Sunday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock. There was a very heavy rain, with hail, which could be gathered up in pails full. It was accompanied with wind and severe thunder and lightning. One flash struck in the corner of Alex. Brown's magnificent barn on the Belwood road, two miles out, and in an instant the blaze was seen in the barn from the house. It, and all its contents, were soon destroyed. Nothing could be saved. There was insurance to the amount of about $3,500, but the loss will be heavy.

Invited to Return to Egypt.

London, Aug. 9.—The Canadian Associated Press representative learns that Sir Edouard Percy Girouard will be invited to return to the Egyptian service. Lord Cromer is anxious that Girouard should again be reassociated with the Egyptain administration. A formal request to this effect is to be made to the War Office.

Violent Attack of Diarrhoea Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Perhaps a Life Saved.

"A short time ago I was taken with a violent attack of diarrhoea and believe I would have died if I had not gotten relief," says John J. Patton, a leading citizen of Patton, Ala. "A friend recommended Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I bought a twenty-five cent bottle and after taking three doses of it was entirely cured. I consider it the best remedy in the world for bowel complaints. For sale by all druggists.
